Vol. XI. (Published Weekly) MONTREAL AND TORONTO, SEPTEMBER 10, 1897 ($2.00 per Year) No. 37

TO WHOM SHALL WE EXTEND CREDIT?*

By B. G. McMechen.

THE average credit man needs no advice as to how this important question should be answered. He knows full well how to judge of a man's credit standing when the facts are clearly spread before him and fully realizes his plain duty and to what extent, if at all, he should extend credit.

The question asked is propounded to the National Association of Credit Men in convention here assembled, and it occurs to me that good results might be derived from an open and thorough discussion of this subject by the convention. Are the members of this association prepared to join in formulating and will they abide by methods which will properly protect the honest debtor, and likewise protect the creditor as against the schemes of the dishonest debtor? Will they be honest in the exchange of information concerning their customers, reporting actual facts where they are at liberty to do so?

What will the members of this association do towards establishing a higher standard of credit! Credit is too cheap. It has become a drug in the market, and credit men, or the firms and stock companies with which they are connected, are responsible for this condition. When the unscrupulous or the irresponsible merchant comes to you and wants to buy your goods on time, you have your goods in your warehouse and you are master of the situation. Fill his order, transfer the goods to him, and the situation is reversed; he has your goods in his store and nine cases out of ten he is master of the situation.

If, upon investigation, your conscience and your experience tell you that the man seeking credit is not entirely worthy of it, say No, and stand firmly by your decision.

The goods in your store make better assets than worthless accounts, and the former will, at least, net you a good percentage of the cost, while the latter will, in all probability, net you nothing; with, perhaps, an attorney's fee thrown in by way of premium.

Eagerness to sell goods and increase sales over those of previous years frequently gives the fraudulent debtor an opportunity to lay his plans for another dishonest failure and may lead the man with insufficient capital to overstock himself beyond his ability to pay, thereby compelling him to secure extensions from his creditors or to make an assignment.

Let each credit man stand firm in his own honest convictions of rights and duty and dispense credit only where it is merited, compelling the irresponsible and the dishonest merchant to pay cash for his goods, or go without.

Educate your customers to understand that you are not speculating on their accounts, that you are selling them goods because you know you will get your pay. Keep their accounts well in hand and command their respect as well as their trade, by holding them to their promises, while you keep your promises to them.

When it is necessary to have a property statement there should be no trouble to procure one. The man who refuses to give a property statement, when asked for one, has his own good reasons for refusing, and in that case the wise credit man will keep his goods and let the other man keep his reasons.

Let the trade understand that your house is not run on philanthropic principles, and that the credit man is not the patron of a foundling hospital where infant industries are nursed.

Business men can be and should be public spirited, and may even be philanthropists, but you will always note that the successful business men do not dispense philanthropy from their credit departments.

The man who has sufficient capital in his business to enable him to conduct it properly, who is honest, and possesses the necessary ability for the successful management of his business, does not cause the credit man to worry.

The people who worry the credit man are the men who are trying to do a large credit business on too small a capital, the reckless buyer who does not keep a clean and well-trimmed stock, the man who is careless of his promise to pay, and allows his creditors' drafts to be returned, the man who is reckless as to whom he trusts and negligent in the matter of making collections, the man who is extravagant in his living and business methods, the all-round incompetent man and the man who is always asking for more time.

These are the kind of merchants with whom the credit man must labor and over whose accounts he must keep close vigil.

But so far as the habitual fraud is concerned, the man who is known to be dishonest and has, perhaps, one or more dishonest failures to his credit, the honest and sterling credit man will not consider him for a moment, except on a cash basis. Life is too short to justify our worrying over the trade of this class of people.

Of course, we are all liable to err in our judgment, and through misrepresentation the dishonest man sometimes creeps in on our books. As soon as we find that we were deceived, and are obliged to take steps to save our account we should give our fellow members the benefit of our experience to the end that the fraud may not impose upon them, and that he may be held up to the world as an object totally unworthy of credit.

The ideal and most valuable credit man is the one who will authorize the least amount of credit where credit should not be given, and with the son of Erin I wish to say that the best way to save an undesirable account is not to create it. In many large concerns the credit and collection departments are handled under separate heads, but usually all are under the direction of the head of the credit department.

It is not my purpose here to touch upon collection methods or collection laws, although God knows they need to be touched upon.

But I do desire to impress upon your minds the great value you can be to yourself, your house, and to this association by declining to fill, in every instance, orders from merchants whom you know to be unworthy of credit; at the same time informing this association, through its secrerary, of your actions and your reasons for the same.

This to my mind is the greatest good that we can accomplish for each other and for the association.

I do not mean that we should become a general reporting body, nor that we should compete with our commercial agencies in the matter of furnishing reports, but that we should co-operate in the matter of shutting out as credit customers all those who are known to be dishonest, or for other good reasons are known to be unworthy of credit.

A system for disseminating information of this character could be made very simple and would not require the outlay of much money by the association, or entail a lot of unnecessary machinery.

Weekly or semi-weekly bulletins could be issued by the secretary and mailed to local associations and individual members. Forms to be used for this purpose need not be elaborate, nor the reports long drawn out. All we would want would be the actual facts, and those members who were interested in any particular case should know how to appreciate the information, and the proper use to make of it.

Let there be no deception practised in furnishing this information, but let us be honest, and let us have the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, or else withhold the information altogether.

The time usually granted the retail dealer should be shortened; the practice of long dating is pernicious, and has, of itself, caused many good men to fail. The members of this association should use their influence with their respective houses to have this evil corrected.

If you are to be held morally responsible for the sales you approve, you should have something to do with the regulating the time on which goods are sold, and the matter of time granted should be carefully considered by you while passing upon the credits.

The average man in business would rather do right than wrong, and would not obligate himself beyond his ability to pay if allowed to use his own judgment, but he is sometimes misled by the eager salesman, who tells him that he will not be crowded for the pay, that he can have all the extra time he wants if he will just write to the firm and ask for it.

Under these and other verbal promises the retail dealer is frequently induced to buy twice as many goods as trade conditions would warrant, and when the bill is due the credit man has trouble on his hands for which he is not responsible, and the dealer gets his extension.

This is one of the little irregularities that the credit man can and should correct, and in so doing render a service to his house as well as to the dealer.

There are other matters that are considerably out of joint in the present system of jobbing goods, which materially interfere with the proper settlement of accounts, and unnecessarily complicate the work of the credit man and bring harm instead of good to the retailer. It may not come within the province of this association to take action on these matters, but the individual credit man has the right and should lose no opportunity to urge reform wherever needed, in matters affecting the handling of credits in his own department.

The past year has been a campaign of education for credit men; they seem to have awakened to a new life and new hope; all of us have profited more or less by the instructions we have had, and the examples that have been set for us.

Let us, therefore, continue in the good work; let us have confidence in each other, and in our association; let us give credit only to those who in our best judgment are worthy of credit; and let us build up a great bulwark of protection to the end that we may establish the highest possible standard of credit throughout the land, and prove by our great achievements that this association was born for a noble purpose.

HIGH FIGURES IN RAISINS.

In its issue of August 28 The California Fruit Grower reviews the situation in raisins on the Coast as follows: "The situation is much the same, except that those with goods to offer are asking ¼c. above last week's prices. We learn that a few contracts are being made at 3½c. for well cured stock in the sweatbox. Packers generally are not buying or selling. Curing is under way and fixed prices will not be generally made until growers are ready to make deliveries. Last season at this time three-fifths of the crop was under contract to packers; hundreds of cars had been sold to eastern buyers, and all early deliveries were packed and shipped at once to fill orders. This had the tendency to strengthen the market for later deliveries in the sweatbox, hence as the season advanced prices advanced. The situation is reversed this season. Prices have reached high figures, with very few crops under contract and with the eastern trade yet to be supplied. This is a growers' market and they will have to keep a watchful eye upon prices at time of delivery, or there is sure to be a slump owing to the anxiety of growers to all sell at once at the high prices. Those who have raisins to fill orders with are asking 3¼c., 4¼c. and 5¼ to 5½c. f.o.b. for 2, 3 and 4-crown, respectively. These prices are about ½c. above eastern buyers' views, hence business in future raisins is quiet at this time."

FUN OR BUSINESS.

THERE is a proper time to do everything that is ever properly done. A time for fun exists, and some people seem to think they could not exist long without fun, but there is such a thing as being too funny, or funny at the wrong time. "Have you seen the new clerk down at Brown's?" a young lady remarks to a friend. Why, he's just perfectly jolly; makes you feel just as if you had always been acquainted with him." But this is how it was a month later, when the new had worn off: "Say, ma, can't I get these things just as well at Smith's? I don't like to trade with that idiot down at Brown's; he's too full of gas. Don't you think he's awfully familiar?"

People can't get over the idea that the demeanor of clerks while they are in the store is on their account. If the clerk is polite and attentive, confining his conversation almost wholly to the business in hand, the customer is sure to be pleased. Very often it occurs that a good customer is deeply offended at a show of jesting and mirth between clerks where she is trading, because she thinks she is the object of their half-concealed fun-making. She was wrong, and they were not making fun of her at all; but their "fooling" was out of place, and they will have no opportunity to make an explanation. By a simple indiscretion a good customer is lost.

Merchants should hire their help for business. It should not be expected that a clown or practical joker will draw trade by these special qualifications. It is the quality, assortment and price of the goods which attract trade, when coupled with uniformly respectful and attentive treatment. Your smart young man, who attempts to show his own keenness by talking faster than you can and criticising all your neighbors to your face, only incites your disgust. You feel sure that to the next customer he criticises you.

Clerks should have a clear idea what they were hired for, what part is properly theirs in the numerous transactions taking place every day, and let business be the main object during business hours. No other manner shows so much ability, or is so satisfactory to employer and patrons. The every-day transactions of the ordinary country store combine sufficient opportunities for any young man or woman to reveal their true worth.

Customers will be doing no injustice to anyone, and may very often be of valuable service to a merchant who deserves their support, by letting their likes and dislikes be known to the proprietor himself. "Mr. Brown," said a rather particular lady, "won't you please wait upon me this time. I can never seem to make Green understand what I want as well as I do you." Or, on the other hand, one says: "Mr. Brown, is Charley in the store this morning? I always trade with him when I can." Ordinary expressions like these are not uncommon, and by just these slight incidents the correct or injudicious clerk is revealed. This is a practical matter, and one involving profit or loss to every retail merchant.—Bulletin and Trade.

GROCERY CLERKS' CONCERT.

The regular meeting of the Montreal Retail Grocery Clerks' Association was held at St. Joseph's Hall Sept. 5, with President Beauvais in the chair. It was decided to hold their fourth annual concert at Le Monument Nationale Hall on Tuesday evening, Sept. 21. The proceeds are to go for the support of the library. The concert will be under the direction of Mr. L. Petitjean.

Two strong companies will strive to secure the contract for supplying Chatham with natural gas for lighting and heating. One is a local company, the other is composed of Windsor and Kingsville capitalists, and apparently the race between the rival syndicates will be interesting.

FRONTIER HONESTY.

"WELL, there is one thing," said the old Kansas man, as he tipped back his chair and put his feet up on the register, "I don't believe people are as honest now as when the country was new.

"Now, there was the case of Pete Lampton and the eggs. This Pete was sometimes accused of rustling a few cattle, but he was found to be square in little matters. Eggs were selling at 25c. a dozen, and Pete took two dozen to his camp. The next day he returned to the store, threw down $2.25, and started to walk out. The storekeeper asked the reason for the deposit of currency, which Pete explained in this way: 'Well, Sheldon, there was just an even dozen of them eggs I got of you yesterday that had chickens in 'em. Eggs is worth 25c. a dozen and chickens $2.50 a dozen. I figured it out that I must owe you $2.25. You can't afford to sell chickens for 25c. a dozen, and I says, to square myself, says I, Pete, the square thing for you to do is go right back there and pay old Sheldon chicken price for them eggs.' You may say what you please," continued the old-timer as he sliced up another pipeful of plug tobacco, "but for downright square dealin' in small matters, I've never seen the country that come up to Western Kansas in the early days."

"My son," said the graybeard, "you are about to go forth to do battle with the world."

"Yes, father," answered the young man.

"One of the first things you should learn, my boy," the old man continued, "is to learn to say 'no.'"

"I think I understand."

"I dunno whether you do or not. The point I am trying to get at is that the habit of saying 'naw' and 'nit' was all right while you were in college, but it ain't the correct thing for a business man."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

LEGITIMATE ENTHUSIASM.

THE following letter of John McKenzie, corresponding director of the Owen Sound Sugar Manufacturing Co., Limited, to the editor of the Owen Sound Times, shows with what confidence his company is beginning operations in that fertile belt about the Georgian Bay. Mr. McKenzie prophesies great changes for Canada in ten or twenty years' time, and the least important of these will not be the development of the beet sugar industry. His letter reads as follows :

To The Times :

Sir,—Standing on the bridge of the steamship Alberta, in June last, with Mr. Zurborn, of Cologne, Germany, and looking out over our beautiful bay, we pointed out to him a coast line to the right of about 150 miles, down by Leith, Vail's Point, Cape Rich, Meaford, Thornbury, Collingwood, Nottawa Bay, round the Tiny and Tay shores by the Christian Islands to Penetanguishene, Midland and Waubaushene, and to the left 400 miles by Presqu'Isle, Big Bay, Oxenden, Wiarton, Colpoy's, Cape Croker, Lion's Head, Tobermory to Southampton, and round Manitoulin Island. Within all this coast line beets can be freighted in large scows and barges to Owen Sound for an average of 50c. per ton, while we have the C.P.R. and G.T.R. for 75 miles where beets can be delivered at the factory by car for an average of 50c. per ton. Mr. Zurborn said that of the 400 sugar factories in Germany, only one possessed the advantages that our Owen Sound factory had, and that one was the largest factory in the world, grinding 2,000 tons of beets per day. It is built at a large lake, and has railway and barge advantages for freighting, but to a much less extent than our factory will have. Mr. Zurborn was quite enthusiastic over our advantages in this respect.

We have facilities at Owen Sound for a two thousand ton per day factory, but can commence with one of three hundred tons per day, and increase in the future to the extent of our advantages. Citizens of Owen Sound, rise to the height of your privileges, look at your position to-day, look at the possibilities of the next ten years, and then look back less than thirty years, when the little steamer Waubuno did all the trade of the Georgian Bay, and the steamer Algoma that of Lake Superior. The cargo of the City of Naples, that unloaded her 100,000 bushels of corn in your elevator last week, would have loaded the steamers Waubuno or Algoma half the season. Now fleets of the finest steamships on fresh waters trade to and make your magnificent harbor their headquarters, bringing millions of bushels and tons of freight to and from your harbor every season.

Then what will be your position ten or twenty years hence? Just what you help to make it. Everything is in your favor. The Northwest is only in its swaddling clothes, its thirty millions of bushels of wheat will be two hundred millions of bushels. Britain has taken hold of this Canada of ours and we are bound to go ahead. We will stop rafting logs to the States. The Ontario Government must put in force, on the old limits sold, the same mandate as in the sale of limits last week—all timber to be cut to lumber in Ontario. Then no need of export duties. We will export no logs. Then we will bring back the good times we had up to ten years ago, when every boat was loaded with supplies for the logging camps and mills on the North Shore. We will make saws to suit ourselves, as our dear Yankee brothers are doing. We are a nation of freemen. We will truly be the Greater Britain, owing allegiance to none but the Grand Old Land and our noble Mother Queen. We will make our own beet sugar, and not continue growing eleven acres of grain to send to Germany for one acre of beet sugar to the extent of twelve millions of dollars each year, as we are and have been doing. We have a home market in Canada for the sugar of fifty factories such as we are building. The sugar of our factory will be as salable as Klondike gold. The factory will expend in Owen Sound and country round for beets and labor a quarter million of dollars each year. The farmers are taking the lead, eight hundred of them having taken stock to the extent of twenty thousand dollars, agreeing to grow thirty thousand (30,000) tons of sugar beets, and the directors could get as many more to grow beets if we could use them. The seed imported was good, and the beets are growing well. The directors secured a county grant of $75 to pay expenses of the county committee of two ex-wardens, Messrs. Sing and Anderson, and Banker John McDonald to assist the directors in measuring quantities and selecting samples for sugar and purity tests, to satisfy the German manufacturers of sugar plant that our beets are all right. The farmers are with us, the County Council of Grey is with us, the German Manufacturing Co. is with us with the sugar plant. The directors are confident as to quantity and quality of the beets now growing. The prospects of the sugar factory being established in 1898 are first-class. One thing we lack—the co-operation and assistance of many of the business and moneyed men of Owen Sound.

The annual meeting will be held on Wednesday, September 8, at 10 a.m. in the town hall, Owen Sound, when a new Board of Directors will be elected. The present board are eligible for re-election, but if better men with lots of money will take hold, elect the best. We must have this factory in operation in September 1898. Canadians cannot afford to continue to grow some eleven acres or so of grain to buy the sugar of one acre of beets, when we can grow them ourselves as well as the Germans, Belgians or Swedes, whose land rents for more than ours will sell for. The United States are growing sixteen acres of corn in Nebraska alongside of one acre of sugar beets for the same money; but their eyes are open, they are building segar factories so fast that in five or ten years they will make all the $100,000,000 worth of sugar they now import from beet sugar countries. Canada must and will grow and make our $12,000,000 of beet sugar. We are in the best beet sugar belt in America and the world. The Owen Sound factory will be the first and the other forty-nine factories will soon follow.—John McKenzie.

WHAT MAKES GOOD CREDIT?

WHILE commercial agencies are a necessity in this age of electricity, there are too many merchants who attach too much importance to their reports. The reports are probably correct in the main, but it is practically impossible for any one concern, no matter how well represented in every county in the United States, to thoroughly grasp the financial condition of all merchants, with the changes in that condition that are constantly occurring.

A good credit is not always determined by a rating in Dun's or Bradstreet's. Where jobbers or manufacturers know their man personally, or where their trade with that man has been intimate and honorable for years, no agency report on earth could jeopardize the credit standing of that man. Sometimes a dealer worth $10,000 is less desirable as a customer than the man worth $1,000. It is the man himself, not the money he possesses, that in most cases determines the extent of the credit he can obtain. If the dealer is known to be rigidly honest, careful in buying and extending credit, firm in collecting, and pays his bills when due, or when forced by unforeseen circumstances to fall behind, explains his situation fully and frankly, he can buy all the goods he needs and few questions will be asked him.

It is the custom of many large concerns not to ask how much property a man has or how much he can pay on short notice, but to demand to know the habits of the man, both as regards business and morals. If they learn that a dealer is doing a good business, but is engrossed in horse racing or loves poker too well, they limit his credit at once. If, on the other hand, they learn that the dealer is a young man of limited capital, sober, earnest, able, anxious to ceed and careful in all his conduct, they never hesitate to sell him more goods than he could pay for if pushed. Many a merchant has often wondered why his credit was not commensurate with his rating by the commercial agencies, but if he will take into consideration the fact that it is the man and not the money that jobbers and manufacturers sell to when credit is a part of the transaction, the solution of the problem will be plain to them.—St. Louis Grocer.

THE CHEESE OUTLOOK.

THE boom that started in cheese about eight or ten days ago just following the rise in wheat was checked last week, and it is not at all surprising that it was, considering all the circumstances. In less than two weeks, despite extraordinarily heavy shipments, values rose over 1¼c. per pound, and there was active demand at the advance, between 120,000 and 125,000 boxes of cheese leaving first hands between the 15th of August and the 1st of September at an average price of 9¼c., against an average price of 8½c. for the previous fortnight. Had the market acted directly contrary to this it would have been quite natural, considering the statistics bearing on the case, but, as frequently happens, demand moved entirely irrespective of the conditions.

From Montreal alone the exports to date amount to 1,213,145 boxes, against 970,362 boxes last season, an increase of 342,783 boxes, while the exports from the entire continent have been 1,602,772 boxes, against 1,228,750 for the same period last year, an increase of 374,022 altogether. That prices have advanced in the face of this enormous increase is pretty conclusive evidence that the consumption of North American has been much greater this year than last in Great Britain, and also that the deficiency in the British make was exceptionally heavy.

The present lull to the market, therefore, is quite reasonable; indeed, had there been a sharp reaction the producers could hardly have been surprised. The trade on the other side had to have time to digest the enormous meal they have taken during the past week or so, and when they have done so demand will make its influence felt again. That is, providing the salesmen and speculators on this side do not hoist prices to a point where the demand will be checked.

At present, encouraged by the unprecedented business, the season and high prices, producers have of late exhibited a disposition to put too high a value on their cheese. They, no doubt, argue that if last half July and first half August fetched 9¼ to 9⅜c., the last half August and first half of September are worth more money. This may be quite true, but they must also bear in mind that markets are not governed by sentiment, but by the demand. If the demand won't stand pressure prices have to come down and that is the long and the short of it. Another fact worthy of notice in this connection is the disposition already shown by some factory men to contract their fall make ahead. This, no doubt, proves profitable in very many instances, but it is not the proper method of doing business.

Another fact that the market has to consider is that despite the heavy increase in shipments the present accumulation of cheese is greater in Canada this year than it was last. This is due to the larger production. To date the receipts at Montreal have been 1,515,596 boxes, and deducting exports from this leaves a stock in Montreal of 302,451 boxes. Last year at the same period the receipts were 1,052,506 against exports of 970,362, which left a stock in Montreal of 82,144 boxes. In other words, there are 220,000 boxes more cheese in Montreal awaiting shipment now than there were at the same time last year. This is a fact that cannot be ignored.

CHINA TEAS.

During the last couple of weeks there has been a very noticeable increase in the demand for China blacks both in England and the United States. Canada also has participated in the change that seems rather strange to the dealers in tea, for numerous enquiries have been coming forward this last week or two. Those who are in touch with the market say that appearances would now lead one to believe that China teas are returning to favor.

The reasons for this unforeseen change are hard to specify. It may be, however, that the fact of the likely cessation of the manufacture of the low-grade varieties on account of the prohibitive clause of the new American tariff has given the public more confidence as to the quality of tea they are likely to purchase. Yet Canadian importers were never large purchasers of these sweepings, and it is doubtful if the absence alone of the cheap green grades would restore the better qualities to favor.

China blacks will, in all probability, sympathize with the rise in India and Ceylon teas. This year the crop of these China teas is 40 per cent. less than the crop last year, and this shortage, combined with the improving demand, will not be long in affecting quotations; in fact, prices are already advancing.

THE CRANBERRY CROP.

WE will probably see higher prices in cranberries throughout the coming season. The following reports of the prospective fall's harvest in the New England States show a material falling off from last year's crop.

In the Cape Cod district the present indications point to a yield about the same as that of 1895—say from 150,000 to 175,000 barrels; this is considerably lighter than the Cape crop of last year, when the shipments from Cape Cod amounted to about 200,000 barrels, and when at least 25,000 barrels were left unmarketed. There has been some damage this season from the fireworm, but the season for this pest is now over and little further damage is to be feared from this source. There is not much danger from scald in the Cape Cod crop. The early varieties have matured already, and some of the bogs are showing fair color. Shipments are expected to some extent late in August.

Reports from New Jersey indicate a comparatively light yield; very rainy weather occurring when the bogs were in blossom did considerable damage, and present indications point to a much smaller yield of berries this year than last.

The Wisconsin crop is not now a factor of very much importance. Some years ago forest fires destroyed a large part of the wild bogs in that state. Previous yields for several years had met a disappointing market, and there was little encouragement to increase cultivation of cranberries. There are some cultivated bogs in that state, however, but the total yield from the Wisconsin crop does not now figure much in the estimation of the probabilities.

It seems that the yield of early berries in the east is relatively somewhat larger than that of the later varieties. The prospect for demand is fairly favorable. Receivers are generally looking for a comparatively low range of values during September.

Had the new tariff law of the United States not been passed, Canadian cranberries would have gone into American markets this year in competition with the American, as the latter crop is short and the former large. Under the new Tariff Act, however, Canadian berries will be almost entirely excluded. The Wilson bill admitted berries free, while the Dingley law makes them pay 25 per cent. ad valorem.

THE PRICE OF LARD.

WHILE the prices of wheat and meats have gone up considerably, and while hogs are scarce, and the quotations for pork higher than they have been for some time, the pork product, lard, has not till lately sympathized with the appreciation, and even now has not done so to the extent that it should. However, prices bid fair to advance soon. Last week quotations were ¼ to ½c. a pound higher than they were the previous week, and a continued strong feeling is predicted.

This stagnation is not peculiar to Canada; exchanges in the United States tell of the same situation there in lard and cattle products such as tallow and grease. The consumption of tallow has somewhat decreased, no doubt through the use of oils and old stocks of greases which were used by soap makers in the place of tallow. But the price of lard in the States is regulated more by the export European demand than is the price of Canadian product. A good deal of lard consumed by the Germans is taken from the American Republic, and the light or heavy consumption of it by the Germans renders the price in the States low or high. This demand, however, is regulated to an extent by the plum and apple crop, strange to say. If the latter be large the Germans make a sort of plum and apple sauce in great profusion, and use it on their bread, replacing lard. Still, it cannot be said that the demand from Germany has fallen off to a very appreciable extent, and it is still a question why the price was so low. The only way left to account for the state of affairs is to measure the production. If this is done it will be found that it has been increased by new outputs, more than the regular consumptive demand increased by that on European account could succeed in reducing.

The price of Canadian lard is hardly regulated by the same forces; in fact, they are very much different. Canada imports far more lard than she exports, so we must look in other directions for the causes of this stagnation.

In the year ending June 30, 1890, Canada imported over 4,800,000 pounds of this pork product. Since then, however, a duty has been placed on provisions. This influx was gradually lessened, and in the year ending June 30, 1896, we imported only 425,000 pounds. It is to be inferred that Canada has gradually increased her production till she last year turned out just about enough to fill her wants. Still, it can't be said that the increase in production ceased last year. It must have gone on, and this year more than home requirements have been provided for. Is this not a fair reasoning as to the cause of the low prices and stagnation? Canada, as yet, has not acquainted herself with the exporting of lard, and the overproduction could not be removed by this means. From June 30, 1895, to June 30, 1896, only 30,000 pounds of lard were exported.

But there have also been forces at work diminishing the home consumption. The price of butter has been fully one cent a pound lower this year than last, and as soon as the supply price is lowered the consumption is increased. We may then assume with tolerable certainty that butter replaced pure lard in many of its uses. Cottonseed oil is coming into use in the baking of pies where lard was formerly used, although it has not yet come into such universal employment as in the States.

This accounts for the low price of lard; but why has it advanced lately and why does such a strong feeling prevail? In this respect Canada, too, seems to have her peculiar reasons. In the Lower Provinces, and particularly in Quebec, there is considerable of this compound lard consumed by the French Canadians. Just as butter is used in the place of lard when the former is cheap, so pure lard is substituted for the compound stuff when the pure variety is cheap. This the people of Quebec have done and from the accounts of dealers the consumption of lard in Quebec has been wonderfully increased. Of course the substitution has been made elsewhere than Quebec, but it is in this province that it is particularly noticeable. By combining the increased consumption of all the provinces it will be found that it is by this method that the over production, apparent a little while ago, has been removed. Better times and the consequent demand of pure goods may have further tended to have the same removing effect.

At any rate the stock has been so much reduced that a shortage is now feared. The whole country seems to be bare, and a strong feeling prevails. Prices are very bullish.

However, the possibility of an export trade ought to be impressed on the provision dealers' minds by this experience. Prices on an export basis will be higher than have prevailed this summer.

SCARCITY OF DRIED APPLES.

ANOTHER sharp advance in the price of both dried and evaporated apples has been an interesting feature of the week. The former have advanced 1 to 1½c., and the latter 1 to 2c. per pound. This rise is due to a remarkably active demand experienced lately on foreign account. In fact, buying on behalf of Germany has practically cleaned up the market of the bulk of the stock of both descriptions, and now no dried are obtainable under 3 to 4c., while evaporated are held firmly at 6c. This condition of affairs is an unusual one, for for the past three seasons both dried and evaporated apples have been a regular drug on the market. There was little or no home demand for them owing to the increasing use of fresh green fruit, and as a result the growers stopped the process of drying and evaporating, with the natural result of a decreased output. The present scarcity is a development of these conditions, and also of the fact that offerings of early apples this summer promise to be much lighter than usual, especially of really desirable fruit.

LITTLE THINGS.

IF any grocer is in need of a motto to hang on his wall let him put one up that will read this way: Take care of the little things and the big things will take care of themselves. But after hanging it there, he should not think he is through with it. Have it hung where it can often be read, and read it often. If there is any one warning that the grocer of to-day needs, it is caution as to his carelessness of little things. In these days of keen competition and small profits he ought to act according to this motto in every transaction of his business. It should be so impressed on his mind that he should never forget it.

We often hear the question asked: Does generosity pay, and the answer comes in eloquent language that it does. How beautifully do the theorists develop their reasoning on a practical basis. But, after all, it's only theory. Proofs of the validity of the argument are given from the experience of some hero, but never are there any exceptions quoted to prove the rule. Those examples that the theorists give are experiences of lucky ones only. If any one should have an opportunity of taking a close view of the common every-day business, it is reasonably certain that afterwards he would not pursue a policy of winning trade by mere generosity. In modern business a man is forced to keep a close guard on his belongings; he can't recklessly throw his goods about in order merely to gain a reputation of being generous. It is twice as hard to keep that reputation as it is to win it.

For a long time department stores were reputed all over the land as being the only places where big profits were not made. They adopted the policy of being generous in a few lines and of making this loss up in others, but now the public has recognized the dupe and already the mail-order patronage is decreasing in volume. A business gained by such methods has only a fleeting patronage and cannot last.

If the failure of some grocers were traced to the cause, it would be found due to their generosity in weighing or to the use of scales so lacking in sensitiveness that a fraction of a cent, sometimes even more than a cent, was lost on every draft. Because this loss is in goods and not in money, it is not generally considered. A grocer or his clerk would be sure to pick up a penny found lying on the counter, but goods representing that amount are often swept off the counter without a thought of the value they represent, and, as a general rule, the arm of the balance containing goods is heavier than the weights in the other pan. A pound is a pound and should never exceed nor fall short of 16 ounces. One ounce is over 3 per cent. of a pound and to reduce many profits by 3 per cent. of the selling price makes a great difference. A grocer owes it to his customer to give no less, and self preservation demands that he give no more, than 16 ounces.

However, the lack of generosity is not to be reduced to stinginess. A merchant does not need to be generous to retain his customers, but above all things he must not be stingy. Rules cannot be laid down and followed strictly; each merchant must adapt himself to circumstances.

Then, again, the dealer has to be careful of many little things when he is liable to lose his customer's confidence. The loss of a single customer is perhaps, viewed as a single loss, unimportant, but the influence of the lost customer exerted against the store will cause the loss of other customers. The failure to deliver an order at the time specified is a little thing, but the customer's plans may have been upset by the delay and a seed of dissatisfaction sown that may be reaped as the loss of a customer. The failure to fill an order correctly or the omission of a single article may be a little thing, but the forgotten article may have been the one most needed and—well the results are known.

IS IT A FRAUD?

THE T. Eaton Co., Limited, the big departmental store concern, of Toronto, has recently been selling at five cents a bottle a sauce purporting to be that well-known delicious sauce, Worcestershire.

Being something like 80 to 85 per cent. below the regular retail price of the genuine Worcestershire sauce as put up by Lea & Perrins, the low figure at which the departmental store offered the article naturally excited interest in the grocery trade.

One well-known retail house in Toronto, in order to satisfy its curiosity, purchased a bottle. The label was not the label of Lea & Perrins. In fact, there was nothing on the label to indicate who was the maker of the contents, but a discovery was made which may lead to some interesting results.

It was discovered that blown into the bottle was the name of Lea & Perrins. And, as the agents for the Lea & Perrins condiment are emphatic in their declaration that this particular article being sold by the T. Eaton Co. is not the product of their firm, it follows that deception is being practised somewhere. Who is responsible for the deception investigation only will reveal.

The law in regard to matters of this kind is so explicit that it does not require a Philadelphia lawyer to propound it. Here, for example, is a clause from the Trade Marks Act:

All marks, names, brands, labels, barrels, or other devices which are adopted for use by any person in his trade, business, or occupation, or calling, for the purpose of distinguishing any manufactured product of any description, manufactured product compounded, packaged or offered for sale by him, applied in any manner whatever to such manufactured product or article, or to any package, barrel, case, box, or other vessel or receptacle of any description whatever containing the same, shall, for the purposes of this Act, be considered and known as trade-marks and may be registered for exclusive use of the person registering same in manner herein provided; and thereafter such person shall have the exclusive right to use the same to designate manufactures or articles manufactured or sold by same.

A bottle of the sauce which the T. Eaton Co. is selling, together with bill proving sale, has been expressed to Crosse & Blackwell, the general agents. What the outcome will be remains to be seen.

In the meantime grocers and general merchants throughout the country will do well to see that it is the genuine Lea & Perrins' Worcestershire sauce which they buy. It is dangerous to handle obvious imitations.

A WELL-EARNED HOLIDAY.

Mr. W. A. Rutherford, of the firm of Rutherford, Marshall & Co., of Toronto, has just returned from an extended holiday trip to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, and Atlantic City, and is looking healthy and sunburned after two weeks spent in sight-seeing and sea bathing.

"Will" reports having had a first-class time at each point visited, but was particularly fascinated with the salt water and sea breezes of the Atlantic.

On being asked as to the condition of business in the commission houses, for of course he couldn't relax his attention to business even when out of town, he said that trade was hardly so healthy as reported by the papers, in fact not nearly so good as it is in Toronto. He further remarked that an evidence of this latter fact was the 30-days payment system which is in force there. Attempts are being made to introduce a system of weekly payments similar to that used in Canadian commission houses to-day. This they intend to attempt when those good times are felt. Even Washington, with its 20,000 Government employes, has not seen fit to inaugurate the system, and is waiting for those long-looked-for developments.

Summing up his trip, Mr. Rutherford says: "Washington for beauty, Philadelphia for a home, New York for business, but give me Toronto for an ideal city in which to live, with the proper combination of business, comfort and pleasure."

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Sept. 9, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THIS is Exhibition week and all the attending conditions of trade are present. Wholesalers say that trade has surpassed their expectations, and that the very fact that customers who are here, not only from Ontario, but from the Maritime Provinces and Manitoba and the N.W.T., are ordering heavy supplies of staples, and are taking an interest in any specialties, points to the looked-for revival of business. There have not been many things of note in this week's trade. Canned goods remain in just about the same firm condition Sugar, if anything, maintains a stronger feeling, but there has been no advance. Teas also still share in the prevailing strengthening feeling. The Japan market is very strong and is advancing; Ceylon and Indian advanced over a penny in Colombo this week, and the increasing demand for China blacks leads one to expect a stiffened feeling in this line. Green fruits, especially peaches and plums, are a feature in regard to cheapness in this week's markets.

CANNED GOODS.

Nothing further has developed this week. The very strong feeling continues and it is expected that it will do so. Nearly all of the tomatoes, corn and peas are, or will be, in a few hands, and higher prices will be asked. However, this is as it should be, as crops and pack will be light and, indeed, uncertain at best. Those in touch with the market claim that this year's business will be far more satisfactory than the trade connected with last year's pack. California canned fruits, especially water peaches, are also advancing in the primary market. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80 to 85c.; corn, 60 to 75c.; peas, 75 to 80c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1'; extra sifted, $1.10 to $1.25; beans, 65 to 95c;. peaches, $2.50 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.50 to $1.80, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $1.75 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 75 to 95c.; gallons, $1.40 to $2; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.50; ditto, new season's, to arrive, $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; other red salmon, $1.15 upwards, according to quality and brand; cohoes, 95c. to $1; canned mackerel, $1.25 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.70; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.35 to $1.40; 2's, $2.35 to $2.45; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

The trade in coffee has been rather active and a good many wants for coffee are being filled in the general orders. Rios are moving freely. The market both here and in New York is strong. Jobbers quote green in bags as follows: Rio, 9½ to 13c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 19 to 22½c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 18 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

No improvement is noted as yet. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

Reports from the Barbadoes advise splendid weather for the full development of the heavy crop, and both sugar and molasses will likely be plentiful. We quote as follows: New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGARS.

The strong feeling that has prevailed in sugar for the month past is holding. The New York market advanced 1-16c. this week, and while there has been no change in the Canadian refiners' prices, it is expected that another advance may occur in the near future. It is assured that an easier feeling will not set in, at least all cereals are stiffening in price, and sugar must feel the effect of the advance. A heavy trade is doing. We quote as follows for Toronto: Granulated—St. Lawrence and Redpath's, 4 9-16c. for single barrel lots and 4½c. for 5-barrel lots; Acadia, 4⅜c. for single barrel lots, and

SPICES.

The only feature to note in spices this week is that black pepper is higher and that a reported short crop of cloves is attracting attention. A number of nice orders are being shipped this week. We quote: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 11 to 12c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 20c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

NUTS.

Tarragona almonds have advanced a further shilling in London this week. There is not much doing in the trade here. We quote: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 20 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

The market in Liverpool is very firm. Millers report that the quality will not be very satisfactory nor in full supply till next year's crop arrives, which will not be till February. We quote as follows: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½ to 4½c.

TEAS.

Ceylons and Indians have advanced a further penny in Colombo and Calcutta this week, and the London market, which never jumps, is following steadily and surely, with hardening prices from week to week. There has been comparatively little buying effected, and it looks as if, when our buyers are ready to operate, they will have to do so at much fuller prices than the range of the last few months. In Japan teas the market is also very strong, and is likely to remain so. The third crop will be poor and short, and it is quite probable that the fourth crop will not be picked, consequently the first and second yields are maintaining high prices. There has been a much increased demand for China blacks in England and in the United States, and during the last week or two a great deal of enquiry in Canada, and it looks as if these teas are returning to favor. The low grades of China greens are extremely scarce, owing to the fact that these low grades are being rejected in the States. Natives are making higher qualities. Reports tend to say that they will be unprocurable. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

The currant market is still higher. The first steamer direct from Montreal left Patras on the 7th. Buying on the boat was not as heavy as is usual, owing to the higher prices, but the quotations for the second steamer are 1s. higher still, so that nothing has been gained by delay. The prices on old stock continue firm and goods are about sold out. We quote: Provincials, 5¾ to 6c. in bbls.; ditto, half-bbls., 5¾ to 6c.; fine Filiatras, in bbls., 5⅞ to 6c.; do., half-bbls., 5⅞ to 6⅛c.; Patras, 6¼c. in cases; Vostizzas, cases, 7 to 8c.

Valencia raisins are in about the same position, except that the steamer will not leave Denia till the 13th, but there are very few sellers for this boat. The shippers of popular brands have contracted already for all that they can pack up to that time. We quote : Off-stalk, 4 to 5c. ; fine off-stalk, 5 to 6c. ; selected, 6½ to 7c. layers, 5½ to 6½c.

The first shipment of Sultana raisins arrived in Toronto a week ago to-day. Further supplies of larger quantities will be here about the 15th, costing 9½ to 12½c. for importation. Although the goods are still at high prices, these figures can be shaded about 1c. a pound.

The same strong feeling prevails in California raisins. Eastern buyers' prices are about ¼ to ½c. below the packers' ideas in California, and, as a consequence, not many transactions are being made.

The fig trade has shown a little improvement this week. We quote spot goods nominally : 10 oz., 7½c. ; 10 lb., 9 to 10c.; 18 lb., 10 to 12c.; 28 lb., 11 to 13c.; taps, 3¼ to 3½c. net; natural, 4½c. in bags, and 6 to 6½c. in boxes.

No alteration to note in the California dried fruit market. The feeling continues very strong. We quote California evaporated fruits as follows : Peaches, 7 to 10½c. per lb., according to quality ; apricots, 6½ to 15c.; pears, 5½ to 10½c. ; egg plums, 5½ to 11c. ; silver prunes, 8½ to 13½c.

Prunes cost about 2c. more than the average price ruling the last two years. They are too high, indeed, to attract due attention. We quote as follows : Bosnias, U's (110 to 113 half kilo), 6 to 6½c.; C's (85 to 90 half kilo), 7 to 7½c. per lb. California, 90 to 100's, 6½c. per lb. ; 70 to 80's, 7½c.; 60 to 70's, 7½ to 8c.; 50 to 60's, 8 to 8½c.; 40 to 50's, 9½ to 10½c.; 30 to 40's, 12½ to 13c.; "Ruby" prunes, 7½ to 8c.; French, 4½ to 5c.

Dates are quiet. We quote : 5½ to 6c. for Hallowee and 5 to 5¼c. for Kadrowee.

GREEN FRUITS.

Some of the finest exhibits of fruit this year were to be seen on the market this week. The immense crops of peaches and plums have caused a tremendous downpour; on Wednesday there must have been 10,000 baskets of peaches arrived at this market ; these were all absorbed, but prices were sacrificed somewhat. The quality of the Crawfords is not quite so good as last year. The tremendous crop has rendered a diminished size, and as yet the quality is not up to first-class. Some of the dealers say that only the trimmings are coming yet and that these are picked too green, and as a consequence are hard. If this is so the market will be flooded next week. Plums, too, are very abundant and 40c. is about the highest price obtainable. Bananas have come in rather too fast lately and some bunches have been sold very cheap. They are rather dull when so much other fruit is on the market. Grapes are very late this year, and although some are coming in now they will not come forward in any quantity till next week. The crop promises to be a large one, if warm weather stays to do the ripening. The prevailing cold nights at present prevent a fast ripening. We quote as follows: Oranges — Sorrentos, 300's, $3.50 to $4 per box; 180's, $2.25 to $2.50 per three-quarter box. Lemons, $2.50 to $3.50 per box. Cocoanuts, $4.50 a sack and 60c. per doz. Onions, 2 to 2½c. per lb. for Egyptians. Bananas, $1 to $1.50. New cabbage, 90c. to $1 per bbl. Watermelons, 20 to 25c. California pears, $2.65 to $3 per box; muskmelons, Canadian, 60c. to $1 per large crate; cucumbers, 15 to 20c. per 12-quart basket; Canadian tomatoes, 15 to 25c. per basket. Huckleberries, 90 to $1 per basket; Crawford peaches, 40 to 75c. per basket; Canadian apples, $2 to $2.50 per barrel and 25 to 30c. per basket; pickling onions, 75c. per basket; Canadian plums, 20 to 40c.; Spanish onions, 85c. to $1 per case, according to quantity taken. Blue grapes, 25 to 30c. per 10-lb. basket; common pears, 15 to 25c. per basket; Bartlett pears, 30 to 40c. per basket.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—Better grades continue firm. The quantity coming forward is just about sufficient for requirements in both grades, although dealers say that they could handle more if it were coming forward. There is a good local demand with some additional enquiry from the eastern provinces. There is practically no call for dairy on export account. Prices remain about the same as they were last week. Best quality sells at 12 to 14c, while the medium grades move freely at 9 to 10c. Pound prints are worth 14 to 15c. Creamery seems to be holding its own in the British markets, as the export demand for pound prints is good, although that for tubs is only moderate. Tubs sell at 17 to 18c., and prints, 18 to 19c.

Biscuit Manufacturers, - Owen Sound, Ont.

CHEESE—There has been nothing special to report this week. Factory men seem to be holding for higher prices and exporters do not seem disposed to follow. As the make continues very large, some of the factories will have to unload, as many will not be able to carry cheese much longer, and it is a question whether it is desirable to do so. Our advice is to sell at market price while in fine condition; 9¾ to 10c. is the ruhng price, while jobbers pay 9½ to 9¾c.

SALT.

The trade in salt is not materially changed. Orders are coming in steadily but not freely. Quoted at Toronto, carload lots go at $1 per bbl. and 65c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl. and 70c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B. barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c. for points west of Toronto, and 45c. for Toronto and points east of Toronto.

FISH.

The supply is still inadequate for the existing demand; however, stocks are no shorter than usual at this time of year. It is expected that soon larger supplies will be forthcoming and that an easier feeling will prevail. We quote as follows: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5½c. per lb.; whitefish, 7c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg.

PROVISIONS.

The market continues steady. The higher prices do not seem to have affected the demand. Bacon and lard have been particularly active. No further advance has taken place in the price of the latter article this week; in fact, some dealers who are holding large stocks are shading our quotations. Otherwise prices are very firm.

DRY SALTED MEATS—Long clear bacon, 8½ to 9c. for carload lots, and 8 to 8¼c. per lb. for ton lots and cases; backs, 9½c.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 12½ to 13c.; rolls, 10 to 10½c.; hams, large, 11 to 11½c.; 12 to 13c. for small and 12½c. for medium; shoulder hams, 9½ to 10c.; backs, 12 to 12½c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD—Pure Canadian, tierces, 6⅛c.; tubs, 6¾ to 7c.; pails, 7¼c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $13 to $13.50; Canadian short-cut, $16; clear shoulder mess, $12.50.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—The feverish state still prevails in the grain market. We quote: Wheat, No. 1 hard, $1.12; winter wheat, 93c.; new winter, 90c.; oats, 26 to 28c.; peas, 45 to 46c.; barley, 24 to 27c.

FLOUR—The price of flour keeps climbing in proportion to that of wheat. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $5.90; Manitoba strong bakers', $5.50; Ontario patents, $4.75 to $5; straight roller, $4.50 to $4.65, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—Trade is fair. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.30 in bags and $3.40 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.85 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.40 to $2.50; split peas, $3 to $3.25; pot barley, $3 to $3.25.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—There is nothing new to report this week. Receipts continue fairly free for this season of the year. We learn of one or two small lots having gone forward for export. The British export price remains firm, but it is doubtful if a profit can be obtained on shipments at present values. New laid candled brings 12 to 13s., and No. 2, 9 to 10c.

POTATOES — There have been more potatoes marketed this week, but the quantity still continues small. The scare of the rot does not seem to be great. Dealers pay 30 to 40c. a bag and sell at 40 to 50c.

HONEY—At present it is only the dealers that are buying honey. The consumptive demand has not opened up. We quote light at : 60-lb. tins, 6 to 6½c.; 5 and 10-lb. tins, 6½ to 7c.; comb, $1.50 to $1.75 per dozen.

DRIED APPLES — Trade is quite dull. Prices for sound goods are firm in anticipation of a shorter crop. A large percentage of the stocks now remaining in the market are badly affected by fly and worm, and only salable at a large discount. Local price runs from 3 to 3½c. f.o.b., and jobbing price ranges about 3½c.

EVAPORATED APPLES — No transactions of any account have been reported this week. Buyers are paying 4c. f.o.b. Jobbers are quoting 5 to 5¼c.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—Trade is picking up considerably, and appearances point to a good fall trade. Cowhides: Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3. Steerhides : 60 lbs. and up, 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS — Trade is fair and shows no change. We quote; No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Dekins, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS — We quote : Lambskins and pelts, 55 to 60c.

WOOL—The demand from local factories is increasing slightly and is giving a better feeling to the market. The quantity of wool in the country is increasing; in fact, from the natural course of events an improvement in the condition of affairs cannot long be postponed. Dealers are still paying 19 to 20c.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

The demand is fair and improving slightly. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon, Toronto : Canadian, 14½c.; carbon, safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

It is a long time since plums were so cheap.

It is estimated that about 10,000 baskets of peaches were sold on this market on Wednesday.

Mail advices from California state that the crop of walnuts will fall about 50 cars short of that of last year, the yield of hard shells being about a fourth of the 1896 output, according to present estimates.

A considerable amount of the dried apples coming forward are full of fly and worm, and dealers through the country should be careful of the goods they buy. When thus affected they are worth about 1 cent a pound.

It is doubtful whether the stock of canary seed in this country ever was smaller than at present, and there are no additions known to be on the way, while no decent qualities can reach this market from the other side before the middle to the end of November.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Sept. 9, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE grocery market has exhibited considerably more activity during the past week, and trade, especially in the staple lines, is brisk Sugar is the most striking instance in this particular, demand being so active from jobbers that the refineries have all they can do to keep up with orders. An increased demand for syrups is one of the new features of the week, while molasses shows a higher tendency, and jobbers generally admit that supplies are much lighter than they expected they would be. Rice also shows an upward tendency abroad, and the same disposition is strongly in evidence in the tea market, while the strength in canned goods and dried fruit is fully maintained. Altogether the general grocery situation is a very buoyant one.

SUGAR.

There has been an active demand locally for sugar, and prices are steadily held at both refineries at the advance quoted last week. Both granulated and yellows share in the enquiry, and it seems evident that jobbers' stocks require replenishing if there is any meaning at all in the present conditions, for both the refineries are compelled to run to their full capacity to attend to all their orders. Refiners also have been operating in the raw sugar market for supplies both of beet and cane, and, in a word, the disposition is generally buoyant, and we hear of less desire to cut prices on the staple than was the case a week or so ago. We quote: Granulated, 4⅛c. up to 10 barrels, and 4 3-16c. for larger quantities. Yellows range from 3½ to 3¾c., and creams, 3⅞c.

SYRUPS.

There has been an improved demand for syrups lately, and the small stocks in refiners' hands have been appreciably reduced; in fact, high-grade syrup is difficult to get at all here, as the refiners are completely sold out of them for the present. As a result of the demand, values, which have ruled stationary and nominal in the absence of business, present a stronger feeling, stiffening fully ¼c. per pound to 1¾ and 2¼c., as to quality.

MOLASSES.

Business in molasses has been more active during the past week, local jobbers being in the market freely for any supplies that are offering, as it is now clear that supplies are lighter than many anticipated. Round lots of Barbadoes have changed hands at 22c. ex store, but most holders refuse that figure, being firm at 22½ to 23c. In a jobbing way we quote: Barbadoes, 24 to 25c., and Porto Rico, 25 to 27c.

RICE.

Advices continue of a very strong character on rice, cables quoting sharp advances in both Patna and India grades 6d. per cwt. higher being asked. Canadian mills are again in the market with supplies of their own domestic refined and prices are firmer than they were, as follows: Crystal Japan, $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $5 to $5.50; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

There has been no change in spices, business ruling quiet and prices steady. We quote as follows: Black pepper, 9 to 10c.; pure white, 11 to 16c.; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; do., best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

Coffee has met a better enquiry lately and the volume of business is sensibly enlarged, while values also have a firmer tone. We quote: Maracaibo, 16 to 19c.; Santos, 12 to 15c.; Rio, 12 to 16c.; Mocha, 24c., and Java, 25c.

TEAS.

There has been rather more activity in tea during the week, though jobbers, as a rule, are not disposed to operate extensively. This disposition on their part is curious, in view of the fact that all advices from primary points, especially Japan, the facts of which are dealt with elsewhere, indicate increasing firmness in values. It seems unlikely, therefore, that buyers will gain anything by holding off. We quote: Young Hysons, 14 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15½ to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; In-

was a common expression among housekeepers before

was put on the market. The tedious soaking necessary and the low quality of a great deal of the tapioca sold kept it in the background as a food article.

The introduction of "Minute Tapioca" changed all this, and people everywhere who would not touch the old tapioca are our most enthusiastic customers. "Minute Tapioca" requires no soaking, is absolutely pure and very delicious.

A PACKET OF SEED is valuable only when it provides nourishment for birds. To sell the stuff often marketed as bird seed is worse than selling bad bread. With the bread the customer soon sees the bad value. With the seed his bird sickens and dies before the bad value is known. It may take longer in some cases than others, but such seed eventually gets in its work. Lump sugar with rat poison would be more merciful. Then the bird's suffering would not be prolonged.

An honest packet of bird food cannot allow the profit of the other kind. But it pays better in the end. Customers and birds easier to keep. They don't have to buy a bird every few months They keep more birds. They buy more seed. The grocer make up on extra sales the legitimate reduction of profit Makes it up twenty times over. And wonders what becomes of all the Cottams seed he sell.

Cottams Seed is sold by all wholesalers.

CANNED GOODS.

Canned goods generally maintain their firm tone, especially vegetables, while salmon are steady also. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80c.; corn, 60 to 80c.; peas, 80c.; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 95c.; gallons, $1.65 to $1.75; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.40 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.35; "Lion," $1.37½ to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.30, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

The feeling in currants continues quite as firm as previously noted, cable quotations showing advances of 1s. 6d. to 2s. over what was asked ten days ago. Values range from 15s. 6d. on Provincials to 19s. on Patras. First quotations on Vostizzas are on the basis of 24s. On spot we quote: Barrels, 3¾ to 4c.; half-bbls., 4 to 4¼c., and cases, 4½ to 4¾c., and the stock of old is rapidly being exhausted.

Valencia raisins are firm, and definite quotations come to hand for the first time this week. They range from 14s. for off-stalk, and 16 to 17s. fine off-stalk, to 20s. for selected, while layers are quoted at 22 to 23s. The stock of old fruit on spot is almost exhausted and prices are largely nominal, ranging from 4¼c. for off-stalk to 5c. for selected.

There is the same firm feeling on California raisins, and prices are strongly held, with shippers undecided what to ask owing to the unsettled feeling on the Coast. To lay any fruit down in Montreal, however, would cost jobbers, at the very least, 6¼ to 6½c., landed in here.

Business has transpired in California prunes at the equivalent of 7 to 9c. as to grade, laid down in Montreal.

NUTS.

There has been nothing special to report in nuts. Demand is quiet. We quote: Grenoble walnuts, 11 to 12c.; do. shelled, 20c; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; pecans, 9 to 10c.; and cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100.

DRIED APPLES.

Foreign buyers have been heavy purchasers of both dried and evaporated apples, and prices have advanced sharply in consequence to 6c. on evaporated and 3 to 4c. on dried.

APPLES.

Receipts of apples are very light and supplies of really choice fruit difficult to obtain. Prices have stiffened in consequence, and this week $2 to $3 per barrel was easily obtainable.

GREEN FRUIT.

There have been heavy receipts of green fruit here, but, despite what poorly informed daily papers have stated, Montreal is far from being a mere dumping ground. On the contrary, the extraordinarily heavy receipts lately have been absorbed with surprising promptitude and the prices realized fair. For instance, over 12,000 baskets of fruit arrived on Monday last. The auction sales had disposed of all of them before Wednesday. We quote: Oranges—Valencia, $6 per case; Messinas, $3 to $3.50 per box; lemons, $1.25 to $3 per box; Naples lemons, $6 to $7 per chest; bananas, $1 to $1.25. California fruit—peaches, $1 to $1.25; pears, $1.50 to $2, and plums, $1 to $1.50 per box; blueberries, $1.25 to $1.50 per box. Canadian fruit—Crawford freestone peaches, 50 to 60c.; clingstone, do., 30 to 40c.; plums, 25 to 45c.; grapes, 10-lb. baskets, 30 to 40c.; 5-lb. do., 20 to 25c., and Bartlett pears, $2.50 to $4 per bbl., and 35 to 50c. per basket; Egyptian onions, 3c. per lb., and Spanish, $2.50 per case.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—A leading feature in the market for country produce has been the demand for these, and prices have advanced pretty sharply as a consequence to 70 to 80c. for prime and 90c. to $1 for hand picked. Numerous enquiries have been received here from the Maritime Provinces asking for quotations.

EGGS—The demand for eggs to-day was only fair, and the market in consequence was quiet, but prices as yet show no change, although receipts continue liberal. We quote: Choice candled, 12½ to 13c.; No. 1, 11½ to 12c., and No. 2, 9½ to 10c. per dozen.

HONEY—There is no change in honey. White clover comb is offering at 10c. and dark at 7c.; bright extracted at 6½ to 7c., and dark at 4 to 5c. per lb.

PROVISIONS.

A good, steady business continues to be done in provisions, the demand being fair for all lines, and prices for smoked meats are higher. We quote: Canadian pork, $15 to $15.50 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, at 6¾ to 7¼c., and compound refined at 5¼ to 5½c. per lb.; hams, 12 to 14c., and bacon, 12 to 13c. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

The feature of the flour market was the active demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba grades at an advance of 2s. over what they bid on Friday last week. The Lake of the Woods Milling Co. sold 1,000 sacks for shipment to London and 1,000 sacks to Glasgow, and W. W. Ogilvie sold 4,000 sacks for shipment to Liverpool, Glasgow and Manchester. It might be stated that the above sales were made at much higher prices than foreign buyers were willing to pay when cash wheat in Chicago sold at $1.02. The instructions coupled with the above first two sales were to rush shipments forward, to which the miller stated it looks as if the Englishmen were caught short of this grade of flour this time, and export prices are about on a par with local values at present. There was also a better demand from Quebec buyers, and sales aggregating 2,000 sacks were reported. Locally trade was fairly active, but sales are principally in small lots, to fill actual wants. We quote: Winter wheat patents, $5 to $5.25; straight rollers, $4.85 to $5, and in bags, $2.25 to $2.35; best Manitoba strong bakers', $5.50; second do., $5, and low grades, $3.15; Hungarian patents, $5.90.

The demand for feed continues slow, and the market is dull, with no change in prices to note. We quote: Manitoba bran at $11 to $11.50, and shorts at $12 to $12.50 per ton, including bags. Ontario bran, in bulk, is offering at $10.

The tone of the meal market was steady, but sales are slow, as buyers have ample supplies on hand. We quote: Rolled oats, $3.30 per barrel, $1.60 per bag; standard meal, $3.20 per barrel and $1.55 per bag.

BALED HAY.

The demand for old hay is fair, and the tone of the market is firm at the recent advance. We quote: No. 1, $11.50 to $12.50, and No. 2, $9.50 to $10.50 per ton in car lots on track.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

Cheese was firm but quiet during the past week. We quote: Finest Ontario cheese, 9⅝ to 9¾c.; finest Townships cheese, 9⅜ to 9½c.; finest Quebec cheese, 9⅜c.

The butter market ruled fairly steady, though the enquiry from exporters is not as brisk as it might be. To move any strictly finest would necessitate 19½c. at the least. We quote: Finest creamery, 19 to 19½c.; seconds, 18½c.; dairy butter, 12½ to 13c.

MONTREAL NOTES.

Enquiry for beans from the Maritime Provinces has been a feature lately on this market.

Both dried and evaporated apples have advanced very sharply under extensive buying for foreign export.

Advices on tea from primary markets, especially Japan, infer that buyers will gain nothing by holding off.

Cables state that both Patna and India grades of rice have advanced 6d. per cwt. with prospects of still higher prices.

Flour continues firm at the advance and local millers, as noted in the regular report, have been heavy exporters to Great Britain.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Sept. 9, 1897.

THERE has been a quieter business during the past week. The firm feeling continues, and except in flour, there is a tendency to a further advance. Oatmeal particularly has strengthened. The millers who had held back have now advanced their prices. Wholesale dealers have been buying lard freely owing to firmer prices and some packers advancing slowly. Dried fruit has a place of interest; dealers are surprised at the strength shown by California raisins in the face of a large output. The increased American duty on foreign raisins is the chief cause of their having shown a steady advance since opening. The retailers are looking for a good trade during Exhibition week, and the wholesale men hope to see many of their customers and to receive good orders. The Exhibition opens on the 14th, and from present prospects will be one of the best ever held here.

OIL—With the decline in the demand for lumber comes a corresponding decline in the demand for lubricating oil from the mills. There is, however, a fair business, and the increased sale for burning oil makes the want of the other business felt less. Cod oil is very low and dull. There being no United States demand our market is overstocked. We quote: Best American burning oil, 17½ to 18½c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 17c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 15c.

SALT—Stocks of coarse are getting light, while there continues to be a fair sale. A cargo should be now here. It is about all sold to arrive, so that in coarse salt prices are likely to rule firmer. In factory-filled, there are ample stocks and prices are easy. Canadian has the usual large demand for table and dairy use. We quote as follows: Coarse, 47 to 50c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 85c. to $1; Canadian fine, 90c. to $1 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.50 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS—St. John houses have bought freely at the lowest prices, and most factories have withdrawn quotations. It is said that there is nothing like a combination among them. Our dealers are looking for nice profits in canned goods. It will be the first for some years. Spot tomatoes are very scarce, as also are lobsters. In salmon the feeling is easy. Oysters have light demand; prices are firm. Clams and scallops show a good sale. We quote as follows: Corn, 65 to 70c.; peas, 75 to 85c.; tomatoes, 85 to 90c.; gallon apples, $1.80 to $1.85; corned beef, Canadian, $2.40 to $2.50; American, 2-lb. tins, $2.60 to $2.70; 1-lb tins, $1.40 to $1.60; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.20; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.50 to $2.75; salmon, $1.25 to $1.40; lobsters, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, $1.15 to $1.25; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.60 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $5.50 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

GREEN FRUIT—There is a large demand. In almost every case prices are quoted lower. This is particularly true of California fruit, which continues to have very large sale, except, perhaps, grapes, which as yet are in but fair demand. Apples are coming in more freely, and many are of poor soft quality, so that some prices are low. Lemons, with a good demand, are quoted lower. Oranges have the least attention in the fruit line. Melons are about out of the market, the season for demand being over. Eastern pears still show great range in quality. Canadian plums are arriving freely and sell low; they help to fill the place of the Nova Scotia variety, which are very scarce. Good apples will bring high prices this season. It is said that the crop of Gravensteins in Nova Scotia, while not at all as large as last season, will be better than latter fruit. We quote: Lemons, $4 to $4.50; oranges, $4.50 to $5; bananas, $1.50 to $2; Bartlett pears, per bbl. $4 to $6; tomatoes, 75c. to $1 per crate; cucumbers, $1 per bbl.; apples, $1.50 to $3.50 per bbl.; California peaches, $1 to $1.25; California plums, $1 to $1.25; California pears, $2 to $2.50; grapes, $1.50 to $2.25 per crate.

DRIED FRUIT—Prices are all high. California loose muscatels continue to advance and are now 1½c. above opening prices; in fact, 4-crown are about 2c. above first price named here. As yet no orders have been placed; it is thought prices will fall off somewhat. In Valencias a few new are here and further shipments are expected. The quantity bought to arrive is not large. Stocks of all kinds of dried fruit are very low. Currants both here and abroad are higher. In evaporated apples the stock is very small and prices are advancing. Efforts to buy old stock at outside points are unsuccessful. Dried are higher but have little attention. American onions are being received in quantity and prices are held firm. We quote: Raisins, Valencias, old, 5¼ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c., prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples 3½ to 4c.; evaporated apples; 6 to 6¼c.; onions, $3 to $3.50 per bbl.; cocoanuts, $2.50 to $3.50 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Valencias, layers, old, 6 to 7c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.; new Valencias, about 7 to 7½c.; do. layers, 8 to 8½c.

SUGAR — While the market shows no change for the week, refineries are finding a much better enquiry, and prices are firmly held. Dealers are finding their stocks of granulated, which have been so ample, slipping away, until now they find themselves sold out, or nearly so. We quote: Granulated, 4¼ to 4⅜c.; yellows, 3⅜ to 3¾c.; Paris lump, 5¼ to 5½c.; powdered, 5 to 5¼c.

MOLASSES—Some New Orleans has been placed here, the first for some time. Barbadoes is still offered low. Where quality is good at present prices it is particularly good stock. In Porto Rico prices are rather firmer. Stocks are not large. We quote: Barbadoes, 23 to 24c.; Porto Rico, 27 to 30c.; New Orleans, barrels., 25 to 28c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.; Demerara, 33 to 34c.

DAIRY PRODUCE — Eggs show quite a firmness, and prices have advanced. They have been scarce, but at present figures they seem to be more plentiful. Butter, while coming in freely, and while yet quiet, tends firmer. Cheese is higher, but is still below outside figures. Stocks are light and a further advance looked for. We quote: Dairy butter, 15 to 17c.; creamery, 17 to 18c.; prints, 18 to 20c.; cheese, 9½ to 10c.; eggs, 12 to 13c.

FISH — There is a better demand, particularly in pickled herring. Bay and Grand Manan are the only grades to hand. There is a demand for larger fish, but they are not to be had. Prices on present stocks have been advanced. Dry cod show good business and firm prices. In hake prices are also higher. Smoked herring keep dull. Pickled shad are firm; fresh shad are about out of the market. Boneless fish show steady sale. We quote as follows: Large cod, $3.15 to $3.25; medium, $3 to $3.10; pollock, $1.25 to $1.30; bay herring, $1.45 to $1.50 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 6 to 7c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50 to $5; boneless, 2½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.

PROVISIONS—As in other lines, values are higher. Some old clear pork is still in the market. Quotations are lower than stock could be placed at. Mess is very scarce and is tending higher. Prices of smoked meats are firm. Lard, which dealers have bought freely and which has been so very low, is moving up. We quote: Clear pork, $14.50 to $15.50; mess, $13 to $14; plate beef, $13 50 to $14; hams, 13 to 13½c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; pure lard, 6¾ to 7c.; compound, 6¼ to 6½c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—Flour, which tended to slip off from highest points, seems to gain strength and firm prices are looked for. While the advance has been so considerable prices are not high. In oatmeal the upward tendency continues and prices are marked higher. Oats are somewhat hard to get at present; new will soon be offered. Prices are very firm. Cornmeal, which has been so low, shows quite an advance and is firm. Beans are good stock, the advance being maintained. While there is but little demand for feed, it is scarce. Barley is higher. The crop is much below that of last year. Split peas and other grades are marked up, they being hard to get. Hay is easy. We quote as follows: Manitoba flour, $6.25 to $6.35; best Ontario, $5.40 to $5.50; medium, $5.25 to $5.35; oatmeal, $3.65 to $3.75; cornmeal, $2.20 to $2.25; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $15 to $16; bran, do, do, $13.50 to $14.50; hand-picked beans, $1.20 to $1.25; prime, $1 to $1.10; oats, 34 to 36c.; hay, $12 to $13; barley, $3 to $3.25; round peas, $1.25; split peas, $3.15 to $3.20; yellow eye beans, $1.75; timothy seed, Canadian, $2 to $2.25; do. do., American, $1.75 to $2; clover, 8¾ to 9c.; alsike, 8½ to 9c.

The steamer St. Croix, running direct to Boston, took a very large cargo of sardines forward this week, having upward of 22,000 cases. She loaded them at Lubec and

TROPICAL FRUIT EXPERIMENTS.

We understand that the United States Government contemplates the establishment of an experimental tropical station in the lower part of Florida.

For several years the department has been experimenting with the pineapple, and has at last succeeded in bringing out many new varieties from the seeds of different varieties crossed. These plants are small, but it is expected that when they come into bearing there will be among them many choice varieties. These may supersede the varieties now in cultivation. These experiments have extended to the citrus family, guavas, etc. The great obstacle that has been in the way was the location of these Government experimental stations. They have been so far north that all the careful and painstaking labor of the experimenters was liable to be wiped out by cold. The establishment of the station in Florida below the danger line will enable those who have charge of this important branch of the Government to experiment with the most tender fruits, plants and shrubs.

CANNED AND DRIED FRUITS.

A writer in a New England paper expresses the opinion that in time dried fruits will supersede the canned variety entirely. We never expect this to come to pass, unless a vast improvement is made in the methods of drying. Canned fruit stands in a category of its own. It is no more like dried fruits than a peach is like a pear. Both are fruits, but there the resemblance ceases. The dryers of fruits, whether in this country or abroad, have never succeeded in drying or evaporating so well that their product could pass for anything but what it is—dried fruit. The extraction of the juices in order that the fruit may be made to an extent imperishable, changes its whole character and alters both flavor and appearance.

On the other hand, a good can of fruit admirably counterfeits the natural, fresh fruit. Take a can of fancy California yellow peaches, and it is practically impossible to say when eating it whether it is prepared at the moment or canned two years ago. This is one reason why the dried and canned fruits can never, in our opinion, conflict. They are two separate and distinct products.—Grocery World.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

This department has become so popular that many more notices than there is space for are received every week. In future only important items of information will be inserted. Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

SHREDDED Whole-Wheat Biscuit, the product of the entire wheat berry, claimed to be a natural food, is in stock with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, report good sales of "Shredded Wheat Biscuit."

T. Kinnear & Co. have Arguimbau fine off-stalk and select Valencia raisins now in stock.

Shipments of Crosse & Blackwell's goods are arriving this week for Davidson & Hay, Limited.

A shipment of new season's Ceylons and Young Hysons is in store with the Eby, Blain Co.

Laporte, Martin & Cie have received another consignment of fine off-stalk Valencia raisins.

T. A. Lytle & Co. expect to have their new stock of tomato catsup ready for shipment in a few days.

An exceptionally early arrival of new sultana raisins is announced in this issue by the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

Clemes Bros. received a direct shipment of Arguimbau Spanish onions this week. They are fine quality this year.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. say that their special prices in hams and bacon for these two weeks are bringing a good trade.

Robert Greig & Co. have made some heavy shipments of "Crown" flavoring extracts to maritime points this week.

"'Princess Louise' Japan tea is a favorite, judging by the constant and increasing demand we have for it," write Laporte, Martin & Cie.

W. H. Gillard & Co. have just received a further consignment of Gillard's new pickle and Gillard's new sauce from the manufacturers in England.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, are showing a very fine sample of new Sultana raisins. This is the earliest arrival of this fruit on this market.

T. Kinnear & Co. have a shipment in this week of Canadian kippered herring. These are something new in this market; they bring $1 per dozen.

Greig's "Crown" extracts have had an immense sale this season. The firm are enlarging their manufacturing department to keep up with the demand.

W. H. Gillard & Co. have in store a large and varied stock of Japans, high and medium grades, bought early in the market, and showing splendid values.

"We have had good sales of cheap Congous as advertised in THE GROCER last week," report Davidson & Hay, Limited. These are splendid liquoring teas, and are moving out quickly.

Robert Greig & Co. have advice from Germany that the price of Keopff's family gelatine is likely to advance shortly. While stock on hand lasts the agents will not increase the price here.

John Mouat, W. H. Gillard & Co.'s Northwest representative, states that during the past year he has sold over twice the quantity of their standard black teas than during the former season. This argues well for their merit.

"Yes, 'Kolona' tea has more than held its own at our Exhibition exhibit—which was equipped for work, not for display—and the prospective number of new consumers which will result is a source of much satisfaction to us," was remarked by one of the members of the Eby, Blain Co.

Perfectly wonderful, the success of the business and the growth of the tea trade since the introduction of CEYLON and INDIAN Teas. Every wide-awake, progressive grocer should study the special qualities of CEYLON and INDIAN Teas, they are purer, cleaner, healthier, more invigorating and more economical than the weak characterless teas of Japan and China. Try Ceylon and Indian Teas.

A WORD OF WARNING.

MERCHANTS throughout the country who are in the habit of buying dried apples should be careful at this time of year in the choice of the fruit that they purchase. Many lots are coming forward which, although apparently free from the fly and worm pest, yet when explored are found to be fit for only certain purposes, where they value about a cent a pound. Not that the condition of the fruit is any worse this year than previous years; still it is no better, and the weather just now seems to be very favorable for the breeding of the maggot, so that any of these goods that are still roaming around the country, and there are quite a few, are liable to be affected. All the more care is needed, as the eggs deposited by these flies hatch out the maggot in a few hours. Purchases should be immediately shipped to the commission houses.

The chief mischief-maker of this pest is the fly. In spite of great care in packing, one or two of these flies may obtain admission to a barrel of dried apples; we will suppose he does. At first no havoc is committed, but with the advent of warm weather eggs are deposited, and in a few hours of suitable conditions maggots are hatched out. These maggots attack the apples and turn them into very dust. The drier the apples are the worse is the pest and the quicker they eat up the fruit. These maggots seem to be turned into flies by nature just as the butterfly is formed, and thus the whole barrel or case is attacked by the pest.

Merchants can generally avoid any loss from such conditions by shipping their fruit as soon as it is purchased, in winter or in summer. The pest is not generally bred in winter; in fact, the conditions favorable for breeding are not precisely defined, but the damage begins in the early summer and it is as well to accept the market quotations as to wait for better ones and run the risk of having the goods spoiled altogether.

CHINESE EGGS.

"Fresh eggs from China" is a conspicuous sign posted in the windows of the Chinese stores and restaurants in Chicago. But it is stated that the wording is in Chinese characters, and that the eggs are a delicacy that only appeals to Chinese natives. Each is wrapped in a mass of black mud that retains its putty-like consistency for months, even when exposed to the air. They come in boxes holding 25 Chinese dozen—that is, 10. Everything that comes from China is purchased by tens. The eggs keep absolutely fresh. Peeling the mud coating from them, the faint blue tint of the shell is disclosed. The only difference between the eggs of an American duck and a Chinese fowl, and an unfailing mark that keeps the dealer from practising a deception, is that the yolk, instead of being yellow, has the color of an American Beauty rose.—The Chef.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 8, 1897.

WHEAT, wheat, wheat, is the cry in Manitoba. Fully 90 per cent. of the harvest is now stooked and threshing is general. This is from two to three weeks earlier than usual; in some places the yield is below anticipation, and in others above, so that it is as yet too early to make an estimate of the total yield. Samples so far received show the quality to be excellent and the color good. The price in the country is 80c. on 18 and 19c. freight rate. In groceries there has not been any change for the week. Business in all lines is very good indeed, and the tone of trade is healthy.

GREEN FRUITS—Oranges are really out of market. Lemons are all coming in from California; the supply is good and price is a little easier, being now $5 to $5.50 per case. A small consignment of Ontario peaches, plums and tomatoes came in by express last week, but were in an unsatisfactory condition; in fact, a number of the 20-lb. baskets of plums were sold as low as 60c. The plums, peach and pear market is well supplied with American fruit, the stocks coming in from Washington, Oregon and California. The goods are arriving in first-class condition. Plums and peaches, $1.40 to $1.45 per case of 20 lbs.; pears, $1.75 to $2 for the 40-lb. crates California Tokay grapes are now in, and quoted at $3.25 to $3.50 per 20-lb. crate. Quite a supply of Illinois Concords have arrived, and are selling at 55c. per basket. These baskets are called 10-lb., but really average only 8 lb. Bananas are growing scarcer; small lots are sold at $1.75 to $2 per bunch. Apples are arriving in large quantities, but so far they are all southern fruits. They are arriving in excellent condition and are selling from $3.75 to $4.25 per bbl., according to size and quality.

BUTTER—Eleven cents for round lots at point of shipment is the latest return. Creamery: the market is still rising; 18½c. f.o.b. factories was paid last week, and many factories are now holding for higher figures.

CHEESE—Also continues to climb; 7¾c. for large and 8¾c. for small being now the price paid. The quality is very good and the demand is steady.

EGGS—This product is growing scarcer and the price is increasing; 13c. is being paid in Winnipeg, and the price to jobbers after candling is now 14½c.

THE SALMON PACK.

The Grocer and Country Merchant, of San Francisco, says: "The British Columbia pack closed on the 24th inst. with a total of 900,000 cases, which, though the largest on record, is yet much less than the million and a half that was expected and prepared for, but for which the run of fish was too irregular. The Puget Sound and Point Roberts spring sockeye pack has also closed with a total of 275,000 cases. The Point Roberts contingent of this, 125,000, has been sold for the English and Australian markets. Outside packers expected three times the 150,000 that they actually realized, and prices on this description have been advanced to 90c.; 42,000 cases arrived this week from Karluck, but were all previously sold. The pack of red fish will be lighter this year in Southeastern Alaska, but of pink there will be a good supply. Generally the Alaskan pack of the association will be a full one, but of others it will be light. The Columbia River spring pack has been 475,000 cases. Leading packers, such as Warren, Farrel and Hanton, are sold out of Chinook talls, and have but a small surplus of flats. Steel heads are about cleaned up. Fall packing commences on the 10th of next month, and heavy sales of the same have been made in advance."

Sutherland & Campbell, the wholesale grocers and tea importers, Winnipeg, have received a carload of the new season's Japan tea.

SITUATION IN PRUNES.

THE past three or four days has developed decidedly more interest in all lines of California dried fruits for forward shipment among eastern buyers, and a considerable amount of business has been done. Much more, it is understood, could have been sold for distribution in the eastern markets, but for the fact that buyers at this end generally entertain views lower than those of the sellers on the Coast. The latter seem to be very confident of a large market for this season's crops, both at home and abroad, and while they might make large sales readily by making some slight concessions, are disposed to hold for full prices. The result has been that a majority of the orders telegraphed to California within the past few days have been turned down on the ground that the buyers' bids were below sellers' ideas. When the sharp advance in California prices occurred a week or so since the eastern trade expressed an unwillingness to pay the higher prices, but with the consuming markets closely cleaned up and the season of consumption approaching, they are beginning to show greater readiness to meet the views of sellers.

After raisins prunes seem to be the subject of chief interest at present. Notwithstanding the fact that the crop which is now about to be shipped is said by some authorities to be one of the largest, if not the largest, California has so far produced, and that Washington and Oregon have had very full crops this season, prices have shown a steady upward tendency of late. This is in part due to the fact that there is not only little prospect of important competition from abroad, but that the foreign outlet for Pacific Coast goods is steadily extending and has already reached important proportions, while with all of the principal domestic markets practically bare of supplies, and the season of largest consumption close at hand the sellers on the Coast look for a large consuming demand. So long, therefore, as they are not forced to sell to obtain ready money they are indifferent to bids which fall below the quotation they have made, and these are one-half to three-quarters of a cent above the prices based on the four sizes that were made at the beginning of the season.

The 1896 crop of prunes was a fair average one, while the carryover from 1895 was considerable, nearly all of the larger distributing centres having more or less, this market alone, it is said, carrying some 75 carloads. Nearly all of these goods, we understand, have gone into consumption, and what remains is in the hands of strong holders. The 1896 season opened at 2⅞ to 3c. for the four sizes f.o.b., but subsequently advanced to 3½ to 3¾c., with rather free sales at the higher figures. Owing to the competition of evaporated and sun-dried apples, which were in excessive supply and offered at unprecedentedly low prices, the higher rate on prunes lasted but a short time, the market receding to about the opening figures. Then trade started up again and stocks were rapidly absorbed. The concentration of the small remaining stock and the exceptionally good home and export demand for the summer season have, during the past six weeks, resulted in a considerable advance in spot prices. Opening prices this year, notwithstanding this and the higher prices for evaporated apples, were lower than ever before, but gone up somewhat as stated and a further advance in the quotations is looked for and according to some of the representatives in the trade seems to be warranted by the better prospects for trade during the coming season.

Good Advertising

For Wide Awake Retailers

By F. James Gibson.

From the Dry Goods Review.

IN connection with the Good Advertising Department we have opened a Criticism Department and a Question Drawer Department. Knowing the great importance to the retail dealer of good advertising, and desiring to help our subscribers to become good advertisers, we have secured the services of Mr. F. James Gibson. Mr. Gibson, who is one of the leading advertising experts of the day, will be ready to answer all questions relating to advertising sent to our question drawer. He will also criticise any advertisements sent for that purpose and give the benefit of his advice on advertising subjects generally.

It is also our desire that our readers will help along this good work by sending to us for publication any advertisements which they have found to be particularly good for drawing business. In this way this department of The Dry Goods Review will become a sort of clearing house for good advertising, and we will be helping one another to better things in the way of advertising.

The services of Mr. Gibson are entirely free to our subscribers.

Good advertising will not, in itself, make a retail business successful—it is only one of several things necessary to success. Good buying, good selling, good store management and able financing are each as important as good advertising, and no dealer is likely to succeed in these days of keen competition without all these five aids to success.

But what is good advertising? Advertising, in the commercial sense, has for its ultimate object the selling of something. Good advertising is that which accomplishes this result economically and well. It was the complaint of the young general, Bonaparte's, opponents that he did not fight his battles according to the rules of war as then understood. Napoleon's reply to this, when he heard of it, was: "But I win battles." Good advertising is something like good fighting, and the man who "gets there" probably is the one who doesn't lie awake nights thinking about rules. But for all this, war, as usually carried on, is a science, and the man who has studied it the most and knows most about its fundamental principles has, other things being equal, the advantage of his opponent.

It is a well-known fact that only a very small percentage of business men succeed in business. How many of the vast number of commercial wrecks which dot Canada (and all other countries) from end to end are due to a lack of knowing how to advertise? It is, of course, impossible to know. It is safe, however, to say that there is no branch of business effort more necessary for success to the retail dealer to-day than is advertising. A dealer who does not know how to secure the publicity necessary for his business is badly handicapped. There are at the present time throughout Canada thousands of retail dealers who are doing nothing more than making both ends meet. And yet these men have success quite within their grasp except for one thing: They don't know how to advertise. They'll die poor men. These men are, as I know from experience, keen and careful buyers. They are good salesmen also and attentive to their customers' wants, as well as economical in their expenditures. So far as their business gives them play, they are also good financial managers. But there is something lacking somewhere. Nine times out of ten the thing lacking is good advertising. These dealers either refuse bluntly to advertise at all, saying they don't believe in it, or else they go about it in such a haphazard, half-hearted way that no good can come of it. In the meantime, the business that perhaps properly belongs to them goes to some big department store or other place of business which advertises. By-and-bye the day of awakening comes, and they all start in and kick the man who advertises. But he can stand it; he has the business.

The department store question, which has lately been so extensively discussed in Canada and in other countries, is very closely allied to this subject of good advertising. The great growth during the past 25 years of the daily newspaper press has put a powerful instrument of warfare into the hands of the aggressive and enterprising dealer, and he has not been slow to avail himself of it. Without the daily papers the great department stores could not exist. It is clear, then, that they owe much of their success to advertising. What are you going to do about it, Mr. Retailer? Are you going to let your business be gobbled up and yourself be reduced to the rank of a clerk? There may be a remedy for you in the careful perusal of this good advertising department each month. In the meantime just bear this in mind: Good advertising is the bridge that has carried many a successful man over the river.

Of course, not one dealer in a hundred knows how to do good advertising, but the trouble is that most of them think that they know it all. They freely and frankly admit that they don't understand law or medicine. The average grocer will confess that he knows nothing about dry goods or hardware, or, indeed, about any other business but his own. And so with the average man in other lines of trade. But get these people on the subject of advertising and it is surprising how much they think they know about it. And yet advertising is as much a science as medicine or law. There are certain fundamental principles that underlie the art of advertising.

To be a successful advertiser it is as necessary to understand these fundamentals as for a doctor or lawyer to understand the fundamentals upon which their respective professions are builded. To be a good advertiser it is clearly necessary, then, to learn the business. To most advertisers this learning process has been a very expensive one. But this is an age of progress, and there are other ways of learning than through the bitter school of experience. Advertising has to-day its teachers and exponents in colleges and universities, as well as among a number of really excellent publications devoted entirely to the science of publicity. It is also one of the most useful provinces of trade journals to teach its underlying principles to those of their readers who are willing to lend an attentive ear. There are also advertising experts whose services can be procured in the most instances for a very moderate cost. The dealer who is really anxious to acquire information regarding this most important subject will find no great difficulty is obtaining it.

About the very first snag the novice runs up against is the advertising fakir. The woods are full of these fakirs, and the schemes they spring on the unwary are almost like the stars of heaven in multitude. It is safe to say that one-fourth to one-third of the amount spent in advertising in Canada and the United States is thrown away on useless schemes. And most of this vast sum of money is squandered on these same fakirs. The advertising fakir, for the sake of convenience, we will divide into two classes. First, there is the fellow who knows that he has a fake scheme. Then there is the man who really thinks (perhaps) that he has a good thing. But it all comes to the same thing in the end, so far as the victim is concerned—his money is gone where it will do him little or no good. The safest plan is to have nothing at all to do with an advertising scheme, no matter who presents it. If the devil, when he tempts us, were always to appear with cloven hoofs and horns and the smell of sulphur, we would easily know him for the devil and be on our guard. It's the same way with the advertising fakir. If he were to come to us with a sign outside of the front of his hat reading: "I am an advertising fakir, beware of me!" we would not often be fooled. But when he, like the devil, appears as an angel of light we are in a dangerous position. It may be easy for us to turn the cold shoulder to the man who wants to sell us space in a hotel register, or who maybe has a scheme for sending up a balloon laden with circulars, which, at certain intervals, are to be cast forth to the earth, or he perhaps has some other equally attractive (?) plan for coaxing money out of our pockets. But when a church fair or a picnic programme comes along and we are requested by one of our best customers to take a $5 or $10 space in it, what are we to do? If we are wise we will refuse. I don't believe that any advertiser ever yet traced one dollar's worth of business to this kind of advertising. And yet thousands of intelligent dealers spend most of their advertising appropriations in just such schemes as these. They think that they are smart business men and good advertisers, when, at most, all they have done is to gain the favor of two or three individuals. In the meantime the great public all around them remains in blissful ignorance of the bargains they have to offer. The result is that the department store man, or some other fellow who knows how to advertise in the right way, gets the business. And probably too, Mr. Dealer, he gets the business of the very woman to whom you gave that $10 contract for space in the church fair programme last week.

JAS. B. WARREN,

BEAVERTON.

Here is an advertisement taken from a Beaverton paper which seems to have pretty much all the bad points in it which it is possible to get into an ad. I have purposely selected it as an example of a kind of advertising which is very prevalent. Mr. Warren is doubtless an enterprising man, seeing that he advertises, but he will never make any money out of advertisements like this. And yet, take up almost any paper you like, you will find shrewd and intelligent men spending their money in just this way. And the worst of it is that they think they are advertising. This Beaverton ad. has all the earmarks of a "standing" ad.—one of those kind which is changed every six months or thereabouts. Who is responsible for this kind of advertising? The publishers of the papers in which they appear, as much as anyone. The space occupied by Mr. Warren's ad. might be made of real value if some specific article, with the description and the price attached to it, had been placed there. As it is, when Mr. Warren finds out that his advertising doesn't pay him, he will probably order it discontinued, and the paper will lose a customer. But Beaverton is not without its advertising genius. Here is an advertisement of C. T. Young's, which is about something in particular and which will surely sell goods, provided the prices are low enough. Mr. Young is a man who evidently knows very little of the Queen's English, and yet there is ten times as much horse sense in his ad. as there is in the Warren ad. This simply shows how much better horse sense is than a knowledge of grammar, when it comes to practical business.

Now, here is an ad. that has plenty of horse sense in it and all the grammar that's necessary. The man who wrote it knows how to pen an advertisement. He also knows a good deal about how an ad. should be set up typographically. Notice the other strong points of this advertisement. The language is simple and modest; it is therefore convincing. It gives you something definite about shirt waists and linens, and leaves the impression on the mind that back of these things there are plenty of other bargains awaiting the customer who steps into "The White House."

ads., and they are surely glaring enough. This advertisement, while a model of dignity and straightforwardness, is so general in its nature that it would be almost impossible to trace any results to a quantity of prices and other detailed information it leaves nothing to be desired. If the last paragraph had been omitted and a dozen, say, of specific clothing items run in instead of it, it would have been better. Once in a while an advertisement of glittering generalities is all right, but as a steady diet it is not "in it" with the ad. that gives something definite in the way of prices and other particulars.

The accompanying advertisement of Knox, Morgan & Co.s, which has been reduced from a full page ad. in The Review, is, of course, not a retailer's ad. but its faults are the faults of many retail it. Now, an advertisement to which no business can be traced is not the right kind of an advertisement. A business house which does much of this kind of advertising is taking great chances. For all it knows it may be throwing its money away. This is not good business. If I were doing the advertising of Messrs. Knox, Morgan & Co. I would take some specific article of dry goods and advertise it by itself. I would show a cut of the article where possible. I would also tell the price. In the absence of a cut I would give a written description. I would change the article for each issue of the journal used. I have tried this plan for a large wholesale house and it works very successfully. Of course, where competition is very keen the average jobber does not feel like giving his prices away to his competitor. But almost every house of any importance has certain lines of goods which no one can beat for values. These are the kind to use in an advertisement. Besides, business got in this way costs less to get than through a traveling salesman.

Wholesale Dry Goods
HAMILTON

OUR representatives are now covering Western Ontario, Manitoba and Northwest Territories with a collection of carefully selected samples which for value and style will interest all merchants.

The stock will be well forward by middle of July, and we respectfully solicit an inspection of the values now offering by our representatives, and a share of your FALL ORDERS.

Customers know that we fill orders in rotation, and that goods are shipped promptly and equal to samples.

During the warm summer days we shall be pleased to have want lists by mail.

LETTER ORDERS FILLED WITH PARTICULAR ATTENTION.

MINT ... PUFF-STRAPS

RECOGNIZING the great popularity of peppermint with the sweets-loving public, we are the first to introduce to the trade Pliable Licorice containing this flavor.

The delicious quality of our Pliable Licorice is well known; it is matchless in this respect as well as in its flavor and finish.

Our Triple Tunnel Tubes and Navy Plugs are great favorites also, and are made of the same material, although flavored differently. . . . . .

We recommend all these goods as suitable for Summer Trade; they will please the most exacting taste as wholesome, smooth and palatable confections. . . . .

HISTORY OF DEPARTMENT STORES.

THE idea of department stores was originated in New York City by a firm dealing in dry goods. They had a small store or shop at what was then a central retail corner, but with a floor space not much greater than that occupied by the average dry goods merchant in a town of 10,000 or 15,000 inhabitants. They confined their business to their own line for a few years and then they branched out into house-furnishings, as these firms always do. Their trade in these goods was successful, and from time to time they added other goods and gradually enlarged their establishment, until now they sell almost every article of retail merchandise and have the second largest store in New York. Incidentally, the largest store building there is occupied by a rival firm from the west which has recently opened up a branch house and strives to divert a considerable part of the other's trade. But the house first mentioned was not permitted, even from the start, to monopolise the department business. Other dry goods firms increased their lines in order to meet the competition thus presented, and their numbers grew until now there is not one large dry goods house in New York that does not carry additional lines. In due time the idea was developed throughout the country, and now every one of our large cities has its own department store or several of them. Chicago has a dozen or more and St. Louis six. There is but one large dry goods store in St. Louis that attends strictly to its own business, and there are a great many people who prefer to patronize it on this account.

What these stores are in their effect on distributed business may best be ascertained by a description of one of the largest. Its name and location need not be given, since it is merely an illustration of the others. The firm occupies a building covering one-half of a city square, and pays an annual rental in excess of $400,000. The floor space is equal to about sixteen acres. About 3,500 clerks, most of them being women, are employed, but this number does not include the office force, nor the 300 assistant cashier or check girls. The total number employed is in the neighborhood of 4,000, and while the figures on the pay-roll can only be estimated it is safely within the limits of conservatism to place them at $50,000 a week, or $2,600,000 a year. The statement is made by a business man in a position to know of what he speaks that the firm must take in no less than $24,000 a day before it can realize any profit. On this basis, it must do a business aggregating at least $13,000,000 yearly, but that it does more than this is shown by the fact that its methods are systematized so as to ensure a profit on the total amount transacted, and by the more general statement that the partners are not in the business for their personal health. Financial health is the one consideration, and it is a reasonable estimate that the amount of their sales has averaged $16,000,000 annually during the last three or four years.

How much of this vast amount has been diverted from the smaller retail trade in the adjacent or contributing territory? Let each dealer figure it out for himself, basing his estimates on his diminished receipts.

There is nothing new under the sun, and there is nothing within the range of human, living wants that cannot be obtained under this roof. It has meats and the apparatus to cook them; groceries and the utensils for their preparations. Heating stoves and furnaces are sold, with the fuel to supply them. The carpenter can buy his tools and his other metal goods with as much ease as he can provide himself with a suit of clothes, or his wife with a dress, or his children with shoes. The stove and hardware dealer can supply his personal wants in any direction —if he cares to go away from his own neighborhood—and there is no line of retail trade that is not here represented. It is a vast aggregation of all lines, under one roof and one management, with a heavy cash capital that is used to influence if not to control the output of many manufacturers, and, in consecutive course, to act as a menace to the smaller retail trade and to tempt the public patronage under the guise, most successfully veiled, of "cut-throat prices and bargains." Its success, then, depends upon these conditions, namely, the yielding of the manufacturers, the gullibility of the public and the loss to the smaller trade. These conditions are assured, since the establishment is a pronounced success.

Do the manufacturers care to be controlled? Does the public wish to be deluded? Will the retail trade submit to a loss? Let each class answer in its proper turn, and the retailer should come first.

It should not be understood that bargain sales or lower prices are not made at these department stores. These can be obtained every day, in certain lines, on every day of the week. But are they legitimate? As a rule, no! One illustration will suffice. A department store advertised last week that it would sell certain lines of cooking utensils at prices below the cost of manufacture. Investigation by a well-posted buyer, who was acquainted with the list and discounts of the manufacturers, showed that the advertisers had told the truth. They were actually selling these goods at from 15 to 40 per cent. below the net price fixed by the makers, and at proportionately less figures than those representing first cost. They had a right to do this; they even had a right to give away the goods and attach a dollar bill, or a ten or a twenty, to each article sold. But what was the object of their seemingly sacrificial sale for the good of humanity? Nothing less than to draw the crowds to the store, with the bait of low prices on one line to conceal the hook on the higher prices of others, to check the competition of the smaller dealers in cooking utensils and to increase their orders to the manufacturers so that the latter might be induced to sell them the goods because they were supposedly profitable customers. This is but one instance, yet it is repeated every day.

As has been stated, the business of these department stores is not confined to their immediate locality nor to the city in which they are allowed to exist. Their sales are as large and as well distributed as their influence is hurtful upon trade. They not only injure or destroy the business of the smaller dealers in their own city, but through a well-arranged mail order system they extend their sales throughout the adjacent and, in some cases, the distant trade territory, advertising in the local papers, sending circulars, catalogues and price lists to the better known people, and, in at least one instance, having an agent in each of the larger towns whose business it is to drum up trade and take it away from the local merchants. They have an undisputed legal right to adopt this policy in their business, even though its effect on the retail trade may be to drive it away from the communities where it exists and to deprive such communities of the capital and enterprise which are justly their own.

This matter is now thoroughly well understood. Now for the remedy. Legislation cannot be effective. Special taxation is unconstitutional when levied by the State. It is even doubtful if any Legislature would enact the necessary measure, whether unconstitutional or not. A city ordinance might provide a partial relief, but the cities will not enact one. In short, the resources of the law are exhausted before they are tried. Yet there is a remedy, and it is one which the retailers everywhere should be the first to employ. It is not found in a combination, nor in the justly hated and un-American boycott, but in a firm and continued purpose with every retail dealer, in all lines and wherever located, to patronize his trade neighbors and to use every legitimate effort to induce these neighbors to deal with him. Of almost equal use and importance is the making of an effort with the non-mercantile buyers in or about his town to confine their purchases to the dealers in that town, himself included, and by so doing to build up and perpetuate that unity of commercial interest which is always essential to the success of any community.

Help your neighbor and he will help you! Reciprocity in business is the keystone of the arch. Remove it, and you destroy the entire fabric. There is, there must be, such an arch in every town or village. You are a part of it, Mr. Dealer. So are your trade neighbors, so are your fellow townsmen. They are, with you, constituent parts of a structure that is held in place by the common bond of self-interest, at once the strongest and weakest trait of human nature. But you and they can make it strong in the present case, and, in so doing, build up what others may seek to destroy.—Stoves and Hardware Reporter.

SEEDLESS FRUITS.

More important probably than eliminating the thorns on trees and bushes is the extermination of objectionable seeds. The seeds of oranges, grapes, apples, pears and similar fruits are no longer absolutely necessary for the production of plants and trees. Nature slowly and grudgingly relinquishes her right to mature seeds—the secret that she has guarded so carefully for perpetuating many of her choicest species. Before horticulture was reduced to a science, most plants depended upon the seeds for their existence, but in these modern days, when budded and grafted stock give more satisfaction than seedlings, they are superfluous to a degree. We might not be able to get along without any seeds; for seedling stock must continue to be raised so long as fruit trees are in demand, but, as all choice stock is budded or grafted, the seeds of our leading varieties of oranges, lemons, grapes and apples could be easily dispensed with.—Lippincott's.

TEXAS FIGS.

THE fig industry of Texas is developing into a paying industry. The following from The Galveston News' Alvin, Texas, article gives some interesting particulars: "The fig industry is being much discussed at present, as this season has demonstrated the value of the crop, and in a year or two more the output will be large. Notwithstanding the long drouth, considerable money was made on the crop this season and the demand largely exceeded the supply. The fig being a surface rooter, it can be planted between the pear trees and will yield a good crop the second year without materially injuring the growth of the pear trees. Thousands of fig bushes were planted around here last winter, which are now bearing some fruit, and next season will bear heavily. The prices have held up well during the season, averaging $1.50 per bushel, and the supply not enough for the local demand. The fig can be planted in the fence corners and between the trees in the orchard row, really occupying no land that could be otherwise used and requiring no special cultivation. The magnolia fig has proven the most hardy and surest cropper, being a showy fruit, palatable and ships well. There are a number of varieties planted and giving good returns, but the magnolia is in the lead as yet. This fruit can be crated the same as strawberries and shipped for a long distance in condition. The demand is increasing as they are introduced into distant markets."

Tennessee has probably raised a larger crop of watermelons than ever before—1897 being the record breaker, melons weighing 60 pounds being ordinary size, and the prices are so low that it does not pay to market them.

OATMEAL MILLING IN CANADA.

SOME twenty years ago in Ontario the success of a few experienced oatmeal millers caused a sudden and overwhelming rush into the business from outsiders, says The Commercial, of Winnipeg. Flour millers even added oatmeal milling to their trade, and some of the most miserably inadequate plants were laid down only to produce a correspondingly inferior article even for those days. The markets were soon glutted, and competition for the comparatively small demand reduced prices to a ruinous figure.

Most of the new beginners were soon closed out and the ruins of their mills are a monument of their imitative rashness to-day. The experienced remained, though sorely crippled, for experience alone can give the knowledge necessary in the economical production of any article in order to secure a margin of profit on a price that would mean ruin to the inexperienced.

The fact that of some 65 oatmeal mills in Ontario and Quebec only nine are now being profitably run is sufficient proof of the truth of the foregoing. This should be a warning to those men who are now looking with inexperienced and greedy eye on the success of one or two oatmeal millers in this province. Success has its secrets which the uninitiated cannot fathom. We can hardly hope that our warning will be effectual, as men seldom profit by the disastrous experience of others.

As to oatmeal milling in Manitoba, the province has four mills, two of which are running with fair success. Any one of these mills could supply the demands of the province if run its full capacity. Such being the case, where is the demand to come from to permit business for any more enterprises in this direction.

It is announced that three or four flour millers in this province have an idea of adding small oatmeal mills to their establishments. To these men we would offer "Punch's" advice to those about to marry, "don't," for though they could sell their meal, they could not do it at paying prices, as a small mill takes just as much machinery and attendance as a 200-barrel mill, besides being a most complicated and difficult business to handle successfully. We are credibly informed that so fine are prices of oatmeal cut that it is only by the most perfect management and the keenest eye to economy that a bare profit can be secured, and this with undivided attention.

AN INTERNATIONAL GROCERS' CONFERENCE.

IN the year 1900, says The Grocer's Advocate, the influx of strangers into the French capital will be greater than usual, owing to the fact that the world's fair will be added to the many attractions of the city. It has been suggested that the time and place are suitable for the holding of a grocers' international conference in Paris while the fair is open, and already an attempt has been made to feel the pulse of the grocers in the different countries as to the expediency of such a gathering. Below we print an excerpt from a report of an address on this subject, delivered at the recent conference of the Federation of Grocers of the United Kingdom and published in The Manchester Grocers' Review.

These are some of the questions which occur to one's mind as being subjects which would in all probability be amongst the foremost for discussion at such a conference. There are many other questions dealing with the internal management of our business which might be very profitably discussed, and the various nations would be able to give each other some practical assistance in discussion; but beyond these questions there is a further advantage, which would be derived from the social intercourse which takes place at such a gathering. The policy of isolation we have by this time learned is a bad one, whether for traders as a class or for the individual. If Tennyson is right when he says, "Ground in yonder social mill we rub each other's angles down," then surely it would be desirable that we who are so insular in our thought and habit should have our ideas broadened by contact with men who dwell in a great continent like America, where it has been said, "Everything is big, everybody is big and lives big" Whether this be true with reference to the American grocery trade I am unable to say, but there is no doubt that there are many things which they with advantage could teach us, whilst perhaps there are one or two things we could teach them, big as they may be, whilst acquaintances would be formed that might be valuable in many ways.

THE SONG OF THE GROCER.

"Oh teas me not," the maiden cried,
"Such things I do despice,
I wish you really would go weigh,
and from your knees would rice."

"I cannot help this coffee said,
For you have chilled me through;
Though you to me have given the sack
No fairer flour e'er grew.

"This soap has slipped away from me,
That I can call you mine;
But if the barrel be removed
Please drop to me a line.

"I'd scale the highest grade for you,
Or grind my way so fine;
Whatever else gets mixed, you'll see
My heart will round you twine.

"I shall not strive you to appeas,
Though this is butter blow,
I still must think what might have bean
Had you not said me no."

LOW PRICES FOR CODFISH.

THE price of our grand staple—the codfish—is at present lower than it has been for many years. Large merchantable codfish is now quoted at $2.80 per quintal, and the inferior grades are, of course, in proportion. The demand is so slack that there is difficulty in disposing of it even at this low figure. It is possible that as the season advances the price may improve; but at present there are no signs of an increased demand, and the current price may not go beyond the figures quoted. Of course, the fall here is caused by the depression in European markets. We have been losing ground in the markets of Spain, Portugal and Italy for the last ten years, as the following table of exports to these countries, which has been recently compiled, sufficiently proves. The figures show the number of quintals exported from here in the years named:

	Spain.	Portugal.	Italy.
1886	115,300	370,257	51,529
1888	123,672	560,520	27,922
1889	87,735	367,231	17,822
1890	65,574	208,485	21,374
1891	90,660	219,129	39,773

What is the cause of this serious decline? Mainly the competition of the French-caught fish. Aided by bounties, they can afford to sell at a lower price than we. But that is not the whole truth. We have allowed ourselves to be beaten in these markets by sending fish inferior in cure to that of the French. In many instances the cure has been very bad. The French fish is cleaner and presents a more attractive appearance, and consequently sells better. However, we must go a step farther back. Why do not Newfoundland fishermen take greater care in curing their fish and in making it attractive to purchasers? It is not from want of skill. It is owing to the supplying system on which the fisheries have been conducted. The fishermen obtain their supplies on credit at the beginning of the season, and bring in their fish as payment at the close. The supplier has to take the fish, no matter what may be the cure, otherwise he will lose his advances. As a rule, the exporting firms, in a too eager competition with each other, have been in the habit of taking over the fish without much care in "culling." The fishermen find that their fish is taken at the same price whether well or ill-cured. It is no wonder that under such a system the cure of fish has degenerated.

Codfish is at the same price as thirty-seven years ago. But even at this price the fishermen of to-day are much better off than their predecessors of forty years ago, because food, clothing and all the necessaries of life are now from 30 to 50 per cent. cheaper than thirty-seven years since. Take the articles of flour, butter, sugar, tea, these are 40 per cent. cheaper now than forty years ago. Clothing of all kinds is 30 to 40 per cent. cheaper. Luxuries and comforts once beyond the reach of the fishermen are now within their means.

There is another very important consideration favorable to the fishermen of to-day. Thirty years ago the lobster fishery was unknown; now it is worth $600,000 annually, and the price is steadily rising.—Letter from St. John's, Nfld., in Montreal Gazette.

WHAT DOLLAR WHEAT IS DOING.

The merchant among the farms "is stocking up"; the wholesale dealers are thus compelled to increase their orders; the manufacturers fill their shops with men to fill these orders; the railroads buy more cars and employ more men to move the products and the goods; the men thus employed buy more goods from the local dealers and the local producers of goods sell where they could not sell before. The last named in turn buy more goods, and the ascending scale of purchase and production begins again. This is what dollar wheat means, not only in the wheat belt, but throughout a full half of the country.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

This department has become so popular that many more notices than there is space for are received every week. In future only important items of information will be inserted. Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

D. GUNN, BROS. & CO. report an active trade in hams since the special quotations have been issued. These are good for another week, when stock-taking commences.

The Eby, Blain Co. are showing a fine sample of Grenoble walnuts.

T. Kinnear & Co. have another shipment of Filiatra currants in stock.

Almond paste, for macaroons, etc., is in stock with the Eby, Blain Co.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. now have "Plymouth Rock" gelatine in store.

The Eby, Blain Co. have desirable values in Patna and Japan rice at close figures in lots.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. report a shipment of new-pack "Clover Leaf" salmon just to hand.

"Butter Fly" chop Japan tea is reported by Warren Bros. & Co. to be in good demand.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. report a shipment of No. 1 Labrador herring, in barrels and half-barrels, just to hand.

Robert Greig & Co. have just received a nice line of Craven's English boiled candies in 5-lb. jars.

Fine Filiatra currants, owing to their scarcity, have been moving freely with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

"We had our share of the influx of visitors during Exhibition weeks. Buyers were present often at the same time from points at the extreme eastern part of Ontario and the Northwest Territories, and the extent of the purchases augurs well for the continued improvement in trade," said the Eby, Blain Co.

T. B. Escott & Co. expect shipment of new currants early in October, bought at the lowest point in the market.

McWilliam & Everist have this week received a carload of bananas which, owing to the rush of other fruit, they are selling cheap.

T. B. Escott & Co. have just received a carload of fine grainy raw sugar in bags, which they quote at low prices.

Any dealer who has not yet received a copy of Robert Greig & Co.'s catalogue of grocers' specialties will be supplied on application.

T. B. Escott & Co.: "We have sole control of Jellycon for London district. Please look at our advertisement."

W. H. Gillard & Co. report large sales of Japans to retail at 25 and 40c. There appears to be an increasing demand for these goods.

T. B. Escott & Co.: "We wish to call the attention of the trade to our stock of fruit jars, and can quote low prices."

Warren Bros. & Co. are showing a special line of Young Hyson tea, polished points, which is said to show exceptionally good value.

T. B. Escott & Co. have one or two carloads of lard on hand, bought before the recent advance, which they quote at low figures.

As a result of their exhibit at the Toronto Fair, Robert Greig & Co. have booked extensive orders for "Tryphosa" jelly, "Kola-cafe" and "Crown" extracts.

W. H. Gillard & Co. have just received a large shipment of Rio coffee, comprising some very fine lines. The coffee is in double sacks, and the price is low.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, report the arrival of new pack salmon this week, among which is their own registered brand, "Anchor."

H. P. Eckardt & Co. have just received a small shipment of '97-pack "Connoiseur Cluster" and "Ex. Dessert" Malaga table raisins and shelled almonds.

W. H. Gillard & Co. are selling large quantities of Gillard's new pickles and new sauce, a shipment of which they have just received from the makers, Gillard & Co., of London, Eng.

Lytle & Co., Richmond street west, Toronto, are well pleased at the way in which "Sterling" pickles have jumped into favor with the public. Orders for them are being repeated from all parts of the country.

A full assortment of French goods packed by Dandicolle & Gaudin, Limited, Bordeaux, has just been landed by Robert Greig & Co. The shipment consists of peas, mushrooms, haricots, all in glass and tin, sardines, olives, truffles, capers, etc.

Griffin & Shelley's agents in Montreal are offering the trade a new package that bids fair to be very popular. The packages consist of apricots and peaches packed in 1-lb. cartoons, and in addition to the well-known good quality of the fruit the packages themselves are very handsome.

KNOX'S GELATINE CONTESTS.

C. B. Knox, Johnstown, New York, says that grocers can make this promise to their customers: "If you are not satisfied with Knox's gelatine, return it, and I shall refund your money. Also, if you will save the signature sides of the No. 1 box or the fronts of the No. 3, or acidulated box, and mail C. B. Knox 75 of either one of them, or of both, he will send you a 2x2 pocket camera, all complete, free." This promise works in with the grocers' and grocers' clerks' contests.

These goods are giving complete satisfaction to the consumer because the quality is right, and the dealer also is pleased because margins are good.

A UNIFORM PRICE FOR SUGAR.

THERE was an important conference of the leading wholesale grocers of the Dominion at Montreal last Monday. The conference was, of course, strictly private, but THE CANADIAN GROCER has gathered sufficient to know that some very important matters were discussed and a friendly understanding arrived at between the Montreal and Western houses.

The following gentlemen took part in the conference: Messrs. Turner and Gillard, of Hamilton; Elliott and Dillon, of London; Davidson, Blain, Warren, Eckardt, Sloan, Kinnear and Ince, of Toronto, and Chaput, Laporte, C. P. Hebert, A. Hebert, H. F. Hughes, Carter, Brosseau and Quintal, of Montreal.

The chief topic of discussion at the gathering was the method of sale for the great staple, sugar. As pointed out before in these columns, there has been a lot of misunderstanding on this particular subject. Western houses accused Montreal firms of entering their territory and offering sugar below the refiners' price, and threatened retaliation. When the matter was sifted to the bottom, however, it was learned that members of the Montreal Wholesale Guild were not offenders, but parties outside that body.

The primary object of the conference was to discuss the means to be adopted to meet the competition of these people, and though it was not officially stated, it is generally agreed that the conference decided to give the free lances a Roland for their Oliver, and beat them at their own game until the offenders got tired of their unbusiness-like tactics.

It is understood also that the refiners have been approached with a view to their co-operation. What they, the wholesalers, want the jobbers to do is to allow them at the end of a certain period a rebate of a quarter of a cent per pound, similar to the system in vogue in the United States. This granted, the wholesalers would sell the retailer at the refiners' prices, relying upon the rebate for their profit. It is estimated that this would give the wholesaler a profit of about 6 per cent., taking yellows and granulated together.

Other matters of general interest to the trade were discussed. For instance, the firms represented agreed to sell tobacco 30 days less 1 per cent., and not as some firms have been doing, three months. Dried fruit also is to be sold 30 days, or 10 days less 1 per cent.

Exaggerations may sell goods in the first instance, but they are just as certain to lose customers in the second.

CHINA GREEN TEAS FIRM.

THE market for China green teas occupies a more than usually interesting position.

Advices to hand state that Moyune growths have sold at from 6 to 7 taels above the figures ruling at the opening of the market last year, or equal to about 1c. per pound. Teenkais teas have realized 20 to 25 per cent. more than in 1896. Even Pingsuey teas have sold as high as 34½ taels, which is a quarter of a tael above the maximum figure obtained for Teenkai, which is, of course, a much higher grade tea.

Teamen in China assert that the crop of green tea in that country will be about 10 per cent. less than last year.

The chief factor in bringing about the strength of the market is generally ascribed to the new inspection law of the United States, the tea grower having adopted more careful methods, realizing that a great deal of his product might otherwise be refused entrance to one of his chief markets. This has naturally led to a diminished crop, particularly of the cheaper grades.

NO MORE HUMILIATION.

SIR LOUIS DAVIES, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, stated a few days ago during the course of a speech delivered in Charlottetown, P.E.I., that he "strongly hoped that in the not distant future negotiations would be renewed, probably within the next few months, which might result in much freer trade relations between Canada and the United States."

Canada has always courted closer trade relations with the United States. Our people possess business common sense: They know that the more customers they have the more goods they will sell. But Canadians are in no frame of mind to bow meekly to Uncle Sam for the desideratum. Time and again, to our humiliation, have we done so, only to receive rebuffs instead of reciprocity.

We are just as willing probably as we ever were to do business with the United States. But the desire for business does not demand our humiliation. Humiliation is not business.

Canada has importuned the United States already too many times. The duty of this country is to cease importuning. It is now the turn of the United States to take the initiative. One thing is certain, we shall be only weakening our case if we do so.

The affairs of the United States are controlled by a type of politicians who are actuated by party exigencies and not by business ethics. Such well-known and important publications as The New York Journal of Commerce recognize that the Dominion of Canada is a much more valuable market than that of all the Central and South American countries combined. But the politicians either will not or cannot recognize this. It pays them better to twist the British lion's tail and snub everything British. And as long as these conditions exist it is foolishness, aside altogether from its unmanliness, to ask for bread where we may expect nothing but a stone.

The United States does not supply us with the breath which is necessary to our national existence. The politicians over there think otherwise. And the best course for Canada to pursue is to allow them to learn by experience that greater illusion never had any man.

The people of the United States are keen for business. No people are more so.

By-and-bye, when they realize what certain well known trade journals already do, the barrier now existing will be removed and Canada and the United States will have closer trade relations. Until then we may as well expect the heavens to rain rum as the United States to accord freer trade to Canada. In the meantime, therefore, it is to be hoped no Government of this Dominion will again bring humiliation upon this country.

GLUT IN BANANAS.

The cheapness of peaches and other fruit on the Toronto market has this week caused a perfect glut in bananas. They could hardly be got rid of at any price, and not a few were thrown in the scavenger barrel.

The price for fine large bunches ranged from 35 to 50 cents, and the Italian fruit pedlars could hardly find street purchasers at 5 cents a dozen.

This glut is seemingly not peculiar to the Toronto market, for when the situation of affairs was telegraphed to New York and the importers there were informed that the freight rates could hardly be obtained, another carload was immediately sent fortorward. The dealers here hardly know what to do with them when they arrive.

This condition is hardly to be wondered at when the quantity of other fruit moved is taken into consideration. One large firm handled about 35,000 baskets last week.

In spite of the great quantity of peaches already on the market, the trees in the Niagara district are still so heavily laden that they are breaking down, and sufficient men to pick the crop cannot be obtained. The cool nights, which prevent the too rapid ripening of the fruit, is alone preventing the going to waste of fruit both under the trees and on the different markets.

WILL SELL DIRECT TO THE TRADE.

A decision of interest to general merchants as well as to dry goods dealers has been arrived at by the Dominion Cotton Co.

The decision is to the effect that hereafter white and grey cottons will be sold to the trade direct, instead of through selling agents, as formerly.

Colored goods or Magog prints will, however, be sold as before.

ANALYSIS OF MUSTARD.

A BULLETIN has been prepared by the laboratory of the Inland Revenue Department which has created more than usual interest in the grocery trade of the Dominion. It relates to mustard. So far the information regarding it comes through the Ottawa correspondent of one of our daily papers, the bulletin not yet having been distributed, and the information thus obtained is both ambiguous and misleading.

Out of 66 samples analyzed only three are alleged to be pure, and of these two were from Keen's and one from Colman's, although other samples of both these firms were found to be adulterated with farinacious substances. Some manufacturers of mustard are claimed to have adulterated the product to the extent of 50 per cent.

There is no doubt a great deal of mustard on the market which is unduly adulterated in order that it may undersell the product of reputable houses, but it should be remembered that while pure mustard is possible, it is not feasible, and for two reasons: (1) Pure mustard from the best seed would be too powerful to be palatable; and (2) pure mustard without an admixture of farinaceous substances would not keep.

Such world-renowned mustard makers as J. & J. Colman and Keen, Robinson & Co., do not profess to put up a condiment made from mustard seed and nothing else. On every tin of Colman's double superfine is to be found this inscription: "Take Notice. This preparation is an admixture of pure mustard with farina and choice condiments." On that of Keen's this is to be found; "This is an admixture in which no injurious ingredient is used." And both these firms' mustards are made to comply with the British Foods and Drugs Act, whose rigorous character is well-known.

We take these two firms as an example merely because the reputation of their goods is so high.

It is well that the public should be protected. Mustard which contains admixtures, and yet is alleged to be free from foreign substances, should be sold for what it really is, but it is as reprehensible for a a public analyst or a newspaper to mislead the public as it is for the manufacturer of a certain condiment to do so.

There are two kinds of adulterations which the law should not brook: (1) When injurious substances are used; (2) when foreign substances, not injurious, are used to deceive or take advantage of the public.

THAT MUSTARD ANALYSIS.

A REPRESENTATIVE of THE CANADIAN GROCER had a chat a few days ago with a couple of mustard men in regard to the recent analysis by the Inland Revenue Department.

Mr. S. H. Ewing, of Ewing & Herron, pointed out that the despatches in question were unjust, inasmuch as they conveyed the impression that the firms named sold the goods for pure mustard. This was not the case. Pure mustard was an almost unknown quantity in the business world, for the very good reason that wheat flour was used in the preparation of all mustards put on the market to preserve them. He did not believe that any spice man in Canada sold mustard as pure. Most of the goods put on the Canadian market contained about 50 per cent. of mustard and the balance of uninjurious articles such as wheat flour. The consumer in Canada wanted this kind of goods, as the pure mustard was too sharp. Besides, in the Canadian climate, pure mustard had to be almost immediately disposed of, or it turned rancid. He was quite willing that the law should compel manufacturers to state expressly on their labels the exact percentage of pure mustard contained in a particular preparation, but objected to being accused of selling goods and representing them as pure when they were doing no such thing.

Frank Magor & Co., who represent Keen's mustard in Canada, said that some time ago, his firm had, at the request of certain customers in Canada, supplied an absolutely pure mustard to them. In a very little while the same people sent in complaints that the goods were turning sour, and he had to take back a large percentage of the shipments. Keen's mustard generally contained 12½ per cent. of foreign matter, such as wheat flour, as a preservative, and this mixture was absolutely necessary in the Canadian climate. But it was sold for what it was, and not for pure mustard, the proportion of foreign matter being clearly stated on the label on each package.

PROBABLE ADVANCE IN BROOMS.

ALTHOUGH wild reports to the effect that broom corn will this year rule $30 or $40 per ton higher in the States than last season are in circulation, the market is in a state of too much uncertainty to foretell what quotations will rule on the crop when it reaches the market.

Nearly every fall a scare of somewhat the same nature occurs, and it is generally supposed that it will not receive any more of an advance this season than that required to keep it in sympathy with the rising quotations on other farm produce. That advance, however, will be considerable.

The American Broom and Brush Company have already raised the prices of their brooms 25c. a dozen and whisks $1.50 per gross. Canadian manufacturers have not as yet followed suit, but if their past actions are to be regarded as a precedent, they will not be long in revising their price lists.

Some United States papers have taken up the cry and attributed the higher quotations to a shortage in the crops, but according to advices received in Toronto, these fears do not seem to be well founded. The crop is short in Kansas and perhaps in Nebraska and the other western states, but that in Illinois is estimated to be much larger than last year. The acreage in this latter state can be inferred to be more extensive this year, for it has been steadily increasing, a few years ago there being only a couple of counties producing this article. Taking the crop as a whole, those who can be relied upon say that the quantity and quality will be fully up to the average.

What is generally regarded as a main cause of this advance is the fact that the farmers, on account of the general high prices of produce, are this year more able to hold their corn and wait for developments. Last year, too, much of the surplus 1895 stock was in the farmers' hands, and they were not able to keep it off the market, as the dealers who have the surplus 1896 stock stowed away are now doing. Although there is always a great quantity of corn in Chicago and other western city storehouses, the hundreds of tons held this year show an increase, and perhaps this is a reason for the present inordinate advance.

The stocks in Canada are small and the likelihood of a drop in quotations is agitating the minds of the dealers, as purchases will soon have to be made. It is reasonably certain that the price of brooms will be advanced, as corn will at least share in the advance of other products, but the doubt as to whether other influences will be brought to bear on the market makes the situation decidedly interesting.

TORONTO GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

AN interesting, though rather slimly attended, meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held in St. George's Hall, Elm street, on Monday evening, September 13.

In accordance with the request made at the last meeting, the secretary, Mr. Hawes, presented his financial report. It read as follows: "At the commencement of the present year there were 50 fully-paid-up members. During this year there have been 11 new names added to the membership of the association. At the present date there are 39 members who have paid their dues to the end of the current year; nine members either failed or sold out their businesses during the same period. The financial condition of the association is as follows:

Balance on hand in special fund.....	$537.83
Balance on hand in general fund.....	63.67
Total to date.....	$601.50

Messrs. Sykes, Marmion and Kelly, who were appointed as a special committee to interview Mr. J. W. Sanderson, who was hurt in the baseball match at the picnic this summer, presented their report through Mr. Marmion. They had visited Mr. Sanderson and found he was improving nicely.

The association has come to the determination to continue buying goods either from wholesalers or manufacturers whenever an opportunity occurs for obtaining them appreciably cheaper in quantity. It will be remembered that the members of the association lately combined and bought a car of sugar at such a reduction, that on every lot of 20 barrels the saving was $11.50. As long as this saving can be made, it is proposed to continue to buy sugar by the carload, and the president, secretary, and treasurer were appointed to comprise a Purchasing Committee, to find out what reductions in goods can be obtained by buying in quantities, and to use the funds of the association to purchase the goods where an appreciable saving can be made.

Discussion then ensued over the motion which Mr. Sykes introduced last meeting to reduce the membership fees from $2 to $1. It was contended by most of those present that the association could ill afford to make this reduction, since now the fees were not sufficient to cover the running expenses. Mr. Sykes' contention was that the membership would be doubled, but most of the members did not think so and the motion was withdrawn.

The Purchasing Committee were then instructed to procure a souvenir for each of the members of the baseball team that administered two defeats to the travelers' team and thus won the coveted cup.

A letter from Mr. Ed. Guillett, Cobourg, was read, thanking the association for the resolution passed at last month's meeting recognizing his valuable services in connection with the preparation for the picnic at his town. It was largely due to his influence with his townspeople that the park was secured for the day and that such a welcome was given to the grocers of the Toronto Association. An even heartier reception is promised should the association ever see fit to choose any park at Cobourg as the picnic grounds for another of the annual outings.

THE TOMATO PACK.

The warm weather of the past few weeks has somewhat re-awakened interest in the canned tomato situation.

That the weather is favorable to the ripening process is evident from the fact that tomatoes are coming into the factories in large quantities, while many of the latter are working day and night to take care of them.

The season, however, is about three weeks late, and some of the larger canners assert that unless they are enabled to keep the packing going till October they will be unable to put up their usual quantity.

One thing, however, is certain, the ripening process of the past few weeks has lessened materially the chance of a short pack of tomatoes. The pack in the United States, however, is a short one, and the Canadian market is still being firmly held, although no one appears to be either offering tomatoes or bidding for them.

NEW CALIFORNIA PRUNES.

Samples of new season's California prunes are being shown on the market this week. The quality is good. The skin is exceptionally thin and the flavor fine. Shipments will be here about the middle of October. The market is firm and prices are about 20 per cent. higher than a year ago.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Sept. 16, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE situation as far as the wholesale grocery trade is concerned is much about the same as a week ago. The conditions are, on the whole, healthy, and a nice fall trade is looked for. Payments are fairly good. Shipments of canned salmon are coming forward, and wholesalers are busy filling orders previously booked. Canned vegetables and fruits are naturally quiet. Sugar is in good demand, with the market steady. Valencia raisins are 1s. 6d. dearer in the primary market. Samples of California prunes are being shown this week on the local market, and the shipments will soon arrive. Coffees are meeting with a fair request. Spices generally are higher in the primary markets. There has been a little enquiry for gallon apples for export. New season's Japan teas are arriving, and wholesalers are busy filling orders.

CANNED GOODS.

Shipments of new season's canned salmon have been coming forward freely during the past week and wholesalers are busy filling orders booked for future delivery. A rather better feeling is reported in canned salmon, in sympathy with an improved demand in England. For some of the cheap brands prices have advanced. The favorable tomato weather is being taken advantage of by the packers, who are working night and day, but, so far, prices are unaffected, as the season is about three weeks late. Naturally, however, the favorable weather has not tended to stiffen prices. Lobsters are still scarce and dear. We quote as follows : Tomatoes, 80 to 85c. ; corn, 60 to 75c.; peas, 75 to 80c. for ordinary ; sifted select, 90 to $1 ; extra sifted, $1.10 to $1.25 ; beans, 65 to 95c;. peaches, $2.50 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's ; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.80 ; strawberries, $1.50 to $1.80, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $1.75 to $2.25 ; apples, 3's, 75 to 95c.; gallons, $1.40 to $2; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.50 ; ditto, new season's, to arrive, $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities ; other red salmon, $1.15 upwards, according to quality and brand ; cohoes, 95c. to $1 ; canned mackerel, $1.25 to $1.30 ; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins ; 1-lb. flats, $2.70 ; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70 ; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.35 to $1.40 ; 2's, $2.35 to $2.45 ; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25 ; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

Rio coffee is rather firmer in the primary market, about ½c. per lb. more being asked than a week ago. Quite a little coffee has changed hands lately. Jobbers quote green in bags as follows : Rio, 9½ to 13c., according to grade ; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 19 to 22½c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c. ; Maracaibo, 18 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

Prices have been advanced ¼c. per lb. during the past week by some of the refineries. The movement is fair. We quote : Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

A little firmer feeling obtains in regard to New Orleans molasses. We quote as follows : New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c. ; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels ; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGARS.

The demand for sugar is good and during the past week appears to have increased rather than decreased. In New York the refiners are holding off, but no change in prices has been made. In London, beets are rather easy. The Canadian market is steady and unchanged. German sugar is reported to be higher. We quote as follows for Toronto : Granulated—St. Lawrence and Redpath's, 4 9-16c. for single barrel lots and 4½c. for 5-barrel lots ; Acadia, 4½c. for single barrel lots, and 4 7-16c. for 5-barrel lots ; yellows, 3¾ to 4⅛c. per lb. ; Canadian German granulated, in 100-lb. sacks, 4¼c. in single barrels, and 4 5-16c. in 5-bbl. lots . Demerara crystals, 3⅞c.

SPICES.

Pepper, cloves, cassia, and, in fact, all spices are dearer in the primary markets. The advance in Singapore pepper is due to a short crop and light stocks. We quote: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 11 to 12c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 20c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

NUTS.

The feature of the nut market is an advance in Tarragona almonds 1s. per bag of 110 lbs. since last week. The bulk of the business on wholesale account has, however, been done. We quote as follows: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 20 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

New season's Japan rice has been offered in New York for December shipment at prices about 1s. above those ruling last year for similar shipments. We quote: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½ to 4½c.

TEAS.

Japan teas continue to gather in strength, 16½c. being asked for teas which a couple of weeks ago could have been bought at 15c. per pound. China green teas, according to latest mail advices, are also dearer. Shipments of new season's Japan teas are now arriving freely on the local market, and the wholesalers are rapidly shipping them out again to fill orders previously booked. In Indian and Ceylon teas the market is without special interest. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

The currant market rules firm and advices from the primary market state that the yield is not as heavy as anticipated. We quote: Provincials, 5¾ to 6c. in bbls.; ditto, half-bbls., 5¾ to 6c.; fine Filiatras, in bbls., 5⅞ to 6c.; do., half-bbls., 5⅞ to 6⅛c.; Patras, 6¾c. in cases; Vostizzas, cases, 7 to 8c.

Valencia raisins are cabled 1-16c. dearer. Locally the conditions are much as before. We quote: Off-stalk, 4 to 5c.; fine off-stalk, 5 to 6c.; selected, 6½ to 7c. layers, 5½ to 6½c.

In Sultana raisins, prices are firm for anything to arrive during the next month, but for shipments to arrive here about Christmas, figures can be shaded about 1c. per pound.

Figs are in much about the same condition as a week ago. We quote spot goods nominally: 10 oz., 7½c.; 10 lb., 9 to 10c.; 18 lb., 10 to 12c.; 28 lb., 11 to 13c.; taps, 3¼ to 3½c. net; natural, 4½c. in bags, and 6 to 6½c. in boxes.

California apricots, new season's growth, are now in stock here. We quote California evaporated fruits as follows: Peaches, 7 to 10½c. per lb., according to quality; apricots, 6½ to 15c.; pears, 5½ to 10½c.; egg plums, 5½ to 11c.; silver prunes, 8½ to 13½c.

Samples of new season's California prunes are being shown here this week.

The quality is excellent and prices about 20 per cent. above those of last year. We quote as follows: Bosnias, U's (110 to 113 half kilo), 6 to 6½c.; C's (85 to 90 half kilo), 7 to 7½c. per lb. California, 90 to 100's, 6½c. per lb.; 70 to 80's, 7½c.; 60 to 70's, 7½ to 8c.; 50 to 60's, 8 to 8½c.; 40 to 50's, 9½ to 10½c.; 30 to 40's, 12½ to 13c.; "Ruby" prunes, 7½ to 8c.; French, 4½ to 5c.

GREEN FRUITS.

There are scarcely any oranges left on this market, and none will arrive till the new crop arrives in November. Lemons are selling readily, and offerings are fair. During most of the summer the trade in bananas has been good. The last couple of weeks, however, they have proved decidedly unsatisfactory. Prices this week ranged from 35 to 60c., and they were difficult to move at even those quotations. The main articles on the market this week were, of course, peaches and plums; some days 10,000 baskets of peaches were handled. The peach this year is rather small owing to the abundant crop. Plums are coming forward plentifully, with the quality good. Grapes are arriving in large quantities. The warm weather of last week ripened a sufficient number to cause some fairly large shipments. Huckleberries have not been coming forward for some days. Dealers have also handled a large number of baskets of plums. The plentiful supply of domestic fruit has completely driven the foreign variety out of the market. We quote as follows: Lemons, $2.50 to $3.50 per box. Cocoanuts, $4.50 a sack and 60c. per doz. Onions, 2 to 2½c. per lb. for Egyptians. Bananas, $1 to $1.50. New cabbage, $1 to $1.25 per 100. Watermelons, 20 to 25c.; muskmelons, Canadian, 60c. to $1 per large crate; cucumbers, 15 to 20c. per 12-quart basket; Canadian tomatoes, 15 to 25c. per basket. Crawford peaches, 40 to 75c. per basket; Canadian apples, $2 to $2.50 per barrel and 25 to 30c. per basket; pickling onions, 75c. per basket; Canadian plums, 20 to 40c.; Spanish onions, 85c. to $1 per case, according to quantity taken. Blue grapes, 25 to 30c. per 10-lb. basket; Niagara grapes, 3 to 4c. a pound; common pears, 15 to 25c. per basket; Bartlett pears, 30 to 40c. per basket. Celery, 25 to 30c. a dozen.

report this week. The quantity coming forward has been sufficient for requirements. Prices remain steady, especially for the better grades. The export demand for creamery has not been so active and so far as we can learn there is no export demand for dairy. The figures for the export from Montreal, which show a large increase in the export of butter for the season, are somewhat misleading. We understand that probably one-half of the butter reported as shipped from the port of Montreal is United States butter, which has been put through this port in bond. It is generally conceded that there is no increase in the manufacture of Canadian butter this season. This can be well accounted for, as the price of cheese has continued high and the relative values of cheese and butter during the season seem to lead the farmers to think that cheese pays better than butter. Dairy, best quality, sells at 12 to 14c., and medium grade at 9 to 10c. Pound prints are worth 14 to 15c. Creamery, early make, June and July, tubs, 17 to 18c., and prints, 18 to 19c.; later make, tubs, 19 to 20c., and prints, 19 to 19½c.

CHEESE—The market has been exceedingly dull during the week. Buyers and sellers continue apart in their views and very little goods have changed hands. What the outcome will be is difficult to determine. It seems to be a case of "survival of the fittest;" 9½c. is the price generally bid, and factories are holding out for 10c.

SALT.

Trade during the past week has improved somewhat, and the fall demand is coming on briskly. Some heavy orders have been received. Quoted at Toronto, carload lots go at $1 per bbl. and 65c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl. and 70c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B. barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c. for points west of Toronto, and 45c. for Toronto and points east of Toronto.

FISH.

The supply, which has heretofore been inadequate for the demand, has increased this week. In consequence of this pike dropped ½c. a pound, and prices on trout and whitefish are easier. We quote as follows: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5½c. per lb.; whitefish, 7c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg.

PROVISIONS.

The past week's trade has been active and steady, with all lines selling at full prices. We understand that there have been some lots of United States long clear bacon and barrel pork coming on the market. There is no speculation going on, but some dealers, finding their decks bare, have been compelled to import to retain their customers. The lower prices prevailing on the other side have allowed them to to do this and pay the 2c per lb. duty. Many dealers think that lard will not tend much higher, for the fall killing will start soon, and the consequent increased supply will be coming on the market.

DRY SALTED MEATS—Long clear bacon, 8¾c. for carload lots, and 9 to 9¼c. per lb. for ton lots and cases; backs, 9½c.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 12½ to 13c.; rolls, 10½ to 11c.; hams, large, 11 to 11½c.; 12½ to 13c. for small and 12½c. for medium; shoulder hams, 9½ to 10c.; backs, 12 to 12½c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD—Pure Canadian, tierces, 6¼c.; tubs, 6½ to 6¾c.; pails, 6¾c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $14.50 to $15; Canadian short-cut, $17; clear shoulder mess, $13.50.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—Prices of wheat have dropped a couple of cents from last week's quotations. We quote: Wheat, No. 1 hard, $1.10; winter wheat, 91c.; new winter, 90c.; oats, 27½ to 28½c.; peas, 51c.; barley, 24 to 27c.

FLOUR—Although there is no alteration in prices, yet flour is somewhat easier this week. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $5.90; Manitoba strong bakers', $5.50; Ontario patents, $4.75 to $5; straight roller, $4.50 to $4.65, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—Trade has picked up considerably lately, and manufacturers are looking for a good fall trade. The demand from the south is likely to be quite heavy. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.30 in bags and $3.60 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.75 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.50; split peas, $3.25; pot barley, $3.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Receipts during the week have been liberal, but in many cases not too much so. On the whole, however, the demand has been only moderate, due no doubt to the low price of fruit. There is no change in values, but it is rather difficult to keep decks cleared up, especially of No. 2 stock, as there is a good deal of this grade coming forward from outside exporters. Prices have not changed much. We quote: No. 1, 12½ to 13½., and No. 2, 9 to 11c.

POTATOES — There has been a visible scarcity in this vegetable during the week and prices have risen considerably. As yet there has been no indication on this market of rot prevalent elsewhere. By the carload potatoes are costing 45 to 50c., and by the bag 65c.

HONEY—About the only business being done in honey is the buying by the commission houses for the fall trade. The consumptive demand is not expected till the fruit season is past. We quote light at: 60-lb. tins, 6 to 6½c.; 5 and 10-lb. tins, 6½ to 7c.; comb, $1.50 to $1.75 per dozen.

DRIED APPLES—The fly and worm pests continue to affect a large percentage of the goods coming forward from the different points of the province, and for that reason not much business is being done. Prices are firm for satisfactory fruit in anticipation of a short crop, but not much stock is being held, and business is dull. Local prices run from 3 to 3½c. f.o.b., and jobbing price ranges about 3½c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Trade in this line is quiet and featureless. Hardly any goods have been moved this week. Choice stock is nominally worth about 5½c.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—The demand has not been as good as was expected; in fact, trade has been quite dull during the week. Cowhides: Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3. Steerhides: 60 lbs. and up, 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS — Business is only steady. We quote; No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Dekins, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS — We quote: Lambskins and pelts, 65 to 75c.

WOOL—The higher prices looked for in wool have not developed, supposedly because trade was upset by the Exhibition. Business has been rather dull relatively to the expected trade. Neither is the anticipated quantity coming forward nor are the local factories creating an exceedingly heavy demand. Dealers are paying 19 to 20c.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

The demand for fall stocks of illuminating oils is being felt now, but the trade in lubricating oils is the biggest factor in the trade. In the course of a month, however, the heaviest orders for illuminating oils will be arriving. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Canadian, 14c.; carbon, safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

Valencia raisins are cabled 1s. 6d. dearer.

Shipments of "Horseshoe" salmon are arriving.

Tarragona almonds are 1s. per bag of 110 lbs. dearer.

Japan tea is about 1½c. per lb. dearer than a couple of weeks ago.

The price of leather advanced about 1½c. within the past week or two.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Sept. 17, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE week has been a fairly brisk one in the general grocery market, and prices generally have a distinctly firm tendency, though buyers seem slow to recognize the fact. This tendency is most noticeable in the case of Japan tea and it is now practically established beyond a doubt that these will average fully 2c. per pound higher than they did last season. Sugar has contributed a brisk trade and values are firm, while strength is very noticeable in all kinds of dried fruit, both Californian and European, for, with the exception of currants, advanced prices are asked in the case of all new contracts. Molasses and syrups maintain their strength, and the tendency toward general buoyancy is more marked than before.

SUGAR.

The sugar market has been quite active during the past week, and Ontario jobbers have been unusually large buyers in the current week's operations. Values are steady, and a conference that was held this week between Ontario and Quebec wholesale men has resulted in a more definite understanding regarding the sale of the staple. The standard basis is to be more strictly observed, and pledges have been entered into not to cut prices in each other's territory except in the case of firms outside the guilds, and with them the fight is to be carried on to the bitter end. Cable intelligence lately regarding the raw material has been of a steady character on the whole, and was put on the market. The tedious soaking necessary and the low quality of a great deal of the tapioca sold kept it in the background as a food article.

The introduction of "Minute Tapioca" changed all this, and people everywhere who would not touch the old tapioca are our most enthusiastic customers. "Minute Tapioca" requires no soaking, is absolutely pure and very delicious.

there are no indications of any change in values in the near future. We quote: Granulated, 4 1/16c. up to 10 barrels, and 4 3-16c. for larger quantities. Yellows range from 3 1/2 to 3 3/4c., and creams, 3 7/8c.

SYRUPS.

The improved demand already noted for syrups continues, and values are firmly held at the advance quoted last week, an active trade passing both from the refiners and second hands. We quote 1 3/4 to 2 1/4c. per pound, as to quality.

MOLASSES.

The strong disposition of this staple is fully maintained, and 23c. has been refused lately for some round lots, whereas 22 1/2c. would have been accepted for the same goods a week or so ago. In fact, still higher prices are looked for, as holders are not urging sales at all, being perfectly satisfied that all the goods on the market will be wanted at full prices. We quote: Barbadoes, 24 to 25c., and Porto Rico, 25 to 27c. in jobbing parcels.

RICE.

The firm feeling in rice reported last week continues, prices being strongly held at the recent advance. We quote: Crystal Japan, $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $5 to $5.50; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

Business in spices rules quiet, but values are held steady, while it would cost a considerable advance on ruling figures to lay down fresh supplies here based on current prices outside. We quote: Black pepper, 9 to 10c.; pure white, 11 to 16c.; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; do., best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

This market has ruled quiet, demand being chiefly for small lots. We quote: Maracaibo, 16 to 19c.; Santos, 12 to 15c.; Rio, 12 to 16c.; Mocha, 24c., and Java, 25c.

TEAS.

The strength of the tea market is unmistakable, especially for Japan stock, which will certainly be 2c. higher all round than the trade expected, as round lots, which could have been bought at 12 1/2c. a fortnight ago, are difficult to obtain at 14c. today from first hands. In spite of this strength buyers, as a general rule, seem hard to convince, and the demand lacks snap as a consequence. In a retail distributing way the movement is moderately good. We quote: Young Hysons, 14 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15½ to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 17 to 20c. for mediums, and 35 to 65c. for higher grades.

CANNED GOODS.

There has been a fair enquiry for canned goods, and prices are firmly held all round. This is especially so in the case of domestic vegetable staples like tomatoes and corn. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80c.; corn, 60 to 80c.; peas, 80c.; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 95c.; gallons, $1.65 to $1.75; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.40 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.35; "Lion," $1.37½ to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.30, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

This week's cables in some instances quoted currants 6d. lower for shipment by the second direct steamer, but as a general thing values are steady. It is understood that considerable contracts have been closed on the first boat, but the terms are kept private, and no offers of stock to arrive are yet noted in this market. For spot prices the range is unchanged. We quote: Barrels, 3¾ to 4c.; half-bbls., 4 to 4¼c., and cases, 4½ to 4¾c., and the stock of old is rapidly being exhausted.

Valencia raisins continue as firm as ever, and buyers who held off expecting lower offers by the second steamer from Denia have been dissapointed, as more money is being asked than by the first boat. In fact, bids of 14s. were refused for ordinary off-stalk. Prices for stock on spot are largely nominal at 4¼c. for off-stalk and 5c. for selected. Very few layers are to be had.

Values point still higher on California raisins this week, and now the very lowest quotation at which car lots of 3-crown fruit could be landed in Montreal is 6¾c. With this cost in view, jobbers are naturally firm in their views, and the prospect of still higher prices has led to some extensive orders being closed this week.

California prunes are strong and advancing, also. In fact, advices to hand this week from the Coast state that 40's and 50's are not to be had at any price, being practically out of the market, and in some orders that have been executed the fruit will cost the importers from 9 to 10c. in carloads laid down in Montreal. This is an advance of 1 to 2c. on previous prices. Cables on French prunes also report firmness, 3d. higher being asked this week. In Bosnia fruit no change is reported.

Advices state that California evaporated apricots are very strong and active on the Coast, with a rising market, owing to the scarcity of peaches, and that they are generally considered to be good stock to hold for higher prices. Evaporated peaches are practically unquotable, as the asking price is too high to be seriously considered.

NUTS.

The market continues without special feature. We quote as follows: Grenoble walnuts, 11 to 12c.; do. shelled, 20c; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; pecans, 9 to 10c.; and cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100.

DRIED APPLES.

The strength noted in dried and evaporated apples last week is fully maintained, prices on the former being stiff at 3 to 4c. and the latter 6c.

APPLES.

Receipts of these continue light and prices steady at $2 to $3 per bbl.

GREEN FRUIT.

The receipts of Canadian green fruit have been enormous lately, running from 5,000 to 20,000 packages per day. As a result they have driven California and other fruit out of the running, trade being almost wholly confined to the domestic article. California fruit has stopped arriving, as many carloads only sold for the bare charges. Bananas are dull and cheap. Quotations to-day are: Peaches 15 to 25c.; plums, 15 to 30c.; pears, 15 to 30c., and grapes, 17 to 25c. per basket; bananas, 40c. to $1 per bunch and lemons $2 to $3 per box.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—There was an improved demand for eggs to-day, and the market was more active with a larger volume of business. The receipts continue liberal, but prices are well maintained at 17 to 18c. for new laid, and at 13½ to 14c. for choice candled stock per dozen.

BEANS—A fair business is doing in beans, and prices are unchanged at 70 to 80c. for primes, and 90c. to $1 for choice hand picked per bushel.

HONEY—The demand for honey is still slow. White clover comb is offering at 10c. and dark at 7c.; bright extracted at 6½ to 7c., and dark at 4 to 5c. per lb.

PROVISIONS.

The demand for provisions in a jobbing way continues good, and the market is fairly active and firm. We quote: Canadian pork, $15 to $15.50 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, at 6¾ to 7¼c., and compound refined at 5¼ to 5½c. per lb.; hams, 12 to 14c., and bacon, 12 to 13c. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

The flour market was without any new feature to note. We quote: Winter wheat patents, $5 to $5.25; straight rollers, $4.85 to $5, and in bags, $2.25 to $2.35; best Manitoba strong bakers', $5.50; second do., $5, and low grades, $3.15; Hungarian patents, $5.90.

There was no change in the feed market, the demand being slow. We quote: Manitoba bran at $11 to $11.50, and shorts at $12 to $12.50 per ton, including bags. Ontario bran, in bulk, is offering at $10.

The demand for meal is slow and the market is quiet. We quote: Rolled oats, $3.30 per barrel, $1.60 per bag; standard meal, $3.20 per barrel and $1.55 per bag.

BALED HAY.

A fairly active trade was done in baled hay, and prices are without change. We quote: No. 1, $11.50 to $12.50, and No. 2, $9.50 to $10.50 per ton in car lots on track.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

Cheese continues firm, but buyers protest that extreme views held by sellers check the movement, and will, unless the Britishers advance their limits, eventually lead to a slump in prices. However, though factorymen are holding back and buyers complaining of unworkable limits, a fair quantity of business is being done and sufficient purchases made to prevent factorymen from modifying their views. Aside from the dealing in French country cheese at the wharf Monday there was little doing on spot. The offerings of these comprised 4,000 boxes, and they were all sold around 9⅜c. with a few pet factories at a fraction more. These figures are ⅛ to ¼c. more than was paid a week ago, which does not look much like any immediate decline in value. We quote: Finest Ontario cheese, 9¾ to 9⅞c.; finest Townships cheese, 9½ to 9⅝c.; finest Quebec cheese, 9⅜ to 9½c.

Butter was fairly steady, and most of the current trading is with local jobbers, who are paying full prices here and also bidding good figures in the country, it is understood. This has a sustaining influence on values, and offsets the fact that exporters have not been active operators of late. We quote: Finest creamery, 19½ to 20c.; seconds, 18½c.; dairy butter, 12½ to 13c.

MONTREAL NOTES.

Cables from Bordeaux this week quoted French prunes 3d. higher than they were six days ago.

Daily receipts of fresh fruit have been enormous, ranging from 5,000 to 20,000 packages per day.

California prunes are quoted from 1 to 2c. higher than they were a week ago, and sellers are not anxious to close.

Patras cables state that lower offers are being made on currants for shipment by the second steamer than by the first this week, figures representing a decline of 6d.

California fresh fruits have been driven out of the market, as car loads have been sold here that hardly paid the charges.

Cables state that sulphur is much higher abroad, and also that there has been a sharp advance in washing soda in Great Britain.

On the basis of offers made this week it will cost an advance of ¼ to ½c. on last week's figures to lay down California raisins in Montreal.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Sept. 17, 1897.

THE week has been quite a busy one. The opening of the Exhibition brought a large number of people to the city. Both the retail and the wholesale trade have felt the benefit. The Exhibition, while not as large as those held in the larger cities of the west, was a success, and all visiting it were well pleased. In many features it was the best ever held here. In general, the markets are well maintained. Stocks tend to be light. Cream of tartar shows quite an advance for the week. Rice also holds firm at the advanced figure. Spices show firmer figures. A feature of the week was the arrival of a large cargo of Porto Rico molasses. It was entirely unexpected, and has created an easier feeling, though the cargo has been well taken up, the market being short on Porto Rico. In tea, the new China and Ceylons are of extra value and better demand is noted than for some time. There is a steady increase in the sale of Ceylons and packet teas here.

OIL—The demand for lubricating oil is small. In burning oil there continues to be an improved business, with great effort being put forth by those who handle Canadian oil as against those who sell American to secure the trade. In linseed oil, markets are higher and stocks light. We quote: Best American burning oil, 17½ to 18½c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 17c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 15c.; cod oil, 22 to 24c.

SALT—Stocks, which have been quite low, are again ample, though not large for the season. Some 8,000 sacks of coarse arrived this week and found a ready sale; also upward of 400 fine by way of Boston. Large quantities of Trapani salt is now being bought by the fishermen through Charlotte Co. They buy it in Boston. They prefer it very much to the Turk's Island product. We quote as follows: Coarse, 47 to 50c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 85c. to $1; Canadian fine, 90c. to $1 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.50 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton. hams, 12 to 14c., and bacon, 12 to 13c. per lb.

CANNED GOODS—The market is rather quiet. Our dealers are fairly well supplied if they get their orders filled. The main doubt is with tomatoes, quite a quantity of which were sold here at the lowest prices. Prices are held firm and a good profit is being made. Our dealers could even now sell their corn, peas and tomatoes at a good profit in the west. This season has seen more Canadian canned meat used here than ever, and the demand for it is growing. It is sold about 20c. per doz. below the American article. A much larger business is being done this year in shipping sardines to the west than ever before. This is also a business which is growing. The stock of tomatoes is very light and higher prices are asked. New salmon is shortly expected. We quote as follows: Corn, 70 to 75c.; peas, 80 to 85c.; tomatoes, 95 to $1; gallon apples, $1.80 to $1.85; corned beef, Canadian, $2.40 to $2.50; American, 2-lb. tins, $2.60 to $2.70; 1-lb tins, $1.40 to $1.60; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.20; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.50 to $2.75; salmon, $1.25 to $1.40; lobsters, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, $1.15 to $1.25; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.60 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $6 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

GREEN FRUIT—The supply of Canadian fruit has been large and low prices have ruled. Pears find large sale and are of good quality. The amount of Canadian fruit has very much affected the sale of California peaches and grapes. In plums large quantities of Canadian are to hand and of good quality. The few Nova Scotias which have been received have brought but low figures. It is perhaps as well the crop is short. In apples there are plenty of soft stock being received. Sweet potatoes have fair sale. We quote: Rhodi oranges, $5 per box; lemons, $4.50 to $5; case lemons, $6 to $7; bananas, $1.50 to $2; new apples, $1.50 to $2.50 per bbl.; California peaches, $1 to $1.25; California plums, $1 to $1.25; California pears, $2 to $2.50; melons, 35 to 40c.; cucumbers, $1.25 per bbl.; grapes, 40 to 60c. per basket; pears, $2 to $4 per bbl.; California grapes, $2 to $2.60; plums, Canadian, 50 to 75c.

DRIED FRUIT—There are a few new Valencia layers to hand from New York, and direct shipments are daily expected. It was thought they would have been here before. Stocks of Valencias bought are not large. A few bought before the advance show fair profit. Some small orders are still going forward. Our dealers have not yet bought California raisins, and from the outlook it would seem they have done right, as movement is toward lower prices. At fair figures a good trade will be done here. Seeded raisins are being pushed this year, but prices are rather high. All kinds of California dried and evaporated fruits are offered in 1-lb. cartoons. In currants, prices tend higher. Onions are rather lower as Canadian onions are now coming on the market. In evaporated and dried apples prices tend higher, with light stocks, particularly the former. Prunes and dates quiet. We quote as follows: Raisins, Valencias, old, 5¼ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c., prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples 3½ to 4c.; evaporated apples; 6 to 6½c.; onions, $2.50 to $3 per bbl.; cocoanuts, $2.50 to $3.50 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Valencias, layers, old, 6 to 7c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.; new Valencias, about 6½ to 7c.; do. layers, 7 to 7½c.

SUGAR—There is a good demand, and refineries find improved sale, particularly in yellows, stocks of which are light. Prices show no change. We quote: Granulated, 4¼ to 4⅜c.; yellows, 3⅜ to 3¾c.; Paris lump, 5¼ to 5½c.; powdered, 5 to 5¼c.

MOLASSES — The market got quite a surprise this week. A cargo of upward of one thousand packages landed here from Porto Rico. It was altogether unexpected. As the stock of Porto Rico was short it will not affect the price, but the upward tendency will be checked. Barbadoes is still offered low. We quote: Barbadoes, 23 to 24c.; Porto Rico, 27 to 30c.; New Orleans, barrels., 25 to 28c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.; Demerara, 33 to 34c.

FISH—There is little new. The advance in pickled herring is the chief feature. The market is firm in Grand Manan fish, and there are no eastern shore fish arriving. Dry cod keep firm, with fair supply. Smoked fish is still dull. Shad are in fair supply; some very nice ones in the market, which bring full prices. Boneless, which have improved sale, tend higher. We quote: Large cod, $3.15 to $3.25; medium, $3 to $3.10; pollock, $1.25 to $1.30; bay herring, $1.50 to $1.60 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 6 to 7c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50 to $5; boneless, 2½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.

DAIRY PRODUCE — Eggs keep quite scarce, and higher prices are asked. In cheese the market here moves up slowly, but stocks are light and through the country the factories are selling for export. Stock here is likely to be short and prices are likely to go higher. There is but fair local demand. Butter is dull and plentiful. Where quality is good there is fair movement, but otherwise it is a drug. We quote: Dairy butter, 15 to 17c.; creamery, 17 to 18c.; prints, 18 to 20c.; cheese, 9½ to 10c.; eggs, 12 to 13c.

PROVISIONS—The whole market tends higher, except it be hams. The Canadian curers have had to lower prices to meet American competition, but a further advance is looked for. Lard shows a good ½c. advance, and higher prices are looked for. Mess pork is scarce. Market is largely supplied at present from P.E. Island. We quote: Clear pork, $14.50 to $15.50; mess, $13 to $14; plate beef, $14 to $14.50; hams, 13 to 13½c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; pure lard, 7 to 7½c.; compound, 6¼ to 6½c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—Our dealers are not as well supplied with flour as they should have been. The advance came quicker than expected, and they did not have confidence to buy at the advanced prices, though they continue to climb, particularly Ontario flour. In oatmeal the figures move upward, as do oats. Beans are firm at the advance, with fair stocks. Barley is quite a little higher, and is not freely offered. Split peas are hard to get. We quote as follows: Manitoba flour, $6.25 to $6.35; best Ontario, $5.40 to $5.50; medium, $5.25 to $5.35; oatmeal, $3.65 to $3.75; cornmeal, $2.20 to $2.25; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $15 to $16; bran, do, do, $13.50 to $14.50; hand-picked beans, $1.20 to $1.25; prime, $1 to $1.10; oats, 34 to 36c.; hay, $12 to $13; barley, $3.10 to $3.20; round peas, $1.25; split peas, $3.25 to $3.30; yellow eye beans, $1.75; timothy seed, Canadian, $2 to $2.25; do. do., American, $1.75 to $2; clover, 8¾ to 9c.; alsike, 8½ to 9c.

TO PUSH TRADE IN CANADA.

MR. H. V. ROBINSON, representing Brand & Co., manufacturers of invalids' specialties, etc., London, Eng., is making a tour of Canada in the interests of his firm. Mr. Robinson was in Toronto this week and reported having done a nice business. His expectations for the Canadian market are high.

Brand & Co.'s sauces, essences of beef, etc., have an extensive sale in Great Britain, and an effort is being made to push them more vigorously in Canada. One of the firm's specialties is a meat lozenge. It has the consistency of a gelatine drop and the flavor of beef tea.

"Two days before the Jubilee," remarked Mr. Robinson, "Our firm advertised these lozenges, and the sale was so great that the firm was unable to supply the demand." It takes about two weeks for these lozenges to dry.

This is Mr. Robinson's first visit to Canada and he reports himself highly pleased with what he has seen of the country.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. G. E. Geoffrion, of Chaput, Fils et Cie., Montreal, was in Toronto this week.

Mr. P. C. Larkin, of the Salada Tea Co., is visiting the various branches of the company in the United States.

Laporte, Martin & Cie. have completed their assortment of ports and sherries and expect a large demand at the price they offer them.

SULTANA RAISINS AND FIGS.

MR. FRANCIS A. SOLARI, of Smyrna, under date of August 20th, writes THE CANADIAN GROCER as follows :

"During my last visit in Canada I had the opportunity of calling at your offices in Toronto, where I had the honor of meeting one of the representatives of your valuable journal.

"I remember giving at the time some information regarding our Sultana raisin crop, which information, I was pleased to notice, was published in the following issue of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

"Referring you to this article you will notice that at that time, weather reports being favorable in Smyrna, we all hoped for a fine and large crop that would sell at moderate prices. Unfortunately, the situation has completely altered since. Heavy rains came on during June, closely followed up by excessive warm weather, the combination proving most disastrous to the crop. A sort of disease originated, believed to be the peronospora, which has attacked the vines, causing a large portion of the fruit to drop from the trees. Thus, several of the largest producing and best districts, such as Magnesia, Vourla, Nymphio, etc,, had their average yield considerably reduced.

"Prospects previous to damage to the crop were for a total crop of about 43,000 tons, as against 37,000 for last season ; but now it can almost be ascertained that the total yield will in no case exceed 30,000 to 33,000 tons.

"We know by past experience that this quantity, say 33,000 tons, of Sultanas is not sufficient to supply the wants of European and American markets.

"Last year the crop was below the average, and a large portion of it being rain damaged, prices were maintained high all through the season. It is further reported from all quarters that dealers, both in Europe and America, are bare of old stocks, this meaning an active demand for new fruit during this season, and also higher prices.

"Since our market opened here some 500 tons of fruit have arrived, mostly from the Kastro district (being the earlier to produce), and although the quality of it was as usual thin and dark, it found ready purchasers that paid from 29s. to 33s. f.o.b., whilst last season prices for the same grade ranged from 17s. to 24s. f.o.b. Smyrna ; this illustrating an enormous difference of 10s. to 12s. more for this season's fruit.

"A few parcels of Magnesia and Yerli fruit lately arrived realized up to 37s. f.o.b. Smyrna. This difference in price for the two last denominations is explained by the fact of this fruit keeping better and for a longer period, both its substance and color, which is bright, whilst the early producing districts do not keep well and soon turn dark.

"I give you these facts thinking they may interest your readers, and especially a good many of those interested in this matter who, I dare say, have never had an opportunity of getting acquainted with such peculiarities.

"Arrivals are very slow ; at least they are not what they should be at this period of the season, and this fact causes competition amongst buyers who are anxious to secure some fruit, especially since the first steamer, the Pavia, arrived in Liverpool with about 3,000 boxes, which sold at a profit of fully 2 to 3s. per cwt.

"We are not, therefore, given to hope for a decline in prices in the near future, whilst the present demand lasts, and is likely to last for a good time to come.

"At the same time I must state that weather reports are not at all favorable. Small showers are reported at intervals from several districts since last fortnight, and as we are approaching the thick of the drying season this unsettled weather is a standing menace to our crops.

"Figs—In regard to these, the outlook is favorable. Northerly winds prevailing of late have hastened the development of the fruit, which is expected to turn out fine and substantial. The crop will be an average one—from 70,000 to 75,000 loads, as against 72,000 loads in 1896. First new fruit is expected for to-day. Prices will rule to the level of those of last season.

GROCERS AND BICYCLES.

one of his choicest "dead beats." Naturally the grocer felt very much hurt from the tumble, and many things went through his mind as he grasped the situation—Words not found collectively in the Bible. But what was to be done? The wheel was somewhat injured in the collision, and unless he kept mum it was more than likely he would be called upon to pay for the damages to the wheel which he had once paid for, and other imaginary injuries. Time was when the trolley car was looked upon as a veritable demon of the streets, but the bicycle discounts the trolley. Evidently it has come to stay, and we will have to grin and bear it. But something should be done to stop this monopolizing the main streets for the almost exclusive use of wheelmen. It is a rule that no one under 15 years of age shall drive a wagon. Such being the case, why isn't a child on a wheel and under that age amenable to the law just the same as the regular driver of a wagon? Isn't the child under these conditions a "driver" in as full a sense as one driving a horse? I am not opposed to children enjoying themselves, but since so many accidents happen by children riding wheels recklessly on the same ground where wagons, etc., are driven, it is time that something is done to check that part of it at least.—Merchants' Review.

VALUE OF ECONOMY.

Our people realize, as never before, the value of economy, remarks Mercantile Journal. The hard times of the last five years have been an object-lesson on this subject that should never be forgotten. People who save nothing from their wages must expect to suffer when wages cease.

A valuable lesson in economy comes from Belgium. Some time ago the children in one of the public schools in Brussels were requested by their teachers to gather up all the waste and apparently useless articles that they could find, on their way to and from school and to deliver them to their respective teachers.

For eight months the work of collection went on. Such objects as tin foil, tin cans, paint tubes, bottle capsules and refuse metal were especially looked after. The result was astonishing. Nineteen hundred and twenty-five pounds of tin foil rewarded the children's efforts, together with 1,200 pounds of metal scraps, 4,400 pounds of bottle capsules and old paint tubes that in the aggregate weighed 220 pounds.

But it was when the articles were disposed of and the money applied to useful objects that the full force of this economy was manifest. The proceeds completely clothed 500 poor children, and sent 90 invalid children to recuperation colonies, and there was a goodly balance left to be distributed among the sick poor of the city.

MONTREAL GROCERS' OFFICERS.

The annual meeting of the Montreal Grocers' Association was held in the Monument National on Thursday, September 9. The attendance was somewhat below the average, and, after the usual routine business had been transacted, the election of officers for the ensuing year was proceeded with.

Mr. Jno. Scanlon, who for the past year has held the office of 1st vice-president, was elected president by acclamation. The other officers elected were Messrs. J. O. Levesque, 1st vice-president; Ald. R. Turner, 2nd vice-president; V. Raby, hon. secretary; J. P. Dixon, treasurer; Peter Gannon, acting secretary; directors—Messrs. S. D. Vallieres, J. B. Deschamps, P. Daoust, P. O'Brien, A. B. Hall, J. E. Manning; auditors—Messrs. S. D. Vallieres and P. O'Brien.

In accordance with their usual custom, the association then voted the sum of $25 each to the Montreal General Hospital and to Notre Dame Hospital.

The new lager beer brewing firm of McCormick & Johnston, London, have their new brewery almost completed. They expect to have the first batch of beer in their new quarters out in a few weeks.

MANITOBA MARKETS

THE wheat trade is now getting into swing, and by next week will be in full blast. Not much wheat is being sold as yet in the country; the amounts being threshed are being stored. Prices ranged from 78 to 82c. per bushel at the country points during the past week. The sample is good, but the wheat is not threshing out quite as high an average as expected. Grades have not yet been struck. Business of all kinds is good. The fruit market is active at present, and this is likely to continue. The first shipment of Ontario grapes will reach here about the 25th. Crab apples will be scarce this year. Another carload from Montana and Washington is coming in this week.

GREEN FRUIT—Peaches, $1.40 and $1.25 per crate, according to quality; plums about the same price; crab apples, $2.50 for 50-lb. boxes; pears, $2 and $1.85 per 40 lbs, according to quality; apples, southern fruit, $3.75 to $4.25 per bbl.; California grapes, Tokay, $3; muscats, $2.50 per crate; Southern Concord, 45 to 50c. for 10-lb. baskets. Oranges are out of the market.

BUTTER—Dairy is in little better demand, and considerable is held here by two or three firms. Round lots were purchased last week at 13c. In creamery there is very little in the country at present, as the season will soon close. The price is higher, the general figure last week being 19c., and it is doubtful if any can be bought this week for that price.

CANNED GOODS—In all lines canned goods are very firm. Eastern houses are offering new pack of tomatoes at 75 to 80c. per dozen, corn at 50 to 55c., and peas at 70c. Strawberries are worth about $3.25 per case, and raspberries, $2.85 to $3.

EVAPORATED FRUITS—Apricots are now worth 11c. here, peaches 12c.

DRIED FRUITS—The first shipment of raisins proved to be in excellent condition, and sold for $1.90 per box for fine off-stalk. Layer raisins have not yet appeared on this market. Quotations for currants have not been satisfactory, and buyers have only secured small quantities, hoping for an improvement. It now looks as if this policy had been unwise, as the price appears to be ascending rather than descending.

RICE—Market firm. China rice, 4½c., and Japan not to be obtained.

A VALUABLE INFORMATION

In response to an enquiry for a further quantity of . . . .

1,000 Half-Chests Japan Tea

our correspondents in Japan advise their agents, under date 6th Sept., as follows:

"We are in receipt of your wire of this a.m., and would say that the markets in Japan are in such shape that it is doubtful if our firm could secure '500' HALF-CHESTS OF TEA under 14 to 15c., and if anything is offering cheap in Canada, Messrs. Hudon, Hebert & Cie. had better secure it. THEIR IMPORTATIONS THROUGH US WOULD COST EASILY 2c. MORE NOW."

Whilst regretting that we cannot procure this further quantity of 1,000 Half-Chests, our importations have been large, have been made at the very lowest point of the market, and we offer these Teas now arriving at our usual advance upon the cost, not upon the basis of to-day's advanced market.

TOBACCO IN A GROCERY.

A LONDON grocers' paper advises the grocers to keep tobacco, and gives the following reasons for it :

"Nothing is more easy or compact to stock, and, given a dry place, the herb keeps well in its tinfoil or metal covering, and it is impossible for it to affect in any way the edible wares in whose company it finds itself.

"This general plan on the part of the manufacturers of putting their tobaccos up in tasteful packages of from one ounce to half a pound in weight has revolutionized the tobacco trade. The majority of smokers purchase nothing else, and if the prices are very much cut, as undoubtedly they are, nevertheless the husband's weekly supply of tobacco is as regular a purchase as the housewife's tea.

"It may be argued that the names of the proprietary tobaccos is legion, and that it would be difficult for a grocer to add such a long list of tins and packages to his ordinary stock. It is certainly true that there is a bewildering array of packed tobaccos on the market, but nevertheless it is equally certain that a few manufacturers have the pull of the trade, and that the large proportion of smokers keep to a few well-known brands. The grocer will find, in fact, that a few particular sorts are repeatedly asked for in his district, to the exclusion of all others. It is extraordinary how tastes in tobacco agree in a neighborhood.

"The true enjoyment of tobacco is in puffing the weed with a friend, and this sociability of the 'vice' probably influences each man in the choice of his tobacco by the opinion of his friend. However that may be, we could name a coterie of smokers in a little village not far from London, among whom most certainly not more than half a dozen tobaccos are customarily smoked. There is no reason, therefore, why tobacco should not be a standing order at the grocer's, to be regularly delivered with the week's supply of necessaries.

"The influence of the personal equation, of course, comes in in getting the business in the first instance, but in many cases it only needs asking for. Man is a creature of habit, and if the grocer once secures a tobacco customer there is little difficulty in keeping him."

As The Retail Grocers' Advocate says : It hardly applies to the metropolitan grocers here. Most men buy their tobacco themselves, and the ladies who patronize the grocery stores would hardly buy much tobacco for their husbands. The latter are more inclined to patronize cigar stores.

PORK PACKING IN MANITOBA.

That there is a great future in pork packing in Canada is daily being more generally believed. This year so many new channels of trade have opened up for prime hog products and the appreciation of Canadian hams and bacon has become so great that Canadians were unable to supply the demand. It is expected, however, that the supply will be much increased next year, and Manitoba will not give the least increase in the supply. As a proof of this contention is the fact that J. Y. Griffin & Co, of Winnipeg, are expending $50,000 in increasing their capacity and inaugurating an almost entirely new plant. When the establishment is completed this firm hopes to be able to handle all the hogs that the Manitoba farmers can produce, and to make Winnipeg a great packing centre. The work is to be begun this fall and will be completed next spring. New engines, new boilers and a system of mechanical refrigeration are being put in. When finished it will be the third largest building of its kind in Canada.

THE TENDENCY TO SPECIALIZE.

While there is a tendency to concentrate different lines of business under one roof, there is also the opposite tendency to specialize and split up certain lines of business. There is an analogy to the department store system in the old style trade papers, which represented different lines of business in one town. A paper could be devoted to the hardware trade, the drug trade, the grocery and dry goods under one cover, by devoting certain space to each trade, but as soon as a special grocers' paper is started the grocery department in the composite paper loses its value, and as the cities grow the various trades represented in one paper are finally all represented by a special paper devoted to one line. The old style grocery store in this city has also been affected by the tendency to specialize them. There are fruit stores, butter and egg stores, delicatessen, buttermilk and pot cheese stores by the score in this city, where formerly only the grocer was to be found and the occasional fruit peddler. —Merchants' Review.

HONEY HELPS DIGESTION.

Much of the difficulties which people suffer from indigestion would be removed if honey were more generally eaten than it is, says an exchange. Cheap as this sweet has lately become, we are surprised that people do not have more of it on their tables. In combination with starchy foods like bread, honey enables them to be digested much better than is possible with other more common combinations of flour, sugar and butter made into cake. These are all carbonaceous, and, because of that fact, hard to digest. Honey is also a sweet carbon, but it is the nectar of flowers partially mixed with gastric juices by the bee which gathered it. The honey is, therefore, a sweet that is partly prepared for digestion, and to that extent relieves the labor of the stomach.

It will be objected that honey is found very hard to digest by many people. But this is usually either because the honey is eaten with the comb, which is almost indigestible, or the person thus suffering from the dislike of this sweet has, at some time in his or her life, eaten far too much, and thus has created a dislike that did not originally exist. Strained honey eaten moderately with whole wheat or graham bread is not likely to injure any normal stomach. The very white bread made from the starch only of wheat flour is not so good and should be eaten in moderation. Both the honey and flour are exclusively carbonaceous, and though the honey is a help to digestion, it may not be quite sufficient help for so big a task. In the graham or whole wheat bread the nitrogenous parts of the wheat, the gluten and germ, are preserved. They give strength, which the white wheat flour will not, and thus enable all the bodily organs to perform their work. Excellent as honey is, it cannot furnish strength directly, though it will do so if eaten with such nitrogenous food as the system requires and which the honey helps to digest.

It is estimated by W. H. Crossman & Bro. that the coffee crops of the world in 1897-98 will be about the same as during the 1896-97 crop—that is, a total of 14,000,000 bags, divided by about 8,500,000 for Rio and Santos and 5,500,000 for all other countries, with the possibility that one may be more and the other less, but the total not far from the figure mentioned.

If low prices stimulate consumption this year as much as they appear to have done in 1896-97, it will tend to check a decline to the low prices of 1882, when a record of 5¼c. was made for ordinary, and No. 3 (or fair Rio) sold at 7½c. If this year's total supply is as large as estimated it may be that the market will drop to prices made 15 years ago.—The American Grocer.

MINT ... PUFF-STRAPS

RECOGNIZING the great popularity of peppermint with the sweets-loving public, we are the first to introduce to the trade Pliable Licorice containing this flavor.

The delicious quality of our Pliable Licorice is well known; it is matchless in this respect as well as in its flavor and finish.

Our Triple Tunnel Tubes and Navy Plugs are great favorites also, and are made of the same material, although flavored differently. . . . . .

We recommend all these goods as suitable for Summer Trade; they will please the most exacting taste as wholesome, smooth and palatable confections. . . . .

VALUE OF COMMERCIAL PAPER AS QUICK ASSETS.

By William H. Peck, Scranton, Pa.

COMMERCIAL paper may be defined as notes given in mercantile transactions, or to raise money to be used in such transactions, and in either case to be paid when due without request for renewal. The term is one that would be differently understood in various regions. In our own city (Scranton) we would be asked if it were the same as business paper. In the northwest we would be told that elevator and wheat paper are the best, such being made for the purpose of buying wheat and storing it in elevators.

In the cotton belt, commercial paper would be considered by many to be notes given for the preparation or marketing of the cotton crop. In Kentucky notes are considered by some to be desirable when secured by warehouse certificates for barreled liquids, and some of my bank friends have assured me that the collateral becomes more valuable as the notes gain age. The most desirable commercial paper is such as is given with well-founded reason of ability to turn the money into channels of business and then out again, by the time the notes become due.

It is reasonable to believe that a bank cannot very creditably pass through such times as we have had in recent years if it loans all its capital, surplus and deposits, excepting the amount required for reserve, to parties who expect to use the money as permanent capital, and hence will desire to renew the notes. As a bank's deposits are expected to be payable on demand, it is quite desirable that it have some form of as part of its investments, by which it can at times raise money without disturbing the loans to its customers.

We all still have in mind the bank panic of 1893 and the ante-election stringency of last year. The banks that could reinforce their reserves without calling in their home loans passed through those times with the least anxiety; and it pays to be well prepared for such occasions, even though the preparation be not called into use more than once in ten or a dozen years. It is to be assumed that all bankers desire to have a large portion of their assets upon which they can quickly realize, even though the income from them may be less than that received from more permanent investments. For that purpose some invest in mortgages on local real estate; others buy municipal bonds; others lay away gilt-edge bonds that are listed on the exchanges of the great cities; and still others buy commercial paper. Of these four forms of investment, local mortgages pay the highest income, and yet would not be legal investments for all the members of this group. But can they be depended on as quick assets in time of panic? Would not the local situation be made worse by insisting at such a time on the payment of any that might be due?

Municipal bonds would scarcely find a market in time of panic, but would have to be peddled out.

Listed bonds, which are almost entirely of railroads, and are supposed to be quoted daily on the exchanges, run down to a very narrow market in time of panic, and to prices that are sometimes ten or fifteen or more points off from their usual quotations. In 1893 there were times when the total daily bond sales at the New York Stock Exchange only amounted to $300,000, and that is a very small amount of daily sales when we consider that there are upwards of $188,000,000 of investment bonds held by National banks alone, any of which are liable to be thrown on the market at such a time, in addition to the holdings of State banks and alarmed individuals.

I know of an institution that for some years has kept a large amount of its funds invested in commercial paper so as to have quick assets, and on May 1, 1893, stopped buying because its management saw indications of stringency, and at that time had in its pocket-book $640,000 of such paper, as well as $1,000,000 of its customers' notes. The result was that in a short time, on account of the payment of its purchased notes as they fell due, its reserve was run largely above the legal requirement; and although that panic is said to have been the most severe in the history of banking in the United States, still that institution was able to announce that its customers need not pay any loans, but, on the contrary, could have additional ones where their responsibility would warrant and the value of their accounts would entitle, and that any townsmen who were customers of other banks, but who were fortunate enough to have loans with it, could renew without question. This it could not have done if it had been depending on local mortgages, municipal bonds, or listed bonds.

In time of stringency a bank's commercial deposits are quite certain to decline, because business men cannot make collections, and must use their balances to meet maturing obligations. For a bank to be able at such times to be of service to the community in which it is located is no small matter, and I claim that most readily furnish such means. You may ask if the institution referred to lost any money in 1893 by such a policy, and, in reply, I would say that in March, 1894, it had no past due notes and had not lost a dollar since December, 1892; and in the last four years has loaned in all ways $22,000,000, with losses of only $2,250. Could a better record be shown at such a time with any other form of investment of equal amount?

commercial paper can be obtained, but in buying, it is well to select the brokers as carefully as one would select the notes. Some brokers will offer all kinds of notes—good, bad and indifferent—not seeming to use judgment themselves in getting together their assortment, and to select from such a lot requires time and is tiresome. It reminds one of the man who had a quantity of apples in his cellar that required sorting because some were specked and many were rotten. He said afterwards that he did not like the job because it was too great a strain on the judgment.

Some brokers will offer to endorse the paper they have for sale, without appearing to know that if they do much business their contingent liabilities from such a source will be enormous, and must make their endorsement of little value. Other brokers will have a cleaner lot of paper from which one can more easily make selections.

In any event it must be understood with one's brokers that the quality is the first consideration, and that being decided on, the rate and the time of maturity comes next. But the rate should never be allowed to be the first influence in making the selections.

Many times the rate will be lower than that charged by a bank to its customers, and occasionally it will be higher; still a customer paying the regular rate has the advantage over him who may place his notes at the lower rate, for, by virtue of his account, he has reason to expect his bank to carry his loans as long as he requires, while the maker of commercial paper has to pay his notes when due, and cannot ask for renewal no matter whether times are good or bad.

So far as a low rate may be concerned, I see no more objection to low-rate paper than to low rate bonds. The difference of per cent. is for it will average higher, and this difference will be still greater in the future. For are not the really desirable bonds rapidly getting on a 3½ per cent. basis, as is evidenced by recent funding operations of the Lake Shore, the New York Central and the Northwestern railroads, and as will be shown soon by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western in funding maturing 7's?

Every bank that invests its surplus funds in commercial paper should have a credit department connected with the institution. Just how much time should be given to such a department will depend on the amount invested. It may commence in a small way, as one did with a little memorandum book labeled "Credit Impressions;" then it can be added to by getting mercantile agency reports, and yearly statements of resources and liabilities and other information as it becomes accessible. By keeping envelopes properly labeled and all records filed away in them, they will be at hand when desired for use.

Questions are sometimes asked as to the means of ascertaining the correctness of annual statements issued by parties who sell their paper, and the assertion is occasionally made that they are not as reliable as the statements published annually by railroads. We must cease to do business unless we are willing to believe that the and truthful, and by closely analyzing a debit and credit mercantile statement, and considering with it all the information one can obtain, a very safe calculation can be made as to the desirability of taking what may appear to be a legitimate risk. We are favored in our region by having railroads that are under most excellent management, but the same cannot be said of all railroads; and when a road that has stood as did the Atchison, Topeka and Sante Fe can carry on its statement as assets over $2,000,000 of rebates, and such a state of things not be known, it is evident that the commercial statements compare well with the average railroad statement. Attention might also be called to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co.'s affairs, in regard to which Expert Accountant Little is said to have reported that in four years ending June, 1895, they had paid over $5,000,000 in unearned dividends, and had largely overstated their profits, and had a floating debt of many millions, all of which was not previously known. Also the Canadian Pacific Railroad might be mentioned, which carried on its statements a large amount of assets to be used in keeping up dividends, when a period of business depression might reduce its earnings. When such a time came a short time ago, it was found that these assets had otherwise been used, and could not be of service, and dividends were suspended.

It seems to me to be more legitimate banking for a commercial institution to have its funds invested in notes representing the buying and selling of merchandise, or its productions, than to invest in obligations which represent permanent investment on the part of the borrower, and which the majority of corporations issuing never expect to pay, except with new ones.

The question constantly before bankers is: How can the institutions of which we have charge be so conducted as to earn dividends for stockholders, roll up a surplus for their protection and the protection of depositors, and at the same time be prepared when panics come, as come they will, so that their banks shall be "as an hiding place from the wind and a covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land?" If I have helped to the solution of the question I shall be gratified.

HOW A CUTTER HELPED A COMPETITOR.

A STORY was told to a Grocery World representative last week which illustrates the undermining process to which some cutters, in their ill-advised schemes, lay themselves open. There is in the city of Philadelphia a small retail grocer who some years ago got behind in his accounts with a local jobber to the extent of somewhat over $1,000. The jobber became a little uneasy and requested the retailer to call at his office, when an arrangement was effected by which the retailer was to pay a few dollars every week on the old account, paying cash for all new stock that he bought. Since that time, which was nearly four years ago, that retail grocer has struggled manfully with his incubus of debt, paying the prescribed number of dollars every week, until to-day the account is nearly paid off. This four years' period has been one of hardship and of rigid economy, but the satisfaction of knowing that the debt is being surely lifted is a reward well worth the struggle.

Some time ago this retailer had a talk with the jobber to whom he owed the sum mentioned, and in the course thereof he revealed some of the methods which he had used during the past four years in order to keep himself afloat. In this struggle a cutter who did business within a few squares of this man, unconsciously, but very materially, assisted. The rest of the story may be related in the retailer's own language :

" That cutter didn't know it, but he did me a good turn time and time again, and I don't know whether if it hadn't been for him I would have been afloat to-day. There wasn't a single drive made by that cutter that I didn't take advantage of. One time he advertised a drive on tomatoes at 4 cents a can. Well, that was 48 cents a dozen, while they would have cost me at least 75 or 80 cents if I had bought them of you, so I sent boys to the cutter's store and bought up several cans—enough to keep me going for quite a while, and I bought them far below the jobber's price.

" Another case was on Ivory soap. I know that is contract goods all right, but when this cutter advertised it for about two cents a cake less than I could buy it of the jobber, I sent some more boys there and bought as much as I could. I saved a good deal of money on that, too.

Another time this fellow advertised granulated sugar at 3 cents a pound, while the wholesale price was 5 cents. I bought enough of that, too, to last me for several days. I had been paying 4 cents a loaf for bread all along, but this fellow thought he could sell it at the rate of three loaves for 5 cents, so I let him sell a lot of it at that price to some boys I sent there, and I was able to sell it at a very low price and still make a good profit. I got 8 or 9 cents a can for the tomatoes and about the same margin for the other goods."

Thus did a cut-price grocer assist in paying off an old debt incurred by one of his competitors. A fit ending to the story is that a few weeks ago this cutter failed.—Grocery World.

A FEATURE OF SUGAR.

Willett & Gray say of refined sugar that the fact that the refiners have not increased their output has made the conditions appear much stronger than they actually are, as with less production refiners are compelled to stipulate for considerable delay in deliveries. The reason why the production is not increased to meet the demand with prompt deliveries is probably owing to the fact that refiners still hold a large amount of refined product in the different markets of the country, which, as soon as disposed of, must lead to an increase of meltings here ; but, in the meantime, the Standard refinery in Boston is shut down and the refineries in New York and in Philadelphia are running only about 50 to 60 per cent. capacity. This explains also why the stock of raw sugars is not being more largely reduced.

HUSTLING GROCERS IN RICHMOND.

Fame, Artemas Ward's bright monthly, thus describes some of the advertising efforts of a firm of wholesale grocers, of Richmond, Va., who are sending out some circular advertising that contains a number of novel ideas.

They use a large envelope printed in purple and buff. After the name of the firm there is a big purple rooster rampant, and the words : " We Are Not Crowing, But We Are Showing A Nice Line Tea." Inside, the sheet devoted to molasses and syrups, is headed with a parlor match glued to the paper, " Can you match it ? " is the idea.

" Everybody needs soap now ! In toilets we have got any kind you want. And for the laundry ; well, the warmer it gets the more Cameo you sell. Best of all, you pay but $3 and make $2 on each box. Satisfaction or money back."

" There will be more Tea used this summer than ever before. We'er in line with the movement. Fresh, New Stocks."

" Chewing Gum—When dinner oppresses one."

" Jamaica Ginger—For this relief, much thanks."

" Cigars and Cigarettes—Charm every anxious thought away."

" Sweets and Fruits—I'm quite ashamed, 'tis mighty rude to eat so much, but all's so good."

A pretty girl with winning grace
Can get along upon her face ;
But the washerwoman's surest hope
Is elbow grease and—
MOONSHINE SOAP.

" Give us the luxuries of life, and we will dispense with its necessities."

Under the picture of a breakfast table scene are the lines :

The turnpike road to pocketbooks, you'll find,
Lies through men's mouths, or we mistake mankind.

This sort of hustling is unusual among southern wholesalers. It is only another evidence of the newness of the New South.

SIGN OF A LOW-GRADE HOUSE.

WHEN you see a traveling salesman, says The Commercial Bulletin, who depends on getting his share of the trade by making prices below all his competitors, you may set it down that he is traveling for a low-grade house, or that he himself is a low-grade traveling salesman. Such a salesman is likely to work not longer than one year for any one house. The same rule will apply to any retail merchant. The pestilence of price cutting is more likely to attach to the grocer than to any other class of retail merchants. There are reasons why this is necessarily true, but there is no reason in much of the indiscriminate price cutting that is common among grocers.

It will go without proof that the retail grocer must make a profit on something that he sells. If he is cutting prices below the cost of the article, he must add to the legitimate profit of some other item on his list, or he must run behind on his total of profits for the purpose of selling that one item. No consumer is much fooled by the sale of goods below a profitable figure. They always expect to have to pay the cut on some other item. Their shrewdness is shown in going about from store to store and buying those items that are sold at less than cost, and letting alone those that are sold at the added profit.

An example is shown in two small country towns of this state, in which the grocers are now selling sugar at prices that range from 18 to 23 pounds for a dollar. At 18 pounds the merchants are losing money. They have been making this kind of war on themselves for several months, and yet they have not done well under the plan, neither have their customers shown any great degree of appreciation of their self-sacrifice. They are growing tired of this kind of self-clubbing, but they are not yet at the point where they can agree to throw sugar at each other.

In this city not long ago, continues The Bulletin writer, some of the bright concerns, who make money every day, got to selling sugar at low prices. But they had the wit to offer it in a combination of goods that brought the profits to an average. The buying public thought they saw a profit to the grocer in the combination, and the offer was not much sought after. If the grocer who desires to do business for life in his town attempts to run the little rat grocer out of business, he will find that he has had his chase after a flea or a yellow dog. The little, irresponsible grocer can throw away money as fast as can the legitimate merchant, for he is usually throwing away other people's money. When he reaches the end of his rope he can turn a somersault, liquidate and go on under a new name, or at least with a new stock that some jobber has been persuaded to sell him.

Reasonable profits, cleanliness, courtesy, honesty, good assortment, promptness, quality—these are the sure supports of the man who wants to do business in groceries next year, and the next and the next. Price cutting for competition's sake is fighting with a two-edged razor without a handle. —Ohio Merchant.

TWO BUSINESS METHODS.

It is odd how the business ideas of different men differ, especially on the matter of profits. Now, I know a cutter in Philadelphia who invariably regulates his prices by the market. If he has bought tomatoes at 84c. a dozen, or 7c. a can, and is selling them at 9c. a can, and the market should sag to 60c., or 5c. a can, he will drop his price to 7c. If it should go even lower, he will drop his retail price even further, notwithstanding the fact that he may have paid —before the drop—more than he gets. Especially does he do this with standard proprietary articles that are usually bought ahead in fairly large lots. Now, on the other hand, I know another grocer, not a cutter, who believes that a retail price should be regulated entirely by the cost to the dealer. If he pays 84c. a dozen for tomatoes and the market drops to 60, he will continue to charge just as much for the balance of the lot he paid 84c. for as when the price was that much. He believes everything he sells should pay him a profit on what he paid, even though that sum that he paid is twice as much as the cost when he sells. Which is right?—Grocery World.

THE MUSTARD ANALYSIS.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER,—We notice in your paper of September 17, under the heading of "That Mustard Analysis," certain statements with regard to Keen's mustard which are misleading.

We have not at any time brought out absolutely pure mustard to oblige certain of our customers, neither did we have complaints sent us that goods were turning sour and consequently have to take back a large percentage of the shipments. We mentioned during conversation with your representative that another house had endeavored to put a genuine mustard upon the Canadian market some years back, and that owing to want of sale and climatic influences the goods gradually went bad, and were eventually returned to England, exchange being made for the ordinary selling quality, namely, "D.S.F."

Then, again, we did not say that the proportion was stated upon every package, because it is well known that the English houses shipping mustard to Canada, send usually the "D.S.F." brand, which has complied with the British Foods and Drugs Act by having marked on the tin that the "contents are a compound containing no injurious ingredients."

In conclusion, we would like you to ask our many customers throughout Canada whether they have at any time returned any Keen's mustard for the causes mentioned in your editorial, or for any other cause.

Yours, etc.,

THE WIFE AS ASSISTANT.

THE class of man is slowly dying out who, with strident voice and air of tyranny, cows womankind or relegates them to the background of life as inferior creatures, writes Elvira Floyd Froemcke in N.E. Grocer. Average man has discovered that woman is evoluting into another creature than the fainting, hysterical heroine of an eighteenth century novel. That she not only is on speaking terms with many professions, but has a clear head for business, and many a well-to-do grocer has to thank his wife for being prime factor in his success.

Many years ago a grocer in one of our middle states had failed in business several times. Each time he had started he had a tidy little sum for capital. These moneys had been legacies. Now he had nothing more to expect, was bankrupt and thoroughly discouraged. He had worked faithfully, had left no stone unturned; still there seemed nothing but failure for him.

His wife was a happy, healthy woman; she never questioned his ability, yet she saw his weakness, though she never voiced those opinions. She was so thoroughly domestic that he came to think of her as mother, cook and comforter, and looked aghast when she said:

"The boys are all in school now, John; I'll come into the store. I can help you with sales on busy days. I can take the cash and keep your books."

"You," said he, "why, you could not keep books; you don't know how."

"Oh, don't I?" and she quietly took out a neat little set of books, in which her housekeeping accounts had been carefully kept.

John was amused, then interested, and finally respectful when he noted that she had deposited over five hundred dollars in the bank.

"I would begin business to-morrow, if I knew how to get re-stocked," said he. Then the wife gave up her five hundred dollars, and bade him ask credit for the rest. "Surely they will trust you after all the goods you have purchased?"

John could hardly believe this eager intelligent woman was the same docile creature who had lived at his side all these years; but he bestirred himself as he had never done before.

For months their positions changed. She took the initiative, and started by directing everything except his purchases. They hired a new clean shop in an untried neighborhood. She helped with sales, had a comforting word for grumblers, a helping one for young housewives, and a tender one for children. She took the cash and insisted on a prompt payment of accounts. If people refused to pay on second presenting of bill, their account was closed and in future they could only trade for cash with that house.

Ten years after this start, they built and owned a fine shop perfectly stocked. In five years more they owned three beautiful stone houses. The wife then resigned her position as bookkeeper to a worthy needy young girl, and took up her old one of the home-maker.

When these worthy people died their sons were rich, through the comfortable fortune they left, and they have ample cause to bless their unselfish provident mother.

There is a grocer here on Dorchester street, Montreal, who has just built himself a fine shop opposite the leading club house in the city. It is large, and finely finished in polished wood. Its large plate glass windows are ever shining clean, and the tasteful arrangement of fruits and vegetables shows a woman's hand. Inside neatness prevails, the large, well-chosen stock being in perfect order.

Recently I chanced to be served by the grocer's wife. She was a dark-eyed, pleasant-faced little body, and I asked her if her husband owned the shop. "Yes," replied she proudly, "we own the shop, and will try to please any new customers we may get." She noticed my interest, and told me their story.

Thirteen years ago she and her husband, then newly married, talked of starting in business. They were both Irish-Canadians, though his education in the seminary of French Jesuits gave him a thorough knowledge of French, together with many of their mannerisms. This was a great advantage to them, as it brought French-speaking people to their shop.

She was wise, fairly educated, and they had each saved a few hundred dollars. They each put their little money into a capital, and went to work. He did the buying and delivering, she kept the books, took the cash and assisted in sales.

She was a wise little woman and saw that the long trust business was a quick-sand which they must avoid; and a cash business was the only sort in which she would consent to labor. He tried to reject the idea, because he feared in this city of trusts the practice would make them unpopular. At last he agreed to do as his wife insisted. They hired a small shop and a small boy, and used the upper floor of the shop as a dwelling house. They worked and persevered, and never deviated from their cash system but in one instance. The little woman smiled as she told me this.

"You see, we trusted our landlady because it was safe. Had she not paid us, we could have deducted her bill from the rent. People who do not like our ways must go elsewhere. We tell them so very plainly."

"Two pounds of butter, sir! Yes, it is gist in and sweet as a rose"—this to a new customer.

Well, thought I, you are not "gist in," but you are "sweet as a rose," even though you wear only a cotton gown and linen collar. In passing out I managed to say, "If your husband does not appreciate you he must be dull."

She laughed and, with an added touch of color, answered, "He isn't dull, ma'am." It takes a shrewd man to make a successful grocer.

HOW TO CLEAN BLACK SILK.

Free the dress from dust (a soft brush or clean cloth will do); then sponge it on both sides with gin, to which a lump or two of sugar or a little gum water may be added with advantage if a slight stiffness be desired. Have a clothes horse ready on which to hang the breadths, singly, as soon as sponged; then, while still damp, iron them on the side that is to be the wrong when made up; then hang on the horse again until dry, but do not place it close to the fire. If the silk is very dirty or greasy, it should be first cleaned with a solution of ammonia, then finished as above. If expense is an object, clear, cold coffee, made very strong, and strained through muslin, can be used instead of gin.

AT THE MARKET.

IN a busy public market a young housewife dictates to a clerk, who writes on an order stub: "One package of cocoa, a jar of—" She is touched on the arm from behind. "Oh, Mrs. Rathbone! How do you do?" They shake hands elaborately, and fall to talking commonplace. The clerk leans forward. "One jar of—"

"Oh, yes; of orange marmalade."

Mrs. Rathbone starts. "My dear Mrs. Miles, don't. My little May was made very sick from eating orange marmalade once. I don't believe the fruit was ever meant to be cooked."

The clerk coughs. Mrs. Miles exclaims excitedly:

"Not orange marmalade. How is May, anyway, my dear?

"I must tell you all about her mysterious case; but it is a long story, so I will give you first, before I forget it, my new receipt for peach marmalade, which you will like much better than the orange. You just take one pound of—"

Clerk interrupts.

"Is that all of your order, madame?"

"Of course not. I haven't got to olives yet. Why, here is Mrs. Turner. I must congratulate you at once on your son's engagement. Such a happy choice. But I haven't told either of you my own bit of good news. Baby took his first step yesterday. We think his walk is just like an uncle on father's side—a man who has been twice State Senator and almost spoken of for President."

Chorus—"What an honor!"

"Isn't it? Why, there is Laura Seymour! She's just been around the world (not in that hat I hope). My dear Laura, how do—"

Clerk calls loudly:

"How large a jar of olives did you say, madame?"

"I didn't say. Now Laura Seymour, tell us every word about your trip."

"But where shall I begin?"

"With the very first day. Well, of all things! Look there! If the clerk who started out to take my order isn't waiting upon somebody else." She swept majestically toward the door.

The clerk rushed forward, swathed in his most obsequious manner.

"Is there anything else, madame?"

"Not in this place. I shall go where I can get waited upon."—Lynn Item.

ENGLISH PACKAGE CEYLON TEAS SHUT OUT.

THE Treasury Department at Washington last week made a decision which will vitally affect the market for several English package Ceylon teas, which are imported into this country in large quantities. and which are advertised very heavily all over the United States.

The decision of the Treasury Department was given in the matter of the contention of the Ceylon tea importers that a good part of their tea was what is known as "needle leaf," which had been unjustifiably excluded by the tea inspectors as dust. They claimed that their tea, being machine made, was equally good both in the large and small leaf, and that the "needle leaf" should not be discriminated against and placed in the same forbidden category with dust. The United States authorities decide that the Ceylon tea must come in under the same restrictions as all other teas. The decision, however, will allow the Ceylon people to bring "needle leaf" into this country, but it insists that dust must be removed from the tea before its entry is allowed.

During the examination, which was a part of the case, the committee took samples of some of the leading package Ceylon teas and removed all of the "needle leaf," finding, when this was done, that there was still a decided excess of dust over the percentage allowed by the law. While the Ceylon people admitted this after its presence was revealed to them, they claimed that their dust was good in every respect, and that there was no reason why it should be excluded. This claim was overruled by the Government.

The principal effect of this decision will be to compel the English packers of Ceylon tea to change the quality of their product, under penalty of total exclusion from this country. In some of the English Ceylon package teas there is considerable broken leaf and dust. The packers will be forced to leave out both of these, and to ship a cleaner tea to this country. This will not necessarily advance the price, as it is said that other varieties of Ceylon tea, costing little, if any, more, can be used.

It looks very much as if the day of tea dust was over. It may be sold right along at a very low price, simply as dust, but it will hardly be used to any extent as an adulterant from now on.—Grocery World.

HEAVIER TAX ON CUBAN TOBACCO.

Advices from Havana state that an increase in the export tax upon tobacco from Cuba went into effect on Tuesday. The increase is about 6½c. per pound on filler leaf and 16c. per lb. on wrapper stock, making the new taxes about 10c. and 20c. respectively, there having been formerly a uniform rate of 3½c. per pound. It is also provided that any bale containing 10 per cent of wrapper stock shall be assessed at the wrapper rate for all of its contents. It is claimed, however, that it is practically impossible for even experts to distinguish between 10 and 15 per cent. of wrapper in a bale.

Last year Canada imported from the Spanish West Indies 142,820 pounds of tabacco, valued at $34,874, so that Canada is not altogether uninterested in this measure.

CANADIAN FLOUR SUPPLANTED.

OF all the influences which have tended to the development of Canada's trade, both export and home, none have probably been greater than that of freight rates.

For a number of years Canada has been endeavoring to build up a trade in flour with the West Indies, and particularly those owned by Great Britain. But now the Canadian agent at Trinidad advises the Dominion Government that Canadian brands of flour have been driven out of the island by those from United States mills. And the cause is ascribed, not to any superiority of United States flour, but to the advantage in freights which the latter obtains.

From the Canadian agent's report it appears that the freight rate, which used to be 30c., alike from Halifax and United States ports, was reduced to 25c. from the latter ports, while Halifax has remained unchanged at 30c. with the result that not a single barrel of Canadian flour was imported by Trinidad during the period covered by the report.

Trinidad's imports of flour are between six and seven hundred dollars' worth annually. While this is not a great quantity, yet Canada would like to get a share of it. And the knowledge that we are not, through the unfavorable freight rates of our own steamship lines, is, to say the least, irritating.

This is a matter which ought to receive the attention of the Department of Trade and Commerce. And there is work, too, for the Boards of Trade to do, for if they are not the guardians of the commercial interests of the country, who is?

ADVERTISING JAPAN TEA.

From Japan comes the news that the Japan Government will begin a system of advertising the country's teas in Canada and the United States. Evidently the success of the Ceylon Tea Planters' Association's advertising has driven the Japan Government to this course.

AN ANOMALOUS TEA LAW.

ONLY too often laws of a commercial character are badly bungled by their makers. And the tea inspection law, which went into operation in the United States on May 1 last, is another evidence of this fact.

In many respects the law is a good one, but it has one defect, which is fatal. And that defect is the clause which declares that all teas which contain more than 10 per cent. of dust, when sifted through a No. 16 sieve, shall be condemned, and, unless exported, shall be destroyed.

The absurdity of such a provision was pointed out in THE CANADIAN GROCER shortly after the law went into operation. And the results have proved it to be such, the finest broken leaf teas of India and Ceylon growths having been refused entrance into the country. Some of the importers appealed to the Board of United States General Appraisers, but that Board, in a decision given out a few days ago, has sustained the ruling of the examiners.

Some of the teas which sell in London, Eng., as high as 75c. per pound, could not, it is said, enter the United States under the present law. Such a state of affairs as this must be most irritating to importers who desire to bring in Indian and Ceylon teas of the finest grades.

As the law does not prohibit the importation of tea dust we here witness the anomalous condition of the prohibition of a fine tea, 10 per cent. of which will pass through a No. 16 sieve.

It is obvious that such an anomalous law cannot long remain on the statute books of the United States, if the business men of that country have any influence whatever with Congress.

The United States, however, does not stand alone in the matter of unsatisfactory tea inspection laws. Canada is in the same boat with her.

Here the test is made by a chemist whose analysis frequently does not agree with that of the leading analysts of the country.

There is only one proper way to test tea, and that is the way a practical tea man tests it, namely, by the cup. It is only there that the real quality of the tea can be ascertained. All other methods are insufficient and productive of no end of irritation.

If the Governments of both the United States and Canada would appoint an expert tea man, nominated by the trade, and pay a fair salary, no spurious teas would enter either country, while the present anomalous conditions would be removed.

IT IS BUSINESS COMMON SENSE.

DURING the course of his speech in Montreal on Thursday, Sir Wilfrid Laurier made use of these words: "Tariff revolution, I will say more, tariff reform, is always more or less dangerous."

The Premier never spoke truer words; and it is to be hoped, not only that he will not forget them, but that politicians of all shades of politics will adopt them among such articles of belief as they may possess.

Whatever our political predilections may be most of us will doubtless acknowledge that in this age at least, and under the present economical conditions, a Customs tariff is necessary. We will all probably be just as ready to acknowledge that tariff reform is at times necessary.

Trade conditions are changing, and tariffs, like everything else mundane, must be made to conform to these conditions or they will become antiquated and a drag upon the commercial interests of the country.

But tariff reform should not be undertaken when it is unnecessary, or when it is merely with a view to satisfying the demands of this or that party or interest. It should only be undertaken in order to comply with the necessities of the country. And when it is undertaken it should be characterized by efficiency and expedition.

The Canadian tariff was revised in the present year, and, at least to some extent, because the work was not properly done in 1894. But the last attempt was neither as well done nor as expeditiously done as it might have been.

The weakness of politicians, as a rule, is, we believe, more in the head than in the heart: The greater part of them try to do what is right, but they lack the business quality necessary to the performance of it.

Inefficiency on the part of tariff makers not only produces an inefficient tariff, but it causes the work of revision to occupy much more time than is necessary. This latter feature is the most prolific source of evil; for tariff revision, whether in the direction of an increase or a reduction in the duties, retards trade, and the longer trade is retarded the greater must necessarily be the injury wrought to the commercial interests of the country. Canada has yet to be as great a transgressor in this respect as the United States, but that she is a transgressor is known to all men.

As we have said before: tariffs we must have. So must we have tariff revisions. But there should only be tariff revisions when public exigencies demand them. And then the work should be performed as expeditiously and efficiently as possible.

How to secure the desideratum is a question which has received attention time and again in THE CANADIAN GROCER. We have contended, and still contend, that the framing of a tariff can only be done in any way approaching proficiency by an independent commission, composed of business men, agriculturists, etc., nominated by the boards of trade and other organizations.

The tariff cannot be taken out of politics for the reason that it cannot be taken out of the House of Commons. But a tariff framed by an independent commission and then submitted to Parliament for approval would (1) be a conformation to the business interests of the country and not to the political exigencies of any one party, and (2) few politicians would dare to attempt to do anything which would at least vitally change its provisions.

This is the gospel of business common sense, and it is to be hoped that the business men of the country will, in the future, be more aggressive in spreading it than they have in the past.

A Camden, N. J., man claims to be able to make a pound of butter from half a pound of milk. It is not said how much he is depending upon the public gullibility to float his scheme.

CANADIAN FRUITS FOR BRITAIN.

SHIPMENTS were made last week from Montreal of half a dozen carloads of small fruits for the British market. The shipments are of an experimental nature, and the results will be watched with a great deal of interest. The fruits include grapes, pears, plums, peaches and tomatoes. They are packed in shallow boxes or trays of seven to eight pounds, and are from the Grimsby district. To ensure their arrival in good condition they are placed in refrigerator cars.

It is ardently to be hoped that the venture will prove successful. Canada is yearly becoming a greater fruit producing country. Already the supply exceeds the consumptive requirements of the home market, and it is imperative we should find customers abroad.

The United States has hitherto been our best customer for small fruits, our exports of berries alone to that country in 1896 being valued at nearly $150,000, but the tariff is now such that we must look for a decreased instead of an increased trade with our neighbors to the south. We have practically, therefore, no other country than Great Britain to which we can go.

We feel assured, no matter whether this trial shipment turns out well or not, that the export of Canadian fruits to the British market can eventually be made a large and lucrative one.

As to the quality of our fruit there is no question. If never before, the high character of Canadian fruit was established at the World's Fair in Chicago, where it carried off so many honors.

It is no exaggeration to say, generally speaking, that for keeping and flavoring qualities no country in the world can excel us.

Richly, however, as Nature has blessed us in this respect, the success of our export trade of small fruits to Great Britain will largely depend upon ourselves.

There must be no slipshod or dishonest packing, and the goods must be put up not to suit our fancy but the tastes of the British public. The British public is fastidious, and once bitten it will be twice shy.

The Government has seen to it that the necessary cold storage facilities are provided; it devolves upon the fruit men to do the rest.

JAPAN TEA AND ITS FUTURE.

THE future and possibilities of Japan in a commercial sense, as well as in a military sense, are still the subject of a great deal of newspaper discussion. And the discussion is not without reason.

The progress which Japan has made commercially during the last generation has been surprising, but that which she has made during the past two or three years is more so : It is simply astounding.

Whatever Japan may court as a military power, one thing is certain, she is determined to become a great nation commercially. Nearly every movement she makes points to that.

Japan realizes that in order to ensure a good superstructure the foundation must be good. Actuated by this principle, it is sparing no pains to ground the ethics of business into its boys and young men. And they get these ethics practically as well as theoretically.

After a certain number of years spent in what may be termed a preparatory course, the Japanese student is "finished off" in a "business exchange." Here he plays at business, or, what seems a more proper term, works at business. A large room is provided, and in this room are various departments which are make-believe foreign countries and important ports. With these foreign countries the student is taught, under rigorous discipline, to carry on business. As this work is practical and not theoretical, it is certain to have its good effects.

As we have already noted, Japan is determined to take a place among the great commercial nations of the world. And in pursuance of this determination it may be depended upon to look after the interests of its tea industry.

Tea producing is one of Japan's chief industries. But during the last few years its development has been threatened by the vigorous campaign in the United States and Canada of the producers of Indian and Ceylon teas.

In Canada we know this Indian-Ceylon campaign has resulted in great inroads being made into the territory formerly occupied by tea of Japan growth ; and in the United States Indian and Ceylon teas have begun to press the lines.

That a part of the aggressive commercial policy of Japan is to retrieve what of its tea trade has been lost on the North American continent is undoubted.

Under letters patent from the Government commissioners from Japan have for some months been going up and down and through this continent spying out the situation and laying plans for an active campaign.

As noted in a previous issue it has already been decided to expend the sum of $70,000 in advertising Japan teas on this continent. And this is only the beginning. What other steps may be taken remains to be seen. The Japanese are sharp, shrewd business men, and one thing is certain : They will leave no stone unturned to push business in tea as well as other things which they are able to produce and export.

Geographically Canada is favorably situated for trading with Japan. And then there is the direct line of steamers—of which no better exists—that ply regularly between Vancouver and Yokohama. An enlarged trade between Canada and Japan is beyond question.

NO DISCRIMINATION.

United States Attorney-General McKenna on Tuesday announced his opinion in the matter of Section 22 of the new tariff law. He holds in effect that goods coming directly into the United States from foreign countries through Canadian ports are not subject to the discriminating duty of 10 per cent. He also holds that foreign goods shipped from countries other than British possessions in British vessels are not subject to the discriminating duty.

The decision of the Attorney-General will do much to soften the feelings of Canadians towards the United States. The discriminating clause was inserted in the Tariff Bill surreptitiously. It could not be done otherwise. And Congress, in its haste to adjourn, did not notice it.

It was a conspiracy mean and contemptible, and the United States, to its honor, has nipped it in the bud.

Good times are undoubtedly upon us, but its advantages to the full will only be enjoyed by those merchants who are energetic and up-to-date. The man who drifts with the tide makes some progress, but he who plys his oars with vigor makes still better headway.

THE RECENT MUSTARD ANALYSIS.

INTEREST in the recent report of the Inland Revenue Department on the analysis of mustard has not yet died out. On Tuesday last, I had an interesting chat with a well-known mustard manufacturer in regard to the matter. He would not, however, allow his name to be used for publication.

"I do not," he said, "agree with the statement made by a manufacturer in THE CANADIAN GROCER last week that pure mustard had to be almost immediately disposed of or it turned rancid. There are certain low grades of pure mustard which will not keep. But, then, it does not follow that all pure mustard is the same, because there are lots of pure mustard that will keep."

"There is just as much variety in pure mustard as in pure coffee, or in tea. You can buy tea from 15 to 70c. per pound or even higher, and still purity can be obtained in the low as in the high-priced article. Then there is ginger ; pure can be obtained wholesale as low as 8c. per pound, while for good 25c. or more would have to be paid. I am speaking of goods before they are ground.

"Now, mustard is in much the same position : You can buy all grades of it. If you buy low, inferior grades of seed you only get common mustard, while if you buy fine grades you get fine mustard. There are some mustards which are exceedingly pungent ; in fact, too much so for anyone to use at the table. At the same time you can buy a high-grade mustard which is not very pungent and has a very fine flavor.

"The best pure mustards suitable for table use are obtained by blending different seeds without an admixture of flour. Here is another point : You can buy low-grade pure mustard that can be sold wholesale as low as ten cents per pound. You can also buy a pure mustard that sells as high as forty cents per pound. Both are pure, but the difference is on account of quality."

"Then, it is better to buy a good compound than a cheap low-grade pure mustard?"

"Yes ; mustard made from first-class seed and reduced in strength by the admixture of flour will make a very much better article at a low price than the lower grades of pure mustard, because the high-grade mustard mixed with flour will keep, while the low-grade pure mustard will not keep. I have been offered pure mustard in New York as low as six cents a pound, but although pure it had no strength."

"Where is the best mustard seed produced?"

"In England. It produces the best seed in the world, although Austria grows a good seed, named Trieste, which has a good pungent flavor; but it is not equal to the best English brown seed. California is drawn upon largely for cheap mustard seed."

The recommendation of Chief Analysis McFarlane that a standard be fixed by Order-in-Council stipulating that what are sold as pure mustards should not contain less than 30 per cent. of fixed oil, and compounds or mixtures not less than 22 per cent., my informant denounced as absurd. "Analysts may know how to analyze," he added, "but they do not know how to run our business. I do, however, believe that a certain strength should be fixed for mustard for plasters; but that is after all a matter which the doctors should take up," he concluded.

Chicago is to have the greatest biscuit manufacturing plant in the world. Chicago is a great city for big things.

POWER OF CONFIDENCE.

The secret of many a business success lies in the little word "confidence." The patient who has faith in his doctor's remedies is already under way to recovery; the merchant who believes in himself, not from blindness or egotism, but from a happy-hearted, jolly-spirited, sunny-natured belief that "whatever is is right" will succeed, where a man of moods and shadows will fail with the same opportunities.

As the saying is, "cofidence begets confidence." Do not approach a customer with a suggestive wonder-if-I-can-sell-you-anything expression, but rather with a happy-to-serve-you air. The man full of confidence has a foil against failure, adverse criticism and mediocre success. Never say die until the undertaker comes.

INCREASED EXPORTS OF BUTTER.

THE growth of the export butter trade this summer has been remarkable, and the favorable development is attributable to the cold storage facilities that have been provided for the transportation of butter to Montreal in refrigerator cars and its transhipment across the Atlantic in chilled chambers on board ship.

To date the exports of butter from Canada have almost doubled what they were last year; and it has to be borne in mind also that the increase last year was quite large.

So far there have been 158,326 packages of butter sent to Great Britain, against 90,000 odd for the same period last year. The prices realized this year also, it is satisfactory to note, have been from 1½ to 2c. per pound above what the farmers received last year. In other words, the farmers last year at this time had shipped to Great Britain butter to the value of a little over $1,000,000; whereas this year they have sent forward considerably over one and a half million dollars' worth.

At this writing there is considerable speculation as to whether the present prices will hold in view of the large stocks carried in Montreal.

It has been a year of surprises in relation to the values on all farm products; but even if prices do decline now, the butter producer, when he averages up, will find that he has had a most successful year of it.

He has demonstrated, for one thing, that with the proper transportation facilities there is a ready and constantly expanding market for Canadian creamery butter in Great Britain.

The Danes supply most of the demand now, but some facts which have been appearing in the British press uncontradicted, regarding the unsanitary arrangements of the Danish dairy farms, will be certain to operate in favor of Canadian butter, always providing that its standard of quality is kept up.

According to the statements regarding Danish butter, the water is drawn from wells that are nothing more than sink pots for the drainings of the manure heap. When this fact permeates into the British consumer's mind, as it will be certain to do, fine, clean Canadian creamery will have the innings that it should have had long ago in the British market.

When it has, instead of a paltry shipment of two million dollars' worth, we should ship quadruple that amount, for we have the facilities for manufacturing it quite as profitably as the Danes, and, let us hope, cleaner.

SITUATION OF CURRANTS.

CURRANTS have fluctuated somewhat during the week. At first there was a decline of 3d. per cwt., but this was followed a few days later by an appreciation of 6d.

The decline naturally caused an easing off in the demand, local buyers practically ceasing to operate. As soon, however, as prices took an upward turn they were again in the market.

The figures now ruling in the primary market are the highest touched this season. Some shippers who advised probable lower prices later are now reported to have acknowledged they were mistaken, and indications point to a steady market.

The local market was never as bare of currants as it is at present. Practically all there are to be had are a few cases of Filiatras and Vostizzas, and the demand exceeds the supply.

The first shipment of the new season's fruit will probably be here about the end of this month or the first week in October. And in the meantime retailers may expect to only get their orders partly filled.

The first shipment to arrive in New York is due this week via Liverpool, and it is being sold to arrive at 6¼c. per pound. The market there is also practically exhausted.

DEATH OF MANITOBA DAIRYMAN.

Manitoba mourns to-day the loss of John Hettle, M.P.P., of Boissevain, and for many years president of the Manitoba Dairy Association. Mr. Hettle sat in the Local House many years, and was a valued member of that body. Having been engaged in the dairy business in the east, he went into it heart and soul in Manitoba, and to his untiring efforts is due much of the success of that industry in the Prairie Province to-day. At the time of his death he was running three creameries—one at Manitou, one at McGregor and one at Ninga. As a legislator he was one of the solid men of the province. Not easily moved to enthusiasm, he took sober, serious views of all questions, and never gave an ill-considered vote.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Sept. 23, 1897.

GROCERIES.

TRADE conditions continue to improve. This is the verdict of every wholesale merchant. The colder weather has increased the interest in the canned tomato situation, but prices are without change. Canned salmon is moving fairly well, but there is no great confidence in evidence on account of the large pack. Currants were a little easier, but the market has since taken a firmer turn. Valencia raisins are sixpence dearer in the primary market. California fruits generally are stronger. McDonald's chewing tobaccos have been advanced one cent per pound. Sugar is in good demand, and firm in both the home and the foreign markets. There is some movement in Japan and Young Hyson teas, but in other kinds there is very little going. As to price, the tea market generally is firm.

CANNED GOODS.

The cold snap of the early part of the week has created fresh interest in tomatoes, but up to the time of writing nothing authentic has been heard as to whether the cold was sufficient to cut off the supply and put a stop to canning operations. The feeling in regard to tomatoes is strong. Some of the packers are refusing to offer pending more definite knowledge as to the pack. A telegram received in Toronto on Saturday from a packer in the west stated that he had only so far packed about 500 cases, when at the corresponding date last year three-fourths of his pack was put up. Wholesalers report a good demand for canned vegetables, particularly peas. Gallon apples are still being enquired after, and we hear of a transaction of 5,000 cases in one lot. New pack pears are offering, and at low prices. We quote: Tomatoes, 80 to 85c.; corn, 60 to 75c.; peas, 75 to 80c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.10 to $1.25; beans, 65 to 95c;. peaches, $2.50 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.50 to $1.80, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $1.75 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 85 to 95c.; gallons, $1.85 to $2; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.50; ditto, new season's, to arrive, $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; other red salmon, $1.15 upwards, according to quality and brand; cohoes, 95c. to $1; canned mackerel, $1.25 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.85 to $2.95; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.35 to $1.40; 2's, $2.35 to $2.50; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

A good business is being done in Rios, and offers are about ¾c. per lb. firmer than a couple of weeks ago for selections. Jobbers quote green in bags: Rio, 9½ to 13c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 19 to 22½c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 18 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

Syrups are scarce and dear. Some of the refineries have none and some are sold ahead. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

There is not much to note. Advices from New Orleans state that receipts there are cut off on account of the quarantine against that place by the surrounding country. We quote: New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGARS.

The sugar market continues to occupy a favorable position. The demand is good, and for a larger proportion of granulated sugar than ever before. The quantity of sugar moving is larger than it was a year ago at this time. Prices are firm both at home and abroad. Two cargoes of Muscovados of '89 test sold in New York for shipment to Halifax at equal to 3 3/16c. per lb., duty paid. This is reputed to be the highest price paid this season. A few days ago beet sugar advanced ¼d. in London. We quote as follows for Toronto: Granulated — St. Lawrence and Redpath's, 4 9-16c. for single barrel lots and 4½c. for 5-barrel lots; Acadia, 4½c. for single barrel lots, and

We quote: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 11 to 12c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 20c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

NUTS.

Shelled almonds continue to advance. The first shipment of new season's Valencia almonds reached Toronto market last week. They are selling at 22c. per lb. We quote: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 20 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

There is nothing new to note. We quote: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½ to 4½c.

TEAS.

The strength previously noted in the Japan market has been maintained, and transactions are reported at the recent advance. Some China green teas, which could not pass inspection in the States, are being offered on this market. They are good liquoring teas, and suitable for blending. They are, however, firmly held at an advance of 2c. per lb. over the figures ruling last year. Indian and Ceylon teas are quiet but firm. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

The currant market declined 3d. the latter part of last week, but early cables this week noted an advance of 6d. per cwt. in the primary market. The local market is bare of all currants except a few Filiatras and Vostizzas in cases, and it will probably be another couple of weeks before the new season's fruit will reach here. We quote Filiatras, in cases, at 6½c., and Vostizzas at 7 to 8c. The demand is principally for cleaned currants.

Since our last issue some packers of reliable brands of Valencia raisins have been asking an advance of 6d. per cwt., but generally speaking buyers have been able to secure from them without paying this advance. Local wholesalers report the demand fair. We quote: New goods—Fine off-stalk, 5¾ to 6c.; selected, 6¼ to 6¾c. Old goods—Off-stalk, 4c.; fine off-stalk, 4½c.; layers, 5c. The printer last week made us say that Valencia raisins were cabled 1-16c. dearer. It should have been 1s. 6d. dearer. The figure was correctly given in the market notes.

Small lots of new season's Malaga raisins were brought on by a couple of houses last week. They were shipped by W. C. Bevan & Co., and consist of "London Layers," "Connoisseur Clusters" and "Extra Dessert." W. C. Bevan & Co. write that they believe the figures ruling to-day are lower than the average prices of the season will be, the crop having proved shorter than was anticipated.

CLEMES BROS. - TORONTO

There are a few new season's Sultana raisins on the market and they are selling at about 11c. The quantity is only limited. There are also a few of last season's production, fine goods, which are selling at 10½c. Further shipments of new season's goods are not expected for a week or two. The market opened strong, but receded about 2s., but since then there has been an advance, and the packers say that, judging from appearances, we shall not see lower prices.

Good orders for first shipments of California evaporated fruit are reported by local representatives and prices continue strong.

Prospects are that the smaller sizes of Santa Clara California prunes will be scarce, the fruit this season running large. Last year the crop was large, but the fruit small. Silver prunes are reported from the Coast to be also scarce in the standard qualities. The feature of the California prune trade this season is that shipments are this season being made to France. Local wholesalers report that new California prunes will sell at from about 6¼ to 12½c. per lb. according to grade.

GREEN FRUITS.

The trade in green fruits, although yet exceedingly heavy, is not so active as it was last week. Business in lemons is steady, but not many are changing hands, due, doubtless, to the abundance of other fruit. The situation in bananas has not changed much. Shippers are not sending any forward, and trade will soon become more satisfactory. Most bunches were sold at 30 to 50c., but these sales were forced by the ripeness of the fruit. Watermelons have not moved so freely this week. Musk melons are about done. It is feared that the cold weather will prevent a sufficient supply from being gathered. Dealers here have not yet been able to fill their orders. Apples are quiet. Although the low figures on peaches of last week ranged the first few days of this week, the prices ruling now are considerably higher. The big rush is over, and whatever are coming forward now are of good quality and demand high figures. Plums can hardly be moved. Pears are not very good quality this year. If the cold weather in the grape district holds off an enormous crop is assured. We quote as follows: Lemons, $2.50 to $3.50 per box. Cocoanuts, $4.50 a sack and 60c. per doz. Bananas, $1 to $1.50. New cabbage, $1 to $1.25 per 100. Watermelons, 20 to 25c.; cucumbers, 15 to 20c. per 12-quart basket; Canadian tomatoes, 15 to

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—Receipts have not been so plentiful during the past week, and the demand has noticeably increased. Real choice butter cannot be obtained in sufficient quantities to fill orders, and this has necessitated the bringing out of some goods which have been carried in cold storage. Prices have stiffened, and 14 to 15c. is obtainable for choice grades. The inferior lines are almost as scarce as the choice varieties. Some firms have been holding stocks, and these are now being thrown on the market, but there is not enough goods coming forward to supply the demand. These are worth 9 to 11c. Creamery is firm, although prices have not altered very much. We quote: June and July make, tubs, 18 to 18½c., and prints, 19 to 19½c.; late make, tubs, 19½ to 20c., and prints, 19½ to 20½c.

CHEESE—The market is weak and very little trade is being done. Exporters' and buyers' and factory prices are all apart and very few boxes are changing hands. These conditions cannot continue long, and we would not be surprised to see a scoop made some of these days when the prices have eased. Factories certainly cannot hold out much longer; 9½c. is the price bid and factories are holding out for 10c.

SALT.

Business in this article is getting quite brisk just now, as packers of all kinds of meat are preparing for their fall work. Large orders continue frequent. Quoted at Toronto, carload lots go at $1 per bbl. and 65c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl. and 70c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B. barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c. for points west of Toronto, and 45c. for Toronto and points east of Toronto.

FISH.

The fish market has not changed since last week; the supply is about equal to the demand. We quote as follows: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5½c. per lb.; whitefish, 7c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg.

PROVISIONS.

Market continues steady. Packers say that the demand for hams has recently increased considerably. Other lines are firm and are selling well. Canadian long clear is about exhausted, and supplies of these have to be imported from the States as hogs of the heavy variety have not yet been offered to supply this class of meat. Lard continues steady and firm.

DRY SALTED MEATS—Long clear bacon, 8¾c. for carload lots, and 9 to 9¼c. per lb. for ton lots and cases; backs, 9½c.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 12½ to 13c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; hams, large, 11 to 11½c.; 12 to 12½c. for small and 12c. for medium; shoulder hams, 9½ to 10c.; backs, 12c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD—Pure Canadian, tierces, 6¼c.; tubs, 6½c.; pails, 6¾c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $14.50 to $15; Canadian short-cut, $17; clear shoulder mess, $13.50.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—Wheat has eased off a few cents during the week, but the market is still excited. Other grains are firm. We quote: Winter wheat, 90c.; new winter, 88c.; oats, 27 to 29c.; peas, 51 to 52c.; barley, 30 to 31c. No. 1 hard wheat is quoted at $1.05, Toronto freights.

FLOUR—Quotations on flour have fallen this week in sympathy with the drop in wheat. Business is active, with some trade on foreign account. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $5.60; Manitoba strong bakers', $5.20; Ontario patents, $4.75 to $5; straight roller, $4.50 to $4.65, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS — Prices have not changed this week. Business is moderately good, although none on export account is reported. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.50 in bags and $3.60 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.75 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.50; split peas, $3.25; pot barley, $3.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Prices in eggs are about 1c. higher this week. Receipts are apparently not so large, especially in strictly new laid. Exporters are eager purchasers these days, for Liverpool quotations are about 17c. Some dealers are shipping their limed eggs already. Exporters are paying good prices at outside points. New laid eggs are worth 14 to 15c. Some dealers report a surplus of the second grade of eggs, but even these varieties appear to be well cleared up. They bring 11 to 12c.

POTATOES —With the exception of those grown in sandy spots, nearly all the potatoes are affected with the prevalent rot. This was caused by the heavy rains of July and August. The scarcity noted last week is not visible this week. Price for car lots is 45 to 50c., and by the bag, 65c.

HONEY—Dealers are buying tons of honey, more particularly in 60-lb. tins, in which they make heavy shipments. The consumptive demand has not started yet. We quote light at: 60-lb. tins, 6 to 6½c.;

DRIED APPLES—Dull and nominally 4 to 5c. for choice fruit, wholesale price.

EVAPORATED APPLES — There are none offering. The few old fruit there was on the market has been withdrawn, as better prices prevail outside. Local wholesalers quote 5½ to 6c., nominally.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—The market is almost bare of hides, and shipments to the United States keep the market up. Local tanners have to pay within 15 per cent. of what tanners in the States are paying. There is no alteration in prices. The demand which is good is about equal to the supply. Cowhides: Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS — Trade is about the same; a steady volume of business is doing. We quote; No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Dekins, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS — We quote: Lambskins and pelts, 65 to 75c.

WOOL — An increased demand has exceeded the supply and as a consequence prices are considerably firmer. Dealers are paying fully 1 to 1½c. more than they paid last week. This is contrary to the expectations of those in touch with the markets a month or so ago. Fleece wool now brings 20 to 20½c.

SEEDS.

This fall the markets are late in opening, a condition of affairs caused doubtless by the general late harvest, which prevents the early threshing of alsike. Qualities of the new crop of alsike do not compare with those of past seasons, and wherever a superior lot is available it will command a premium. Values now range from $3 to $4.50 per bushel. Red clover has not yet been marketed here, and prices will be governed by foreign values. Everything just now indicates that prices will be lower than for some time. Timothy is perhaps the largest crop ever known in Canada, which means that values will have to be computed upon an entirely different basis. Instead of home-grown seed being worth about what it costs to import from foreign countries, we will most likely now have to compete in foreign markets, and prices will range accordingly. At present offered goods range from 90c. to $1.25 per bushel for machine threshed; flail threshed is somewhat higher.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

Some nice orders for illuminating oil have been received this week. Trade in this line, however, will be heavier in a few weeks' time. Lubricating oils are still being called for, although the trade has fallen off considerably. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Canadian, 14c.; carbon, safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

Glucose has advanced recently in the United States nearly 100 per cent.

McDonald's chewing tobaccos have been advanced 1c. per pound. Bright's are as before.

Currants, which receded 3d. in price the latter part of last week, have advanced 6d. this week.

Tallow is easier again and is now quoted at 3c. The recent flurry in the States did not last long.

Contrary to expectations wool has risen 1 to 1½c. per lb., and is now quoted at 20 to 20½c. for fleece.

Butter is fully 1c. higher this week, as are also eggs. The supply of the former is quite short on this market, and dealers cannot fill orders.

P. C. Larkin & Co. have shipped this week four "Ideal" packers. One goes to Australia, two to England and one to the United States.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Sept. 23, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE week has witnessed a fair volume of trade in groceries, the general conditions being much the same as they were a week ago. There is a good enquiry for sugar and syrups, while molasses is held so firm that buyers find difficulty in getting orders filled. In dried fruit the generally firm tendency is maintained, and this is especially the case in both Valencia and California raisins. The same applies to French and California prunes and other evaporated fruits. Spices are generally firm, and the strong tendency of the tea market is as pronounced as ever, though buyers are acting as indifferently as ever in the face of the rising market.

SUGAR.

There has been a good demand for sugar during the past week, and both here and elsewhere the feeling is steady. Both yellow and granulated have shared in the increased enquiry experienced of late. In raw sugar the feeling also is steady. We quote: Granulated, 4⅛c. up to 10 barrels, and 4 3-16c. for larger quantities. Yellows range from 3½ to 3¾c., and creams, 3⅞c.

SYRUPS.

The enquiry for syrup has been quite active during the past week and a good business transacted, while prices have a very firm tendency, ranging from 1¾ to 2¼c., as to grade.

MOLASSES.

There is no abatement in the firm tendency of late displayed by the molasses market, and business is light, for the reason that the small stocks held in first and second hands here are so firmly held that buyers find it difficult to get their orders filled. We quote: Barbadoes, 24 to 25c., and Porto Rico, 25 to 27c.

RICE.

The rice market rules firm at the advance and business has been fairly active. We quote: Crystal Japan, $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $5 to $5.50; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

There has been more demand for spices this week, but the aggregate movement is still light and advices from abroad continue firm on all lines. We quote: Black pepper, 9 to 10c.; pure white, 11 to 16c.; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; do., best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

There has been a moderate demand for coffee from first hands during the week, chiefly Rio and Maracaibo. Prices are steady and unchanged as follows: Maracaibo, 15 to 19c.; Santos, 12 to 16c.; Rio, 12 to 16c.; Mocha, 24 to 28c., and Java, 25 to 26c.

TEAS.

The firm feeling in tea is fully maintained, but buyers, despite further confirmation of the strong position at primary points, are not disposed to operate with any freedom. Advices from Japan state that the best price at which low-grade Japans can be laid down is 14½c. cost and freight here. Some lots of Japans have changed hands on spot at prices ranging from 17 to 18c., and blacks at 14 to 16c. We quote: Young Hysons, 14 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15½ to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 17 to 20c. for mediums, and 35 to 65c. for higher grades.

CANNED GOODS.

There has been no change in the canned goods market. Salmon is being dealt in

was put on the market. The tedious soaking necessary and the low quality of a great deal of the tapioca sold kept it in the background as a food article.

The introduction of "Minute Tapioca" changed all this, and people everywhere who would not touch the old tapioca are our most enthusiastic customers. "Minute Tapioca" requires no soaking, is absolutely pure and very delicious.

DRIED FRUIT.

The currant market continues much the same as it was last week, except that old stock on spot is held rather firmer, as there is little or none of it to be had now. Sales of Provincials in barrels have been made at 5¼ to 5½c., and other packages are firm in proportion. Cables from Patras report nothing new since the decline of 6d. reported last week.

In Valencia raisins the firm feeling noted last week continues, and it is understood that some large contracts have been put through since last report for shipment via the second direct steamer. Values for stock on spot range from 4½ to 5c. for off-stalk, according to quality.

The firm tendency noted previously on California raisins continues and the market is active and strong.

California prunes continue strong at the advance quoted last week, and it is difficult to get orders for the large sizes confirmed on the Coast. French prunes continue firm abroad also.

California evaporated apricots are strong, prices running up to 10c., while peaches at the Coast are scarce and prices nominal at 10 to 11c., duty paid.

NUTS.

There is little to report in this market. We quote: Grenoble walnuts firm at 11 to 12c.; do. shelled, 20c; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; pecans, 9 to 10c.

HUGH WALKER & SON

Wholesale Commission Merchants

GUELPH, ONT.

CANADIAN Peaches, Pears, Plums Apples, Tomatoes, Huckleberries, etc.

Large shipments arriving daily. Sold at lowest price, and all orders promptly and carefully executed.

firmly held at 3 to 4c. for dried and 6c. for evaporated.

APPLES.

Receipts of apples are still light and prices steady at $2 to $3 per bbl.

GREEN FRUIT.

Receipts of all kinds of Canadian fruits have been heavy during the week, but the market has absorbed all the offerings with surprising promptitude considering their quality. Lemons have been in larger offering this week, and prices are somewhat lower. Bananas are cheaper for the same reason. Canadian pears are easier under heavy supplies, while peaches have sold steady, as receipts were not exceptionally heavy. The same can be said of plums and grapes. Quotations to-day are: Peaches, 30 to 40c.; plums, 20 to 30c.; pears, 15 to 30c., and grapes, 17 to 25c. per basket; bananas, 40c. to $1 per bunch and lemons $1.50 to $3 per box.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—There was no change in the situation of the egg market. The demand continues good from local buyers for small lots, and further sales of new laid were made to-day on export account. We quote: New laid, 17 to 18c. and choice candled stock at 13½ to 14c. per dozen.

BEANS—In beans a fair amount of business was done, and prices rule firm at 70 to 80c. for prime, and 90c. to $1 for choice hand picked per bushel.

HONEY—The demand for honey is still limited. White clover comb is offering at 10c. and dark at 7c.; bright extracted at 6½ to 7c., and dark at 4 to 5c. per lb.

PROVISIONS.

In provisions a good steady trade is reported, and the tone of the market is firm. We quote as follows: Canadian pork, $15 to $16 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, at 7 to 7½c., and compound refined at 5¼ to 5½c. per lb.; hams, 12 to 14c., and bacon, 12 to 13c. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

There was a decided improvement in the demand for flour from foreign buyers this week, and a large business is expected. Locally there was a better demand. We quote as follows: Winter wheat patents, $5 to $5.25; straight rollers, $4.85 to $5, and in bags, $2.25 to $2.35; best Manitoba strong bakers', $5.25 to $5.50; second do., $4.75 to $5, and low grades, $2.90 to $3.15; Hungarian patents, $5.65 to $5.90.

The tone of the feed market is firm, with a good demand. We quote: Manitoba bran, bags included, $11.50 to $12.50, and shorts $12.50 to $13.50 per ton.

The demand for meal is slow, and the market is quiet but firm. We quote: Rolled oats, $3.40 per barrel, $1.65 per bag; standard meal, $3.30 per barrel and $1.60 per bag.

BALED HAY.

There was no change in hay, the demand being fair at steady prices. We quote: No. 1, $11.50 to $12.50, and No. 2, $9.50 to $10.50 per ton in car lots on track.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

The cheese market was without any important change. The demand for western goods was slow, and business, on the whole, was quiet at steady prices. We quote: Finest Ontario cheese, 9⅝ to 9¾c.; finest Townships cheese, 9½c.; finest Quebec cheese, 9⅜c.

The demand for butter was confined principally to the wants of the local trade, consequently the market was quiet and prices have an easy tendency. We quote: Finest creamery, 19¼ to 19½c.; seconds, 18½c.; dairy butter, 12½ to 13c.

MONTREAL NOTES.

There have been further strong advices regarding the strength in California raisins this week.

Advices on prunes are equally strong, prices being ½c. higher than they were eight days ago.

Large orders for Valencia raisins for shipment by the second direct steamer have been cabled this week at an advance.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Sept. 23, 1897.

THE Exhibition has been the feature of the week. The weather has been good and large numbers of people have been in the city. While the wholesale men have had very many of their customers call on them, they havenot, as a rule, left large orders, travelers keeping them well stocked. There are many advantages to be gained from the intercourse. The Exhibition itself was much enjoyed by all. The presence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Louis Davies, Hon. J. Israel Tarte and the Hon W. S. Fielding on the opening day added much to the interest. The exhibits from Ontario were a feature of the show, and we feel sure they will find good results will follow.

In markets there has been less change noted than for some time past. Cream of tartar has shown quite an advance. Dried fruits occupy considerable attention. New raisins, canned salmon and tea arrived freely this week.

OIL—At this season there is but little change from week to week. Sales of burning oil are large. In non-freezing cod liver oil the druggists are buying at very low prices. The very low price of Norway oil is affecting the sale of Newfoundland, though the latter oil is particularly good, and is quoted lower than the Norway article. We quote: Best American burning oil, 17½ to 18½c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 17c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 15c.

SALT—There is not much demand, but stocks are not large. There is, however, considerable Liverpool coarse salt on the way. Prices ex store are firmly held. This is a large salt market in Liverpool coarse. There is but little change in price from time to time, except as freights may alter. We quote: Coarse, 47 to 50c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 85c. to $1; Canadian fine, 90c. to $1 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.50 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS—All prices are held firm. New salmon are now being received. This is the weak spot in canned goods. As first cost was about 20 per cent. below last year quite a few old are carried over. Some two or three grades of fish are offered, so quality as well as price should be considered when buying. Flat tins are offered more freely than last season. Market is almost bare of tomatoes and full prices are obtained. Lobsters are so scarce as hardly to be a factor. We quote: Corn, 70 to 75c.; peas, 80 to 85c.; tomatoes, 95 to $1; gallon apples, $1.80 to $1.85; corned beef, Canadian, $2.40 to $2.50; American, 2-lb. tins, $2.60 to $2.70; 1-lb tins, $1.40 to $1.60; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.20; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.50 to $2.75; salmon, $1.15 to $1.25; lobsters, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, $1.15 to $1.25; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.60 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $6 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

GREEN FRUIT — The sale has quite changed now. The fruit offered is all Canadian, or almost so, while a few weeks ago it was almost all California. Except grapes, there is but very little California fruit now offered, and they are not large sellers. In oranges there are very few here. California will be the next on the market. Lemons are rather easier in price, with quite a wide range in quality. Canadian fruit has been plentiful, and a good deal has spoiled on dealers' hands, particularly plums and peaches. Prices have been low, it being necessary to push sales. The peaches are but fair, being mostly small. The pears bring fair prices. In Nova Scotia fruit sales are poor. The pears can hardly be sold, and the apples so far received are poor in quality. New Brunswick apples have a good demand, and where quality is good bring full figures. The banana season is about over. We quote: Lemons, $4 to $5; oranges, $4.50 to $5; bananas, $1.50 to $2; Bartlett pears, per bbl., $3 to $4.50; tomatoes, 75c. to $1 per crate; cucumbers, $1 per bbl.; apples, $1.50 to $2.50 per bbl.; N. B. apples, $2 to $2.25; grapes, $1.50 to $2.50 per crate; Ontario plums, 50 to 60c.; do grapes, 25 to 40c.; Nova Scotia pears, $1 to $1.50 half-bbl.; do apples, $1 to $2.

DRIED FRUIT—New raisins are now plentiful. The Valencias to hand, while showing quite a range in quality, are ahead of last year. Stocks are not large, and prices are firmly held. The Denia market is hardly as high. Quite a few orders have been given for Malaga loose muscatels. In California raisins prices asked are still high, but late advices point to lower figures. They are too high for this market, and so far no sales have been made. Currants are firmly held. There begins to be enquiry for new evaporated apples, but prices asked west are considered too high. Stocks of old here are very light, and quotations are firmly held. Dried are ruling higher. Onions now in the market are Canadian; prices are rather lower than the American were held at. We quote as follows: Raisins, Valencias, new, 5¾ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c., prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples 3½ to 4c.; evaporated apples; 6 to 6½c.; onions, $2.50 to $2.75 per bbl.; cocoanuts, $3 to $3.50 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Valencias, layers, 6¾ to 7c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.

SUGAR—There is a steady sale. Prices are firmly held, but show no advance. Stocks are still quite large here, but chiefly granulated. We quote: Granulated, 4¼ to 4⅜c.; yellows, 3⅜ to 3¾c.; Paris lump, 5½ to 5¾c.; powdered, 5¼ to 5½c.

MOLASSES—Porto Rico, which has best demand here, is at least no higher. The late arrivals have somewhat relieved the otherwise short market. Barbadoes molasses is still offered low, though quite firmly held. There is a better enquiry for New Orleans; stocks very light. We quote: Barbadoes, 23 to 24c.; Porto Rico, 27 to 29c.; New Orleans, barrels., 25 to 28c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.; Demerara, 33 to 34c.

DAIRY PRODUCE—Eggs continue to be quite scarce, and sell freely at quotation. Cheese we quote rather higher. Our market has been very slow to respond to the advance. Demand is rather better. Our factories, or at least the larger ones, are well sold up, having sold freely for export. Butter is still a drag. Creamery is rather too high to have much demand. We quote: Dairy butter, 15 to 17c.; creamery, 18 to 22c.; prints, 20 to 22c.; cheese, 10 to 10½c.; eggs, 12 to 13c.

FISH—In pickled herring a few large fish have been received, and prices are held quite high. In Grand Manan the advanced prices are firmly held, but higher prices not looked for. Dried cod is being more freely received and prices are quoted a little lower. Smoked herring is still low. The new bring rather better prices than the old. Dry pollock are firmer. We quote as follows: Large cod, $3 to $3.15; medium, $2.90 to $3; pollock, $1.30 to $1.35; bay herring, $1.50 to $1.60 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 6 to 7c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50 to $5; boneless, 2½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.; Shelborne, half-bbl., $1.90 to $2; Canso, per bbl., $5.50; do. half-bbl., $3.

PROVISIONS—American hams and bacon are still being received. They are well liked. Very few rolls selling. Lard is held firm and shows a good demand. Mess pork is scarce and firm; also plate beef. Very little ex. plate is now sold here. Clear pork holds its own. We quote: Clear pork, $14.50 to $15; mess, $13 to $14; plate beef, $14 to $14.50; hams, 13 to 13½c.; sides, 12 to 13c.; pure lard, 7¼c.; compound, 6½ to 6¾c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—Flour shows no advance; in fact, Ontario is rather easier. Not much change is expected. There is a good demand. Oatmeal and oats are rather firmer. Cornmeal is quoted a little lower this week. There is large sale. Feed shows improved demand even at the higher prices asked. Beans are firmly held. Barley is marked up. Split and blue peas are higher and hard to get. Hay is easy. We quote: Manitoba flour, $6.25 to $6.35; best Ontario, $5.40 to $5.50; medium, $5.25 to $5.35; oatmeal, $3.65 to $3.75; cornmeal, $2.15 to $2.20; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $15.50 to $16; bran, do, $14 to $14.50; hand-picked beans, $1.20 to $1.25; prime, $1 to $1.10; oats, 34 to 36c.; hay, $11.50 to $12.50; barley, $3.10 to $3.20; round peas, $1.25; split peas, $3.25 to $3.30; yellow eye beans, $1.75; timothy seed, Canadian, $2 to $2.25; do. do., American, $1.75 to $2; clover, 8¾ to 9c.; alsike, 8½ to 9c.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

The firm of Morgan & Bent, Amherst, has been dissolved.

J. E. Whittaker & Co. have a new factory at Hampton for the manufacture of stamped tinware.

Geo. H. White has bought out the business of John S. Trites, Sussex, who, owing to ill-health, has had to retire.

The clearing house transactions for the last three months show a balance of $836,893 in favor of the three months' period of 1897 against that of 1896.

During the last week in August over 400 hogsheads of small herring were shipped from Back Bay, Charlotte county, to Eastport. They brought about $3 per hogshead.

Ontario fruit has been very plentiful this week. Beside that received by the wholesale dealers, McPherson Bros., one of our larger retail firms, received a full car.

THE CANADIAN GROCER regrets to report the serious illness of Mr. I. C. Bowman, one of our best known brokers. Ernest Barbour, who is with his father, Geo. L. Barbour, wholesale grocer, is also very sick.

T. Rankine & Sons, biscuit manufacturers here, had their office broken into and upward of $400 in cash and upward of $15,000 bonds, deeds, etc., stolen. This is the most serious robbery which has taken place here in years.

C. & E. Macmichael, the wholesale agents of Knox's gelatine, are feeling the effect of Miss Hattie Noos' visit to our Exhibition, where she showed the superior quality of these goods to all interested, and compelled their acknowledgment of the same by the excellent jellies she served to all.

"Surprise" soap had one of the leading displays at our Exhibition, a leading feature of which was the display of the premiums they give for so many wrappers and so much cash. This soap, on account of its coninued good quality, has for years had the best of the laundry soap trade of the city.

PERSONAL MENTION.

The Assessment Commissioners of London have prepared a table of the population of the city, which shows a net increase of 1,153 in population since the assessors last went their rounds.

The statement has been made in connection with the game report that the season for shooting quail opened on the 15th inst. This statement is erroneous, as the close season for quail does not close until the 15th of October. A prominent sportsman states that at the present time the younger broods of quail are not yet fit to be slaughtered, and that it will be in the interests of true sport if the quail are let alone until the 15th of October, as the law calls for.

While the outlook for the onion crop in the United States some few months ago gave promise of a good yield, the opinion now prevails that this commodity will be much lighter than for several seasons.

The large general store of Peck & Co., Essex Centre, was burned out in July last, and a stock of considerable value was destroyed. In all, about six insurance companies had risks on the property, and they appointed an appraiser, who, with two more, representing Mr. Peck and others interested in the estate, were to fix the award. The amount decided upon by the appraisers was between $10,000 and $11,000, but the company's appraiser appeared unwilling to sanction the payment of this amount, and up to the present time Mr. Peck has not got a cent of his insurance.

CHEESE MEN CONFER.

The directors of the Eastern Butter and Cheese Association, including President D. Derbyshire, of Brockville, and Secretary G. F. Murphy, of Elgin, met at the Rossin House, Toronto, Wednesday. A resolution was passed that all factories making cheese should be asked not to manufacture after the last day of October in each year in order to provide against a deterioration of quality, such as is sometimes found in winter products. It was also resolved to meet in Lindsay on January 11-13 next year.

MONTREAL GROCERY CLERKS.

The Montreal Retail Grocery Clerks' Association held their annual dramatic entertainment Tuesday evening, Sept. 21, in the Monument Nationale Hall. The association were successful in having a full house, and all seemed to enjoy the performance. There was a series of nine tableaux taken from incidents that occurred in the reign of Louis XIV. The music was supplied by Le Cercle Jeanne d' Arc. They gave some selected French airs between acts. The association was formed in 1893, and in 1894 turned into a benefit society.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

This department has become so popular that many more notices than there is space for are received every week. In future only important items of information will be inserted. Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

CANNED goods of every description and brand are now offered by Laporte, Martin & Cie. They state they can quote at close figures.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, have new season's Malaga raisins in stock.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, are delivering "Flag Ship" brand of new season's canned salmon.

"Clover Leaf" salmon, new pack, talls and flats, is in store with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

"Do you want chipped beef in pounds and halves? If so, write us."—Lucas, Steele & Bristol.

Choice dust in 1-lb. packets is being offered by Lucas, Steele & Bristol. They also have Kiji Japan in same style.

Japan teas, bought at the lowest point, are offered at prices below present market values by the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

Barateria shrimps, large and small sizes, are in store with Lucas, Steele & Bristol. Also assortment of Liebeg's extracts.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, have in stock the finest quality canned mackerel, supply of which is exceedingly limited.

W. H. Gillard & Co. have some excellent lines of Japan teas, high and medium grades, well worth the attention of buyers.

The Eby, Blain Co. report a steady demand for Bensdorp's "Royal Dutch" cocoa, for which they are sole agents for Toronto.

Laporte, Martin & Cie. report large sales of raw sugars during last week. They have but little left in stock, which will be quoted low.

W. H. Gillard & Co. have in stock a few boxes of old selected Valencias, in prime condition, which are offered low to the trade.

Rutherford, Marshall & Co. are buying tons of light honey in 60-lb. tins. Holders of honey will do well to correspond with them.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, report they were the first Toronto firm to receive Valencia raisins this season; also Malaga raisins.

Perkins, Ince & Co. are in receipt of another shipment of Young Hysons. A shipment of scented orange Pekoe is also to hand.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol are offering their well-known brands of molasses, "Tiger" and "Bargain," in barrels and halves. They also offer exceptional values in sugar syrups.

W. H. Gillard & Co. advise the trade that they are showing a very superior line of pickling spice, which is bound to give satisfaction.

Warren Bros. & Co. report they have some special values in Young Hyson (low, medium and extra first-grades), and Ceylons and Japans.

D. Gunn, Brothers & Co. say that just lately they have received numerous letters testifying to the excellent qualities of their sugar-cured hams.

Pickle season is here again, and T. A. Lytle & Co. find orders for their white wine vinegar coming in almost more rapidly than they can fill them.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, have large supplies of new season's Young Hysons, which they report having bought when the market was low.

Any tea dealer who has not yet tried Laporte, Martin & Cie.'s "Victoria" or "Princess Louise" Japan teas should do so at once. It will pay them.

D. Gunn, Brothers & Co. report an active demand for butter, and say that they will be pleased to hear from any persons who have any choice lots of dairy tubs to offer.

The demand for butter on both local and shipping account is brisk. Rutherford, Marshall & Co. say that they will buy in either large or small quantities, or receive on consignment.

Warren Bros. & Co. report that the demand for "Butter Fly" Japan tea has exceeded the supply, notwithstanding that their purchases this season were double those of last. The straight leaf of this brand is put up in two and four pound packages, while the siftings are in one pound packages and in bulk. The firm was disappointed in not getting the new bright label for the facing of the bulk packages of the first shipments, but arrangements have been made whereby they will accompany the second shipment.

TOMATOES IN THE STATES.

While there seems to be in some quarters a disposition to bear the market for 3-lb. tomatoes, and some low quotations have been put out, dealers who have predicted higher prices appear to be backing their opinion by purchasing everything of good quality they can find at shadings on spot prices. Quite a few goods, said to be of Baltimore city packing, have been turned down when tendered as deliveries because of poor quality, it is reported. A lot of 5,000 cases Jersey sold on spot late yesterday at $1, and an equal quantity of Marylands at 80 to 82½c. f.o.b.—N.Y. Journal of Commerce.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 23, 1897.

THE present position of wheat in the country is that the farmers are storing and not selling, hoping for better prices. Threshing has been a little disappointing, the yield not being quite as much as expected. The sample continues very fine. Prices in the country are maintained fairly well, notwithstanding a falling market, the price generally being a little higher than outside markets warrant. Trade generally is about where it was last week—good steady demand in all staple lines of supplies. In the grocery trade there have been three changes of importance during the week. Prince of Wales chewing tobacco (the one principally used here) has advanced a cent per pound; this is due, it is claimed, to a better understanding of the new tariff regulations. The second feature is the drop in Eddy's matches from $3.60 for "Telegraph," $3.40 for "Telephone" and $3.25 for "Tiger." In the dried fruit trade there is a marked scarcity of prunes.

BUTTER—Creamery, very little in country; price, 20 to 21c. per lb. Dairy in small demand at 13c.

CHEESE—Prices and market firm; high prices are being paid at factories to secure balance of the season's make; price, 8½ to 9c.

EGGS—This market is also firm and 14 to 14½c. is the price this week.

CURED MEATS—Prices continue firm, and stocks are well cleared up. Smoked hams, assorted sizes, 12½ to 13c.; breakfast bacon, bellies, 12 to 12½c.; ditto, backs, 10½ to 11c.; short spiced rolls, 9½ to 10c.; shoulders, 8½ to 9c.; smoked long clear, 9½ to 10c.

VEGETABLES—Potatoes, 25c. per bushel. Tomatoes are abundant and the prices lower, the amount of local product offering being exceptionally large.

GREEN FRUIT—Market very brisk. Crab apples are certainly going to be very scarce. Wires from Washington Territory stated that large part of crop has been destroyed by storms. Plums and peaches continue to come in freely. First car of Ontario grapes arrived Saturday and are reported in first-class condition. Prices are as follows: Bananas scarce at $2 to $2.50 per bunch; California lemons, $5 to $5.50 per box; tomatoes, $2.50 per bushel basket; Pacific Coast plums, $1.25 to $1.40 per 4-basket crate; California peaches, $1.25 to $1.40 per case; Washington and Oregon pears, $1.75 to $2 per box; apples, $3.75 to $4.25 per barrel; Southern grapes, 50c. per 8-lb. basket; California grapes, $3 per crate for Tokays, and $2 to $2.50 for Muscats.

CIGAR MANUFACTURERS MEET.

THE Dominion Cigar Manufacturers' Association, an organization which was formed in May last, in response to a letter addressed to all Canadian cigar manufacturers, looking to an amalgamation for the mutual protection and welfare of the cigar industry, held its first annual convention in Montreal this week.

In his opening address on Monday the president, Mr. J. Bruce Payne, Granby, said he looked with confidence to the future of the association and the ultimate good which it would as an organized force be able to accomplish. One thing which he conceived they would seek to press upon the Government was the necessity of a change in the standard weights. What was required was the imposition of a tax on the actual weight of the tobacco and not on the moisture, which it might have absorbed while in the store. He refuted the statement that the object of the association was to lay down rules so that each member of the association would do business in a certain way. The objects of the association were concerned with broader matters whereby the interests of the whole trade were involved.

Much dissatisfaction prevails among the trade in regard to the method of levying the duty on raw leaf tobacco, and they decided to demand from the Government that a duty of 10c. a pound on raw leaf tobacco be collected upon standard weight, as now compiled by the Inland Revenue Department.

The question of securing a rebate on cuttings exported out of Canada was also considered, and it was decided to "request and demand that the Government allow the cigar manufacturers, who are working in their factories imported tobaccos solely, a rebate of 10c. a pound, less 10 per cent. on all leaf cuttings containing no stems, when exported from Canada."

By a further resolution it was decided to ask the Government to take more stringent measures to prevent the smuggling of tobacco and cigars now going on.

The association as a body was in favor of a new insolvency law.

An interesting paper dealing with the fraudulent practices carried on in the cigar business in substituting inferior cigars under the seals of good brands, and the methods to be adopted to prevent this, was read by Mr. E. N. Curzon. He advocated a system of stamping the wrapper of the cigar itself as the surest and best way of putting a stop to such deceptions.

MANITOBA APPLES.

As beautiful an apple as was ever plucked from a tree in Ontario or anywhere, was brought into The Free Press office. It was of a delicate rosy tint, large in size and firm in texture. That such an apple could have been grown on a Manitoba farm without special culture or protection is most surprising. The fruit was grown in Munitoba by Mr. J. Uniac, of Rathwell, and the tree is nicely loaded with fruit. The tree is a dwarf of the Duchess of Oldenburg variety, purchased a few years ago from an eastern nursery. The only protection the tree had was what was afforded by a group of Manitoba maples. That the apple should mature its fruit is all the more noteworthy when all small fruits were killed this spring by the late frosts. Apples have now been successfully grown in three parts of the province, Portage la Prairie, Gladstone and Rathwell, and there can be little doubt but that in a few years Manitobans will be growing apples generally. There was some difficulty in growing apples in certain parts of Ontario, when the country was first settled, which has now disappeared. There is no reason why in the case of Manitoba history should not repeat itself.—Free Press, Winnipeg.

A LITTLE OUT OF THE USUAL.

THAT the circulation of THE CANADIAN GROCER is of value to its advertisers must be most pleasantly recognized by one of our oldest patrons, viz., The Tillson Company, Limited, of Tilsonburg, Ontario.

In our issue of August 27th we published a letter from one of the commercial agents of the Canadian Government, C. E. Sontum & Co., Christiania, Norway, in which it was stated that while that country imports a great part of its breadstuffs from the United States there has been a steadily increasing demand for the Canadian rolled oats made by the Tillson Company and sold under the registered trade mark "Pan-Dried Rolled Oats."

Their remarks are the more interesting in view of the fierce competition existing among the various manufacturers of rolled oats, and, further than this, it goes to show that Canadians are not allowing the grass to grow under their feet when it comes to a question of all-round highest quality in this cereal.

Our readers will remember that the Tillson Company have hammered away persistently through the columns of THE GROCER at one fact, which they have always claimed was of vital importance in the preparation of rolled oats, and that is their method of pan-drying every pound of oats that enters their mill. They have always claimed—and we believe they have backed up every statement—that pan-drying brings out the natural flavor of the oat better than any other process possibly can do and also imparts a rich, nutty flavor alone peculiar to their process.

The editor of THE GROCER well remembers another point strongly impressed upon his memory in a visit to this mill some years ago, viz., the extreme care manifested that there should be absolute cleanliness in the manufacture of their cereals.

The Tillson Company is to be congratulated upon this endorsement, coming as it does from a point so remote, and showing from a competitive point of view that they have so far out-distanced in quality all preparations of the kind.

A BUSINESS MAN'S VIEW.

Editor GROCER: Your article entitled "No More Humiliation" is a very timely one and quite to the point. It is to be hoped the Government of this Dominion will act on the lines mentioned by you. There is no doubt that Canada has in the past held out the olive branch too often, and our people have been placed in very humiliating positions by the actions of our neighbors. At the moment there is very little prospect of the United States according freer trade to Canada, and on this account we must keep a stiff upper lip. Now that we have been put on our mettle we are finding markets abroad for our produce, and in many cases better ones than we ever had in the United States. As you say, the affairs of the States are controlled by politicians, and wholly and solely by the party exigencies, and while the business men of the United States recognize our valuable market, they are in such a "small minority" that they carry no weight. So long as such a state of things exists it is not manly for us to approach them, and as a nation we are far too broad-minded for them to appreciate our actions. Yours, etc.,

SACCHARIN A FAILURE.

Saccharin, which soon after its introduction was highly vaunted as a substitute for cane sugar, being represented as possessing from 300 to 600 times the sweetness of the natural sugar, is beginning to disappoint its friends, declares an exchange. The confectioners complain of the disagreeable behavior of the substance when combined with fruit flavors to form soda syrups. It is claimed that saccharin has a nasty trick of decomposing into a sulphur compound, which communicates to the solution the well-known odor of sulphuretted hydrogen, something not far removed from the odor of rotten eggs.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

Department Store Mail Ordering.

Travelers, as a general rule, are more thoroughly acquainted with business questions than are most members of the trade. Going about the country, as they do, they not only scour their regions for orders, but all the possible information in connection with the trade is extracted from their customers. For this reason, while in conversation with a traveler the other day, I questioned him in regard to the headway the mail ordering system of the department stores was making. The question I asked him was: "Do you find that the department stores are hurting your particular business to any great extent?" "No," he said, "and I don't think that many travelers will tell you they do. I don't say but that they once did threaten to cut our throats, but I am thankful to say that that day seems to be drawing to a close. The same means that worked up a mail ordering trade for them is now bringing about the downfall of that method of doing business. That means is personal advertising.' Department stores," he explained, "did not acquire their large trade through their many columns of newspaper advertising, nor through the reputation of their bargain days; it was this personal advertising that developed their trade through the post office. Most people in the country do not read those advertisements because they know that they cannot send in quickly enough to secure the bargains. But some person, perhaps, heard about these bargains and determined to risk an order. Low prices were unknown to him and he regarded them as a great discovery. He immediately let all his neighbors know about them and thus the department store received personal advertising. However, the duping schemes of these stores are being advertised even more quickly, and have now become so well known that they are standing jokes. Thus, then, their competition is gradually fading away, and promises soon to be of no account, especially with the advent of better times. This does not apply to the city trade, where the advertised bargains can be obtained, but it is now believed through the country that it pays to deal at department stores only on the occasion of a visit to the city. This," he said, "savors much of theory, but it has worked out practically. I think that most travelers will tell you the same thing."

A Matter of Brands.

Hard and fast lines in regard to what grades of goods grocers should buy cannot be laid down. The customers of two grocers vary as a class almost invariably. There are high and low grade grocers in each and every town, and these must buy different lines of goods and must trade with different wholesale houses. But even the goods of highest grade grocers must differ in quality. Because two grocers are the best grocers in their own towns is no indication that they should deal in the same class of goods. One town may be a place of manufactures, while the other may be composed mainly of retired farmers. The people may not always be so different, but their tastes are bound to vary somewhat. For this reason each dealer must make a study of the tastes of his customers. He must know whether the best quality of any article will be called for or whether the cheaper grade will sell. He must know whether many brands of the same goods must be kept in stock or whether his customers can be induced to buy any one brand that he may choose. Grocers cannot buy, as a general rule, to suit their own taste. People are particular about what they eat, above all things, and the grocer must sell what they want. Most well-advertised brands must be kept in stock, however. People hear and see so much about these goods that they are determined to have them. This trying to substitute for a well-known article some brand which affords a better profit does not always pay. It annoys the buyer, who not infrequently will ask for many articles, and if you attempt on each to substitute a brand other than that asked for, you disgust your customer with your importunity. On some lines it is a wise policy to keep some brands of whose merits you are confident and which will gradually work their way into favor, but you must not discriminate against popular brands. If this course is followed the question of profit adjusts itself. Every well-advertised article is half sold. The manufacturer by judicious general advertising not only creates demand, but begets confidence in the quality of his goods. All attempts to change the character of demand generally fail. The dealer who sells bulk coffee can hardly expect to abruptly thwart the demands of his customers and induce them to buy the proprietary article, and he who sells bird seed in bulk cannot be expected to acquire a business in the package variety in a short time.

Window Dressing.

It seems to me that a great many grocers when they visit the city during the Exhibition weeks, when the business men of Toronto or Montreal have arranged the best displays that the inventive genius of themselves or employes can produce, think that the only benefit they can derive from these displays is that pleasure obtained by admiring them. It seems that most of them can admire these displays, but they don't seem to know that these city men are in for business when they themselves are taking holidays. Else why are so many of the pretty arrangements visible at exhibitions not copied on the return home of the retailers? True, many of them are too elaborate to permit reproduction, but many of the methods of display can well be introduced into the retail establishment. If merchants only knew that this is a time when beneficial practical instruction in window dressing and internal store arrangement of the highest order can be obtained, I think they would derive more benefit from this, their fall trip. At the same time, these displays would be the more interesting when closely observed for the purpose of reproduction. Most retailers make a visit to the city, at some time other than during Exhibition week, for the purpose of making heavy purchases and picking up bargains, and I have often wondered how it is that these grocers do not adopt similar methods to those of the wholesale establishments in regard to the showing of goods. Take, for instance, sugar. How many grocers have any device for showing the different qualities of sugar? Why can they not have little tin boxes with glass covers made in which the customer can pick out the grade he or she may want. The grocer would save time, for he would not have to run back and forward bringing samples to his customer.

RAMBLER.

A machine for blowing glass jars has been invented, and one is already in successful operation. When in general use it will displace about four-fifths of the employes and will make glass jars cheaper than tin.

BOYS WITH NO CHANCE.

THE famous English artist, Martin, went to the baker's with his last shilling, to buy a loaf of bread. The baker snatched the loaf from his hands and told him the shilling was counterfeit. Martin returned to his home, and finding a dry crust in his trunk, went about his work with that determination which knows no defeat.

A poor colored woman in a log cabin in the South had three boys, but could afford only one pair of trousers for the three. She was so anxious to give them an education that she sent them to school by turns. The teacher, a Northern girl, noticed that each boy came to school only one day out of three, and that all wore the same pantaloons. The poor mother educated her boys as best she could. One became a professor in a Southern college, another a physician, and the third a clergyman. What a lesson for boys who plead "no chance" as an excuse for wasted lives!

"I want a Greek Testament," said John Brown, of Carpow, Scotland, to a bookseller at St. Andrew's. The dealer stared at the shepherd boy, rough and unkempt from a night walk of twenty miles to buy a book, and had begun to make sport of so strange a request from a small country lad, when a college professor entered. "Now," said the professor, after learning what John wanted, "If you will read a verse of that Testament and translate it to me, you shall have the book for nothing." The boy translated several verses with ease, and marched proudly home with his prize. He had mastered both Greek and Latin while tending his flock, and laid the foundation for the ripe scholarship for which he became noted.

Sam Cunard, the whittling Scotch lad of Glasgow, wrought out many odd inventions with brain and jack-knife, but they brought neither honor nor profit until he was consulted by Burns & McIvor, who wished to increase their facilities for carrying foreign mails. The model of a steamship which Sam whittled out for them was carefully copied for the first vessel of the great Cunard Line, and became the standard type for all the magnificent ships since constructed by the firm. When Samuel Cunard was knighted, he did not forget that he owed his honors and his wealth to conscientious whittling.

Lord Eldon might well have pleaded "no chance" when he was a boy, for he was too poor to go to school or even to buy books. But no; he had grit and determination, and was bound to make his way in the world. He rose at four o'clock in the morning and copied law books which he borrowed, "Coke upon Littleton" among others. He was so eager to study that sometimes he would keep it up until his brain refused to work, when he would tie a wet towel about his head, to enable him to keep awake and to study. His first year's practice brought him but nine shillings, yet he was bound not to give up. The Master of Rolls once decided a law point against him; but on his appeal the House of Lords reversed the decision. When Eldon was leaving the chamber, the solicitor tapped him on the shoulder and said: "Young man, your bread and butter's cut for life." The boy with "no chance" became Lord Chancellor of England, and one of the greatest lawyers of his age.

Stephen Girard had "no chance." He left his home in France when ten years old, and came to America as a cabin boy, His great ambition was to get on and to succeed at any cost. There was no work, however hard and disagreeable, that he would not undertake. Midas like, he turned to gold everything he touched, and became one of the wealthiest merchants of Philadelphia. His abnormal love of money cannot be commended, but his thoroughness in all he did, his public spirit at times of national need, and willingness to risk his life to save strangers sick with the deadly yellow fever, are traits of character well worthy of imitation.—Pushing to the Front.

BUSINESS RATS AND MICE.

Mr. B. G. Bevan, grocer, of Cardiff, has been examined in the local court of bankruptcy, and many of his statements were of an edifying character. He had a great deal to say about rats. "A lot of cheese," he mentioned, "was destroyed by rats and mice;" whereupon the official receiver remarked, "Oh, you had the rats! It is getting quite fashionable now to put down losses by rats."—London (Eng.) Grocer.

It is fashionable to take a text when you desire to preach. The above text from The London Grocer, on "Rats," is a good one. The creditors undoubtedly ejaculated "Rats!" when they heard the excuse. It was a case of rats from the start to the finish. The rats, however, were not the familiar rodents that infest old and dilapidated buildings, but all the same they were two-legged rats and two-legged mice. The vicious long-tailed, long-toothed rat, with the predatory instinct, and the nibbling, timid mouse with the instinct and desire to spoil, but which hurries and scurries away at the slightest alarm. There is the rat of intemperance with a large concurrent following of vicious rodents. The rat of slothfulness and shiftlessness. The ignorant mercantile rat who cuts prices to increase his trade at the expense of his creditors. The egotistic rat who knows it all and will take no advice. The gambling rat—in fact, the rats that predate in business are as numerous as those which followed the "Pied Piper of Hamelin" into the river.

Then, the mice—the nibbling mice. Careless clerks. Down weight. Loose extension of credit. Poorly-kept stock. Waste in paper. No cash register. Poorly-kept accounts, and so on ad infinitum.

There are didatic articles enough, however, in the trade press, and some bored reader will be sure to ejaculate "Oh, rats!" —St. Louis Grocer.

HE WILL NOW RISE EARLY.

Philip D. Armour is in his office by 6.30 every morning. He leaves his car and walks down Adams Street to the Home Insurance building just as the sun's first kiss of the day lights upon the tall buildings. His gait is steady and elastic, and he looks as if he had enjoyed a hearty meal.

As he was passing the Lansing Hotel one day, a porter who was washing the sidewalk stepped politely out of his way and begged pardon for the water that lay in puddles through which he must walk. He did not know whom he was addressing.

The gentleman reached in his pocket in a hasty sort of way, and among a lot of loose silver drew forth two half dollars, which he handed to the porter and passed on. As he did so I asked the servant if he knew the donor's name. He did not. When I told him he was the richest man in Chicago he seemed astounded.

"An' you say he passes 'long dis'er way every day 'bout dis time? Well, sah, you sho' gwine fin' me washin' dis her' sidewalk reg'lar after dis mitey early in de mawnings."—Chicago Times-Herald.

COCOANUT OIL SOAPS.

The best kind of frames for cocoanut oil soaps are wooden ones, holding about 4 cwt., since in iron frames the soap cannot combine and heat so regularly that the entire block is fit for use, the lower portion cooling by radiation to such an extent as to impair the quality, a defect unnoticable when wooden frames are used.

Another cause of imperfection is the use of strong lye (40° B.), whereby less regular saponification is effected, and rancidity frequently results. It is therefore advisable not to have the lye stronger than 35° B.

When fat is used in conjunction with this oil, the best proportion is from 33 to 50 per cent., the soap thereby acquiring a more permanent lather and increased economy in use, so that it is able to rival the majority of those prepared by milling. By the judicious use of sugar, potash and salt, these soaps can be increased by 100 per cent., without their appearance differing from that of unfilled soap.—Seifenfabrikant.

HOW PATES DE FOIE GRAS ARE PRODUCED.

THE famous French delicacy pate de foie gras is a dish made from the enlarged livers of over-fed geese, and is much relished by epicures. But everybody does not know how and with what cruelty the enlargement of these livers is procured. The "pates" come, for the most part, from Strasbourg, and, as a result, in all the country round about Strasbourg geese are raised by tens of thousands. Every farmer has many geese, and some have many hundreds. The normal liver contains a little less than 4 per cent. of fat. The liver, artificially prepared by steadily diseasing it, contains over 50 per cent. of fat. To bring this condition of affairs about the peasants, late in the autumn of every year, get together all the geese that they can spare for the liver market. If they have plenty of room and a dark cellar, they put these geese in little cages in the dark cellar. If not, they put out their eyes and nail their feet to the floors of the living rooms of their cottages. The geese are usually nailed in a long row in front of the open fire, so near that they suffer intensely from the heat. For six long months these geese stand or squat in the same place before the fire. Three times a day their mouths are forced open, and large balls of corn meal are stuffed and rammed down their throats until each goose is full clear up to the bill. The livers thus enlarged sell for 6 or 8 francs each, and the carcasses for 5 or 6 francs more.—Food and Sanitation.

WHAT GLUCOSE IS.

Glucose is a white, mobile, sweet syrup, weighing 11.70 pounds per gallon. It has a pleasant, sweet taste, and is considered a valuable demulcent, also a fat-producing food, containing more nutriment per pound than butter. All medical extracts of malt which are prescribed for producing fat rapidly are glucose.

This then, is the basis of the business. In 1867 the first glucose factory was constructed in the United States with a capacity of 50 bushels per day. The present capacity is over 100,000 bushels per day. Again, while formerly but 22 pounds of glucose could be secured from one bushel of corn, there is now produced about 40 pounds.

The present use of glucose, grape sugar and its by-products are manifold, and their commercial importance is outranked by few industries in this country.—Mercantile Journal, Pittsburg.

EXPORTS OF CEYLON TEA.

The following table, furnished by Gow, Wilson & Stanton, giving the distribution of the exports of tea from Ceylon for six months ending 30th June, 1897, 1896, 1895, is interesting, as it shows that, almost without exception, each country that had previously been using Ceylon tea in appreciable quantity during that period in 1895 and 1896, required an increased supply in the first six months of 1897.

BUTTER PLACATING LARD.

INFORMATION comes to us that some of the large western packers have made arrangements with creameries to ship butter to Europe on a very extensive scale. This is taking the bull by the horns in good fashion. Butter is certainly a very desirable article and a very clean one, so desirable that many attempts have been made to imitate it and replace it, but the farmers would not allow imitations, although in many instances they were superior to the original article. Butter is certainly the strongest competitor of lard, consequently if packers go into the butter business, it will in the first place make the farmers happy, but this we do not suppose is the ulterior motive of the packers, who make this move, in our opinion, purely as a matter of business. Butter brings more money in Europe than it does in the United States, and the purchase of butter in large quantities and the contracting for the entire output of large creameries may have the practical result of advancing the price of butter close to European figures, and, consequently, lard may have a chance to advance in sympathy.

Lard is certainly neglected. It would have shown more strength this week had it not been for the yellow fever scare, which made buyers cautious, while packers were afraid that a spread of yellow fever would lessen the southern demand, which is expected to begin next month and to continue during the fall. We believe that it is too late in the season for yellow fever or any other disease to spread in any dangerous degree, consequently the south will buy lard, and will buy more of it as the cooler season sets in. We still believe that lard is low, and will sell at higher figures. The Chicago packers have been buying in this week on all reactions. Europe will buy again as soon as it is higher and stronger. It is a peculiarity with the German buyer that he never gives an order to purchase in a weak market, but as soon as the market is strong, he is in line and buys. Rising markets always bring out buying orders. It is well to consider the fact again that in spite of very heavy slaughtering, the stocks of lard continue to decrease in an encouraging way, and that whatever there is of stocks is largely old lard, hardly fit for export and not desirable. Europe holds about 30,000 tierces less than it did a year ago, and the only increase that can be seen is in the stock that is afloat, which, in view of the decrease in European stocks, shows, what we have plainly predicted for some time, that the European demand and consumption are constantly on the increase. After all, the consumptive demand will regulate prices, and with the increasing prosperity the consumption will continue to increase, and to all appearances sales will exceed supplies by far. Corn is looking up, and dearer corn means higher prices for cattle and for hogs. We still believe in a very steady and healthy advance of all cattle and hog products. The markets in tallow and lard have so far justified our prediction, and we would advise buying on all reactions.—National Provisioner.

ANALYSIS OF GINGER.

The Inland Revenue Department have just sent out from Ottawa a report of the results of the analysis of 98 samples of ginger. These samples were collected in the months of August and September, 1896, and the results of the analysis were reported to the Commissioner in November last. Since then a large amount of microscopic work has been done on these samples by the assistant analyst, Mr. McGill, and twelve photographs have been taken direct from the objects as shown by the microscope, and are therefore more trustworthy than the usual drawings given in the text books. These results of analysis and photographs, together with some memoranda on the subject, make up Bulletin No. 48. There were 26 cases of adulteration reported, 22 being flagrant instances. Wheat flour, turmeric, husks, maize and cayenne were the adulterants chiefly used.

JAPAN RICE CROP.

Mail advices from Kobe, Japan, dated Aug. 18, say: "As reported from the interior, favorable weather has continued throughout the districts where rice is grown for export. Up to date the young rice plants are doing well, and farmers are hopeful that the weather will continue fine during the first ten days of September; this is the critical time for the crop, the rice plant then being in flower. Prospects for the new crop are very good and the yield will in all probability be greatly in excess of last season's. There has been up to the present only a very slight decline in prices, and only small parcels have been shipped to Australia."

A REORGANIZED FIRM.

Notice has been given under the Ontario Companies' Act incorporating Alexander MacWillie, Arthur Clifton Neff, James Wood, George Henry Kilmer, of Toronto, and James Douglas Moore, St. Mary's, Ont., under the name of the MacWillie Co., of Toronto, Limited, to carry on business as grocers and produce dealers. The business heretofore carried on by MacWillie Brothers, Yonge street, Toronto, has been acquired. The total capital stock amounts to $40,000, divided into 800 shares of $50 each.

MINT... PUFF-STRAPS

RECOGNIZING the great popularity of peppermint with the sweets-loving public, we are the first to introduce to the trade Pliable Licorice containing this flavor.

The delicious quality of our Pliable Licorice is well known; it is matchless in this respect as well as in its flavor and finish.

Our Triple Tunnel Tubes and Navy Plugs are great favorites also, and are made of the same material, although flavored differently. . . . . .

We recommend all these goods as suitable for Summer Trade; they will please the most exacting taste as wholesome, smooth and palatable confections. . . . . .

A COCOANUT WINDOW—THE LIFE OF A DISPLAY.

THERE is great uncertainty in the mind of the average merchant as to the rules which ought to govern the making of a regular series of window displays, says J. B. Richardson in Grocery World. Many retailers consider that if they make one display a month, allowing each display to remain in the window until the next is made, that they are using their window to the best possible advantage, and they will agree with everything you say about the value of window-display advertising. Yet these merchants are very little better than those who make no effort to make use of their windows at all. Exactly the same rules which govern newspaper advertising govern window-display advertising. Like a newspaper advertisement, a window display should never be allowed to grow stale, for if it does its good effect is not only lost, but the window space is being wasted.

The length of time during which a window display should be allowed to remain in the window varies with the different circumstances. I should strongly advise, if it is at all possible, to make one new display every week, and I should strain a point if necessary to do this, as the good results of window-display advertising are much more likely to be secured from this method. Some large city grocers change their window displays twice every week, and have a special man to do it. It would be impossible to convince them that they were devoting too much time to the dressing of their window, because they well recognize the selling force which exists in a good window display. If a display is made every week none of the exhibits made have a chance to get stale. If they are good at all they should be able to attract attention for five or six days.

The idea which I have devised for this week's display is a very simple one, and can be worked out by any grocer. Even the largest stores will find a display made on this plan to be a very striking one, and one calculated to sell large quantities of the goods advertised. I have called this display a "cocoanut window," and it is to be devoted to pushing some brand of shredded package cocoanut, which every grocer has now come to keep. For this the window should be draped in dark crimson or garnet cheese cloth or other similar material. On each side of the window should be arranged a pyramidal pile of selected cocoanuts, these piles being arranged so as to present a good appearance and both being about the same height. They need not be very large, and, in fact, should be small enough to allow a space between them. This latter space is to be occupied by a pile of shredded cocoanut in bulk. You can very easily induce the shredded cocoanut manufacturer or manufacturers who supplies you with package goods, which goods you intend to exhibit in this display, to furnish you with a small quantity of bulk goods at a nominal price. Manifestly, it will be to the advantage of the manufacturer or manufacturers to assist in making a display of his or their own goods attractive.

This will give you three piles across the front of the window, all about the same height, and all in line, the two piles of rough nuts on the ends and the pile of shredded goods in the centre. After this is done build across the back of these piles a heap of the package shredded cocoanut in its regular boxes. The shape of this pile is not particular, but it should be arranged so as to show plainly above the three piles in front of it. The idea is to show in three exhibits the evolution of the cocoanut—first in the shell, then in the shredded form, but unpacked, and finally in the regular package shape, as it is sold. Attached to the pile of the package goods should be a neat card giving the price.

On the back of the window, high enough to clear the display, should be a sign printed in black on a white card. On this sign may be printed the following :—

> Shredded cocoanut offers freedom from the bother of preparing the rough nut, while it retains all the strength and flavor of the fresh nut. Yields elegant and dainty desserts, cakes and confections.

THE RICE MARKET.

Wm. G. Hale & Co., writing from Saigon, August 21st, say of rice : "Supplies of grain during the period under review have not averaged more than 7,000 piculs daily, of somewhat inferior mixed quality. Prices, although high enough, would have still advanced further were it not for the present lack of demand ; even the actual low rates of freight do not induce shipments to China; for the Straits business continues upon a moderate scale, while Java requirements seem to be pretty well filled ; as for Europe, there has been next to nothing done although there have been occasional inquiries. The weather has been fairly seasonable and field work is being carried on under favorable circumstances ; the prospect, so far, is encouraging ; but it is, of course, much too early to foretell what the new crop may be. At the close the tone of our market is decidedly firmer, with a rising tendency."

THE HUSTLING GROCER.

This grocer, says Merchants' Review, personally canvasses for trade—in other words, goes "gunning" for "biz"—and frequently makes life-long customers in this way. He often carries samples of goods he is pretty certain no rival can touch him on, and asks the ladies at whose doors he calls to please give them a trial. While other dealers in his neighborhood are idling away the quiet hours of the day, killing flies and "cussing" departmental stores, this young man is laying the foundations of a very prosperous business.

CREDIT.

"Kings may come and kings may go,
But Credit rules for ever."

CREDIT means confidence—trust. Our language acquired the word from the Latin word "credo," I believe.

Confidence worthily bestowed is like mercy. "It blesses him that gives and him that receives." It has built up our vast industries and snatched the world from the slough of chaos and placed it in the mountain of order. Remove it, and the world slides backward a thousand years and our mills would no longer send their busy humming through the peaceful valleys. Man would again assume his barbaric state and regard every neighbor his enemy. It is necessary to our progress and adds each year to our commercial importance, but, like many essential things, it is easily abused; too freely given, it acts like a boomerang on the man who has been courageous enough to entrust himself to its subtle blandishments, hoping to win favor, fame or fortune.

Bounds must be laid; limitations drawn. Knowledge must perforce go hand in hand with credit and see that she avoids snares and pitfalls.

Knowledge brings power, strength of mind, judgment; and credit gathers up the skein where knowledge leaves it and weaves it into a fabric of success.

All men who are interested in granting credit find that knowledge is elusive and hard to secure. He who is able to lay at the credit man's door this knowledge is truly a benefactor.

Knowledge as applied to granting of credit must be absolute and not indefinite. Heresay opinion is valueless. Facts must be established.

How can this be done? Experience is a fact It is truth, therefore cannot mislead. What one credit man has experienced in granting credit to a customer will indicate to any other man what his experience is likely to be. The experience of ten such men must therefore be regarded as an almost infallible guide to the future action of any man called upon to spend his goods and his labor to benefit one who has come to him for this priceless boon—credit. It would seem, therefore, that co-operation is necessary in order to reach this end. Each man must grant to all his fellows the benefit of his wisdom acquired through experience. This can be done through organization. It has been done to a large extent, and those who have been wise enough to take advantage of the chance to become identified with the movement will find no fault with the essential features of this article.

They have learned by experience that "knowledge brings power"—and they have woven their fabrics of success.—W. S. Lassell, in Lawyer and Creditman.

WHAT "GOOD WILL" MEANS.

We frequently hear the term "good will" used in describing a benefit or advantage existing as a part of or in connection with a business, says an exchange. It is defined in several cases as the advantage or benefit which is acquired by an establishment beyond the mere value of the capital, stock, funds, or property employed therein, in consequence of the general public patronage and encouragement which it receives from constant or habitual customers on account of its local position, or common celebrity, or reputation for skill or affluence, or punctuality, from other accidental circumstances or necessities, or even from ancient partialities or prejudices. This is a definition given by Story and followed in several cases. Boiled down, this definition would seem to mean simply that the good will of a business consists in the probability that customers will continue to come to the old place of business. At best it is a sale of a mere chance, which vests in the purchaser nothing but the possibility that a preference which has usually been extended may continue.

QUALIFICATION FOR HEAD CLERKSHIP.

How long a clerk must be in the business to be competent as head clerk depends entirely upon his mental calibre and his chances for learning. Some will learn more in a year than others do in five years. If he spends all his time in one place where he delivers orders, he will not make much progress; but if he changes places, or if he has a good boss who knows how to teach him, he can learn a great deal in a year, and if he is bright and old enough when he starts in he may be more competent to run a store within two years than some others are in ten years. The clerk who begins his career at 15 naturally has to work four or five years before he can be a good head clerk, because he must be old enough for it; but the intelligent man, who starts in at 20, can become competent very rapidly, and he shows very little spirit if he should want to go through the usual routine of working for $5, $6 or $7 a month for the first year; for $7, $8 or $9 the second, and, finally, after four or five years, become head clerk at a salary of $18 or $20 per month, as so many do in this city.

The writer knows of a clerk who conducted a large store as head clerk after an experience of only five months, although it was after serving an apprenticeship in Germany.—Retail Grocers' Advocate.

TOBACCO GROWING IN ESSEX.

Lewis Wigle says the tobacco crop of South Essex this year will probably be worth about three-quarters of a million dollars. There is more tobacco grown this year in Essex than ever before, and if the weather holds favorable for a couple of weeks longer the crop will be harvested. The price will probably run from 6 to 10 cents a pound. Mr. Wigle has five acres of tobacco of his own, which he says will run about a thousand or twelve hundred pounds to the acre.

A WORD WITH THE HELPERS.

RECENTLY the senior member of a very prominent and successful firm remarked: "It is imperative that we have helpers. Whenever we find men that are reliable, worthy of confidence and helpful to the business, they are encouraged and pushed forward, for we cannot afford to part with men upon whom we can depend. Helpers that you can lean upon add to the pleasures of mercantile life and relieve the strain, and, therefore, it is only natural that the head of a house should tie up to helpers that are a comfort."

Boys! Are you of that sort? Or do you serve in a half-hearted way, having no other object in view than to secure your salary? Do you object to pushing the business, and have you enlisted in the ranks of those who have to be pushed?

In Gen. Forsyth's story of Sheridan's famous ride, told in the July Harper's, he says that Sheridan as he pushed to the front motioned the retreating soldiers to turn and follow. They did, and under his superb leadership won a great victory. They helped their leader; obeyed without comment or criticism; they pushed to the front. Is not that the business of every helper, from office boy to partner? Should not such service be a pleasure as well as duty?

Each person in a store or factory is part of a great machine, and unless each part does its full share of the work there will be trouble.

The salary should be the least thing in the helper's thought; the business his supreme thought. He must put his heart into his work, if he is to win position and a competency.

Just as soon as a leader finds that any helper is an aid, and is furthering his interests, just then he will take measures to make their interests identical. The worthy man—the profitable helper—does not have to beg or demand proper recognition. Almost every member of the leading wholesale grocery firms worked their way up from the ranks. Some began as office boys, being of the tireless sort, whose minds are fixed on their work, and not on outside matters. They sought to render more than an equivalent for their wage, having faith in their leader and themselves. They kept pushing to the front.

It is a mistaken notion that there is not still "room at the top;" that the helper has no chance in a big house. The opportunities of to-day are more numerous than they have ever been. The trouble is to find men able to grasp the opportunity. Success is in the boy or man and not in somebody else.

When Gen. Forsyth led the troops in the charge at Winchester, he told the color-bearer to let him carry the flag, because he was mounted and the troops could see it better and be influenced to push along to the front. The color-sergeant obeyed, but he put his hand on the saddle and pushed to the front alongside the flag. Let every helper do the same thing. If your leader is a success, if his place has been won, trust him to push along without criticism. Don't stop to find fault. Don't talk about the hardships of your work with your fellow helpers. Don't growl about your salary. Don't be impatient, "for the race is not always to the swift, nor the battle to the strong."

Remember that work—steady, incessant work—is the secret of success in life. There is not a leader at the bar, in politics, at the head of any of the professions, that does not work, work, work; not eight hours, but oftener sixteen hours every day. Leaders always hold fast to the workers.—American Grocer.

TELL WHAT YOU ARE DOING.

The man who makes and the man who sells the best things has not done his duty when he stops with making and selling, says Michigan Tradesman. He must tell the people what he is doing. It is a duty he owes himself. It is a duty he owes the people. The makers and sellers of good things are not doing their full duty to society. They cannot expect people to come and hunt them out. They cannot expect people to think and become educated along lines when it is their duty to do this for them. The most of the people do things because others tell them to do it—not in response to command, but as a result of appeals to them in such a manner as plays to best advantage upon the foundations of activity, the emotions, the passions and ambitions.

A SMALL POINTER.

Practically all grocery stores handle different grades of goods, otherwise they could cater for but a small patronage, yet the way some salesmen, wholesale and retail, push goods one might judge that their employers sold only one grade and that one a mighty poor grade, says Merchants' Review. These clerks and traveling men conceive the notion that cheapness will suit their purposes better than superiority of quality, and therefore they continually bring to the front the low-grade, low-priced goods, and the ultimate consequences are not conductive to the elevation of the reputation of their employers.

Sometimes these misguided persons will meet some customer in seach of a first-class article with a remark like the following: "Yes, we have the brand, but here's something I can let you have at a bargain—only —— cents" (or dollars as the case may be). This, begging the reader's pardon, is what may be termed damphool "substitution" for absolutely nothing is to be gained by it. Yet, apparently under the impression that they are doing the customer a favor, they try to foist something cheap and probably nasty upon some one who doesn't want it.

It will pay grocers, wholesale and retail, to keep an eye on salesmen for the purpose of learning whether they are "bearing" or "bulling" the standard of quality, as it were.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S FISH TRADE.

THE St. John's, Nfld., correspondent of The Montreal Gazette writes as follows: "The low price of fish ($2.80 for the best merchantable) continues, and it is not expected there will be any improvement this year. It is, however, confidently anticipated by the best judges here that next spring will bring an advance. By that time the glut in the fish-consuming countries will have disappeared, and the approach of Lent will create a demand. At present we are suffering in common with all fish-exporting countries. The French and Norwegians feel the pinch as well as ourselves, and are obliged to part with their fish at unremunerative prices. One cause of the depression is the poverty of the people in the European fish-consuming countries—Spain, Portugal, Italy and Greece—caused by war and taxation. They are no longer in a condition to purchase fish—their favorite food—so freely as formerly; but this will pass away as better times are restored.

"Our people appear to be at last convinced that it will not pay to send badly-cured fish to compete with an article properly cured in European markets, and we shall see a marked improvement in future. Meantime, however, our fishermen are disheartened by these low prices. Numbers of them will feel the pinch of poverty this winter, the rise in flour being unfortunately coincident with the drop in fish. Many of them are keeping back the delivery of their fish to the exporters, hoping for a rise ere long; but I fear, without any good grounds. In consequence, a difficulty in filling orders is experienced, as cargoes cannot be made up. Exporters say they are unable to offer better prices unless by incurring heavy losses. There is no doubt we have hard times before us this winter; but I would warn outsiders to allow a large discount in reading telegrams and newspaper articles, at this season, about the condition of the country and the people. Many of them are wildly exaggerated for purely sensational purposes. Then a general election is at hand; and, of course, those who are 'out' and want 'in' picture the country as in the last extremity—the patient rapidly sinking, and that the proper doctor must be at once summoned or death will ensue. I suppose this game is played in all countries, but here it is followed in peculiarly wild fashion. Till the elections are over it is not desirable to accept the statements in the papers, on either side, except with the addition not merely of 'grains' but bushels of salt. The same hold good in regard to the telegraphic despatches to the press.

"We shall have hard times, but there is nothing at all alarming in the state of the country or its general business. The fall importations, I am told, will be about the same as formerly—no doubt, however, with a slight curtailment. Business is brisk at present. One of the best signs of the times is the fact that 40 new houses are just now in course of erection within the city limits. This indicates confidence in the future. Some of these houses are costly mansions. Money cannot be scarce, one would suppose, or employment either. We are a wonderful people for publishing our woes and shouting 'blue ruin' which never comes. In reality the financial condition of the colony is thoroughly sound, and but for the fall in the price of fish the commercial outlook would have been excellent. As it is we shall come out all right. The short catch of this year will tend to raise price next spring."

CUBAN SUGAR.

The only estates that will grind sugar this season in Cuba will be a few of those that are around Cienfuegos. According to a merchant well identified with the Cuban trade, in about ten days a comparatively accurate report from the island will be received as to the number of sugar plantations that intend to grind. "At present," this merchant says, "judging from the few plantations that have been repaired, the Cuban sugar crop will be very small. Another disadvantage is that there is no cane, the fields having been sadly neglected."—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

NOT ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY, BUT—

A TRADE paper is not absolutely necessary to the guidance of a hardwareman, any more than a compass is absolutely necessary to a mariner who desires to cross the Atlantic.

The office of the trade paper is to register the temperature of the markets and record all news of interest or of value to the particular line of business in whose interests it is published. To these things it is called and these things it sets itself to perform.

The daily paper cannot—or at any rate it does not—cover this ground. Its forte is general news and politics.

The trade paper, on the other hand, is a specialist. It studies one particular thing. And that is the commercial world.

It is obvious then that if the trade journal devoted to a particular branch of business is conducted with any degree of efficiency merchants engaged in this particular line cannot afford to be without it.

They can rely on hearsay for information regarding the markets, methods of doing business, etc., but it is possible that the information may come through a prejudiced channel. And one thing is certain, they can only in this way get an infinitesimal part of the whole.

If gossip or letter had been efficient news disseminators the newspapers of to-day might not have had a being. An invention is usually the outcome of a need.

Hardware and Metal has been induced to make these remarks by an incident drawn to its attention recently. There is in Toronto a large retail hardware firm which has repeatedly refused to become a subscriber to Hardware and Metal. It relied for its information as to markets, etc., upon one of the heads of a certain wholesale house, who telephoned weekly. That was all the firm wanted. A trade paper it had no need of.

More than two months ago an advance of from 15 to 20 per cent. took place in a certain staple article of hardware. This firm's market mentor forgot to notify it of the change, and it, therefore, continued to sell the article at the old figures. It discovered the loss it had thus incurred when it had to buy. And then there was weeping and gnashing of teeth.

"Why did you not telephone us of the change?" indignantly remarked one of the partners to the aforesaid market mentor.

"My dear sir, I cannot begin to remember everything; I told you I would do the best I could," was the rejoinder. "But, say," he added, "do you not take Hardware and Metal?"

"No."

"You don't? Well, then, you ought to be ashamed of yourself. Hardware and Metal had an article in about the change several weeks ago. Why, my dear fellow, you should not be without that paper. It records all the changes, and is right up to date."

"Is that so? Say, If you see a representative of Hardware and Metal you had better send him down."

Thus was a firm made to feel its need of a trade paper after having lost on one article alone, through ignorance of the condition of the market, enough money to pay for several years' subscription. And what it hitherto lost on other lines no one will ever know.

Although Hardware and Metal is so generally subscribed to by the retail trade of the Dominion, yet there is a firm here and there who, like the one cited, does not take it. We have one such now in mind which supplied a certain article to a wholesale house that wanted it to complete an order.

"There," remarked a member of the wholesale house to a representative of Hardware and Metal, "we have bought that thing a great deal cheaper than we could have from the manufacturer. It evidently does not know that the price advanced several weeks ago."

This change, too, it might be mentioned, was recorded in Hardware and Metal.

A mariner can navigate by the pole star; but it is better for him to have a compass. A merchant can get along without his trade paper, but it is better for him to have it.—Hardware and Metal.

CALIFORNIA CURED FRUITS.

Regarding the situation in evaporated fruits on the Coast The California Fruit Grower says in its issue of the 18th inst.: "As was to be expected, the cured fruit market shows signs of weakness owing to a lull in the wholesale demand. Trade set in early, and was unusually active for the season of the year. Dealers generally through the east and west have satisfied their immediate wants, and from now on until cold weather sets in the demand will be light, as buyers are not inclined to speculate at present prices. The supply in the east and on the way will not cut much of a figure when people commence to use cured fruits in earnest. The crop of California cured fruits, apricots excepted, will not prove more than 50 per cent. of an average crop. Of cured pears there will not be one car this season where there were twenty last season. Peaches will be a short crop. The plum crop will make a good showing, and of apricots the output will be large compared with last year; prices are being shaded a fraction in the absence of an active demand. Peaches are weaker in a wholesale way. A good jobbing demand exists for choice fruit in nearly all lines. Brokers are well supplied with samples and are pushing sales."

MARITIME BOARD OF TRADE.

THE third annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade was held last Tuesday and Wednesday at Charlottetown, P.E.I., with a good attendance The delegates present were: From Halifax—James Hall, Geo. Mitchell, G. E. Faulkner, Jas. Morrow, and H. L. Chipman. From St. John—C. B. Lockhart, W. M. Jarvis. From Truro—Dr. H. D. Muir, G. A. Hall, R. J. Turner, Wm. Craig and J. E. Bigelow. From New Glasgow — D. McDearmid and Harvey Graham. From Kentville—M. G. DeWolf and R. W. Eaton.

A communication was read during the first session from S. Schofield, with suggestions regarding discussion of fire insurance forms, to the effect that standard policy forms be adopted and accompanied by a copy of the resolution of the St. John Board of Trade that their use be ratified by Act of Parliament.

The Standing Committee election resulted in the choice of the following: Jarvis, Morrow, Muir, DeWolf, Graham and Hazzard.

At the Wednesday evening session, after an interesting discussion pro and con regarding commercial travelers' tax, G. E. Faulkner moved the following resolution, seconded by Mr. Turner and carried:

Whereas, the policy of free and unhampered commerce between various provinces of the Dominion of Canada is one of the fundamental principles upon which the union of the provinces was consummated; and whereas, the Legislature of P.E.I. has enacted a law placing a tax on commercial travelers and a proposal to enact a similar law has been before the Legislature of one of the other provinces;

Resolved, that the Board of Trade of the Maritime Provinces place itself on record as against legislation of this character and commends to the commercial public of P.E.I. the desirability for having the Act repealed.

A resolution regarding discrimination in coal rates to manufacturers as against Truro and other towns similarly situated and praying the Minister of Railways that it be removed, carried on the motion of G. A. Hall, as a resolution also carried to memorialize the Dominion Government to place another winter boat on the route to maintain the winter communication.

Mr. Jarvis moved the following resolution which carried:

Resolved, that this board desires to impress on the various local boards the importance of doing all in their power to encourage tourist travel in their respective localities.

Also, resolved, that this board submit to the Government the importance of providing a bylaw that each can or package be marked with nett weight of article contained therein and suitable penalties be imposed for infractions in putting up such goods.

Also, resolved, that this board urge the Dominion Government to take over the telegraph service connecting P.E.I. as a Government work or bring about a re-adjustment of the rates.

A REMEDY FOR CUTTING.

AN evil common with purveyors of food and of growing importance is the advertising of proprietary and other goods at less than the lowest wholesale price, and often below the cost of manufacture. Generally the goods selected are such as are extensively advertised, and hence well known; or some leading staple, such as sugar, flour or butter.

It is claimed by those who do this sort of thing that it is justifiable, as being a very cheap and profitable method of advertising. There is an axiom in law that a person has a right to use his property as he sees fit, provided he does not use it to injure others. There is also a quasi misrepresention or false pretence involved, inasmuch as cunningly worded advertisements suggest that these cutters sell all goods equally low, when, in fact, they are simply baits to draw in the unwary. The principle involved is one of injury to the rights of others. For instance, there are 10,000 grocers in New York and Brooklyn, and double that number within thirty miles of City Hall—hard-working, honest, industrious dealers, equitably entitled to a fair profit for the service they render their respective neighborhoods. The law protects their property from injury by reason of a nuisance; their good name against slander; provides means for the collection of debts; guards their health against unseen dangers. Why, then, cannot the law be invoked to prevent the reckless cutting of prices, whereby a few work a great loss to many dealers and demoralize an entire trade?

Is it not feasible to frame a statute making it illegal for any dealer in patented articles, or such as are protected by trade mark, from selling such goods below a minimum price to be fixed by the manufacturer or owner of a trade mark?

Men often endeavor to put an end to their life, claiming they have a right to do with their person whatsoever they elect; but the law says that any attempt at suicide is a crime, and does so because the good of society demands that human life should be sacred, and must be protected under all circumstances. And why cannot a law be made which will apply to the cutters that ignore the rights of the many for the benefit of a few individuals? In this vicinity there are, perhaps, 40,000 merchants in the various lines of business (and at least 200,000 persons dependent upon them for support), whose business is seriously injured by the irregular, if not dishonest, practice of a few, who claim they have a right to sell their merchandise at any price they choose; give it away if they elect. It seems feasible to devise some legal protection against such an abuse of power as we have outlined. This is a live topic for discussion in the retail grocers' associations. —American Grocer.

HE SELLS CHICORY.

MR. E. RIEMENSCHNEIDER, representing Heinrich Franck, Sohne & Co., the famous manufacturers of chicory, Germany, is in Toronto in the interests of his firm, and is being introduced to the trade by Mr. W. H. Seyler.

The firm of Heinrich Frank, Sohne & Co., which is best known as the manufacturers of the "Genuine Franck" brand, have sixteen factories in different parts of Europe. Twelve of them are situated in the following places: Bretten, Eppingen, in Baden; Ludwigsburg, Grossgartach, Marbach, in Wurtemberg; Basel, in Switzerland; Komatau, in Bohemia; Agram, in Croatia; Mailand, in Italy; Koehan, in Hungary; Bucharest, in Roumania; Linz, in Austria. The output of these factories is 140,000,000 pounds per annum, and the number of employes is 2,800. The firm has been in business 75 years, and has earned 36 medals.

The firm has decided to make a special effort to push its goods in Canada, and Mr. Riemenschneider is here with that object in view. Mr. Riemenschneider is an interesting conversationalist and an enthusiastic believer in the goods which he sells. "No cheap coffee is drunk in Germany," he explained during a conversation. "The people, however, drink large quantities of pure chicory, which they call coffee. And a merchant will carry in his stock 99 per cent. of chicory to 1 per cent. of coffee."

Mr. Riemenschneider explained that the laws in Germany in regard to manufactured commodities are very strict, before a manufacturer starting into business it being necessary for him to submit to the Government a statement as to the ingredients of the commodity he proposes to make.

"Then," he added, "the law demands that when an article is delivered it must be equal to the sample by which it was sold. If it is not you cannot make an allowance on it; you must make a new transaction if the buyer is to take the article."

"Now," said Mr. Seyler, as he pulled out his patent gun-metal watch which never requires to be wound, "we must go, Mr. Riemenschneider." And Mr. Riemenschneider went to look up more business.

THE COAST RAILWAY.

THE Halifax Board of Trade has strongly resolved in favor of the early construction of a line of railway between Halifax and Yarmouth, touching at the most populous sections along the coast. The specific and business-like resolution was passed last Tuesday evening.

It expresses the opinion that a line of railway along the southwestern coast would be of great benefit to the province generally and to the city of Halifax in particular. It approves of the road taking the shore route, thus serving a thickly-populated section of country which has the additional advantage of having diversified attractions for tourists. It recommends the providing of the usual subsidies by both local and federal Governments, and it expressly stipulates that the road should start at a point not further from the city than Bedford.

The Coast Railway Co. have a charter to build a road along the south-western shore from Yarmouth to Halifax. Thirty-one miles of that road are now completed, and the contract has been awarded for the construction of another twenty miles, which will bring the road to Barrington. They hope to have that work completed by the end of the year. They propose, if they receive the necessary encouragement, to push the work on to Halifax through the principal shore settlements. The operating of the thirty odd miles at the other end of the line is doing a big thing for the business men of Yarmouth, and to begin at Halifax would mean advantages for this city.

EXCITEMENT IN APPLES.

ALL indications point to comparatively high prices being realized for fine varieties of winter apples this season. But while this is so, and while even the most confirmed bears admit the fact, there is grave danger that excited speculators will carry prices so high in the country that there will be little profit on a lot of the fruit, even admitting the undeniable bull conditions prevailing.

Advices received this week from producing sections in Ontario to exporters in Montreal stated that buyers were tumbling over one another to get the fruit, and that prices ranging all the way from $1.50 to as high as $3 per barrel had been paid for the fruit unpicked on the trees.

These are pretty high prices, and some of the more conservative operators are of the opinion that there is altogether too much steam on.

The bull element are banking on the admittedly great shortage in this year's crop.

Last year Canada produced in the vicinity of 3,000,000 barrels of winter apples. This season the crop is only estimated at 300,000 barrels.

Another thing that had a good deal to do with the high prices paid lately was the fact that certain shippers had to have some fruit, no matter what the price was. When they tried to buy, they ascertained that besides the short crop, some fortunate operators had bought the output of several of the leading orchards at a lump sum for each.

As matters stand, these purchases promise to be remarkably profitable ones, and the other orchards, knowing that they were bought up, and the crop away below the average, demanded fancy prices, and have been encouraged in so doing by the scramble that has set in to buy their stocks.

With regard to the position in Great Britain, the account sales that have been received on the shipments of early apples are the reverse of encouraging. Returns of the lots ex ss. Numidian state that the fruit landed in very poor condition, being soft and slack, and was sold simply for what it could fetch, averaging about 50c. per barrel.

Cables on Monday regarding the shipments ex ss. Lake Superior were equally unsatisfactory. What was sold only realized 6s. 6d., and, as shippers had to get at least 8s. to make the bare cost, it will be seen that the loss was considerable. Fully one-third of the cargo of 2,100 barrels was slack. Anything tight was withdrawn and will be offered later in the week, but the trade in Montreal do not believe that anything will be gained by this course, rather the reverse, as the fruit is not of a keeping kind.

First receipts of winter apples are expected in Montreal this week, but advices regarding their quality are disappointing. The agent of one leading house wrote on Monday that he was making up a car, but that out of 23 barrels he only got three that graded really first-class quality. Lots of Greenings, that two weeks ago promised to be excellent, are going bad and cannot be classed as finest. In fact, altogether the expectation is for disappointing quality in the first receipts of winter stock at Montreal.

TERMS ON DRIED FRUITS.

New terms have been decided upon by the wholesale trade in Canada for governing the sale of all such foreign dried and evaporated fruits as currants, raisins, figs, dates, peaches, apricots, etc.

The terms heretofore have been 90 days or 3 per cent. 10 days. Now the basis has been fixed at 30 days or 1 per cent. 10 days.

As the trade is well aware, the wholesalers have to pay cash without discount for foreign fruits, and in many instances bills of lading are attached to drafts which have to be paid before the goods are delivered.

It is these conditions which the wholesalers aver have induced them to make the said change in the terms.

INDIAN AND CEYLON TEA TRADE.

RECENT mail advices from London show a steady development of the export tea trade, particularly of Indian and Ceylon growths.

Taking the period from Jan. 1 to Aug. 31 we find the exports to be as follows: Indian, 3,281,688 pounds; Ceylon, 6,837,476; China, 13,858,591; other countries, 681,027 pounds.

This, compared with the same period of 1896, is an increase of 57 per cent. in the exports of Indian tea, 31 per cent. in Ceylon tea and 14 per cent. in China teas.

The exports to the various countries were: Indian tea—Countries in Europe, 1,490,719 pounds, against 853,639 in 1896; United States, 444,587, against 236,484; British North America, 792,012, against 481,798; other countries, 554,370, against 491,796. Ceylon—Countries in Europe, 3,692,683, against 2,826,899 pounds in 1896; United States, 1,337,406 pounds, against 950,229; British North America, 1,095,543, against 825,553; other countries, 711,844, against 603,854 pounds. China—Countries in Europe, 8,066,031 pounds, against 6,818,043 in 1896; United States, 2,059,838 pounds, against 565,400; British North America, 1,329,541 pounds, against 1,529,695; other countries, 2,403,181 pounds, against 3,185,036.

In every instance the exports of both Indian and Ceylon teas show an increase, while the increase in the exports of China tea is confined to countries in Europe and to the United States. The enormous increase in exports of China teas to the United States is no doubt in part due to the demand created by the possibility of an import duty being put on by the Dingley bill and to the new tea inspection law. To this cause may likewise, in part at least, be attributed the increase in the export of all teas to the United States.

None of the figures above given include transhipments of tea at London for the various parts of the world.

In addition to the increase in the exports the home consumption in the United Kingdom for the period named shows a material expansion in both Indian and Ceylon teas and a decrease in China tea.

Business, unless it is watched, will take wings.

GOVERNMENT APATHY.

THERE are certain things which any Government is warranted in keeping secret. There are others which it is not.

As everyone knows, the minimum tariff of Canada is now, since the decision of the law officers of the Crown, enjoyed by about a score of nations having favored treaties with Great Britain.

On July 31st next the treaties with Germany and Belgium will expire. What the Canadian Government will do then is a question. Will it continue the preferential tariff in favor of Great Britain or will it not?

Since the treaties with Belgium and Germany were denounced two months have elapsed, but not one word has yet come from the Government as to its policy. It is time that a pronunciamento of some kind was made.

The preferential tariff was launched in the belief that the treaties with Germany and Belguim did not prevent Canada from giving the products of the Motherland a preference in the home market. That belief the ruling of the law officers of the Crown dissipated, and the dissipation of that belief created a condition which demanded a new statement of its policy in this particular matter.

That the need of the Government expressing its intention is not supposititious is evident from the action of the London Chamber of Commerce. That body has gone to the trouble of issuing a circular "designed," the cable tells us, "to remove the uncertainties of English shippers as to the Canadian tariff," while it is further remarked that "uncertainty as to the Canadian Government's intention after August next also tends to retard trade."

This is no political matter, directly at any rate. It is first and foremost a purely business matter, and as such should be dealt with in a business-like way. This it can hardly be said the Government has done. It has delayed; and delay is not business.

The Government should "speak now." It is no local interest that demands it. No, nor even the country's interest solely. It is demanded in the interest of inter-imperial trade as represented by Canada on the one hand and Great Britain on the other.

Apathy toward the business interests of the country in a great measure caused the downfall of the late Government. And the present Administration is by no means free from the same complaint. Energy is a sure antidote, and the Government will be wise if it takes copiously of it.

A business is built up by a chain of circumstances. See there are no weak links in the chain.

MOLASSES STILL ADVANCING.

THE possibility of extremely high prices being realized on Barbadoes and other molasses this fall has been predicted before. At present there are distinct signs that these predictions are on the eve of fulfilment. In fact, it will surprise no one if, inside of a month at the latest, Barbadoes, now selling around 25c., will be worth 29 to 31c. This week 26c. was refused for round lots in Montreal, while one holder of a cargo lot in store who was bid 25c. for it, remarked that he was in no hurry to sell at present.

The present conditions may be attributed to the late unprecedentedly low prices. These have, in the estimation of careful observers, increased the country demand in the country districts of the province of Quebec threefold.

This demand and the heavy purchases by the Montreal refiners, offset, to a great extent, the exceptionally heavy importations this season.

Some firms, misled by these heavy imports, put off supplying their wants earlier in the season, as they anticipated lower prices. It stands to reason that they are badly disappointed at the turn the market has taken. They are now in the market trying to fill their wants, and it is the knowledge of this fact that has had a lot to do recently with strengthening holders' views.

DISCREPANCIES IN RATES.

There is a lot of dissatisfaction among cheese exporters at Montreal regarding the discrepancies in ocean freight rates from Montreal. The rate to Bristol, for instance, is 30s., whereas space to Liverpool and London is obtainable at 20s.

There certainly, to the lay mind, seems to be no reason why a shipment to the former port should pay 10s. more than to the two latter.

Another complaint is that Montreal is being discriminated against as a shipping point by the railway companies. For instance, they carry cheese to Boston from any point in Ontario for 2c. more than they will land it in Montreal. As ocean rates from the New England port have been only half what they were from Montreal, quite a large quantity of Canadian cheese has been drawn to Boston for shipment. Exporters have got rates of 12s. 6d. from Boston, whereas the same shipments would have cost 25s. to 30s. from Montreal.

SULTANA RAISINS.

Advices a short time ago reported an easier feeling in Sultana raisins, but since then there has been a reaction, and prices are now about two shillings per cwt. above the lowest point.

It is worthy of note that the first deliveries this year were made on August 31, the earliest on record. The quantities then delivered were, however, unimportant; but since then no other goods arrived in Canada until Saturday last, ex the Scotsman.

The prices asked for these goods are high, and something like 50 per cent. above the of figures last year. It is likely there will be no cheap Sultana raisins in Canada this year, it being the opinion that prices will rule from 10 to 15c. per pound, according to quality.

SPICES VERY STRONG.

There has been quite a boom in the London spice market, and buyers who returned from New York this week state that the fact has caused keen excitement in that city, where whole spices have gone up within the past fortnight or so 15 to 20 per cent.

A scarcity of cassia is one of the notable features, the spice being almost impossible to obtain. In London, cloves, pepper, and nutmegs have advanced 1d., and buyers in Canada who tried to close cable contracts for white Penang pepper found it difficult to do so.

Latest asking prices on these were 6¼ to 6½d., cost and freight Montreal. This strength has not affected the spot prices for ground spices yet, but it has led to more demand.

A MAN FROM REGINA.

MR. E. McCARTHY, one of Regina's general merchants, has been spending some days in Toronto. Mr. McCarthy went from near Guelph to the capital of the Northwest Territories about fifteen years ago, and it is seven years since he paid a visit to the east. He is a man who reads a great deal of commercial literature and keeps well abreast of the times. Like all Northwest people, his faith in the future of that part of the Dominion is strong.

"Trade, he said in answer to a question, "will be better than it ever was. Prices for produce are good, and the farmers will be able to pay off their back indebtedness. Then the people in that country have had a lesson within the last few years which they have profited by: They do not buy implements so indiscriminately, while they have overcome many of their difficulties in regard to farming."

"Credits, too, are improving, are they not?"

"Yes, eight or nine years ago business was done on unlimited credit, but it is now nearly cash. What has helped us a great deal is the fact that the Government has undertaken to run the creameries. They buy the cream from the farmers and pay them cash for it every month. It has given quite a boom to the country. Now in regard to butter. Naturally, if there is a large amount of butter upon the market there is a glut of this article, which ultimately becomes of inferior quality. Now, however, the farmers in our part of the country are sending their milk to the creameries; and instead of getting 8 to 10c. per lb. they are getting 20 to 24c., and are paid in cash. They are thus able to pay cash for the goods required for the summer season. Then if the crops should happen to fail they are out of debt at any rate. In our part of the country is to be found the finest grazing ground in the world, and a good many people have made money raising cattle."

One drawback to the country, Mr. McCarthy contended, was the distance the farmers were apart. "There is only," he said, "about one farm, on an average, in about every five square miles. Out of thirty-six square miles there are only about fourteen square miles that can possibly be considered as open for homesteads, all the rest being reserved for the C.P.R., the Hudson Bay Co., schools, etc. As a result of this great distance between the farms the farmers cannot exchange work as they do in Ontario, which necessarily increases the cost of farming."

Mr. McCarthy, during the conversation he had with THE CANADIAN GROCER, rerred to the departmental store evil, and said that even in Regina the merchants frequently had to regulate their prices by the catalogues of some of the Toronto departmental stores. He strongly urged that the departmental, and in fact all, stores, should be assessed on their turn over and not on their stocks. "Then," he added, "these department stores would be more careful in regard to cutting prices."

CURRANTS STILL HIGHER.

THE tendency of the currant market is still upward, cables which have been received during the past week quoting a further advance of from 1s. to 1s. 6d. per cwt. in Patras.

Prices are over 80 per cent. higher than a year ago. And thus has been upset the theory which obtained among some a month or so ago that the value of currants would depreciate shortly. Those who believed it and withheld their purchases are now doubtless wishing they had not.

The first arrival of new season's currants via Liverpool reached Montreal on Saturday, and merchants in Toronto and the west received their consignments on Wednesday. The quantity, however, is not sufficient, in the face of the strong demand and the entire absence of old fruit, to make the market at all easy, particularly as the next deliveries ex Avlona, cannot be made till about the middle of October.

The quantity of currants on board the Avlona, according to figures furnished by J. L. Watt & Scott, of Toronto and Montreal, is 740 tons, comprising 1,090 barrels, 1,120 half-barrels, 3,410 cases, 6,260 half-cases and 59 quarter-cases.

The quantity on board is only about of an average character, and will arrive on a bare market. As importers cannot duplicate their purchases except at an advance of from ¼ to ½c. per lb., it is unlikely that easy prices will rule, and it looks as though the trade will be compelled to pay 6 to 6½c. per lb. throughout the season for currants of suitable grades.

A SHORTCOMING OF EXPORTERS.

ONE of Canada's greatest needs is an enlarged export trade. That the need is recognized is evident from the efforts which are being made by manufacturers and others. In some lines the development has been most satisfactory; in others it has not.

It is worthy of note that the lines with which we have met with so much success are chiefly those the quality of which excels that of our competitors. Cheese may be cited as an example of this.

It is also worthy of note that in a great many articles in which the attempts to build up an export trade have not proved successful, the cause of partial or total failure has not been quality.

It has been want of advertising.

We have before us the last quarterly report of the Department of Trade and Commerce, and therein contained are the reports of the various commercial agents of the Dominion. Three of these reports are from Mr. J. S. Larke, the Canadian agent in Australasia. And it is the perusal of his reports that has induced the remarks we have made.

In his reports he enumerates certain articles of Canadian manufacture which have not so far taken hold upon the Australasian market, and in every instance he ascribes want of advertising as one of the chief causes of the failure. One or two firms, we are told, induced agents to do a little advertising by allowing them a little extra commission, but, as is usually the case, this did not prove satisfactory.

The English, the German, and the United States manufacturers who are doing business in Australasia recognize the value of advertising and employ it. Some of these manufacturers, Mr. Larke tells us, advertise magnificently.

If Canadian manufacturers are to find a market in Australasia or any other country, they must advertise them. If they are not prepared to do this it is evident failure and not success will be the rule.

The Dominion has spent a great deal of money in subsidizing steamers, maintaining agents, etc., to build up a trade with Australasia, and it is to be regretted that our manufacturers who essay to do business at the Antipodes do not employ as they should one of the most powerful of trade-building factors.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Sept. 30, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE first direct shipment of Mediterranean fruit reached the warehouses of the wholesale trade this week, and the trade may now be said to be well into the foreign fruit season. Both currants and Valencia raisins have advanced in price during the week in the primary market. Dates are dearer than a year ago, and Sultana raisins are firm. A few cases of figs are to hand and more are due next week. Canned vegetables are not receiving much attention, but prices rule firm. Canned salmon is in much the same condition as a week ago. The demand continues good for sugar, and while the outside markets have been a little easier, figures are firm and unchanged in Canada. Syrups are still scarce. In spices, the feature is an increased firmness in pepper. Teas are quiet and firm.

CANNED GOODS.

There has been no material change in canned goods during the week. Tomatoes are the most talked about just now, and prices, if anything, are being more firmly held than a week ago. The idea with packers appears to be 80c., but we hear of a sale of 2,000 cases at 75c. Peas and corn are being both steadily held. There is, if anything, a little better feeling in canned salmon on account of prices having been withdrawn by a couple of firms that were making low offers. Canned fruits are offering by the packers, but values at present appear to be largely nominal. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80 to 85c.; corn, 60 to 75c.; peas, 75 to 80c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.10 to $1.25; beans, 65 to 95c;. peaches, $2.50 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.50 to $1.80, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $1.75 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 85 to 95c.; gallons, $1.85 to $2; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.50; ditto, new season's, to arrive, $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; other red salmon, $1.15 upwards, according to quality and brand; cohoes, 95c. to $1; canned mackerel, $1.25 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.85 to $2.95; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.35 to $1.40; 2's, $2.35 to $2.50; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

Nothing particularly new has developed in regard to coffees, and business is much about the same as a week ago. Jobbers quote green in bags: Rio, 9½ to 13c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 19 to 22½c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 18 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

Syrups are still scarce and firm. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

Business is quiet and featureless. We quote: New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGARS.

Being at the end of the month, the demand for sugar on the part of wholesalers has fallen off a little, but refiners' agents report that a good business is still being done. In London on Saturday beet sugar declined 1½ to 2¼d. per cwt., and on Monday this was followed by a further drop of 3-16d. These declines appear to have had no effect upon New York, the market there being relatively lower than the London market. Fine granulated was advanced 1-16c. per pound in New York on Monday. We quote as follows for Toronto: Granulated—St. Lawrence and Redpath's, 4 9-16c. for single barrel lots and 4½c. for 5-barrel lots; Acadia, 4½c. for single barrel lots, and 4 7-16c. for 5-barrel lots; yellows, 3¾ to 4⅛c. per lb.; Canadian German granulated, in 100-lb. sacks, 4¼c. in single barrels, and 4 5-16c. in 5-bbl. lots. Demerara crystals, 3⅞c.

SPICES.

White pepper is fully 1d. per lb. dearer than it was a month ago, and black pepper is strong. It is understood the local market is fairly well supplied with pepper. Ginger keeps firm. We quote as follows: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 11 to 12c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 20c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

NUTS.

Brokers report that business is practically finished as far as the placing of orders is concerned. Almonds, walnuts and filberts will cost less than last year's importations. Shelled almonds, on the other hand, are costing fully 4c. per pound more than last year. We quote as follows: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 20 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

The rice market is steady, with business locally moderate. We quote: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½ to 4½c.

TEAS.

Some business is reported in teas of China and Japan growths, but in general wholesalers are not buying extensively. Mail advices received in Toronto on Tuesday quote China low grade green teas equal to from 1 to 2c. per lb. dearer and the finest green teas 3 to 4c. per lb. dearer. In Japan teas each mail shows poorer values. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRANTS—The first direct shipment of new season's fruit reached the Toronto market on Wednesday. It came by the Scotsman, which arrived in Montreal on Saturday last. A small shipment of Hancock & Wood's pack reached this market on Monday via New York. The market is firmer than it was a week ago, cables announcing an advance of 1s. to 1s. 6d. per cwt. in the primary market. We quote new fruit as follows: Provincials, 5½ to 5¾c., in barrels; 5⅝ to 5⅞c., in half barrels. Filiatras, 5¾ to 6c., in barrels; 5⅞ to 6⅛c., in half-barrels and cases. Patras, 6¼ to 6½c., in barrels. Vostizzas, 7 to 8c., in cases.

VALENCIA RAISINS — The shipment of new season's fruit ex Scotsman arrived in Toronto on Wednesday. Although there was a slightly easier feeling on the market after the Scotsman left Denia, this has given place to firmness, prices since then having appreciated about 1s. 6d. per cwt We quote: New goods—Fine off-stalk, 5¾ to 6c.; selected, 6¼ to 6¾c. Old goods—Off-stalk, 4c.; fine off-stalk, 4½c.; layers, 5c.

MALAGA RAISINS—The small lot of Malaga raisins brought in the other day from New York have been cleaned out at $1.65 for London layers; $2.25 for Connoisseur Clusters, and $3.50 for Extra Dessert.

FIGS — Owing to the cool and moist weather the quality of early arrivals of Eleme figs has turned out to be disappointing. The first shipment of new season's figs reached the Toronto market on Wednesday. It only consisted of about 26 cases.

SULTANA RAISINS— The market is firm, and it is expected that this season prices will PRUNES—Limited sales have been made of Bosnia prunes for shipment via Hamburg, the goods to arrive here during November. Sales via Hamburg will cost importers about 6¾c. per lb.

DATES—Crop is late and the first shipments are not expected to arrive in Canada before December. Some transactions have taken place at about 1c. per lb. above last year's figures.

GREEN FRUITS.

The trade in lemons has been only moderate this week, although it is somewhat larger than it was last week. Several large shipments of Sorrentos, Rhodis and Maioris were received here this week. The lemons are of exceptionally fine quality, and are bringing high prices. The cold weather of the past week has had a bad effect on the bananas in stock, and many a dealer has come to the conclusion just lately that the banana is about the tenderest fruit on the market. Watermelons have not been coming forward lately, and cucumbers, too, are about out of the market. It is claimed that the frost has killed all the small pickling cucumbers. The supply of tomatoes is entirely dependent on the weather. Late varieties of peaches continue to arrive in large quantities. Apples also are commandtng more attention. Plums are not nearly so plentiful now. Grapes appear to be an exceedingly large crop. We quote as follows: Lemons, fancy, $2.50 to $3.50 per box; extra fancy, $4.50 to $5; Rhodi, $5.50 to $6.50. Cocoanuts, $4.50 a sack and 60c. per doz. Bananas, $1 to $1.50. New cabbage, $1 to $1.25 per 100; cucumbers, 15 to 20c. per 12-quart basket; Canadian tomatoes, 15 to 25c. per basket. Crawford peaches, 40 to 75c. per basket; Canadian apples, $2 to $2.50 per barrel and 25 to 30c. per basket; Canadian plums, 20 to 40c.; Spanish onions, 85c. to $1 per case, according to quantity taken; Egyptian onions, 2 to 2½c. per lb.; pickling onions, 75c. per basket; yellow Danvers, 80 to 85c. per bag of 80 lbs.; common pears, 15 to 25c. per basket; Bartlett pears, 35 to 45c. per basket. Celery, 25 to 30c. a dozen; blue grapes, small baskets, 20 to 25c.; large baskets, 30 to 35c.; Niagras, ditto.; Rogers' pink, 35 to 45c. per large basket.

orders that they have booked. As a consequence of this scarcity prices have advanced, and 14 to 15c. is now obtainable for choice lots. Inferior grades are not accumulating, although the scarcity of this class is not so keenly felt as that of the better grades. Any supplies that the dealers have are picked up for local purposes. Prices are firm at 9 to 11c. There is no noticeable change in the price of creamery butter. Prices are firm, however. We quote: Early make, tubs, 17 to 18c.; late make, tubs, 18 to 19c.; prints, 19 to 20c.

CHEESE—The market is easier this week. Factories are coming to the time when they cannot hold out much longer and many makers think now they would have been wise to sell at 9½c. when offered instead of holding off for 10c. Some transactions at 9¼c. and 9⅜c. were reported this week, but only a few boxes changed hands as the buyers and sellers continue apart in their views. Stocks here are rather light, as those in touch with the market think that prices will fall, claiming that the market has been altogether too high. There does not seem to be much cessation in the export trade, however.

SALT.

Trade is good. Fall orders are this year exceedingly heavy. Quoted at Toronto, carload lots go at $1 per bbl. and 65c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl. and 70c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B. barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c. for points west of Toronto, and 45c. for Toronto and points east of Toronto.

FISH.

Trade has noticeably slackened this week. People are eating less fish and more meat now that cooler weather has come. Stocks, however, keep pretty well cleared up as the supply has also been less. We quote: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5½c. per lb.; whitefish, 7c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg.

PROVISIONS.

Trade is in about the same condition as it was a week ago. Breakfast bacon and backs cannot be obtained fast enough to fill orders, while long clear is also about exhausted. Packers have not yet begun to pack, as hogs are too high priced to warrant speculation. Lard remains steady at foreign quotations, but it is predicted that after the fall killing this product cannot long hold these figures.

DRY SALTED MEATS—Long clear bacon, 8¾c. for carload lots, and 9 to 9¼c. per lb. for ton lots and cases; backs, 9½c.

LARD—Pure Canadian, tierces, 6¼c.; tubs, 6½c.; pails, 6¾c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $14.50 to $15; Canadian short-cut, $17; clear shoulder mess, $13.50.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—The market in wheat has been rather steady during the past week, and, if anything, is a little easier. Oats also are a little firmer. Peas and barley are almost unchanged. We quote: Winter wheat, 85c.; new winter, 80c., at outside points, freights to Toronto are about 3 to 5c.; barley, 29 to 34c.; peas, 50 to 51c.; oats, 25 to 26c., Toronto freights, and No. 1 hard wheat is quoted at $1.05, Toronto freights.

FLOUR—Again the market has eased considerably. The unsettled feeling causes dealers in flour, both here and in the other provinces, to refrain from buying heavily. Purchases for immediate consumption are alone being made. At present, stocks in dealers' hands are extremely light. Trade has been rather slack this week. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $5.30; Manitoba strong bakers', $5.; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $4.75; straight roller, $4.35 to $4.50, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—Quotations remain unchanged. The volume of trade is fairly large. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.50 in bags and $3.60 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.75 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.50; split peas, $3.25; pot barley, $3.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Continue to advance in price, and yet supplies are not sufficient to meet the demand. Exporters, too, are buying heavily, Montreal houses paying 14c. through the country. New laid eggs are worth 15c., and the second grade brings 11 to 13c.

POTATOES—Deliverers of potatoes claim that the pototo rot has not materialized to the extent that it was feared it would. It seems that good care after digging will counteract any tendency to rotting. Carload lots are worth 50c., while on the market they are worth 65c. a bag.

HONEY—Quite large quantities are coming forward. Dealers' quotations here are: Light 60-lb. tins, 6 to 6½c.; 5 and 10-lb. tins, 6½ to 7c.; comb, $1.50 to $1.75 per dozen, and are selling clover honey at 7c. and buckwheat at 5c.

BEANS—Some transactions in hand-picked beans on the basis of 90 to 92c. were reported this week, while prime beans are quoted at 85c. a bushel.

DRIED APPLES—Some sales of good, sound fruit have been made at 4 to 4½c. per lb. f.o.b. point of shipment.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—Market is firm owing to the scarcity of hides, and it is only this fact that can keep the price up, as tanners find the present quotations too high to handle many.

Cowhides: Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

Calfskins — Trade continues fair. Not much stock is coming forward. We quote; No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Dekins, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

Sheepskins — We quote: Lambskins and pelts, 65 to 75c.

Wool — Trade in wool is quiet, and it will not recover from the severe strain that has been imposed on it this year till next season. The factories in Canada are causing an increased demand, and as this demand comes on a bare market, prices are firm and high. Dealers are paying 20 to 20½c. for pulled wools.

SEEDS.

The week has developed nothing new in the seed line. Some few lots of last year's alsike changed hands at high figures, while sales of this year's crop are also reported. Values of alsike range from $3 to $4.50 per bushel. Red clover is now quoted on the basis of $3.25 to $3.50 per bushel. This is determined by foreign values. Timothy, as was stated last week, will be exported this year, and consequently prices will be lower to compete in foreign markets. Formerly timothy was imported, and thus the difference in the price this year and that of former years will be twice the freight rates. At present, offered goods range from 90c. to $1.25 per bushel for machine-threshed, and flail-threshed is somewhat higher.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

The demand for all grades of petroleum is increasing, and fall orders are arriving freely. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Canadian, 14c.; carbon, safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

White pepper is 1d. dearer than a month ago.

Dates will be about 1c. per lb. dearer than last year.

A cable to P. L. Mason & Co. quotes currants 1s. 6d. dearer.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. report the arrival of tapnets Comadra figs.

Butter and eggs continue on the advance. The advance in eggs is particularly marked.

The Scotsman, with the first direct shipment of Mediterranean fruit, arrived in Montreal on Saturday.

Buyers and sellers of cheese are gradually coming to agreements and the holders are having to give way.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. have new fine Filiatra currants in half-bbls., cases and half-cases now in store.

The first currants to arrive on the Toronto market were packed by Hancock & Wood and came by New York.

Almonds, walnuts and filberts are cheaper than last year, but shelled almonds are costing fully 4c. per lb. more.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Sept. 30, 1897.

GROCERIES.

The grocery market generally rules much the same as it was a week ago, the ruling conditions in all the leading staples being unchanged. Sugar is active and firm, and jobbers are asking more money. There is a brisk enquiry for syrups, while molasses promises to be a much scarcer article this fall than many expected this summer. Rice is firm with an advancing tendency abroad, and there is considerable excitement noted outside in unground spices with advances of all the way from 15 to 20 per cent. Dried fruits remain strong, especially California and Valencia raisins, and there is no change in canned goods, the strength in all staple vegetables being unabated.

SUGAR.

The sugar market continues fairly active and steady. Values both here and outside are firm in their tendency, and the majority of the trade agree that there is a larger quantity of sugar moving at present than at the same time last fall. Even at the late advance Canadian prices on refined are 1c. lower than they are at New York, so that it is not surprising that holders are confident of full prices. In raw sugar the market continues strong at New York, while beet sugar in London was rather easier, September selling at 8s. 9d. on Monday, fair refining, 8s. 7½d., and cane also was easier, though not quotably lower. On spot jobbers are firmer in their demands, at 4¼c. for granulated up to 10 bbl. lots and 4⅛c. for larger quantities. Yellows range from 3½ to 3⅞c., as to quality.

SYRUPS.

The enquiry for syrup is fully maintained. Some difficulty is experienced in filling orders, as the immediately available stock in refiners' hands here is light. Prices are firmly held at the advance, sales being made on a basis ranging all the way from 2⅛ to 2⅜c., as to grade, at the factory here. In a jobbing way ⅛c. advance is asked.

MOLASSES.

The molasses market continues very strong as buyers both here and in the country are anxious to lay in supplies. In car lots Barbadoes has sold at 25c. and of course for ordinary jobbing lots a substantial advance is demanded, 26c. being an extreme inside price, in fact, it was refused the other day for a fair-sized lot of goods. Porto Rico is also in light supply, and goods grading between choice and fancy are held at 26c. net cash in straight lots.

RICE.

There has been a good demand for rice, and as advices from abroad continue strong values have a very firm tendency. We quote: Crystal Japan, $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $5 to $5.50; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

The spice market is active and strong in its tendency on almost every line. Values on ground goods are not appreciably changed except a somewhat firmer feeling in pepper, but if the advance in whole goods continue, outside local spice men say that they will have to mark up their prices. We quote: Black pepper, 10 to 12c.; pure white, 13 to 17c., as to grade; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; do., best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

The coffee market is quiet, and aside from a few transactions in Santos and Rios in round lots there is nothing to report. There is no change in values. We quote: Maracaibo, 15 to 19c.; Santos, 12 to 16c.; Rio, 12 to 16c.; Mocha, 24 to 28c., and Java, 25 to 26c.

TEAS.

Advices from all tea producing points continue very strong. The strength in Japans is unmistakable, and now cables from Colombo, Ceylon, report the market there decidedly stronger with an upward tendency. In spite of all this, the local demand is of an indifferent kind. Buyers and sellers are apart and business is dull as a result, but it looks as if the former will be forced to advance their bids ere long, as they must want some tea. We quote as follows: Young Hysons, 14 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15½ to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; In-

was put on the market. The tedious soaking necessary and the low quality of a great deal of the tapioca sold kept it in the background as a food article.

The introduction of "Minute Tapioca" changed all this, and people everywhere who would not touch the old tapioca are our most enthusiastic customers. "Minute Tapioca" requires no soaking, is absolutely pure and very delicious.

CANNED GOODS.

There has been a fair trade in canned goods during the week. The firmness in staple vegetables, such as tomatoes, corn and peas, continues unabated, while new pack salmon are being taken to a considerable extent. We quote: Tomatoes, 80 to 90c.; corn, 60 to 75c.; peas, 75c. to $1.25; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 95c.; gallons, $1.65 to $1.75; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.25 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.25 to $1.45; "Lion," $1.25 to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.20, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

The currant market has exhibited little change during the week. Recent advices on the steamer Bellona now loading quote cost and freight Montreal: Provincials, 17s. 3d.; Filiatra, 17s. 9d., and fine Vostizza, 22s., with 6d. extra added on these to interior western points. To arrive by the first steamer, Patras have been quoted at 6c. in cases on spot; Provincials, 5c. in barrels, 5⅜c. in cases and 5½c. in half cases, with Filiatras ⅛c. more.

The same conditions as noted last week rule in Valencia raisins, which are firmly held, and it is the general belief that they will hold good during the entire autumn. Recent cables quote cost and freight, Montreal: Off-stalk, 15s.; fine do., 16s. 6d.; selected, 18s. 6d., and layers, 20s. To arrive by the first steamer the trade here are offering off-stalk, 4¾c., fine off-stalk, 5¼ to 5½c.; selected, 6¼ to 6½c., and layers, 6¾ to 7c.

In California raisins the situation remains about the same. Here new 3-crown fruit are offered to arrive at 7¾c., and 4-crown, 8¾c.

The strength in California prunes is maintained and the same can be said of French and Bosnia fruit.

There is nothing special to report in regard California evaporated goods.

NUTS.

There is nothing new in this market except that Jordon almonds are offered in 25-

DRIED APPLES.

There is no change in these, prices being firmly held at 3 to 4c. for dried and 6c. for evaporated.

APPLES.

Receipts of fall apples are light, and prices unchanged at $2 to $3 per bbl. As noted specially elsewhere returns on the exports to Liverpool of these early fruit have been very disappointing.

GREEN FRUIT.

Receipts of all kinds of green fruit were heavy during the week, but demand was good and the market was well cleaned up. There was a distinct improvement in the quality of the stock offered also, and as a result of this prices generally are higher than they were a week ago. Quotations to-day are: Peaches, 30 to 75c.; plums, 30 to 50c.; pears, 20 to 50c., and grapes, 15 to 20c. per basket; bananas, 40c. to $1 per bunch, and lemons $1.50 to $3 per box; Bartlett pears, in bbls., $4 to $6.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—The demand for eggs from local buyers was better to-day and a fairly active trade was done at steady prices. We quote: New laid, 17 to 18c. and choice candled stock at 13½ to 14c. per dozen.

BEANS—There was no change in the bean market. The demand is fair at 70 to 80c. for primes, and at 90c. to $1 for choice hand picked per bushel.

HONEY—The honey market continues quiet and about steady. White clover comb is offering at 10c.; dark at 7c.; bright extracted at 6½ to 7c., and dark at 4 to 5c. per lb.

POTATOES—The receipts of potatoes are only fair, and car lots for future delivery are offering at 55 to 60c. per bag.

PROVISIONS.

A fair trade continues in provisions, and the market is moderately active, with no change in prices to note. We quote: Canadian pork, $15 to $16 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, at 7 to 7½c., and compound refined at 5¼ to 5½c. per lb.; hams, 12 to 14c., and bacon, 12 to 13c. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

The flour market was without any change of note. The tone is about steady, but the demand is chiefly from local buyers for small lots to fill actual wants. Outside buyers stocked up pretty well when prices were advancing, and until such is worked off some, not much activity is anticipated. On the whole, the market is somewhat quiet. We quote as follows: Winter wheat patents, $5 to $5.25; straight rollers, $4.85 to $5, and in bags, $2.25 to $2.35; best Manitoba strong bakers', $5.25 to $5.50; second do., $4.75 to $5, and low grades, $2.90 to $3.15; Hungarian patents, $5.65 to $5.90.

There continues to be a a good demand for bran and shorts from both local and eastern Ontario buyers, and the market is fairly active. We quote: Mantoba bran, bags included, $11.50 to $12.50, and shorts at $13.50 per ton.

The demand for meal does not improve any, and the market rules quiet and steady. We quote: Rolled oats, $3.40 per barrel, $1.65 per bag; standard meal, $3.30 per barrel and $1.60 per bag.

BALED HAY.

With increased receipts there has been a decline in baled hay, No. 1 selling at $11 to $11.50, and No. 2, $9 to $10 per ton in car lots on track.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

There is no sign of any improvement in the cheese market, and, so far as the bulk of the stock in the country is considered, it is a stand-off between buyers and sellers. Which party will make the first move only the future will decide. At present, with large stocks in view, the tone is unmistakably easy, and cheese can be bought on spot for less money than a week ago. This was proved by transactions in Ontario makes, chiefly Augusts, at 9½c., which did not net the seller any money. At the wharf also on Monday morning 3,000 Quebec makes sold at 9⅛ and 9¼c., the great bulk at the inside figure, so that as regards these cheese prices are ⅛c. lower than they were. The public cable is unchanged at 45s., but private advices give reduced limits. We quote: Finest Ontario cheese, 9½ to 9⅝c.; finest Townships cheese, 9⅜c.; finest Quebec cheese, 9⅛ to 9¼c.

Butter rules quiet, with a heavy tone. Factorymen, as a rule, are still holding their September creamery for full figures, but exporters will not give anything like the prices asked. The most that a seller could realize to-day on a full line of goods would be 19¼c., and they would have to be something fancy. There is quite a demand for western dairy at present and shippers are buyers at 13½ to 14c. Liverpool cable quotes finest unchanged at 90s., with good, 60s. We quote: Finest creamery, 19 to 19¼c.; seconds, 18½c.; dairy butter, 13½c.

MONTREAL NOTES.

Advices from Colombo, Ceylon, were very strong regarding the failure of the tea market there.

The advance for shipments of Valencia raisins via the second steamer has been maintained, and business has been put through at it.

While receipts of all kinds of green fruit have been liberal, demand has kept the market well cleaned up.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Sept. 30, 1897.

THE close of the Exhibition has left business rather quiet. The Exhibition was a success; the attendance was about the same as last year. It was hoped it would have been more, but the weather was somewhat against best results. The market here is hardly large enough to bring the results exhibitors look for, though many have informed THE GROCER of a large increase in sales, the result of their display. In markets there is little of change to note; neither buyers nor sellers seem to be pushing business. Prices generally are firm. Buyers incline to be careful, remembering the falling markets of last winter, and holders are hopeful. Collections are but fair.

OIL—The dealers in burning oil are very busy. There is little or no movement in other lines. Lubricating is particularly dull, owing to the quietness in the lumber market, which has caused many mills to close down. We quote: Best American burning oil, 17½ to 18½c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 17c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 15c.; cod oil, 22 to 24c.

SALT—There is the usual steady demand, though the light catch of herring down the bay has made itself felt. Prices are steady. There is both fine and coarse now due from Liverpool. Those needing salt in quantities should always have their orders in to be filled while landing, as there is always a substantial difference between price ex vessel and ex store. In Canadian salt, the spring always shows the best demand. There are, however, steady sales. We quote: Coarse, 47 to 50c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 85c. to $1; Canadian fine, 90c. to $1 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.50 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS—The feeling is very firm. Some new tomatoes are to hand; they came on a bare market. They have made little difference in the prices, as they cannot now be replaced at anything like their cost. So that the high prices continue that ruled while stock was low. New salmon are freely offered, and quite a few old are carried over. Stocks, however, are not large, and full prices should rule. Gallon apples tend higher. We quote haddies a little lower. California canned goods are tending higher, but in fruits the Canadian market shows little change from last year. We quote: Corn, 70 to 75c.; peas, 80 to 85c.; tomatoes, 95 to $1; gallon apples, $1.80 to $1.85; corned beef, Canadian, $2.40 to $2.50; American, 2-lb. tins, $2.60 to $2.70; 1-lb tins, $1.40 to $1.60; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.20; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.50 to $2.75; salmon, $1.15 to $1.20; lobsters, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, $1.05 to $1.15; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.60 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $6 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

GREEN FRUIT—Ontario fruit is still being largely received. Prices are ruling low. Some of the peaches received this week are the best yet to hand. Grapes also show improved quality. Plums are about done. The few of the latter received from Nova Scotia brought fair prices. The packages are much smaller than those from Ontario. There are very few oranges on the market. Lemons show less demand, as do bananas; prices are rather lower. Malaga grapes are now quoted. A few California are offered, though hardly in a wholesale way. In apples Gravensteins now have the demand. Fair quantities are being received; prices are firmer. Other kinds of Nova Scotia fruit now show good quality. There is, however, but fair sale. We quote: Oranges, $5 per box; lemons, $4.50 to $6; Gravenstein apples, $2.25 to $2.75; other kinds, $1.50 to $2; bananas, $1.50 to $2; Canadian pears, 50 to 60c. per basket; plums, 40 to 50c.; grapes, 25 to 40c.; peaches, 75 to 80c.; Malaga grapes, $5; native bog cranberries, $4.50 to $5 per bbl.; American pears, $3.50 per bush.; sweet potatoes, $3.25 to $3.50 per bbl.

DRIED FRUIT—There is but little doing. Valencia raisins to hand are splendid quality but cost quite high. The market is about bare of Californias and none are bought. Prices on the Coast keep high. Buyers look for lower prices. Currants are high and very scarce. Very little has so far been done in prunes and dates. Prunes have been dull during the past season. In dried apples higher prices are asked. Evaporated show a continued advance in offers for future delivery. There are very few old held here. Lower Canadian onions are coming in freely and give good satisfaction. We quote as follows: Raisins, Valencias, 5½ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c., prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples, 3½ to 4c.; evaporated apples, 6 to 7c.; onions, $2.20 to $2.30 per bbl.; cocoanuts, $3 to $3.50 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.; new Valencias, layers, 6½ to 7c.

SUGAR—Prices are firmly held. There is a good steady demand. In granulated, stocks, which have been large, are getting reduced, and refineries report more enquiry. Sugars from Montreal refineries are being sold here quite freely. We quote: Granulated, 4¼ to 4⅜c.; yellows, 3⅜ to 3¾c.; Paris lump, 5½ to 5¾c.; powdered, 5¼ to 5½c.

MOLASSES—The demand for Barbadoes is quiet, and prices are still low. Where quality is good it is looked upon as good stock. Porto Rico shows good sale, and while prices are well maintained, the market is hardly as firm as a few weeks ago. A small quantity of Demerara arrived by last steamer. There begins to be a demand for New Orleans. We quote: Barbadoes, 22 to 24c.; Porto Rico, 27 to 29c.; New Orleans, barrels., 25 to 28c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.; Demerara, 33 to 34c.

FISH—Prices are more firmly held, and in dry cod quite an advance is noticed. The quality of some of the fish to hand is extra. There is good demand for dry cod, and but fair receipts. Pollock are quiet. In pickled herring, the few Canso that have been received are very firmly held, being hard to get. Shelburne are very scarce. A few wolves herrings are to hand. Pickled shad are in small stock. New herring, smoked, bring much better figures than old; very few are being brought in. Boneless show an improved sale. We quote: Large cod, $3.35 to $3.50; medium, $3 to $3.25; pollock, $1.30 to $1.35; bay herring, $1.50 to $1.60 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 8 to 9c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50 to $5; boneless, 2½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.; Shelburne, half-bbl., $1.90 to $2; Canso, $5.25 to $5.50 per bbl.; do. half-bbl., $3 to $3.25; wolves, $2.25 to $2.50 half-bbl.

DAIRY PRODUCE—There is no particular stir in business. Eggs, where quality is good, bring full figures and show a fairly active demand. Butter, for the best stock, tends to a better price, but there are lots here that are a drug at any figure. Cheese show an improved demand, and are firmly held at quotations. The output of this province will be well ahead of last year. Most of the factories are sold up into September. There has been some difficulty to get large box stuff; one trouble is our factories leave their orders till too late in the season. Box stuff, on account of the large output of cheese, together with the fact that many mills turned out a small quantity because of the fact that the boxes were selling at a price that left no profit, are scarce all over Canada. We quote: Dairy butter, 15 to 17c.; creamery, 19 to 21c.; prints, 20 to 22c.; cheese, 10 to 10½c.; eggs, 13 to 13½c.

PROVISIONS—Lard, which was so low, has taken quite a turn upward. Pork is quoted higher, and is really worth more than quoted price shows. Local packers usually supply our market with mess pork, but it is a little early for them to get the pork, so that meanwhile it is being imported from Prince Edward Island. Hams and sides are still freely received from Boston. We quote: Clear pork, $15 to $16; mess, $13 to $14; plate beef, $13.50 to $14.50; hams, 13 to 13½c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; pure lard, 7 to 7½c.; compound, 6¼ to 6½c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—While Ontario flour is hardly as firm as Manitoba, there can hardly be said to be any change in the market. There is fair sale. Cornmeal, which during the last few weeks has shown about 10 per cent. advance, has eased off a little. Oatmeal and oats are moving up with but fair stocks here. Beans west are quoted rather lower. There are still a good many held here, and buyers will be careful, remembering the falling markets of last season. Advices do not, however, point to such low prices this season. Both barley and split peas are quoted higher.. We quote: Manitoba flour, $6.25 to $6.35; best Ontario, $5.30 to $5.40; medium, $5.20 to $5.25; oatmeal, $3.65 to $3.75; cornmeal, $2.05 to $2.10; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $15.50 to $16; bran, do, $14 to $14.50; hand-picked beans, $1.20 to $1.25; prime, $1 to $1.10; oats, 34 to 36c.; hay, $11.50 to $12.50; barley, $3.15 to $3.25; round peas, $1.25; split peas, $3.25 to $3.30; yellow eye beans, $1.75; timothy seed, Canadian, $2 to $2.25; do. do., American, $1.75 to $2; clover, 8¾ to 9c.; alsike, 8½ to 9c.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

At the three booms near Fredericton, on the St. John River, there were rafted 128,000 joints this season.

The Bank of New Brunswick stock continues to be quoted high. Some sold this week at 173 to 176 premium.

The show of stock at our Exhibition was the best ever seen in these lower provinces. Many who should know say it was the best in Canada. There were 368 cattle, 124 sheep, and 109 pigs, and besides there were 950 fowls and birds. In cattle the Ayrshire had the lead. The Jerseys were particularly fine.

Ontario fruit continues to arrive in large quantities. S. F. Estabrook & Son received a car of upward of 1,200 baskets this week.

Fire at Point du Chene this week destroyed the Point du Chene Hotel, the Seaside House and the general store of Mrs. Johannesens.

Messrs. Collas, Whitman & Co., of Annapolis, who have a patent fish evaporator, are beginning to make their regular shipments south. A quantity went forward to Brazil this week.

The Maritime Board of Trade meeting at Charlottetown elected the following officers: President, C. E. Bentley, Truro; vice-presidents, H. Haszard and W. M. Jarvis; secretary-treasurer, G. A. Hall.

There is dissatisfaction here regarding the inspection of pickled fish, because it is not compulsory. Our inspector refuses to brand some fish that come here because of their being not up to the mark. They are then sold below the market price to some dealer who brands them as he wishes. It is felt that this is hurting our trade. The Maritime Board of Trade, which met this past week at Charlottetown, took the matter up and it is hoped something will be done.

THE POTATO ROT.

IT now appears that the potato rot will not be so general and so injurious as was expected a couple of weeks ago. At that time nearly every lot of the vegetable that was marketed had a great number of potatoes with a black streak through the centre which in time spoiled the entire product. This was particularly true of those grown on any but sandy ground.

The rot was said to have been caused by the excessive rains of July and August, but every person did not think alike. In some places a blight seemed to have come suddenly upon the crop. The fact, however, that sandy districts escaped the rot is a rather direct proof that the evil was caused by the lengthened wet season. Even that district down about Lake Champlain, which supplies New York City with the bulk of the potatoes that it consumes, did not escape the injury.

On the Toronto market this last week the rot has not been nearly so common as it has been earlier in the fall. This seemingly has been due to the extra care taken by the farmers in taking the crop out of the ground.

It is claimed that if the vegetable, when turned out, is left on the ground till thoroughly dry and is then kept in a cool, dry place, that if free from the evil, it will remain so.

About three weeks ago the rot was so bad in Toronto that good, sound potatoes were worth 97c. a bag. Now, however, they are selling at 65 cents. At that time it was predicted that $2 a bushel would be the figure at which potatoes would sell during the winter, but in most minds that fear seems to have been dispelled.

SURPRISE SOAP CONTEST.

Nearly fifty thousand guesses were made as to the size of the huge cake of Surprise Soap exhibited at the Western Fair, at London. Of this number four made guesses that were an ounce and a half from the actual weight. Three of the four were over the weight and one under.

The correct weight of the cake was 522 lbs. 6½ ozs. The most successful guessers were Pearl McKenzie, Union; Alex. Power, Stewart Fisher, and Roy Freeland, London. The four winners met one morning last week and the Bell piano valued at $450 was taken by Roy Freeland who paid a cash consideration to the other three.

It took Mr. James S. Wallace, with three assistants, a week to examine the guesses.

The London Advertiser says: "The Surprise Soap Co. are well known to carry out to the letter what they advertise, and the result of this guessing contest is but another proof of their reliability."

HINTS TO BUYERS.

This department has become so popular that many more notices than there is space for are received every week. In future only important items of information will be inserted. Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

LUCAS, STEELE & BRISTOL'S advices from Japan are very firm. Good liquoring teas at reasonable prices are not to be had. Same applies to nibs and dust.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol delivered new mat figs last Monday.

McWilliam & Everist have some new figs in tapnets in this week.

The attention of the trade is drawn to the advertisement of T. B. Escott & Co.

McWilliam & Everist received some good Rhodi lemons this week.

"Enameline," in 5 and 10c. tins, is being offered by Lucas, Steele & Bristol.

Two lines of choice scented orange pekoe are to hand with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

T. B. Escott & Co. report they have new Labrador and Bay herrings just to hand at low figures.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, have received a car of "Anchor" salmon, their own brand.

Fine values in Ceylon tea, half-chests, are being offered by Lucas, Steele & Bristol at 17 to 18c.

W. H. Gillard & Co. have a fine line of bulk pickles, in one, two, three, and five-gallon packages.

Heavy advance sales of imported drained peels, of which they make a specialty, are reported by the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

W. H. Gillard & Co. wish to advise that this year, as usual, they will have their "Paradise" and "Haycastle" currants in stock.

Robert Greig & Co. report a good demand for Mackay's Kolacafe, which is claimed to be superior to any coffee essence on the market.

A specially select line of whole pickling spice, blended expressly for their trade, has met with ready sale by the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

T. A. Lytle & Co., vinegar manufacturers, Richmond street west, report an unusually good season in all lines, with prospects of still better orders for fall.

"We have been asked by so many customers for some of Keen's fortune-telling fishes, presented by the makers of Keen's mustard, that as long as our supply lasts we will send one by mail to all users of Keen's goods who give their names and addresses" ;—Frank Magor & Co., 16 St. John street, Montreal.

Full stocks of new codfish, boneless fish, Labrador herrings and scaled herrings are in store with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

Robert Greig & Co. are showing an exceedingly handsome range of samples in Christmas goods, both from English and German makers.

Another invoice of Hillwattee tea is to hand with Lucas, Steele & Bristol. It is packed in cases, pounds and half-pounds, also all pounds and all half-pounds.

So great has been the demand for Robert Greig & Co.'s extracts this season that they have had to largely increase the staff in their manufacturing department.

Rutherford, Marshall & Co. say that they will either buy or sell honey, either clover or buckwheat, in 60-lb. tins. Parties will do well to correspond with them.

Clemes Bros. say that the shipment of Rhodi, Maiori and Sorrento lemons that they received this week comprises some of the best stock that they ever had.

T. B. Escott & Co. report that their advertisement in THE CANADIAN GROCER enabled them to sell out their first large shipment of Jellycon within two weeks.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, state that they are quoting specially low prices for canned goods in round lots, shipped direct to buyers from factories in Eastern and Western Ontario.

W. H. Gillard & Co. have arriving this year a wide range of Mediterranean fruits and figs. "Our customers will be assured of the highest grades at low prices," they write.

"Currants," say the Eby, Blain Co., "are the most interesting feature of the market at present, and with heavy shipments in stock and on the way, our widely known and popular brands of cleaned and stemless fruit give us the key to the situation."

A GENEROUS GROCER.

A Connecticut grocer inserts this advertisement in the papers of his city :

10 pounds of coffee.
10 gallons of syrup.
50 yards calico.
3 pairs of shoes.

One $10.50 cloak for your wife and $20 to pay for the liquor you drank.

INCOMPETENCY IN SALESMANSHIP

Employing grocers, both jobbing and retail, are often blamed by competitors for cutting prices and remorselessly sacrificing profits, when they do not really deserve such blame. In spite of the utmost watchfulness and the most rigid rules, prices tend to work downwards and profits to disappear, simply because salesmen of inferior calibre cannot effect sales in the ordinary way and in despair sacrifice a fraction of the profit. The next salesman that comes along has in self-defence to meet the cut rate, and it is found impossible to get back to the old and safe margin of profit. It was to check this constant tendency to the destruction of profits that the limited price system was invented, but as it does not cover a very large number of articles, the drawbacks of incompetent salesmanship are often very apparent.

Among the retailers the cutting of prices by clerks is perhaps less common than the giving of overweight, but in either case the employer's pocket suffers, and when one considers the loss of possible sales to which the retailer is liable owing to the failure of stupid clerks to properly urge new goods upon the attention of customers, it is doubtful whether they do not suffer more from incompetent salesmanship than the jobbers. —Merchants' Review.

LONDON BOARD OF TRADE.

THE London Board of Trade had a short meeting last Friday night, and several matters in the hands of the secretary were disposed of.

The secretary read a letter from the Government announcing receipt of the communication from the Board of Trade in regard to the importance of improving Port Stanley harbor.

Mr. Gunn wanted the secretary instructed to address another letter to Mr. Tarte on the subject, drawing his attention to the fact that the harbor, as it at present stood, was of no practical benefit. A motion to this effect carried.

Mr. Nelles explained that Mr. Bland had drawn his attention to the fact that the mail for Montreal and the east was now closed at 3.50 p.m., as previous to the last meeting. He had received a communication from the postmaster stating that a supplementary mail for Montreal would be kept open until 4 o'clock.

It was the opinion of the board that the mail for Montreal could be kept open until 4.15. In some places certain bags were kept open until just about train time. If there was not enough help in the London post office, more could be secured, and then one man could attend to the mail for Montreal. It was resolved to bring this matter before the Postmaster-General.

In connection with presenting these petitions to the Government, Mr. Pearce said the mail department of the Customs House opened at 9 o'clock and closed at 4. This was continually a source of great inconvenience, and last fall he had lost $30 through being unable to a get a sample of timothy seed at 4.30.

A motion passed to request the Minister of Customs to have this department kept open until 6 o'clock.

A communication from John Earls, of the Freight Agents' Association, re car service, was read and filed.

F. Edworthy, secretary of the Victoria, B.C., Board of Trade, in a lengthy communication, requested the co-operation of the local board in diverting the mining trade from San Francisco and Seattle to British Columbia. The Klondike being in Canada, no duty is charged miners for their supplies. This is not the case when the supplies are purchased across the border, in American ports.

Mr. W. A. Gunn said he had received a similar letter from one of his western customers, and moved the following resolution :

"That this board notes with pleasure the steps taken by the Government to develop the all-Canadian routes to the further North-West and the Klondike territory. They trust their efforts may be fully successful, and they feel that expense incurred in this direction is amply justified by the volume of business already obtained in that section of our country, and the prospects of an enlarged trade. They should suggest that the fullest publicity be given to the fact of the development of the Canadian routes, and the advantages that all supplies can be purchased in Canada more cheaply and equally as good as in the United States, and by this means obviating the necessity of paying duty when entering the country ; also that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Minister of the Interior."

DEATH OF A BUSINESS MAN.

Thomas Stone, a prominent man in Calgary, N.W.T., business circles died last Saturday of a complication of diseases. Mr. Stone first came to Canada from England in 1880 with Sir John Lister Kaye, and in 1892 became general manager of the Kaye farms. Afterwards he engaged in the pork packing and cold storage business in Calgary. He was interested in politics and was strongly urged to contest Alberta at the last general elections.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 30, 1897.

FARMERS' deliveries of wheat are heavier than they have ever been before at this season of the year, but a great deal of this wheat is going into store, and not being sold. Elevators are filling up rapidly and cars are very scarce; it is greatly feared that a blockade will occur. This rushing in of the wheat is caused by the exceptionally fine weather for threshing, there not having been a single broken day since the machines went on the road this season, and, of course, as a result, there is more wheat in a position to be marketed. The C.P.R. are making strenuous efforts to meet the demands of the trade. Prices paid to farmers are higher this season compared with the outside market than ever before, and the wheat is being handled on a smaller margin than ever before, owing to the keen competition. The business outlook generally continues to improve. R. A. Lister, of Dursley, England, manufacturer of the "Alexandria" cream separators, arrived here recently, and in conversation with your correspondent said that the whole tone of trade was entirely different to what it was during his visit to this country during this month last year. Then there was an element of doubt and uncertainty, now, everybody you speak to seems confident and hopeful. There are no idle men around the city; everybody appears to have something to do and to be doing it.

EVAPORATED FRUIT—One of the marked changes of the season is seen in evaporated dried apples. Last year they were a drug on the market all the season and you could hardly give them away; now evaporated apples command 10c. per lb. and dried from 9 to 9½c. Raspberries are 22 to 24c. and peaches 11c. Nectarines have not yet reached this market. Every line of evaporated fruit is much higher than last year.

RAISINS—Valencias are selling for $2 per box, fine off-stalk, but it is thought that when the next shipment is received they will be a little easier.

CURRANTS—Are not yet in, but are going to be very high. The first shipments will sell at 7c., and lower prices are not looked for in this line.

CANNED GOODS—Are very firm. This has always been a very heavy market for canned tomatoes, and housekeepers are regarding the increased prices with dismay. Already the wholesale price here is $2.50 per case for the new pack, with every indication that packers will not be able to fill their contracts, and that prices will rise proportionately. In other lines of canned goods there is nothing new to report.

CEREALS—In rolled oats it is thought that though the crop is short in the province the exceptionally heavy crop in the Territories will make up our deficiencies, and that the present price will hardly be maintained. At any rate there will be no further increase. This, however, remains to be proven. We quote $1 65 for 80-lb. sacks; rolled wheat, $2; corn meal, $1.35; pot barley, $1.50; pearl do., 4c. per lb., and 5c. for extra brands.

GREEN FRUIT—Oranges are a thing of the past. Bananas are very scarce. The outbreak of yellow fever has stopped the importation. The supply on hand when the embargo was enforced is rapidly diminishing; dealers here find difficulty in getting stocks. California lemons of fine quality are being brought in; the price is $5 to $5.50 per case.

APPLES — The remarks made as to the evaporated apples apply with equal force to green fruit. Every indication goes to show increasing prices. At present prices range from $3.75 to $4.25 per bbl. The bulk of stock arriving is from the south. A few small shipments of Canadian apples have been received, but only in fair condition.

BUTTER—Situation is unchanged. Factories are selling balance of season's make at 20c., and the output from this time on will be small. Dairy is now selling at 13c.

CHEESE—Price is firm at 9 to 9½c. Only small lots are coming in.

EGGS—Supplies are small. Price to jobbers is 14c. Fresh laid eggs sell retail at 25c.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

High-Class Goods. According to the statements of several reputable Toronto retail grocers, the tide of trade has this fall turned in favor of those retailers who deal in high-class goods. Last year customers seemed eager to purchase cheap grades only, and the prices on the higher class of goods were cut so fine, to meet the competition of the cheap stores, that there really was no profit in handling them. The inducement to join the crowd and handle shoddy was great, but those who resisted the temptation are now reaping their reward. A visit to these stores will reveal that fact. Merchants can, therefore, draw the conclusion that it will not pay now to sell a low-grade article or to have even bargain days. Not long ago cheap grades induced every kind of purchasers, but now they will bring a class of customers to whom it does not pay to cater for trade. It does not pay to deal with those customers who want bargains in good times. They are sure to demand credit, and it takes more time and trouble to collect their accounts than it does to sell them goods. Cheap goods give an air of cheapness to the store, and it is shunned by customers whose patronage is the most profitable. This is a fact at all times to a more or less extent, but it is a more frequent one just now. Merchants should take notice and vary their purchases.

Retail Advertising. The small profits on goods going out of a grocer's establishment ought to make this class of retailers very cautious against extravagant advertising. Such a large trade has to be gained by advertising to make it pay with the grocer's profits that much of it cannot be done at a gain. For instance, according to a grocer, a good profit now-a-days is 5 per cent. on sales, above expenses. Thus the gain is one-twentieth of the selling price, and to make advertising pay for itself the additional trade gained by it must total 20 times the amount paid for the advertisement. This is the reason then that many a man finds that advertising does not pay. It pays to advertise, but it does not pay to advertise extravagantly. It must be done judiciously. Some merchants contract for a space for a certain length of time and then set themselves to fill up that space every day or every week, or as often as circumstances shall determine. If there is no news at hand, it is filled up with untruths and flatteries on the goods in stock. Such advertisements as these, needless to say, are not read, and consequently do not bring in a sufficient trade to warrant a continuance of that procedure. When a merchant advertises he should advertise facts and not manufactured facts. People should be able to believe your writings as well as your verbal statements.

A Good Window Display. Mr. D. Bradshaw, a grocer on King street east, Toronto, has a very attractive window of breakfast foods that seems worthy of attention. In the centre of the window is placed a comical figure of a clown sitting at a small table. In his hand is a spoon, and he is conveying some of this food to his mouth. The table cloth has the name of the food worked in with silk. Then all around this figure are arranged boxes of this food. A picture advertising this particular article is another relief. The high columns of boxes arranged in a semi-circle make the figure look very much at home. Such windows as these show what a little care and attention can do in this line. It isn't often that grocers' goods present of themselves an attractive appearance; they need something to enliven the scene. This the figure does in Mr. Bradshaw's window, and this such figures could do more often. How much more attractive would a display of chinaware be if it were arranged in the window as it should be in the house. How different is the appearance of a set of dinner dishes set out on the floor of a window from that of the same set arranged on a small table as they would be in use. People can appreciate the good appearance of the dishes in this latter case.

Wholesalers' Bargains. A Toronto grocer with whom I was conversing the other day asked me how it was that the bargains of the wholesale houses were never condemned as were those of retailers. On asking him for an explanation in regard to these bargains he went on to say that when commutation tickets could be obtained merchants thought they made enough direct profit on bargains they were able to obtain by a visit to the city to pay their way thither. "Surely," he said, "if the bargains of retailers were condemned as an injury to value in general, these bargains of the wholesalers, which are of far more consequence, ought to receive some share of attention from the complaining ones." However, I did not think as he did about the wholesalers cutting prices. In fact, it seemed to me that the general impression of the retailers was that the wholesalers kept prices too high. As to the bargains, I don't think that they are numerous enough to warrant a great deal of attention. A wholesaler may cut prices to clear out a certain line of goods, but such an action can be excused.

British Grown Tea

in 1887 first reached 50% of the total consumption in Great Britain and Ireland, and all indications are that in 1897 it will supply 50% of the total consumption of the World, exclusive of producing countries. This amounts to about nearly half of which is grown in British Dependencies.

500,000,000 pounds

CEYLON AND INDIAN TEAS

practically rule the world---and it is to their clean methods of preparation, purity, and healthfulness that this position is due.

THE MAN AND THE OPPORTUNITY.

JOE STOKER, rear brakeman on the ———accommodation train, was exceedingly popular with all the railroad men. The passengers liked him, too, for he was eager to please and always ready to answer questions. But he did not realize the full responsibility of his position. He "took the world easy," and occasionally tippled; and if anyone remonstrated, he would give one of his brightest smiles, and reply in such a good-natured way that the friend would think he had overestimated the danger: "Thank you. I'm all right. Don't you worry."

One evening there was a heavy snowstorm, and his train was delayed. Joe complained of extra duties because of the storm, and slyly sipped occasional draughts from a flat bottle. Soon he became quite jolly; but the conductor and engineer of the train were both vigilant and anxious.

Between two stations the train came to a quick halt. The engine had blown out its cylinder head, and an express was due in a few minutes upon the same track. The conductor hurried to the rear car, and ordered Joe back with a red light. The brakeman laughed and said: "There's no hurry. Wait till I get my overcoat." The conductor answered gravely, "Don't stop a minute, Joe. The express is due." "All right," said Joe, smilingly. The conductor then hurried forward to the engine.

But the brakeman did not go at once. He stopped to put on his overcoat. Then he took another sip from the flat bottle to keep the cold out. Then he slowly grasped the lantern and, whistling, moved leisurely down the track.

He had not gone ten paces before he heard the puffing of the express. Then he ran for the curve, but it was too late. In a horrible minute the engine of the express had telescoped the standing train, and the shrieks of the mangled passengers mingled with the hissing escapé of steam.

Later on, when they asked for Joe, he had disappeared; but the next day he was found in a barn, delirious, swinging an empty lantern in front of an imaginary train, and crying, "Oh, that I had!"

He was taken home, and afterward to an asylum, for this is a true story, and there is no sadder sound in that sad place than the unceasing moan, "Oh, that I had!" "Oh, that I had!" of the unfortunate brakeman, whose criminal indulgence brought disaster to many lives.

"There are moments," says Dean Alford, "which are worth more than years. We cannot help it. There is no proportion between spaces of time in importance nor in value. A stray, unthought-of five minutes may contain the event of a life. And this all-important moment—who can tell when it will be upon us?"

"What we call a turning-point," says Arnold, "is simply an occasion which sums up and brings to a result previous training. Accidental circumstances are nothing except to men who have been trained to take advantage of them." An opportunity will only make you ridiculous unless you are prepared for it.

The trouble with us is that we are ever looking for a princely chance of acquiring riches, or fame, or worth. We are dazzled by what Emerson calls the "shallow Americanism" of the day. We are expecting mastery without apprenticeship, knowledge without study and riches by credit. Because the politician acquires power by bribing the caucus, influence by "standing in" with the saloon-keeper, wealth by fraud and immunity from conviction by packing the jury, we are cozened into looking at life through a distorted lens. These are opportunities to be shunned like the cholera. They appear to rest upon a solid foundation, but they lead to infamy, and crime, and harmfulness to mankind, and perhaps suicide.

Young men and women, why stand ye here all the day idle? Was the land all occupied before you were born? Has the earth ceased to yield its increase? Are the seats all taken? the positions all filled? the chances all gone? Are the resources of your country fully developed? Are the secrets of nature all mastered? Is there no way in which you can utilize these passing moments to improve yourself or benefit another? Is the competition of modern existence so fierce that you must be content to simply gain an honest living? Have you received the gift of life in this progressive age, wherein all the experience of the past is garnered for your inspiration, merely that you may increase by one the sum total of purely animal existence?—Pushing to the Front.

BUTTER THAT SMELLS OF ROSES.

Perfumed butter on the table is the latest fad of wealthy people in London, according to an exchange. The dairies where this butter is made are as odorous as a florist's shop or the laboratory of a perfumer.

In the first place, the butter is made in small pats like those in ordinary use. Each pat is wrapped in a bit of fine muslin and placed on a bed of rose leaves specially prepared in an earthen jar. On top another layer of the fresh and delicate rose leaves is placed before the jar is filled with a solid chunk of ice. Then the jar is placed in a refrigerator and allowed to remain there for 10 hours, when the pats are ready for the customer.

Manufacturer's Agents Wanted.

In view of the constant inquiries from manufacturers and merchants for names of good representatives in leading centres in Canada we are preparing a typewritten list of all the firms open for agencies.

This will be held at our offices for use of such inquirers.

It is important that the list be as complete as possible, and we will be glad to include everyone interested.

There will of course be no charge.

THE KNOW-IT-ALL DRUMMER.

YOU have all, remarks a contemporary, met the drummer who knows it all. His are the best goods, no other line approaches them in quality or variety, and as to price, well, the others are simply not in it !

That is, when he tells it.

He rushes into your place with his hat on the back of his head, allows nothing for the fact that you may be engaged for a moment and commences his little spiel.

He came down to sell you goods and he seems a little surprised that you do not offer him two chairs, four cigars, and a $1,000 order in five minutes. He has actually condescended to call on you and offer you this opportunity of a life time and must sell you goods if he has to knock you down to do it.

That is, again, let him tell it.

I heard about one of these men the other day and how his pride went before his fall not much of a distance, yea verily.

He was a flour man, selling the best brand of flour ever made, nothing ever touched it in quality or price, it would make more bread, better bread and so on, and so on. He approached the manager of one of the leading bakeries of the city, a man who was born with a biscuit in his mouth and knows bread from the flour up and the flour from the bread down.

And the drummer found his match there, too.

His air gave the inference that in his opinion the baker knew nothing about flour ; of course he didn't if he was using any other brand than that handled by the drummer. Why didn't the baker get up to date and buy good flour, and again ad finitum.

But about that time the baker did get up.

"See here," he said, "you seem to know all about flour and say I am using poor stuff. I'll try you."

So, obtaining a sample of the drummer's much-lauded brand, he went back into his bakery and procured samples of three other makes. The drummer's brand he marked A, the others B, C and D, respectively.

Bringing them back he placed them before the confident gentleman with the large and powerful think tank, and invited his inspection and judgment.

The drummer gave them a most critical analysis for color, weight, grain and all the qualities possessed by good flour, and then, with an exultant air, pointed to sample A and declared :

"That's the poorest of the lot."

He had condemned his own flour.

He took his throbbing brain in his hand and deposited it in a cracker barrel outside the door and kicked himself industriously with both feet.

CALIFORNIA PRUNE SITUATION.

The crop situation in California is thus summed up from the report of the United States Weather Bureau for the California section for the week ending Sept. 13. "Early peaches are gone. Late peaches are beginning to ripen. Grape cutting is in full blast and the weather has favored raisin making, though the curing progresses slowly owing to the cool weather. Prunes have been harvested in large quantities and are either upon the curing trays or on the way to the markets. The apple crop is large, but in the southern part of the state the codlin moth has materially damaged the fruit. Walnuts are doing nicely, as are also almonds. The orange crop promises to be the largest ever grown in the state and will be two weeks earlier than last year ; the fruit begins to show color. Sugar beets are coming along nicely and promise a satisfactory yield. Hop picking is progressing and bean harvesting is in full blast."

VALUE OF EARLY INDUSTRY.

Success in business begets success, and failure begets failure, says Retail Grocers' Advocate. The young man who has made a few thousand dollars at the age of 25 usually has an easy road to travel and seldom meets with failures afterwards; but those who have met with failures until 30 or 35, usually have failures afterwards. Their difficulties increase in the same proportion as they grow older, while the difficulties of the early successful man grow less and less with the advance of his years. The man in advanced years finds it harder to save than the younger man, and as it becomes more difficult to accumulate money, he is in danger of starting on insufficient capital and he naturally starts in smaller and less remunerative enterprises than his younger brother who had success early in life and more capital. While he whose career begins late has a struggle to earn the increasing necessities of life, the younger man is more likely to make more than he needs for his living, because he needs less, and naturally accumulates more capital.

CRANBERRY AND APPLE CROP.

An Auburn, Kings Co., N.B., despatch to The Halifax Chronicle says: Cranberry picking commenced this week, and the berries are looking well. Small lots have been sold at Auburn at $6 per barrel of 96 quarts. Most of the growers are packing in the new flat hoop barrel manufactured at Lequille, Annapolis county. The crop will probably average 2,000 barrels. The principal bogs at Auburn are owned by Judge Chipman, of Kentville; Dr. Balcom, of Aylesford; Rev. W. Ryan, Joseph Palmer and J. Spurgeon Bishop, of Auburn.

Fruit growers are selling their apples this year to speculators and not shipping themselves, and orchards have been bought, taking all grades throughout, at $2 per barrel, the farmer picking and packing under the supervision of the buyer. Gravensteins have been sold from $2 to $2.25 for the English market. Prices are steadily advancing. Speculators are offering 10c. a barrel more for apples packed in the new soft wood flat hoop barrel introduced by the Annapolis Manufacturing Co., Limited, of Lequille, and reports of sales from St. John, N.B., state that a shipment of Astrachans from Nova Scotia of equal quantities in flat hoop barrels and those put up in the antiquated split pole birch hoop barrel realized 20c. more on the flat hoop barrel.

A SMART TRICK.

They are telling a good story on my friend, the grocer next door. The other day a woman came in and said: "I want two dozen hens' eggs. They must all be eggs laid by black hens." The grocer said: "Madam, I am willing to accommodate you, but you have got the best of me this time. I don't know how to tell the eggs of a black hen from those of a speckled or white one." Said she: "I can tell the difference mighty quick." "If that is so, madam, will you kindly pick out the eggs for yourself?" She did so, and when the two dozen were counted into her basket the grocer looked at them and said suggestively: "Well, madam, it seems as though the black hens laid all the big eggs." "Yes," said she, "that's the way you tell them."—Ex.

PERSIAN DATE SITUATION.

In a circular issued to the trade, Mr. G. F. Nixon points out the position of Persian dates, stating that present market rates are fully ⅝c. per lb. below cost of import based on the chief holders' prices in London; also stating that no direct steamer will be run from Bussorah to the United States this year. The first tide from Bussorah this year will be on Oct. 10, as against Oct. 3, 1896, making it impossible to have any new crop here in time for the Thanksgiving demand. The new crop prospects are said to be not by any means satisfactory. From this position it would seem that spot stocks will have to supply the main demand before Christmas.—N.Y. Journal of Commerce.

MINT ... PUFF-STRAPS

RECOGNIZING the great popularity of peppermint with the sweets-loving public, we are the first to introduce to the trade Pliable Licorice containing this flavor.

The delicious quality of our Pliable Licorice is well known; it is matchless in this respect as well as in its flavor and finish.

Our Triple Tunnel Tubes and Navy Plugs are great favorites also, and are made of the same material, although flavored differently. . . . . .

We recommend all these goods as suitable for Summer Trade; they will please the most exacting taste as wholesome, smooth and palatable confections. . . .

Vol. XI. (Published Weekly) MONTREAL AND TORONTO, OCTOBER 8, 1897 ($2.00 per Year) No. 41

THE PRUNE INDUSTRY IN CALIFORNIA.

THE growth of the prune industry in California is one of the marvels of the state. Along with its monster rose bushes, enormous trees, towering mountains, fields of wheat of thousands of acres each, big hotels, and monstrous sea fish, it has by far the greatest prune orchards in the world. While prune orchards of 10 and 12 acres in France and Italy are considered large, there are a dozen in the Santa Clara and Sacramento valleys that comprise more than 120 acres each and 12,000 trees. One or two cover 500 acres, and comprise 50,000 trees. Several individuals and firms have each more than $175,000 invested in prune orchards in Central California. In 1880 there were less than 4,000 acres of prune orchards in California. When the census was taken in 1890 it was found there were 13,000 acres and 1,300,000 prune trees planted. That year there was a dearth of fruit in the Eastern States caused by blasting frosts late in the spring, and there never was such a season of money-making among the fruit growers in California. Hundreds of growers in 1890 sold prunes on the trees for $60 a ton. A dozen men made $5,000 clear that year from ten-acre orchards of prunes, and men who got $4,000 from such orchards were common. That condition of the market and the McKinley tariff law, which put an extra duty on French and Turkish prunes in the same year, gave a phenomenal boom for prunes. In the following winter and spring more than 24,000 acres were planted to the fruit, and in 1892 some 16,000 more acres were planted. The Los Angeles Times recently estimated that there are now 53,000 acres of bearing prune orchards in this State, where there were 4,000 seventeen years ago. Besides this there are about 13,000 acres yet to come into bearing. Last year the product of prunes in California was 91,000 tons, and but for frosts that damaged the crop last April when the trees were in full bloom, the total product would probably be more than 110,000 tons this summer. The Los Angeles Times reckons that about $20,000,000 is invested in the prune industry. That estimate includes the value of land, trees, irrigation systems, tools, packing houses, and harvesting devices.

This is the noon of the prune harvest in California, and although the crop is a short one, the daily scenes in the great prune orchards are lively and interesting. Many thousands of men, women and children throughout the valleys of Central and Southern California are busy in the prune orchards and at the fruit-packing houses. A prune orchard in itself is one of the most beautiful things in horticulture. The thousands of trees are planted in long rows, in such symmetry that one may look in any direction among them and the alignment is perfect. The ground is soft and even, and years of cultivation and care have made it so smooth that not a pebble or a clod, a blade of grass or the smallest weed may be seen anywhere. The sweet scent of the ripened fruit, the music of the birds, the laughter and songs of the workers, all combine to make a harvest scene in an extensive prune orchard a mixture of romance and commercial thrift.

When the fruit grower, who has been daily watching the process of ripening of his crop, finds that the fruit is soft to the touch, he employs a force of workers. Great sheets of cloth are laid on the ground beneath the trees, while strong men shake the trees and boys shake the branches so that the prunes fall. The sheets are gathered up at the ends, and the fruit is poured into padded boxes, so as to avoid much handling. Tree after tree is treated in this way once each day until the crop is gathered. The operation is repeated once each day for twenty days on some trees before all the prunes are harvested. Meanwhile, the gathered fruit is carried to the washing boxes and the dipping caldrons. The prunes are put into heavy wire cages holding several hundred pounds each, and are first dipped into running water, where the dirt and dust are washed away. In a moment more the cage is elevated on a crane and then let down into a caldron of hot water, heavy with concentrated lye. The purpose of this is to remove the bloom and to crack the skin that envelops the flesh of the prunes, in order that the drying process may take place more rapidly. In its natural state the skin is so smooth and tough that it would take a week to dry the fruit properly for the market. From the caldrons of hot lye water the cages of prunes are lifted again and once more plunged into hot clean water containing a clear white syrup, so that the lye may be washed away and a gloss be given the fruit.

Then comes the drying process. Girls and boys come with shallow wooden trays a yard square, and as the prunes pour down from a hopper into which they are dumped from the cages, deft hands spread the product over the trays in the twinkling of an eye. A little tramway carries the trays and fruit out into the drying yard every minute, and there on ground covered for two or three acres with some cheap fabric the prunes are placed for drying by the sun. There is a strong sunshine twenty-nine days out of thirty in each summer month in the valleys of Central and Southern California, and so it is the rule that prunes are well dried in two and a half or three days. A little army of workers is always busy in the prune harvesting season in gathering the dried product from the trays and carrying it in baskets to the sweat boxes, where, after a week or ten days, the dampness that arises from quickly dried fruit has evaporated. Often a prune grower on an extensive scale may have in bins, at the close of the harvesting of the crop, 600 or 700 tons of dried prunes, while his drying yard of several acres may be so completely covered with trays as to look as if smeared a purple black. The more extensive prune growers in California handle as many as seventy tons of prunes in a day. It takes from two and one-half to three pounds of the green fruit to make one of the dried product.

The active work of the harvest over, the grower looks about for buyers for his yield. There are always scores of purchasing agents for eastern wholesale fruit dealers and commission houses throughout the horticultural regions of California in the fruit season, and there are hundreds of local fruit shippers in the state. The fruit is sampled and tested for its saccharine qualities, the firmness of the flesh, and the gloss of the skin. Little bags of sample fruit are sent here and there. When a sale is made it is done on the basis of the sizes of the dried prunes. Thus there are six sizes: 1. Those ranging from 40 to 50 to the pound; 2, 50 to 60 to the pound; 3, 60 to 70; 4, 70 to 80; 5, 80 to 90, and 6, all above 90. An experienced prune grower and buyer can tell at a glance what size of fruit he is looking at, and, of course, the size of 50 to 60 is the most marketable.

Then come the grading and sacking or boxing of the prunes. The fruit is shoveled into a hopper with a prodigality that makes one who has been used only to buying a pound or two of prunes at a time open wide his eyes, and allowed to run through a patent machine that grades the fruit into the six sizes. The best grades of prunes are packed carefully in wooden boxes, while the smaller and cheaper grades are put up in white muslin sacks.

A host of people who have bought prunes all their lives will be surprised to know that there are thirty-two distinct varieties of prunes in Europe and America and as many more varieties that are classified as plums. There is a perennial argument at all the conventions of horticulturists as to what are prunes and what plums, for the two fruits are very closely related members of the same family. While there are eleven varieties of prunes in California, the rank and file of the orchardists know but four. The variety known as the California, or petite prune d'Agen, is by far the most generally grown in this state and forms the bulk of the product sent to the eastern markets in the dried form. It originated in the south of France eighty years ago, and was brought to California in 1870. In California soil and climate the fruit grows larger than in France, and many horticultural experts used to believe it was an entirely new variety of the fruit. The prune d'Agen grows as large as a common hen's egg; it is exactly ovoid, its flesh is yellow, tender and firm, and it is very rich in saccharine juice. The silver prune—known to the fruit trade as Cal's Golden Drop—is one of the best varieties in California for green fruit shipments. It originated in Oregon thirty years ago, and grows larger than the prune d'Agen, and is therefore not so easy to dry as the other varieties. Then there is the Bulgarian prune, which originated in Bulgaria many years ago. It has grown prolifically in California, and it is the largest and most regular bearer of any variety of prunes on this coast. It has an unusually firm, hard flesh, and is a favorite with canners.

The most recent variety of prune among the orchardists of California is that known as the Tragedy. It was originated in this state and is a cross between the famous German prune of the Old World and the Duane plum of New York state. Several thousand acres were planted to this variety of fruit three years ago, and it is believed it will be the most important prune of commerce in America in another decade. The trees grow large and fast. The fruit is a little larger than a hen's egg, the skin is a dark purple, the flesh a yellowish green, and it is the sweetest of all the prunes grown in this state. The crop begins to ripen in June, and for that reason it is a favorite with shippers of green fruits.

The age at which prune orchards come into bearing in California is a matter of wonder among horticulturists the world over. No where else do prune trees come to full development and fruition so quickly as in this state. While it is rare to have prune trees in France and Turkey come into bearing before seven years old, the same varieties of trees will bear at three years of age in California, and at five years will produce 60 and 70 pounds of fruit to the tree. When eight years old a prune orchard that has been well watered and cultivated will be in full bearing and may be relied upon to yield from 200 to 300 pounds of fruit annually. But the horticulturists believe that this extraordinary prolificness will shorten the period of a prune tree's bearing ability. In Europe the average period of a prune tree's service is 45 years. There is reason to believe that it will be less than half that in California.

The largest importation of foreign prunes into the United States was in the year 1887, when the quantity of the dried product imported was 92,000,000 pounds. That same year California produced 5,825,000 pounds of dried prunes. In 1892 the importation of dried prunes was 6,471,000 pounds, and the California product 41,265,000 pounds. The Horticultural Commission of this state has studied the reports of the importation of dried prunes and the shipments by railroad of the product for some years, and it finds that the average yearly consumption of prunes in the United States, when business is healthy and the people have employment, is 74,260,000 pounds. It is found that the working people in the cities are the best consumers of California prunes, and that hundreds of tons of the fruit are eaten by seamen and on board the naval vessels of the world.—New York Sun.

WHAT IS KNOWN OF MACKEREL.

THE most important contribution to the just issued Journal of the Marine Biological Association is a report on the present state of knowledge with regard to the habits and migrations of the mackerel, prepared by Mr. E. J. Allen, the energetic director of the Plymouth Laboratory, for use of H.M. Inspectors of Irish Fisheries. It may not be generally known that the Treasury, when last promising its usual grant of £1,000 a year, made a condition that the association should give what help it could to the Irish inspectors in this matter, and Mr. Allen's report is in all respects excellent and alone worth more than the cost of The Journal. It seems that no one has thought it worth while to observe the manner in which mackerel keep together in shoals, but it is suggested that their iridescent color may aid in this object. Our mackerel (scomber scomber) and allied species are found in most waters, but Mr. Allen does not mention Australasia in this connection ; and the breeding season varies in different localities—in the Mediterranean as early as January, off Ireland in May and June, off Plymouth in June and July, and off Norway in the first half of July, and so on. Mr. Matthias Dunn's observations in Cornwall on the rate of growth gives ⅞cm. at three months, 16-17cm. at six and 21-23cm. at twelve ; Mr. Cunningham's off the British coast generally 1.35 to 1.925cm. at one or two months, 22-23cm. at twelve and 14-20cm. at 16 months. Further research is needed to clear up this important point. Practically nothing is known, Mr. Allen says, with regard to the size at which the mackerel begins to breed. In its early stages this fish lives upon the small organisms of the plankton, including larval fish. Like the herring, it obtains its food by straining the sea-water through its gill-rakers, as it swims open-mouthed through the sea. Toward the close of the summer and in the autumn, however, it feeds chiefly on young herring, sprats, pilchards and rockling, hunted by sight. Hence the fine condition of the autumn fish. The subject of the migration of mackerel is one of perennial interest, and Mr. Allen's analysis of all known information is very useful, and he discusses the matter in a most methodical manner month by month with regard to both Europe and America. Under the heading of the present month Mr. Allen notes that there appears to be a general idea among the fishermen that the autumn fish, both on the southwest of Ireland and elsewhere, belong to a different race from those taken in the spring, but no successful attempt has ever been made by naturalists to prove or disprove this contention. The autumn fish, it may be noted, are all immature. Where do the mackerel go when they leave the coast? Mr. Allen suggests two alternatives :

First—The mackerel may live near the surface of the ocean at considerable distances from the land, in regions where they find a suitable sea temperature.

Second—They may live in deeper layers of the sea, at a greater or less distance—possibly never at a very great distance—from their summer localities, where it is possible that they may find the conditions favorable.

There is no record of their being caught down south in the winter months, unlike the swallow and other migratory birds, nor have they been seen at the surface in the warmer regions of the open ocean at any time of the year. Mr. Allen thinks the facts point to the latter conclusion. The facts in question as regards America are pretty clear ; but on this side the herring pond 'tis mere speculation. There is no information as to the temperature of likely parts of the Atlantic lying off the European coasts, but it seems to be a fact that the mackerel migrate through the English Channel to the North Sea, and return in the autumn. Our readers by this time will have gathered that Mr. Allen's report is of exceptional interest, but it makes it painfully evident that our scientists have paid very little attention to mackerel, and are woefully ignorant about one of the most important of our food fishes. In America, where the value of the sea fisheries is better appreciated, more has been done in this direction. Mackerel remains for our young men a terra incognita, well worthy of exploration.—Fish Trades Gazette.

TROUT A LA HOTELIERE.

Have one fish, weighing a quarter of a pound, for each person; split it through the entire length of the back, take out the middle bone, and lay it on the flesh side on a buttered dish. Pour over some oil, season, and set into a quick oven. When done put inside of each trout a spoonful of maitre d'hotel butter, close, dress and garnish with potatoes, English style.

These English patatoes are potatoes cut the same size and shape as a pigeon's egg, then steamed for about 15 minutes. Serve a separate sauce, made of espagnole and meat glaze, finishing it at the last moment with a piece of good butter and lemon juice ; run it through tamis ; then add chopped parsley

BOYS WITH NO CHANCE.

IN another log-cabin, in the backwoods of Ohio, a poor widow is holding a boy eighteen months old and wondering if she will be able to keep the wolf from her little ones. The boy grows, and in a few years we find him chopping wood and tilling the little clearing in the forest, to help his mother. Every spare hour is spent in studying the books he has borrowed, but cannot buy. At sixteen he gladly accepts a chance to drive mules on a canal towpath. Soon he applies for a chance to sweep floors and ring the bell of an academy, to pay his way while studying there.

His first term at Geauga Seminary cost him but $17. When he returned the next term he had but a sixpence in his pocket, and this he put into the contribution box at church the next day. He engaged board, washing, fuel and light of a carpenter at $1.06 a week, with the privilege of working nights and Saturdays all the time he could spare. He had arrived on a Saturday and planed fifty-one boards that day, for which he received $1.02. When the term closed he had paid all expenses and had $3 over. The following winter he taught school at $12 a month and "board around." In the spring he had $48, and when he returned to school he boarded himself at an expense of 31 cents a week.

Soon we find him in Williams College, where in two years he is graduated with honors. He reaches the State Senate at twenty-six and Congress at thirty-three. Twenty-seven years from the time he applied for a chance to ring the bell at Hiram College, James A. Garfield became President of the United States. The inspiration of such an example is worth more to the young man of America than all the wealth of the Astors, the Vanderbilts, and the Goulds.

Among the world's greatest heroes and benefactors are many others whose cradles were rocked by want in lowly cottages, and who buffeted the billows of fate without dependence, save upon the mercy of God and their own energies.

With five chances on each hand and one unwavering aim, no boy, however poor, need despair. There is bread and success for every youth under the American flag, who has energy and ability to seize his opportunity. It matters not whether the boy is born in a log-cabin or in a mansion; if he is dominated by a resolute purpose, and upholds himself, neither men nor demons can keep him down.—Pushing to the Front.

CALIFORNIA ORANGES AND LEMONS.

THE Arlington Heights Fruit Co., of California, write W. G. A. Lambe & Co., Toronto, regarding the prospects for the orange and lemon crop as follows:

Oranges—It is estimated by some that the orange crop of Southern California will reach 14,000 carloads, or about four and a half million boxes. This, in our estimation, is excessive, and we think that a fair estimate of the coming crop will be about 11,000 carloads, or about three and a half million boxes.

From present indications the fruit will be of the very finest quality and the sizes will be regular. We believe that the fruit will be as well colored for shipment for the Christmas trade and as early as last season, particularly if the hot weather that we are now having should continue for some little time.

Lemons.—The crop of lemons is estimated at about 300,000 boxes, which we think about correct, and as the heavy importation of foreign lemons into the United States is rapidly decreasing in volume and we understand from a reliable source that shipments have almost entirely ceased, hence, we take it that as soon as the present supply of foreign lemons in the eastern markets is pretty well cleaned up that there will be quite an active demand during the months of October and November for California lemons, and in regard to this we wish to advise our brokers that we will be prepared to ship large quantities of lemons between now and the 1st of January next. So far this season we have had very satisfactory results from lemons picked in the green state, held a few days in the packing house, then packed and shipped in ventilated cars with instructions to R. R. Co. to keep the vents closed to destination, and to open the side doors at different points along the line to allow the fruit to cool off. As a result of this we find that our lemons shipped in this manner and with these instructions have reached the purchasers in good condition and fairly well colored. We will employ this method for the next two or three months, and we are satisfied from the reports received from purchasers and our brokers that this is the best method so far introduced for the shipment of California lemons to the eastern markets during the summer and autumn months.

SAUSAGE RECIPES.

HOW TO MAKE BEST METT SAUSAGE.

We distinguish between Brunswick or Thuringian Mett sausage and the Dutch sausage. The former is finer. For both kinds the residues left from making cervelat sausage are used, which owing to their sinewy and fatty nature are not well adapted for other kinds of sausage. We will begin with the second class of sausage.

To each 100 lbs half at pork, use 63½ oz. salt, 5 6-10 oz. white ground pepper, 4 oz. cane sugar, 2 oz. powdered potass. saltpetre. Mix all this before chopping, then chop the meat to about half a walnut size, add the spice and continue chopping, frequently turning the mass upside down on the block, to about pea size; then break it open several times from right to left. Stuff tightly into narrow hog casings, to weigh about 1 lb to 1½ lb per piece, and tie the ends round together; dry for about a week and then smoke in cold light smoke until reddish yellow.

BRUNSWICK METT SAUSAGE.

For Brunswick Mett sausage, use less sinewy meat; select about two-thirds lean, one-third fat pork from the hind or fore leg, or from sides. Use the same quantities as above, i. e., for 100 lbs of meat, 63½ oz. salt, 5 6-10 oz. white pepper, finely ground; 4 oz. cane sugar, 2 oz. ground saltpetre. Mix and add same when the mass is chopped to about pea size, and chop up latter as fine as cervelat sausage. Treat altogether like cervelat sausage, but fill into so called narrow hog casings of larger size, to weigh about 1½ to 2 lbs apiece. Dry and smoke just as cervelat sausage. The casings should be fresh and well salted, and not too narrow.

FRENCH CODFISH.

More than three-fourths of the codfish consumed in France come from St. Pierre and Miquelon. But if France consumed the whole of their catch we should not complain of their rivalry, says The St. John's Herald. The Government of France for a long period has given a large bounty for the fish caught here that are exported to foreign countries. This has led to the invasion of European markets by the products of these bounty-sustained fisheries, to the great injury of our fish trade. It is a matter of much interest to know what is the annual export of codfish from St. Pierre and Miquelon. The following table, compiled from the French Year Book published at St. Pierre, shows the exports and their values in the years named:

Date.	Dry and green Cod (cwts.)	Value.
1885	822,236	$3,265,526
1886	909,953	1,498,412
1887	856,144	2,943,376
1888	550,529	2,443,205
1889	531,467	2,388,146
1890	505,595	2,270,257
1891	411,887	2,131,815
1892	434,858	1,794,075
1893	522,056	1 950,183
1896	734,124	.....

The foregoing figures, which are perfectly reliable, being taken from French sources, show that within the last dozen years there has been no marked increase in the French export of codfish from St. Pierre—contrary to what we are accustomed to belive and are frequently told. On the contrary, taking the years 1885 and 1886 (inclusive), there has been a steady decline in their exports since the latter date. Another noteworthy fact is that from 1887 to 1890 the Bait Act was in operation. On looking at their exports for these years there does not appear to have been any serious falling off as compared with the years following 1891, when the Bait Act was suspended. This seems to indicate that the operation of this costly Act did not make much difference in the French catch.

Decrease In Price, Increase In Profits

CHANGE IN THE PRICE OF SURPRISE SOAP

WE HAVE pleasure in announcing a change in the price of "Surprise" Soap. At the present prices the retailer's profit will be larger—selling at 5cts., costing 4cts. a cake, realizing a full cent on every bar of "Surprise" Soap sold, which is 25% profit. This change is made to more fully meet the requirements of the present conditions of trade and to enlist the full sympathy and support of all dealers, by making the sale of "Surprise" more profitable. We feel sure this move will be appreciated by all the trade. "Surprise" Soap occupies the foremost position in Canada, and we intend to maintain it. Good value, extensive advertising, liberal treatment placed "Surprise" where it is.

WINDOW DRESSING IN SMALL PLACES.

AT a meeting of merchants in Chicago recently the fact was brought out that in towns of about 2,000 inhabitants many merchants do not give window dressing much attention. The Chicago Dry Goods Reporter makes some remarks on this subject which apply with equal force in this country. It seems that there are still merchants, thousands of them, who do not believe, or who have not yet had it proved to their satisfaction, that the benefit in dollars and cents resulting from fresh, attractive window displays is not worth the small addition to the store expense and the necessary time and thought.

They say that it may pay in cities and large towns, where people lay much importance to style and appearances, but that in small towns it would be of no avail as a trade winner, for there is no style there; customers are satisfied if they have their plain food and plain dry goods served to them in a plain fashion, and to make any extra effort in the way of window displays and store decorations is like "casting pearls before swine."

If it were not a fact that there are merchants in all kinds of towns and cities who attribute a good share of their success to the way in which they keep their windows, it might be conceded that there are exceptions to the rule that "window dressing pays." The abundance of cases of this kind and the scarcity or absolute non existence, so far as we know, of a case where window trimming has been given a fair trial without building up the trade and reputation of the store, leaves, it would seem, little to be said in order to convince several thousand merchants of the error of their way.

Not a few who admit the value of window displays do not attempt anything of the kind themselves because they have an exaggerated idea of the skill and artistic ability it takes to produce them. As a matter of fact, anyone who has had experience in handling dress goods and merchandise ought to be able to put in a window display that would be a credit to the store. Practice makes perfect, and if the same person is given the work to do steadily there is no question that the displays will improve, and in time bring recognition from the public. A display does not have to be as good as the best that are seen in the largest cities to be of value as a trade winner. There may be many degrees of excellence, and because it is impossible to produce displays of the first degree it is absurd to suffer the windows to fall into neglect.

If any merchant chances to read this article who is among the number that are now awake to the possibilities of window-dressing, let us urge you to do something—no matter how little—in this line before the decline of the fall trade. The size of the town has not a great deal to do with it No matter if the store is located at a cross-corners, it would be strange if there were not someone who would appreciate a neat window display.

In every small town there are people who are lured away to larger places to do part of their trading. In a great many instances they can do no better than at home, but they are impressed with the idea somehow or other that their home merchants are not up-to-date. It may be discovered that it is not the lack of goods so much as it is the poor way in which the goods are displayed that drives trade to other towns. This is an old, old truth, and it ought not to be necessary to repeat it and discuss it so often, yet this space is not begrudged if it gives anyone a better appreciation of the art of window trimming.

DEAL THAT FAILED.

THE foundation for the mystery was developed in the department store in New York.

"Do you wish to have it charged?" said he.

"No, thank you," said the lady.

"Shall we send it to you?"

"It is so small that it is hardly worth while."

"It's no trouble, and you will avoid waiting while the package is being wrapped up."

"But I must wait for my change, anyway."

"Not at all; we can send it C.O.D."

"But it's only 63 cents."

"That makes no difference. It will be delivered this evening, sure."

"Very well," and the lady sauntered away, wondering why the clerk was so anxious to send so small a package to Brooklyn and put the establishment to the trouble of collecting 63 cents.

The mystery deepened at the home of the lady in Brooklyn.

"A package for Miss Blank," said the driver of the delivery waggon, and hurried to leave.

"He's forgotten to collect the 63 cents," cried the lady. "Stop him, Bridget!"

"Hey!" cried Bridget.

"That's all right," rejoined the driver, and disappeared around the corner.

The mystery was explained at the office of the father of the lady in New York.

"Are you Mr. Blank?" asked the dapper young man.

"Yes," said the father.

"The father of a large family of daughters in Brooklyn?"

"Yes."

"A C.O.D. package was sent to your house the other day. That suggests that perhaps you would like to open an account for your family at our store."

"Eh?"

"The advantage would be mutual. On our side we would have the trade of a large family of young ladies."

"So?"

"Large families of young ladies are in great demand as charge customers."

"Huh?"

"And so we would be very glad to open the account. On your side the advantage would be equally great. Our store is a long way from Brooklyn."

"H-m-m."

"And so your daughters would not be apt to buy so much as they would if they had an account in a Brooklyn store. Therefore you would save money."

"Yes?"

"Yes."

The father looked over his glasses at the dapper young man, and the dapper young man waved his hand and bowed. The father stretched out his legs, thrust his hands into his trousers pockets and began:

"So, then, you make it a business to search out large families of daughters?"

"Yes."

"And omit to collect money on C.O.D. packages so as to have a basis for starting an account?"

"Yes."

"The plan is ingenious. But it is not ingenious enough to succeed with the father of a large family of daughters. How old are you?"

"Twenty-seven."

"I am 57. If you are the father of a large family of daughters when you are 57 you will know more than you do now."

"Yes?"

"You will have learned that if one store is twice as far away as another a woman will feel herself obliged to buy twice as much as at the other to make up for the difference in distance."

"Yes?"

"You will have learned also that she will feel herself obliged to keep on buying as much as ever at the near store just because it is nearer than the other."

"Yes?"

"So that the net result would be that my daughters would buy three times as much as before if I opened an account with you."

"Yes?"

"Ordinary reasoning won't apply to women."

"Then you don't want to open the account?"

"No."

"Good day."

"Good day."—New York Sun.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

Buying Farm Produce.

A housekeeper of large experience recently told me that not one grocer in ten knew how to buy farm produce; that among all the grocers in her neighborhood, but one really knew how to buy. "His butter," said she, "is always just what he buys and sells it for, never worse; his potatoes are always good ones, his eggs are always fresh, and he buys them all so well that he sells as cheaply as his competitors." Further conversation brought out the fact that she dealt with him almost exclusively, paying often higher prices for some articles. There is a point in this for many grocers, for if one does not judge butter, eggs, etc., correctly, he undoubtedly is at a disadvantage as compared with his more careful competitor, and loses trade thereby.

A Practical Suggestion.

While having a chat with a couple of retail grocers the other day the Retail Association was brought under discussion, and though both grocers agreed the association was in efficient hands, they were of the opinion that it was not fulfilling the object of its existencce. The object of such an association, said they, is to do some financial good to its members, and that object is not attained. The suggestion was made that the association should pay its secretary a sufficient salary to enable him to devote his time entirely to the association, and that some arrangement should be made whereby more buying would be done by him for the members. It was further suggested that he should be furnished regularly with a list of "dead head" customers by each member and that a full report should be made out and sent to each member.

Spoiled Salmon.

There is a little matter that often bothers every grocer, namely, that of canned salmon being returned from customers as "spoiled." The amount each dealer has at one time is generally so small that instead of returning it to the wholesalers (who are willing to exchange spoiled salmon), he generally bears the loss himself. At least that is what is contended. There seems to be a desire among the retailers for some system by which all salmon spoiled might be returned simultaneously to the wholesalers, when the aggregate amount would be so large that more care would be taken in future at the factories. This is the view of a well-known retailer.

Sociable Sign.

I was walking down Queen street the other afternoon, and, looking into the dainty window of Porter Bros., I was pleased to see a neatly printed card bearing the invitation to "Come In and See Us Anyway." Going in, I was not surprised when one of the firm laughingly told me that this sign had that morning brought them a fair amount of business from an old lady passing. Porter Bros. have just opened up on Queen street, it might be stated.

RAMBLER.

THE BUSINESS TAX.

Mr. L. Munson, who opened a new meat store on South Railway street last week, has resolved to contest the legality of the civic bylaw passed by the Town Council last month, imposing a fine of $25 upon any or every one who opens out in business in Regina. The bylaw is a species of kind invitation to men who may be thinking of establishing new businesses in town that their room is preferred before their company. When the inspector nudged Mr. Munson and hinted about payment, Mr. Munson mildly intimated that he did not propose to pay. So a summons was issued, and on Tuesday (Mr. Mackenzie appearing for the town and Mr. Secord for the defendant) Magistrate Trant essayed to look into the question. Finally the magistrate and opposing counsel agreed that the case should go to Judge Richardson, by whom it will be heard next month, taking the form of a motion to quash the bylaw.—Leader, Regina.

Merchants should sell popular goods; goods that their customers know all about; goods that their clerks don't have to spend precious time talking up.

BRITISH GOODS UNDER THE PREFERENTIAL TARIFF.

THE result of the first four months' operation of the Canadian minimum tariff has not been altogether satisfactory, from a British point of view at any rate.

According to the figures compiled in Great Britain the aggregate exports from that country to Canada for the months of May, June, July and August were £1,044,170, against £1,215,735 for the same period of 1896, a decrease of 14 per cent.

Cotton piece goods decreased £9,000; jute, £10,000; linen, £7,000; woolen fabrics, £22,000; carpets, £5,000; pig iron, £9,000; bar iron, £5,000; railroad iron, £90,000; galvanized sheets, £8,000; tin plates, £67,000; cast and wrought iron, £10,000; steel, £16,000; haberdashery, £10,000; oil seed, £9,000.

Naturally, with a tariff giving British goods a preference of one-eighth on the regular duty, an increase rather than a decrease was to be looked for. And because it was the unexpected and not the expected which happened, it was also natural there should be disappointment in the Motherland.

For the explanation of it British journals have been diligently searching, but not even to their own selves has this searching proved satisfactory.

Although the imports of the Dominion from all countries during the four months in question show a slight decrease in value—only about one and one-half per cent.—it is obvious the cause of the decreased imports of British goods is not therein to be found. But, then, while the total imports of the Dominion for the four months fell off, the opposite was the case in some of the lines in which the exports to this country from Great Britain showed such a marked falling off.

It is obvious, then, that in those lines which we bought more largely of and the exports of which to this country from Great Britain exhibit a decrease, that we must have transferred a part of our patronage from the Motherland to some other country or countries.

The following table gives the chief imports of dutiable goods into Canada during May, June, July and August, in which there were increases, together with a comparison of the same months last year:

Iron and steel and manufactures of—
May	$796,551	$ 906,014
June	784,772	1,086,410
July	706,979	1,025,967
August	651,222	1,098,408
	$2,939,524	$4,116,799
Lead and manufactures of—
May	$38,083	$28,958
June	15,694	30,783
August	16,543	21,449
	$82,767	$110,023
Metals and manufactures of—
May	$23,934	$33,222
June	28,519	29,221
July	26,073	25,154
August	20,811	40,825
	$93,337	$128,422
Hats and caps, etc.—
May	$ 60,144	$ 66,015
June	32,646	42,918
July	45,291	60,519
	$277,658	$320,910
Silk and manufactures of—
May	$ 68,340	$122,290
June	116,519	89,933
July	188,439	193,857
August	275,911	266,333
	$649,209	$672,413
Cottons, clothing, thread, etc.—
May	$115,211	$125,088
June	105,520	121,364
July	129,343	157,130
	$493,787	$547,816

The above figures show an increase of about 40 per cent. in iron and steel, nearly 33 per cent. in lead, 37.50 per cent. in metals, 15.50 per cent. in hats, caps, etc., nearly 40 per cent. in silks, nearly 11 per cent. in cottons clothing, thread, etc. Although no detailed statement of The Trade and Navigation Returns is yet procurable in order to obtain access to details, there is no question but that these increases have been obtained at the cost of British to the advantage largely of United States products. The fact, however, must not be overlooked that Canada is gradually increasing the proportion of goods which she supplies the home market.

Four months is, of course, a period too short to put an instrument like the minimum tariff on its trial. But this fact is evident: A difference of one-eighth in the duty is not enough to affect the importation of British goods in competition with those from the United States.

Proximity to the Canadian market more than counterbalances the advantage of one-eighth difference in the duty, while it must be remembered that manufacturers in the United States have, within the last few months, showed increased aggressiveness in their desire to capture the Canadian market.

The one-eighth reduction has not hindered the importation of British goods into Canada, but it certainly has not yet appreciably helped it. After August 1 next, when the the one-fourth reduction goes into operation, it is to be hoped that the result will be more favorable to British goods.

Great Britain puts no barrier in the way of the importation thereto of Canadian goods. The United States, on the other hand, studies to have no dealings with Canadians except of the jug-handled kind: They want to sell to us, but they do not want to buy from us.

As long as the United States refuses to give the quid pro quo it is obviously the duty of Canadians to give the products of Great Britain all the preference in this market they can afford to give.

At the moment, Canada no doubt appears to Great Britain in much the same light as a customer who had professed to a merchant to have made arrangements whereby he would increase his purchases from him, but the results had shown that either the arrangements were inadequate or that the customer was insincere. We must show the business men of the United Kingdom not only that we are sincere but that we mean business.

It is not altogether the length of time a young man serves at a certain occupation that determines his knowledge of the same. Application is a factor without which length of service does not count for much.

TURN IN TORONTO REAL ESTATE.

THE millstone around the neck of Toronto during the last five or six years has been the depression in real estate due to the collapse of the boom of ten years ago. And many are the business men who were dragged down to bankruptcy, while many others have been brought near enough to destruction to be made to tremble.

There are now, however, signs that this millstone is gradually slipping off the neck which it has so peristently held down for several years. And the signs cannot be mistaken.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has it from unquestionable authority that during the past four or five weeks there were more transactions in Toronto real estate than there were during the two years previously.

Sites for factories have been sold, and in at least one instance the work of taking out the foundation was begun the day after the land had been acquired. And besides the actual transactions there have been enquiries for land and offers made thereon which a year or two ago could not be sold at any price.

It is true the prices at which the transactions were as a rule made were low, but the fact that properties have sold for which a short time ago a purchaser could not be found at any figure is certainly a gratifying sign. Then, the eager way in which certain properties have been picked up at prices named before the Court of Revision, when assessments were being appealed against, is another striking feature of the situation.

As far as residential property is concerned a decided improvement is to be noted. It is not that rents are any higher or that properties have appreciated in value; it is in the fact that there are not nearly as many vacant houses, while there is an increased difficulty of securing dwellings to rent. There are houses which, after being vacant for two years or more, have quickly found tenants after being overhauled a little. Anyone who will look about him will notice the tendency there is to overhaul premises which have for some years been unoccupied. And the owners would not do this unless they saw a rift in the cloud.

Of the different descriptions of real estate the slowest to feel the turn in the tide is store property. This class of property, in addition to the general depression, has suffered from the effects of the department stores. But even store property has improved. By actual count about a year ago one hundred and thirty-seven stores were found to be vacant within a distance of about two miles on one of the principal streets of the city, while an inspection of the same thoroughfare within the past few weeks found a most material reduction in the number.

No one will be more pleased than the business men that Toronto is at last emerging from the hard times brought upon it by an unfortunate real estate boom.

PEPPER STILL ADVANCING.

Pepper continues to advance, mail advices received this week in Toronto noting a further appreciation in the value of all kinds. White particularly is strong, being 1¾c. per pound dearer.

The advance in peppers during the past few months is marked. Since June last Singapore white pepper has appreciated fully 4c. per lb., and from the lowest point it is up 5c. or more per pound.

Speculation is to some extent the cause of the bullish character of the market, but speculation, in turn, was induced by the smallness of the stocks in the primary market and in London.

When some time ago the market was going in the opposite direction from what it now is wholesalers in Canada allowed their stocks to run rather low, but lately they have been freer purchasers, and are now fairly well supplied with pepper.

There should be no Fall in business. It should always be either spring or summer. When Fall comes in business the Winter of Death is near at hand.

LUMBER CAMP SUPPLY TRADE.

The provision dealers of Toronto unite in reporting quite a revival in trade with the lumber camps in the northern parts of Ontario this fall.

Wages are much higher this year, and as a consequence many more men are attracted to the camps. Consequently, there is need for more provisions.

CHEESE TOP HEAVY.

THE cheese situation throughout the country has certainly become top heavy during the past week. With matters as they stand at present it is difficult to say what the actual decline has been, but it is undoubted that factorymen within the past eight or ten days have become tired of holding and are letting go for prices that they would have laughed at during September. In other words, by not selling as they had their goods ready for market, they have lost all the way from ¼ to ½c. per pound, and probably more, on their September and some of their August cheese. The factorymen, therefore, who sold out in the latter month for 9½ to 10c. caught the market right on Augusts.

The high-priced sales in question had a good deal to do with the stubborn way factorymen have hung on lately.

The change in the temper of the market can be attributed to the fact that the speculators who were short for early September shipment filled these contracts with the high-priced August purchases above referred to, and have been leaving the market alone until very recently.

Last year also the big operators in England bought their cheese early in the season, and were thus able to continue to retail at 6d, when other dealers who bought later could not compete with them. This caused heavy purchases of cheese in June and July this year in order to have cheap cheese for competition, and many dealers are so thoroughly stocked with the early make of this season that they will want but little supplies until well on into next spring.

These facts render the trade dull in England and will tend to check any tendency to a marked advance in fall cheese this season.

Then, again, the estimates of the home make in Great Britain state that it will be 100,000 tons greater than last year, and also that the Dutch make will be some 12,000 tons more than 1896. This also conduced to indifference among buyers on the other side. The country situation in Canada is also a bear argument. In Quebec factorymen are sold as closely to date as there is any necessity of, but in Ontario they are not. Some factorymen in that province have closed out their August make, but the large number still have both August and September yet on hand, and all of them the make of the latter month, or the larger portion of it, yet to market. They cannot hold on much longer; and if demand does not improve, and it becomes a question of a forced sale, prices are bound to go lower.

THE FIRMNESS OF TOBACCO.

THE tobacco situation is surrounded with a great deal more than usual interest. It is chiefly due to the shortness of the crop in the United States.

It is asserted that the acreage in the tobacco belt is about 60 per cent. less than a year ago, while, to make matters worse, the crop itself is almost a total failure.

The leaf market has been steadily advancing for about eight years, and the shortage of the crop the present campaign has naturally accelerated matters.

Canada uses a great deal of American leaf, and prices here have naturally followed the outside markets in their upward movement. Canada, in fact, has been the scene of some marked advances, what with those due to the tariff and to the influence of the outside markets.

First of all, in May last there was an advance of a clear 14c. per pound due to the Customs duty of that amount placed on the imported stemmed leaf. Then there have since that been three distinct advances of 1c. per pound each on chewing tobaccos, while on smoking tobaccos there has been a gain of 2 to 5c. per pound, according to make or brand. Chewing tobaccos of imported leaf were advanced the latter part of last week, the manufacturers leading and the wholesalers following. Honeysuckle, 8's, are now quoted at 73c.; Napoleon, 8's, at 67c.; Prince of Wales, 8's, at 65c. No change was made in smoking tobaccos, nor, up to the time of going to press, was there in chewing tobaccos made from Canadian leaf.

Canadian grown tobacco has now a better chance than it probably ever had. Taking into account the excise and Customs duties it has a protection of 39c. per pound, while, in addition to this, there is the dearness of the foreign leaf to be taken into account.

PRICE DOWN, PROFIT UP.

A STEP has been taken by the St. Croix Soap Manufacturing Co., makers of "Surprise" soap, which will interest the grocery trade throughout the Dominion.

The step is none other than a reduction of from 10 to 20c. per box in the price of "Surprise."

The price is now $4 per box to the retail trade for one, five or any number of boxes.

The St. Croix Co. know what the factors of success are. They know the article they turn out must be first class, that those who make it must keep abreast of the times, and that the wholesalers and retailers through whom it is placed on the market must be treated in a liberal spirit. And what they know to be right the St. Croix people put into practice. Their action in the present instance is an example of this.

Trade conditions in soap, as in nearly everything else, are changing. And because of these changes the makers of "Surprise" are now enabled to supply the trade with this soap at a price which will enable retailers who sell it to earn a profit of 25 per cent.

This action on the part of the St. Croix Manufacturing Co. will, doubtless, enlarge that sympathy and increase that support which the company already receive and have from the grocery trade of the country.

GOOD WINDOW FRONTS.

Some grocers give as an excuse for not having an attractive window display that they have poor fronts, that their windows are not bright enough. In such a case, rather than lose much custom by an old-time unattractive window, it would in every case, almost without exception, be advisable to improve the front, even though it does cost a little money. Be up-to-date if you would succeed.

CANADIAN RICE MILLS.

Domestic milled rice is again on the market, after an absence of several months. Samples were distributed to the trade this week, and they are being well spoken of by the trade.

The mills at Montreal have taken a new departure. During the months they have been closed new machinery has been placed therein, with the result that the company is now able to place a polished rice on the market. The purpose appears to be to cater for a better class of trade than was the wont heretofore.

It is the opinion of the trade that the Canadian mills will now be able to hold the home market against the imported cheap rices.

WHOLESALE PRICE OF SUGAR.

A movement is on foot among the wholesale grocery trade to revise prices. As is well known, prices in Toronto are uniform, while in the country they are open.

The proposition is to reduce the wholesale price in Toronto one-eighth cent per pound, the opinion being that it is that much higher than it should be, and to advance the prices for country points, where prices are lower than the condition of the market warrants. In fact, there has been a good deal of dissatisfaction lately with country business in sugar on account of a house here and there cutting prices, in some instances to a point which has brought the figures down to actual cost.

What success is likely to crown the movement remains to be seen.

SILK WORMS INSTEAD OF TEA.

Tea cultivation in Japan appears to be getting in much the same condition as wheat culture was in certain countries a year or two ago.

While tea, like other things, has been cheap, labor on the other hand has appreciated a great deal in Japan since the war with China, with the result that many of the farmers in that country have found it necessary to turn their attention to the cultivation of other things or reduce their tea acreage.

One of the most paying substitutes for tea cultivation to which the Japanese farmers are turning their attention is the raising of silk worms. This industry is said to pay much better than tea growing.

Cereal cultivation has also come in for a larger share of attention lately.

Private advices from Japan say it is the general opinion that the low prices which prevailed for tea the early part of 1896 will never be seen again.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Oct. 7, 1897.

GROCERIES.

PROBABLY the feature of the wholesale grocery trade this week is the increased interest which is being taken in canned tomatoes. Some of the packers are quoting fabulous prices, but the transactions which have taken place have been at much about the same figures that ruled a week ago, although they are this week held firmer. Peas and corn are firm to steady. Salmon is reported to be a little firmer on the Coast. A further advance of one shilling per cwt. has taken place in the price of Valencia raisins. All such foreign dried fruits as currants and raisins are in good demand with prices firm. Coffee has been moving fairly well. In rice, the feature is the presence on the market of domestic rice again, the Canadian mills again offering samples. A further advance is to be noted in pepper. A good many sugars are going out, but the demand is not as heavy as it was. Teas are quiet, but firm. Generally speaking, the volume of business is not as large as it was a week or two ago, but it is still of fair proportions.

CANNED GOODS.

Tomatoes are the feature of the cannned goods trade. The market is strong, but as long as the weather is mild and some of the factories continue to pack a certain amount of uncertainty exists. There have been transactions at 77½ and 80c. this week, but the latter figure is the ruling one with the packers, and some have had the temerity to ask $1 per dozen. The ruling wholesale prices are 85 to 90c., and sales are being made at these figures. Peas are selling at from 80 to 90c., with 82½c. as the ruling figure. Salmon is in fair demand for the season. Prices on the Coast are reported to be a little firmer, and some of the local wholesalers have advanced their prices on cohoe salmon 2½c. per dozen for future delivery. We quote: Tomatoes, 85 to 90c.; corn, 65 to 70c.; peas, 75 to 80c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.10 to $1.25; beans, 65 to 80c;. peaches, $2.50 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.50 to $1.80, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $1.75 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 85 to 95c.; gallons, $1.85 to $2; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; other red salmon, $1.15 upwards, according to quality and brand; cohoes, 97½c. to $1; canned mackerel, $1.25 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.85 to $2.95; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.35 to $1.40; 2's, $2.35 to $2.50; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

A good deal of Rio coffee is moving. Cables in regard to the Brazilian crop have been somewhat irregular. Some transactions in carload lots for future delivery are reported. Jobbers quote green in bags: Rio, 9 to 12½c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 12½ to 18c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 16 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

Nothing new has developed. There is still practically none offering and prices are firm. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

A fair trade is reported. The market remains in much about the same condition as a week ago. We quote: New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGARS.

Now the new crop is coming to hand and more abundant supplies of ready sugars exist, easier prices rule in the outside markets. The future of the market greatly depends upon the weather during October. It is the opinion that as long as Cuba remains the minimum factor she now is it will be impossible to get along with a smaller production of beet sugar than at present. The estimate of the crop of beet sugar for Europe is 4,951,000 tons, which is only some 700,000 tons over the figures of last year.

In Canada the demand is not as brisk as it was, although there is still a good deal of sugar going out, and prices are unchanged. We quote as follows for Toronto: Granulated —St. Lawrence and Redpath's, 4 9-16c. for single barrel lots and 4½c. for 5-barrel lots; Acadia, 4½c. for single barrel lots, and 4 7-16c. for 5-barrel lots; yellows, 3¾ to 4⅛c. per lb.; Canadian German granulated, in 100-lb. sacks, 4¼c. in single barrels, and 4 5-16c. in 5-bbl. lots. Demerara crystals, 3⅞c.

SPICES.

Mail advices bring information of further advances in pepper, Singapore being about 1¾c. higher. Spices generally continue steady and business is fair. We quote as follows: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 11 to 12c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 20c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

NUTS.

Shipments of Grenoble walnuts, season 1896, were received in Toronto this week. We quote as follows: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 20 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

The Montreal rice mills are again in the market, and the samples they are offering are of better quality than they formerly made. They are now making a polished rice. Tapioca is 6d. to 9d. dearer in London. We quote: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½ to 4½c.

TEAS.

The chief attention is still being devoted to Japans and China greens, although not a great many of these are going out. In teas from London there is at the moment very little doing. Mail advices from Japan state that an early closing of the season is expected owing to the poor quality of the teas. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRANTS—The market is strong at the recent advance. Stocks in Patras are light and the tendency of the market is toward still higher prices. The Avlona is due in Canada with currants about the end of this week, and the Bellona, the last direct steamer, has sailed from Patras. We quote as follows: Filiatras, 6c. in barrels; 6⅛c. in half-barrels and 6¼c. in cases. Patras 6½c. in barrels; 6¾c. in half-barrels, and 6¾ to 7c. in cases. Vostizzas, 7 to 8c. in cases.

VALENCIA RAISINS—Two cables received in Toronto on Monday quoted an advance of 1s. per cwt. in Valencia raisins. Local wholesalers report the demand for future delivery brisk. We quote: New goods—Fine off-stalk, 5¾ to 6c.; selected, 6¼ to 6¾c. Old goods—Off-stalk, 4c.; fine off-stalk, 4½c.; layers, 5c.

MALAGA RAISINS—Further small lots have arrived on the local market. We quote: London layers, $1.70 to $1.90; black baskets, $2.30 to $2.50; blue baskets, $2.50 to $2.75; Connoisseur Clusters, $2.40

FIGS — The new season's figs which arrived on the market a few days ago are meeting with a ready sale. The next to arrive are those ex ss. State of California, which left Liverpool on September 30. This vessel will bring a larger assortment. Skeleton cases of from 5 lbs. upward are now on the market. The quality is as a rule fine. One lot is in two-foot boxes, one row to the box, which is something new for this market. We quote: 4-crown, 10 to 11c.; 5-crown, 11 to 13c.; 7-crown, 13 to 14c.; 9-crown, 15 to 16c., natural figs, in bags, 4½ to 5c.

SULTANA RAISINS—The market has been steadily gaining in strength since our last report, and quotations are now nearly as high as they were at the very top of the market, with no indication of low prices in the future. A shipment is arriving this week. This is the first, with the exception of a small lot via Liverpool. New fruit is quoted at 10 to 12c. by local wholesalers.

PRUNES—There is nothing new to note. A few old prunes are to be had on this market at 5c. for French (120's), and Bosnias (Sphinx U) at 6½c.

CANDIED PEELS — Shipments of new goods are arriving. We quote: Citron, 19c.; orange, 13c.; lemon, 12½c.

CALIFORNIA EVAPORATED FRUITS—The market continues firm. The few evaporated apricots which were on the local market have all been sold.

GREEN FRUITS

The lemon market is unchanged; an increased demand for the finer qualities is likely to send prices higher. The watermelon and cucumber trade is done. Grapes have been arriving in exceptionally great quantities and have fallen slightly in price. Bartlett pears are nearly off the market, but the later varieties are still coming in in fair quantities. The outside demand for Spanish onions is so great that the price has risen to $1 a crate, and as there are few holders the price is liable to increase. Egyptian onions are out of the market. We quote as follows: Lemons, fancy, $2.50; fancy $4.50 to $5; extra fancy Rhodi, $5.50 to $6. Cocoanuts, $4.50 a sack and 60c. per doz. Bananas, $1 to $1.50. New cabbage, $1 to $1.25 per 100; Canadian tomatoes, 20 to 25c. per basket. Crawford peaches, 35 to 50c.; Canadian apples, $1.75 to $2.50 per barrel and 25 to 35c. per basket;

Concords, 13c.; 10-lb. Niagaras, 15c. Concords, large baskets, 1 to 1½c. per lb.; Niagaras, large baskets, 1½ to 2c. per lb.; sweet potatoes, $3.25 per bbl.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Continue firm for good stock. The quality offered is only fair, as many are held stock. They are still coming forward. New laid eggs are worth 15 to 16c., and the second grade brings 11 to 13c.

POTATOES—This week potatoes have been coming in in good quantities. The market was so full on Tuesday that some producers had to sell at reduced prices. Carload lots are quoted at 50c., while on the market they are worth 65c. a bag.

HONEY—Quite large quantities are still coming forward. Dealers' quotations here are: Light colored, in 60-lb. tins, 6 to 6½c.; 5 and 10-lb. tins, 6½ to 7c.; comb, $1.50 to $1.75 per dozen, and are selling clover honey at 7c. and buckwheat at 5c.

BEANS — Hand-picked beans are now offered in abundant quantities, and can be now had readily at 85c. Prime beans are quoted at 80c.

DRIED APPLES—The market is much as before: 4 to 4½c. per lb. f.o.b. point of shipment.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—The supply of butter coming forward is still very short of demand. Dealers are still waiting for further supplies to fill quite a number of orders that they have booked. This has caused a further advance, prices now being 15 to 16c. for choice. Inferior is quoted at 10 to 11c. Creamery butter is offered in sufficient quantities to meet the demand. We quote: Early make, tubs, 17 to 18c.; late make, tubs, 18 to 20c.; prints, 19 to 20c.

CHEESE — The dull market continues, there being little or no trade, as factorymen are holding for higher prices than dealers are willing to pay. The local trade is also light. Local quotations are 9½ to 9¾c., according to month's make.

SALT.

Trade is fair, business having not yet opened thoroughly. Toronto quotations are: Carload lots, $1 per bbl., and 65c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl., and 70c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B., barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c.

FISH.

As the cooler weather approaches the demand for fish decreases, meat taking its place. We quote: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5½c. per lb.; whitefish, 7c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg; ciscoes, 75c. to $1.

PROVISIONS.

Good trade still continues. Many packers have active demand from lumber camps, causing quite a revival in this line of business. Lard is firm, selling ¼ to ½c. higher in all grades.

DRY SALTED MEATS — Long and short clear bacon, 8¾c. for carload lots, and 9 to 9¼c. per lb. for ton lots and cases; backs, 9½c.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 12½ to 13c.; rolls, 10c.; hams, large, 11 to 11½c.; 12 to 12½c. for small and 12c. for medium; shoulder hams, 9½ to 10c.; backs, 12c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD — Pure Canadian, tierces, 6½c.; tubs, 6¾c.; pails, 7c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $14.50 to $15; Canadian short-cut, $17; clear shoulder mess, $13.50.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—The wheat market is still steady. Oats and peas are easier, and barley is yet unchanged. We quote: Winter wheat, 85c.; new winter, 80c., at outside points; freights to Toronto are about 3 to 5c.; barley, 29 to 34c.; peas, 41 to 48c.; oats, 22 to 23c., Toronto freights, and No. 1 hard wheat is quoted at $1.05, Toronto freights.

FLOUR—The market is still easy, not having become settled yet, and dealers are only buying for present requirements. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $5.30; Manitoba strong bakers', $5.; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $4.75; straight roller, $4.35 to $4.50, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—Quotations remain unchanged. The volume of trade is fairly large. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.40 in bags and $3.50 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.70 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.50; split peas, $3.25; pot barley, $3.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES — Market is easier in sympathy with decline in Chicago, but prices are yet unchanged. Quotations are: Cowhides: Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS — The season is about over, not many offering. Prices are: No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Dekins, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS — Best fresh taken off are quoted at 75 to 85c.; country lots from 75c. down.

WOOL—Little or no Canada fleece wool left, all being disposed of. Pulled wools are in fair demand, and foreign wools also find a ready sale as substitute for Canada fleece. Dealers are paying 20 to 20½c. for pulled wools.

SEEDS.

There is quite a lull in the market, the number of enquiries of ten days or so ago having largely subsided. Values remain same for alsike and timothy. The low market for red clover in the United States will reduce prices here. Alsike is quoted at $3.50 to $4.50 per bushel, superior grades bringing higher figure. Red clovers, $3.10 to $3.25 per bushel. Timothy, machine threshed, 90 to $1.25, and choice unhulled brings a slightly higher figure.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

The market is unchanged, fall orders still coming in. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Canadian, 14c.; carbon, safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

Tapioca is 6 to 9d. dearer in London.

Lard is ¼c. dearer than last week for all grades.

Valencia raisins were cabled a shilling per cwt. dearer on Monday.

White Singapore pepper shows a further advance of equal to 1¾c.

The Bellona, the last direct steamer with currants for Canada, has sailed from Patras.

Spanish onions are rising in price, few holding, and the season of importing is over.

The price of cohoe salmon for future delivery has been advanced 2½c. per dozen by some of the local wholesale houses.

Advices by cable report a steady market for figs in Smyrna. Holders in England, according to advices received here, are declining to fill orders from Continental buyers at the prices they have been accepting since the opening of the season, owing to the prospect of an advance in the primary market.—N.Y. Journal of Commerce.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Oct. 7, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE general grocery market has ruled much the same during the past week, the tendency to firmness noted in values on many leading staples continuing. This, as will be noted in the appended reports, is especially marked in the case of molasses and Japan teas. Dried fruits, also, of all kinds are strong in tone, and the indications point to a maintenance of ruling values for some time to come. Canned vegetables are the same way, and, in fact, the general situation this fall is one of buoyancy. The volume of trade is generally of a satisfactory kind.

SUGAR.

Though not exceptionally active, refined sugar has contributed a fair business during the past week, both yellows and granulated receiving attention. The tone is steady and values are held steady, both at the refineries and from second hands. Outside, the raw article has been easier and still continues so, but the fact it is not believed will affect spot values, in which no change is anticipated in the immediate future, while the New York market for refined continues as strong as it is. We quote granulated at 4¼c. up to 10-bbl. lots and 4⅛c. for larger quantities, and yellows 3⅜ to 3⅝c., and creams 3¾ to 3⅞c.

SYRUPS.

There has been a fair business doing in syrups, but jobbers are having some trouble in filling orders promptly, as they find it difficult to get all the supplies they want at the refineries, which are run out of stock at the moment. Naturally under this condition prices are firm, and nothing is obtainable at the factory under 2⅛ to 2⅜c., as to grade, while jobbers ask an advance of ⅛c. per lb. on that price.

MOLASSES.

The molasses market continues to steadily gather strength, and prices of choice Barbadoes stock are held 1c. per gallon higher than they were, 26c. being asked this week for car lots of this grade. Holders of new Porto Rico are indifferent about selling at present market values, and one holder refused a bid of 27½c. the other day, demanding 28c. Stocks both in first and second hands, as already noted, are light, and as buyers are far from well supplied the predictions made last week of higher prices have strong prospects of being fulfilled.

RICE.

While prices of rice show no actual change, the market has a very firm tone, and it will not be surprising if they do advance shortly. Buyers, however, stocked up well with imported stock early in the summer, and until this is worked off prices are not likely to show any material alteration. Japan advices state that the market there continues strong, and the same intelligence comes from England, where values have a strong upward tendency. We quote: Crystal Japan, $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $5 to $5.50; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

The news from abroad continues as strong as ever regarding all kinds of spices, and prices are held very firm on any fresh orders. On spot the demand for nutmegs, cloves and pepper has been good, as the mills have been making some large purchases of supplies. In a jobbing way prices are firm as follows: Black pepper, 10 to 12c.; pure white, 13 to 17c., as to grade; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; do., best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

The coffee market at New York ruled easy recently, but there has been no special change on spot. We quote: Maracaibo, 15 to 19c.; Santos, 12 to 16c.; Rio, 12 to 16c.; Mocha, 24 to 28c., and Java, 25 to 26c.

TEAS.

There has been no change in the tea market, the firm feeling, especially in Japans, being fully maintained. Advices from Yokohama continue of the same bullish character, and the complaints about the quality of the leaf shown by the later receipts continue, one letter stating that it had become so poor that buyers did not feel disposed to operate. Ceylons are firm in this market, several round lots changing hands between 15 to 20c. and low-grade Congous at 12c. In Gunpowders, some 200 package lots changed hands between 14 and 16c. as to grade. We quote as follows: Young Hysons, 14 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15½ to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 17 to 20c. for mediums, and 35 to 65c. for higher grades.

CANNED GOODS.

Demand for canned goods continues fair, and prices are generally strong for staple vegetables and fish, supplies of which are firmly held. We quote: Tomatoes, 80 to 90c.; corn, 60 to 75c.; peas, 75c. to $1.25; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 95c.; gallons, $1.65 to $1.75; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.25 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.25 to $1.45; "Lion," $1.25 to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.20, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

There has been little actual change in the currant situation here since last report, though the primary markets have shown more or less fluctuation, the latest advices being firmer in their character. To arrive by the Avlona, prices are unchanged, as quoted last week. Patras, at 6c. in cases; Pro-

was put on the market. The tedious soaking necessary and the low quality of a great deal of the tapioca sold kept it in the background as a food article.

The introduction of "Minute Tapioca" changed all this, and people everywhere who would not touch the old tapioca are our most enthusiastic customers. "Minute Tapioca" requires no soaking, is absolutely pure and very delicious.

vincials, 5c. in barrels, 5⅜c. in cases and 5½c. in half cases, with Filiatras ⅛c. more.

There has been very little change in the Valencia raisin market since last week. The strong feeling still exists at Denia, and it looks, as we remarked last week, as if present values would hold and shipments by the second direct steamer cost as much, if not more, than those ex Avlona. To arrive by that vessel, which is expected this week, we quote: Off-stalk, 4¾c., fine off-stalk, 5¼ to 5½c.; selected, 6¼ to 6½c., and layers, 6¾ to 7c.

California raisins continue firm, as it is expected that the Pacific coast fruit will have to supply more of the United States demand this year than usual, as the new Dingley tariff operates against the importation of Mediterranean fruit. First receipts of California fruit are expected this week, and prices on them are held firm at 6¾c. for 2-crown and 7¾c. for 3-crown, and 8¾c. for 4-crown fruit.

NUTS.

There is nothing new to report in this line. We quote: Grenoble walnuts firm at 11 to 12c.; do. shelled, 20c; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; pecans, 9 to 10c.

DRIED APPLES.

There is no change in dried apples, and we quote 3 to 4c., with evaporated steady at 6c.

APPLES.

The apple market is strong and active under light receipts and a brisk demand at $2 to $3.50 per bbl. as to grade, which is an advance of 50c. per bbl. for the outside figure.

GREEN FRUIT.

There has been a fair business doing in green fruits, while receipts have not been as heavy as they were a few weeks ago. Prices generally rule as last quoted. Peaches, 30 to 75c.; plums, 30 to 50c.; pears, 20 to 50c., and grapes, 15 to 20c. per basket; bananas, 40c. to $1 per bunch, and lemons $1.50 to $3 per box; Bartlett pears, in bbls., $4 to $6.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—The tone of the egg market was weaker Monday, and prices declined, which is due to the continued liberal receipts for the season and the falling off in the demand from foreign buyers. A cable received from Glasgow stated that no Canadian stock was wanted at present and the market was dull. Locally the demand is principally for single case lots, for which 17c. is paid, but for export dealers say 15c. is the very outside that could be obtained for new laid. We quote: New laid, 15 to 16c.; choice candled, 12½ to 13½c., and culls, 10 to 11c. per dozen in round lots.

BEANS—There was no material change in the situation of the bean market. The demand is fair and prices rule firm at 80 to 90c. for primes, and at 90c. to $1 for choice hand picked per bushel.

GAME—The receipts of partridge continue small, for which there is an active demand, and a sharp advance in prices has taken place, sales to-day being made freely at 70c. per brace, which is 10 to 15c. higher than what was realized on Friday last.

POTATOES—The demand for potatoes was slow and the market rules quiet and about steady at 55 to 60c. per bag, in car lots.

PROVISIONS.

The demand for all lines of provisions in a small way continues good, and the market is moderately active and steady. We quote: Canadian pork, $15 to $16 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, at 7 to 7½c., and compound refined at 5¼ to 5½c. per lb.; hams, 12 to 14c., and bacon, 12 to 13c. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

A weaker feeling has ruled in flour since last report, and both Ontario and Manitoba grades have declined 25 to 50c. per barrel. We quote as follows: Winter wheat patents, $4.75 to $5; straight rollers, $4.50 to $4.65, and in bags, $2.15 to $2.25; best Manitoba strong bakers', $5 to $5.25; second do., $4.50 to $4.75, and low grades, $2.65 to $2.90; Hungarian patents, $5.40 to $5.65.

A fair business was done in feed and the market is moderately active and steady. Ontario bran sold at $11, and shorts at $12 per ton in bulk; Mantoba bran, bags included, at $11.50 to $12.50, and shorts at $13.50 per ton.

Business in meal continues quiet, and prices show no change. We quote: Rolled oats, $3.40 per barrel, $1.65 per bag; standard meal, $3.30 per barrel and $1.60 per bag.

BALED HAY.

There was a much steadier feeling in the hay market, owing to the improved demand and decreased receipts. No. 1 sold at $11 to $11.50, and No. 2 at $9 to $10 per ton, in car lots on track.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

Cheese continues heavy and the chances of the factorymen receiving higher prices for the August and September make that they are holding are not encouraging. The only visible effect of their policy so far is, that buyers are bidding all the way from ⅛ to ½c. less per pound than they did a fortnight ago, and seem inclined to cut down present prices. On spot the bulk of the business is confined to Quebec makes, for the reason that Ontario finest cheese are not on the market to any extent at current values. As noted yesterday transactions have been put through in Ontario August make at 9½c., but it is impossible to quote a reliable figure for Septembers. In Quebec fall makes prices range from 9 to 9¼c. and business was put through at the range to-day to a fair extent both for Bristol and Liverpool account. The cable is unchanged. We quote: Finest Ontario cheese, 9⅜ to 9½c.; finest Townships cheese, 9⅜c.; finest Quebec cheese, 9 to 9¼c.

The butter market continues quiet, for demand is not brisk. Exporters are moderate buyers from 19 to 19¼c., but find it impossible to get the quality of creamery they want at these prices. According, the amount of business passing is small. Trading was noted in western dairy stock for Maritime Provinces and also for Glasgow account at 13½ to 14c. We quote: Finest creamery, 19¼ to 19½c.; seconds, 18½ to 19c.; dairy butter, 13½ to 14c.

MONTREAL NOTES.

An advance of 50c. per barrel has been established on finest varieties of early fall apples.

The first carload of California raisins are expected here this week, and prices are firmly held as last quoted.

The first receipts of Mediterranean dried raisins, currants and prunes are expected here this week ex ss. Avlona.

Advices from primary markets on currants have been very conflicting, but recent cables quoted an advance of 3d.

Refiners' stocks of syrup are so low that they are having difficulty in executing their orders as promptly as buyers wish.

The prices on both Manitoba and Ontario grades of flour have been cut down 25 to 50c. per barrel this week in this market.

Holders of Barbadoes molasses this week demanded an advance of 1c. per gallon, and 26c. is now the ruling idea for round lots.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Oct. 7, 1897.

THE week has seen no particular stir in grocery lines. The dry goods men have been busy with their millinery openings. This is now a large business here, dealers going into the branch more largely than before. The winter port matter is a subject of general interest. It was thought the Government would again grant subsidies to steamers using Portland, Maine, as their winter port. The feeling here is strong against any further Canadian money going to build up an outside port. We look confidently toward Ontario and Quebec to aid us with their influence to see that Canadian subsidies shall only be granted to such steamers as use Canadian ports. While some lines of goods are rather easier, such as flour and cornmeal, the general movement is still upward. Pickles, both Canadian and American, show quite an advance, particularly keg goods, in which the advance is over a dollar for 10-gallon kegs. Potatoes are higher, and as the season advances, so will the price.

OIL.—There is a continued increasing demand for burning oil, largely for later shipment. Prices show no change. In other lines business is dull, particularly in lubricating and cod oil. We quote: Best American burning oil, 17½ to 18½c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 17c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 15c.; cod oil, 22 to 24c.

SALT.—There is little new to report; while there is a good demand stocks are ample and further arrivals about due. The salt having chief demand here is Liverpool coarse, the large demand for which is from the fishermen. The Liverpool fine salt has a very large sale and affects the demand for Canadian. We quote: Coarse, 47 to 50c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 85c. to $1; Canadian fine, 90c. to $1 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.50 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS—Prices tend higher, particularly tomatoes, which show an advance of 20c. above price at which most of the new were sold. Stocks here are not large, and higher prices are looked for. In corn, market is well supplied, and there is a fair stock of peas held. We quote chowder and scallop a little lower, but market is firm. There is an increased sale for domestic sardines, but chief demand is from the west. Clams show a larger sale. Gallon apples are quoted higher. There are light stocks, and later, when there is more demand, still higher prices are likely to rule. We quote: Corn, 65 to 70c.; peas, 75 to 85c.; tomatoes, 95 to $1; gallon apples, $1.90 to $2; corned beef, Canadian, $2.40 to $2.50; American, 2-lb. tins, $2.60 to $2.70; 1-lb tins, $1.40 to $1.60; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.20; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.50 to $2.75; salmon, $1.15 to $1.20; lobsters, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, $1.05 to $1.15; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.50 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scal-

GREEN FRUIT—Outside of Canadian fruit in baskets, business is rather quiet. There is nothing here in oranges, except a few West Indian of fair quality. Some good lemons are offered at firm prices. Apples show quite an advance, both English and American markets showing better returns. Best fruit, which at present is Gravensteins, is held high. Other grades have good demand, but at lower prices. Bananas are easy, and have light sale. Ontario plums are about over. Grapes are very plentiful. In cranberries, Cape Cods are firm and likely to be higher. Native bog berries are quite plentiful. We quote: Lemons, $5 to $5.50; oranges, $4 to $4.50; bananas, $1 to $2; Bartlett pears, per bbl., $3 to $4.50; tomatoes, 75c. to $1 per crate; cucumbers, $1 per bbl.; apples, $2 to $4 per bbl.; Ontario grapes, 25 to 35c.; Ontario peaches, 60 to 70c.; pears, 40 to 60c.; cranberries, Cape Cod, $7.50; do. native, $4 to $6.

DRIED FRUIT—There is but little doing. Stocks are light here. Arrival of Valencias so far has been light; prices show no change. In California raisins, quotations from the Coast are rather lower. No business has yet been done. In currants, the stock is very small, and new to arrive will cost high. Seeded muscatel raisins were introduced here last winter. They were considered rather high. Some demand is, however, now noticed for them. New dates will cost rather higher than last year. It is almost impossible to get them here for Christmas trade. New figs will cost rather lower that last season. Very little, if anything, has yet been done in new prunes. In onions, it is a matter of surprise how many more are sold than a few years ago. Canadian stock is good this year and price this week is rather lower. Evaporated apples are scarce; the higher prices are affecting the demand. Dried are firmly held. We quote as follows: Raisins, Valencias, 5½ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c., prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples, 3½ to 4c.; evaporated apples, 6 to 7c.; onions, $2.25 to $2.35 per bbl.; cocoanuts, $3 to $3.50 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.; new Valencias, layers, 6½ to 7c.

SUGAR—There is little to note. Stocks are lighter here. Market is firmly held. There is a fair, steady demand. We quote: Granulated, 4¼ to 4⅜c.; yellows, 3⅜ to 3¾c.; Paris lump, 5½ to 5¾c.; powdered, 5¼ to 5½c.

MOLASSES—There is a steady sale, but prices show no change. The feeling favors a firmer market. There is less New Orleans here than last season, though there is some demand. The difficulty is in the price at which the right grade can be bought here. We quote: Barbadoes, 22 to 24c.; Porto Rico, 27 to 29c.; New Orleans, barrels., 25 to 28c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.; Demerara, 33 to 34c.

DAIRY PRODUCE—In butter the market is still slow. For best quality there is a fair demand at quotations. Creamery has but limited sale. In eggs there is a steady demand. Buyers are particular about quality. Cheese, for which the local demand is not large, seems, if anything, to be a little easier. We quote: Dairy butter, 15 to 17c.; creamery, 19 to 21c.; prints, 20 to 20c.; cheese, 10 to 10½c.; eggs, 13½ to 14c.

FISH—The firm feeling continues. Best dry cod are in good demand at quotations. In pickled herring, rather more Grand Manan fish are offering, but owing to light stock of other grades, prices are fully maintained. Only small quantities of new smoked herring are yet to hand. Quite a few Canso pickled herring arrived this week. Pickled shad are in limited supply. We quote: Large cod, $3.40 to $3.50; medium, $3.25 to $3.30; pollock, $1.25 to $1.35; bay herring, $1.50 to $1.60 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 8 to 9c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50 to $5; boneless, 2½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.; Canso, per bbl., $5.25 to $5.50; do. half-bbl., $3 to $3.25; wolves, $2.25 half-bbl.

PROVISIONS—Lard is the active line. Our dealers are well stocked. Prices show about 1c. advance over lowest figures. Clear and mess pork and beef are all rather higher, though little change is noted here. Smoked meats are firm. Stock of mess pork is light. We quote: Clear pork, $14.50 to $15.50; mess, $13.50 to $14; plate beef, $14 to $14.50; hams, 13 to 13½c.; sides, 12 to 13c.; pure lard, 7¼c.; compound, 7 to 7¾c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—Such changes as have been noted are lower. This is particularly noticed in Ontario flours, which have been moving off all week. Stocks in the city are not large. In feed price is high and it is hard to get. There is a fair demand only. Oatmeal and oats hold their price. The latter tend higher. There is no particular demand. Cornmeal is tending lower again, and is selling freely. Beans have rather better movement. There are a good many still held here. Prices are rather easier. We quote: Manitoba flour, $6.10 to $6.20; best Ontario, $5.15 to $5.20; medium, $5 to $5.10; oatmeal, $3.65 to $3.75; cornmeal, $2.05 to $2.10; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $16 to $16.50; bran, do, $14.50 to $15; hand-picked beans, $1.20 to $1.25; prime, $1 to $1.10; oats, 34 to 36c.; hay, $11.50 to $12.50; barley, $3.15 to $3.25; round peas, $1.25; split peas, $3.25 to $3.30; yellow eye beans, $1.75; timothy seed, Canadian, $2 to $2.25; do. do., American, $1.75 to $2; clover, 8¾ to 9c.; alsike, 8½ to 9c.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

The Campobello Fish Fair will be held on the 20th.

Bridgetown, N.S., elected H. Ruggles as its first mayor this past week.

J. Edward Doyle, of the Doyle Commercial Agency of this city, is dead.

H. E. Reed, of Middleton, has sold out his grocery and general business.

Dearborn & Co. received a large consignment of jelly in 14-lb pails from R. J. Graham, of Belleville, this week.

Canadian fruit is still being received in large quantities. A. L. Goodwin, wholesale fruit merchant, received two cars this week.

W. Hanson & Son, Fairville, have assigned to C. B. Lockhart and W. C. Cross. Liabilities about $3,300; assets about $1,500.

Hon. A. F. Randolph, of the firm of A. F. Randolph & Sons, wholesale grocers, Fredericton, has given $5,000 to Acadia College, Wolfville, N.S.

Mr. James Kennedy, president of the Canada Drug Co., sailed for Liverpool this week in the ship Creedmore, of which he is owner. His son is captain.

The Customs revenue for September is a little ahead of that for September last year. The receipts this year are $79,224, while those for last year were $78,414.

THE CANADIAN GROCER learns with regret, from Smith & Tilton, agents of J. F. Morton & Co, London, Eng., of the death of Mr. Morton. The business will be carried on by the sons of the deceased.

Country pork is bringing a better price this year than last. A car of hogs was shipped from Hartland to Montreal last week and it is understood the price paid was 4c. per lb. A car of sheep was shipped from the same station during the week.

It is said W. Malcolm Mackay, of our city, is the largest lumber shipper, not only in Canada, but in the world. Out of 600 million shipped from the Maritime Provinces this year he shipped about 300 million. The total shipments this year exceeded those of last by 100 million, and of 1895 200 million. It is said in these provinces almost 100 million of manufactured lumber will be carried over till spring.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 7, 1897.

THE city is rather in gloom owing to the heavy fires that prevailed south and east of the city Friday and Saturday. Already lives are reported lost, and more will no doubt be added to the number as communication is again established. The prospects have been so bright during the entire fall that this calamity has come like a thunder-clap. In addition to loss of life the loss of property is heavy.

Trade otherwise is very much the same as last week; in fact, there are no changes of importance to report. The wheat situation is about the same. Deliveries to elevators were very large, and the closing price Saturday in the country was 89c. Macdonald tobaccos show another advance of 1c. This makes a total advance of 16c. per lb. since April last.

BUTTER—The trade is quiet. All lots being made at creameries are being sold at about 20c., dealers refusing, except in rare cases, to go over that figure. All butter being purchased is going into store. The quality of the late butter is good, but the dryness of the season has diminished the quantity. In spite of this fact, however, the make is larger than it has ever been before. Dairy is selling in round lots at 12 and 14c., according to quality.

CHEESE—Market is firm, and high prices are being paid to factories to secure balance of season's make. Prices, 9 to 9½c.

EVAPORATED FRUITS—The high prices are being maintained and prunes have not yet reached this market, though California prunes are expected this week.

GREEN FRUIT—Is scarce this week. Freestone peaches are just about over and no large lots of plums will now arrive, though small consignments come in almost daily, and it is doubtful if any more crabs will come in. Tokay grapes are lower, $2.50 per crate being accepted. Plums are still $1.25. Lemons, $5.50, with signs of easement. Ontario pears, 65 to 85c. per 20-lb. basket. Apples, $2.50 to $2.75 per bbl. Washington and Oregon pears, $1.75 to $2 per box of 40 lbs.

CURED MEATS—Market has eased a very little in the east, but it does not yet affect the market here. There is absolutely no change in prices from last writing.

GRENOBLE WALNUT HARVEST.

Late advices state that there will be a good crop of Grenoble walnuts, and that it will be harvested somewhat earlier than usual. The first shipment from Havre will probably be made about the end of this month, arriving here about a week later. The first shipments of new crop Naples walnuts for New York are expected to be made some time this week from Sorrento.

CATALOGUES, BOOKLETS, ETC.

We have received from H. Roberts & Co., Strathclair, Man., a copy of their attractive fall circular. It is printed in blue and gold on cardboard of a delicate pink color, and is made up as a folder of four pages. The front cover bears the title, and but two, though very suggestive, words, "Good Times." On the back is displayed the firm name, while the two inside sheets contain the short, pithy statement of the firm's intended business during the coming season. Enclosed is also a coupon offering a ticket to an agricultural exhibition to be held in the Strathclair Hall this week to every person buying $1 worth of goods in the firm's store.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Manager Madden, of the W. Ryan Co., Limited, is making arrangements for a week or two's recreation from business.

Wm. H. Dunn has resigned the Montreal agency of the Pure Gold Mfg. Co. in order that he may devote more time to the sale of "Enameline" stove polish. Mr. Fred. D. Hughes has been appointed to succeed Mr. Dunn.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol offer an assortment of Van Camp's macaroni and cheese, in tins, also their pork and beans and catsup.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

This department has become so popular that many more notices than there is space for are received every week. In future only important items of information will be inserted. Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

D. GUNN, BROS. & CO. report an active demand for all smoked meats, especially hams, the latter still selling at special prices.

Warren Bros. & Co. are expecting a shipment of canned sea chicken.

Perkins, Ince & Co. have a shipment of California apples arriving.

Warren Bros. & Co. have a large shipment of Valencia raisins arriving.

A shipment of Crosse & Blackwell's new candied peels is to hand for Perkins, Ince & Co.

Warren Bros. & Co. are in receipt of another shipment of green Rio coffee.

Perkins, Ince & Co. have a shipment of "Crescent" brand Valencia raisins just to hand.

Another shipment of fine New Orleans molasses is in store with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

A hot fire does not burn off "Quickshine" stove polish like it does cheap paste polishes.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. are developing a large trade for dairy and creamery butter in pound prints.

Mainetty's Sultana raisins, 4 and 5 crown, and extra choice, have just arrived with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

Warren Bros. & Co. have been appointed agents in Toronto for Van Camp's canned goods and tomato catsup.

T. B. Escott & Co: "Fine Filiatra currants arrived over a week ago, and they are going out very rapidly."

This is fall, and you want the best stove polish and stove pipe varnish. Then write the Alpha Chemical Co.

Advance shipments of figs, Mainetty's layers, from choice to superfine, have been received by the Eby, Blain Co.

T. Kinnear & Co. have a shipment of New Orleans molasses in stock, which they report they are offering at reasonable prices.

The Eby, Blain Co. have a special line of Smyrna Natural figs, "Diova," in 35-lb. boxes in store—the first on the market.

T. Kinnear & Co. report the arrival of a shipment of new currants in barrels, half-barrels, cases and half cases; also mat figs.

The F. F. Dalley Co., Limited, of Hamilton, write: "Owing to the great demand for 'English Cream' baking powder in glass bottles, our stock of jars has been entirely used up and the glass factory has not been able to supply us with jars as fast as we wanted them. This put us back for a few days with some of our customers and we hope they will bear with us, and all orders will be filled just as promptly as possible."

Perkins, Ince & Co. have a consignment of Rio coffee due to arrive in a couple of weeks which is showing exceptional value.

T. B. Escott & Co. are offering a handsome wood bracket for papers, beautifully finished, with a pound of "Lion" baking powder.

Rutherford, Marshall & Co. state that a small item of theirs in THE CANADIAN GROCER was the means of attracting much business.

T. A. Lytle & Co. are well stocked with jams and jellies of this season's make. They're ready, too, to ship tomato catsup in large or small quantities.

Rutherford, Marshall & Co. are experiencing a brisk demand for all grades of butter. They report themselves willing to buy or receive on consignment.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, report that shredded whole wheat biscuit, which they introduced recently, has become permanently established as a staple among good retailers.

The Alpha Chemical Co. wish to remind the trade that they have a heavy stock of ink and mucilage that they are offering special prices on to large buyers. Write for samples and prices.

T. Kinnear & Co. report they secured new season's Japan tea at a time when the market was at its lowest point, and consequently that they are in a position to offer better value than they otherwise would.

"We are constantly shipping car lots of Windsor salt, fine and dairy, direct from the factory, and the number of re-orders we receive shows that the trade appreciate it as a quick and profitable seller," say the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

The Alpha Chemical Co. would remind the trade generally that they can always rely on getting fresh goods by purchasing goods bearing their name. "We allow no goods to get stale or shabby with the wholesale trade," they write.

The Alpha Chemical Co. inform us that they are rapidly booking orders for "Quickshine" stove polish and stove pipe varnish for fall trade, and as there promise to be large sales in these lines this fall, intending purchasers are requested to send in their orders early.

MR. CHAPUT OFF FOR EUROPE.

Mr. Charles Chaput, president of the Montreal Wholesale Grocers' Association and member of the Board of Trade Council, left on Thursday for New York, where he will take steamer for Europe. Mr. Chaput was accompanied by Mrs. and Miss Chaput and expects to be away about six months. In that interval he will visit England, France and the countries of the Mediterranean, spending six weeks in Algiers.

HOW A PANIC WAS AVERTED.

SHE came home with a lagging step and a heavy heart. In vain had she striven for weeks and even months to stem the tide of ruin that had slowly but surely overwhelmed them.

Her splendid business powers, her clear head and 20th century progressiveness had long ago been recognized by her husband, and their growing mercantile business had been intrusted absolutely to her control, while he had devoted himself to their home and children.

For years she had managed the business without even a suggestion from him, and her splendid financial ability and energy had built up a trade second to none in the city, but somehow—she could scarcely understand it—disaster had overtaken her and everything was lost.

For herself she did not care, but her heart was torn with pity for the tender and devoted husband who was always waiting for her at home like a ray of sweet sunshine, and it was upon him she dreaded to see the blow fall.

When she entered the house and came forward for his usual kiss, he fancied she looked more worried than usual, and said:

"Come, dear, don't bother about that horrid old business. See, I've made you some nice hot waffles for supper. Sit down and rest and I'll tell you the cutest thing the baby said to-day."

How could she tell him? And yet it must be done.

After supper she took him on her knee and ran her fingers carelessly through the tendrils of his whiskers.

"Little one," she said, in a strange, harsh voice, "you must bear up and be brave. I have some bad news to tell you. The business has gone under, and every dollar we had in the world is lost. Except the roof over our heads, which is in your name, we have nothing—the poorest beggar that walks the streets has as much. Can you ever forgive me for bringing this misery upon you?"

She bowed her head upon her hands, and, strong woman that she was, a tear trickled through her fingers. How would her gently-nurtured, delicate husband receive the sad tidings? She dared not look at him.

She felt him slip from her lap and heard him cross the room. As he returned she looked up. He was bringing in his hands a large, old-fashioned tea urn that had belonged to his mother. He took the top from the urn and poured out upon the table a large pile of money—gold and silver coins and rolls of bank notes.

"See," he said with a sweet smile, "here is $3,967.45. That'll kind of ease things up a little, won't it, old girl?"

"Where—where did it come from?" she gasped.

"It's all ours," he said; "yours and mine. For years I have been a silent partner in the ice-cream saloon next door to your place of business."—New York Journal.

CALIFORNIA RAISINS EALIER.

Up to the present time forward sales of new crop California loose muscatel raisins have, according to advices from the Coast and statements made by receivers at this end, fallen considerably short of the quantity of new goods under engagement at the same time a year ago. Although the spot market is virtually rare of California raisins and competition with foreign growers has been curtailed, partly because of the higher rates of duty and partly because of the comparatively higher prices ruling in the foreign primary markets, comparatively little forward business in California new crop has yet been done. There has been an almost total absence of speculative buying. The comparatively high prices demanded this season, coupled with the apparent indifference of consumers, is said to be responsible for this. Now that the season is advancing and the consuming demand continues to be sluggish, holders in California are said to be becoming anxious to make sales, and, with this object in view, have been disposed to make concessions, especially on October shipments. Some buyers who have wants to cover have taken advantage of the concession, but the majority, it is stated, are still holding off in the expectation of a further change in their favor.

The lack of important demand from the consuming trade has, it is reported, caused some uneasiness to the Coast sellers and, unless there is some improvement in this respect at an early date, it is intimated that the practice of making consignments throughout the eastern trade may be resumed. However, it is believed by some of the best informed in the trade that the very unsatisfactory experiences of the year before last will deter shippers from making use of this method of placing goods except as a last resort.—N.Y. Journal of Commerce.

"Shinon," the metal polish being introduced by Lucas, Steele & Bristol, is largely used by clubs, hotels and yachtsmen in the United States. The Hamilton Yacht Club recommends it highly.

HARD ON DEPARTMENT STORES.

It seems that with the advent of higher prices for most everything in the grocery line, the big department stores have pulled in their "horns" somewhat, for there were, with a single exception, no groceries advertised in the whole page "ads" of the so-called "Big Stores" in the last Sunday newspapers; and the exception only offered the usual bargains in liquor, coffee, tea, and an obscure soup in cans. We will gamble that similar goods can be had as cheap, and better, in the first grocery store we come to. With flour at $6.35 a barrel, sugar at 5⅛c. a pound, tomatoes at 95c. a dozen and oatmeal and farinaceous goods advanced 50 per cent., there seems small satisfaction in faking people to the belief that they are offering these goods at cost.—Retail Grocers' Advocate, New York.

A LIQUID POLISH.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol, Hamilton, have added a new liquid polish to their line of goods. It has been given the suggestive name of "Shinon," and is specially adapted for use on metal exposed to the air or great heat, giving a brilliant lustre with little labor. The trade is assured that it contains no acids, grease or grit. The polish is put up in cans ranging in size from 1-6 pint to a gallon.

HAMILTON GROCERS IN LINE.

The Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association appointed a committee on Tuesday to draft a resolution to the Government protesting against the exemption of Government employes from garnishment. It was also instructed to ask the co-operation of the Toronto and London corporations.

FLORIDA'S ORANGE CROP.

THE prospects are bright for the reappearance on the market of the once familiar and popular Florida orange. Since the disastrous freeze a few years ago, which destroyed nearly all the trees as well as the crop in the peninsula, they have almost entirely disappeared. For a time none were shipped north, and last year Florida exported only 146,000 boxes. This gave California her opportunity, and it seemed for a time that her oranges had completely supplanted the Florida product. California is preparing to ship the largest crop she has ever produced this year, and it is estimated that 4,000,000 boxes will come east from the Pacific coast. A great many of these will be exported, as they have been received abroad with much favor.

California pins her faith to her great seedless navel orange, and claims that it has permanently supplanted the Florida fruit. This is denied by the Florida growers and dealers, however, who say that as soon as their fruit, of which they expect to ship 500,000 boxes this year and over 1,000,000 boxes next year, reappears, it will quietly take its place again, though, perhaps, at lower prices, on account of the California competition.

There is very little probability of a large importation of oranges from the West Indies and Mexico. A number of Florida growers went to Jamaica after the freeze and set out groves there, but it is understood that the Dingley tariff will force them to ship their fruit to Europe, where it will come in competition with the California crop. The same conditions apply to Mexico. Some time ago a Mexican fruit dealer contracted with a Florida box-making concern for 200,000 orange boxes in which to ship fruit to the United States. After the passage of the Dingley bill this order was cancelled, but afterward renewed for only 40,000 boxes. This number of boxes, it is understood, will be shipped to northern ports.—N.Y. Commercial Enquirer.

A CORRECTION.

Among the list of factories of Heinrich Franck, Sohne & Co., of Germany, which appeared in last week's issue, the name of the factory in Hungary was given as "Koehan." This was an error. It should have read "Kaschau."

"Circle" tea is a steady seller. Not a day passes without a shipment being made. This is what Lucas, Steele & Bristol report.

"Yes," say Lucas, Steele & Bristol, "we delivered our new currants and raisins last week; quality is away ahead of last year."

CARELESS FRUIT PACKERS.

It is understood the Dominion Government has decided not to assist fruit exporters who do not pack their fruit properly.

We are told in Holy Writ that if a man does not work neither shall he eat. So if a man will not take the trouble to prepare his fruit for export neither should the Government assist him to get his product across the Atlantic.

In the trial shipments which have been made to Great Britain the fruit which was picked at the right time and properly packed arrived in good condition, while the contrary was the case where the precautions had been ignored.

Careless packers, like bad companions, should be avoided.

DID BUT LITTLE DAMAGE.

There is not much around the warehouse of H. P. Eckardt & Co. to indicate a fire was there two weeks ago. The damage done was small compared with what it was first thought it would be. In the office, sample and shipping rooms no signs of the fire are to be seen. Business is being carried on as usual; in fact there was, fortunately, not one day's interference with it, the fire having been confined to the rear of the building.

SUGAR PRODUCTION.

THE last number of The Louisiana Planter publishes some interesting statistics compiled by a French technical journal, called Le Journal des Fabricants de Sucre, which furnish some very important data concerning the rapid growth of the sugar industry.

The figures below indicate the production of beet sugar and cane sugar, and their totals in thousands of tons for the ten seasons enumerated are as follows:

Season.	Beet.	Cane.	Total.
1887-88	2,407	2,541	4,948
1888-89	2,708	2,359	5,067
1889-90	3,563	2,138	5,701
1890-91	3,640	2,597	6,237
1891-92	3,445	2,785	6,230
1892-93	3,344	2,769	6,113
1893-94	3,786	3,260	7,046
1894-95	4,691	3,137	7,828
1896-97	4,773	2,432	7,204

"It will be seen," says The Planter, "that the production of 1887-8 was about 5,000,000 tons, while nearly 8,000,000 were reached in 1894-5, the last year, 1896-7, indicating a production of 7,250,000 tons." The figures, moreover, show that the increase has been entirely in beet sugar, the production of cane being actually less at the end of the decade than at the commencement. This gradual ascendancy of beet sugar is shown very clearly by the following figures, also taken from the French paper above quoted:

	Beet. Per cent.	Cane. Per cent.
1893-94	53.7	46.3

It will thus be seen that two-thirds of the sugar production of the world are now of beet sugar. The Cuban war has greatly cut down the cane-sugar production.

PRAISES THE CASH SYSTEM.

Mr. John Barclay, general merchant, Oakville, Ont., has just issued his fall circular. It is a bright advertisement, and shows evidence of being issued from an enterprising firm. In it there is a significant paragraph which reads: "Our experience of the cash system during the past three years has demonstrated it as the fairest and most advantageous to both buyer and seller. Let us take you a little into our confidence here. Selling for cash enables us to buy for cash at the lowest available prices. It secures having brought to notice any article offering at less than current prices, and obtains a liberal trade discount—advantages which we share with our customers."

Another paragraph reads: "A word about buying away from home. The gain is more imaginary than real. Loyalty to local trade would benefit both purchaser and seller."

A DIRECT BOAT.

The Coast Railway Co. is pushing matters along the south shore in real earnest. Between four and five hundred Italian laborers are expected to arrive from Boston the last of the week and will be added to the construction gang already at work. The right of way for the fourth ten-mile section of the road has been cleared and work on the fifth section was commenced Wednesday. It is expected the road will be in operation as far as East Pubnico early in October. The bridge at Hipson's Brook has been completed, the ballasting has been all completed to the brook and the track laid as far as the thirty-first mile. The company contemplate running a fast passenger and freight steamer between Shelburne and Halifax early next season, giving daily service. This boat will not make any stops, but will run direct. Another boat, probably the City of St. John, will be used as a local boat and will ply between Halifax and Shelburne, stopping at shore ports. It is expected that with the line in operation to Shelburne, and with fast steamship connection between Shelburne and Halifax, the company will control a large share of the traffic. The route will be well advertised, and we cannot see why it should not be successful.—Yarmouth News.

HAS FAITH IN ROSSLAND.

W. Boulter, Mayor of Picton, Ont., was in the city several days last week inspecting several of the mines, and was much impressed with the general air of prosperity and the future outlook of Rossland. Being an outsider he could look at it impartially. He says that in the past too much booming of properties not thoroughly investigated had a tendency to retard the proper development of this great mining centre, but he thinks, to a great extent, this is now over, and a better feeling and understanding now prevails in the east regarding the richness of many well developed mines, which have proved to investors their wisdom in putting their faith in the Trail Creek district, and from information he has received more capital will be invested here. Mr. Boulter is the head of the large canning industry at Picton, Ont., and feels confident from a business standpoint that Rossland will be one of the great mining cities of British Columbia.—Miner, Rossland.

A NEW tariff on gas went into force in Winnipeg on Saturday. It is $2.50 per 1,000 cubic feet, with 10 per cent. off for illumination, while to those using gas as fuel the discount is 20 per cent. where the quantity used does not exceed 1,000 cubic feet, and when between 1,000 and 2,000, 25 per cent., and in excess of 2,000, 30 per cent.

Pedlars in Springwells township, Ont., will be charged $15 in future.

The growing tobacco in the vicinity of Duart, Ont., has been badly damaged by frosts.

The failure of the Labrador fishery is complete. The catch is below even that of last year.

Parkhill's basket factory is being run night and day to supply baskets for the fruit trade.

It is estimated that up to the beginning of the week six million bushels of wheat have been marketed in Manitoba.

A number of Hudson's Bay Co.'s officials are at present in the city from northern posts. Among the number are: J. K. Macdonald, chief trader, Norway House; Geo. McKenzie, of Abitibbi, north of Lake Temiscamingue, in the Ottawa River district, and John Christie, accountant at Isle a la Crosse, who has been spending two months with his parents in Ontario, and leaves for home Friday.—Free Press, Winnipeg.

Canadian frozen salmon is arriving in London, and sells at 1s. the pound, Scotch salmon costing from 1s. 8d. upwards.

There is a big falling off in the Ottawa lumber export trade. For the month of September there was a decrease of about $100,000.

W. Calcott, merchant and postmaster, Talbotville, has purchased the Smith Hotel at that place and will convert it into a general store.

The general stock of A. G. Lang, of Hespeler, valued at $1,846, was sold to Amanda Lang, of that place. The price paid was 46 cents on the dollar.

The stock and fixtures, valued at $1,057, of Mr. J. Wilkinson, boot and shoe dealer, of Windsor, were sold by auction. The stock brought 55 cents on the dollar.

Exports of tea from the ports of Yokohama and Hiogo to the United States this season, up to August 29, have been 25,989,589, including 9,916,564 to New York, 12,425,449 to Chicago, and 3,647,576 to San Francisco. Shipments to Canada for the the same period have been 5,817,471; total, 31,807,060, against 26,400,578 for the same period last year, and 37,412,467 do. in 1895.

The California olive crop, it is reported, will be shorter this season than was expected. The output will probably not fall much, if any, below that of last year, however, owing to the increased acreage coming into bearing.

Fire destroyed the Norwood cheese factory on Monday evening. About $2,800 worth of cheese, which was insured for $1,500, was lost by the Patrons. The building and machinery were insured for $1,200, which will almost cover the loss.

A PAYING FARM.

One of the best crops that has been reported this year was that of Mr. A. J. Cotton, of Treherne, who threshed from 475 acres over 12,350 bushels of No. 1 hard wheat. The yield on the whole field averaged 26 bushels to the acre. In addition to this Mr. Cotton succeeded in marketing quite a large bulk of the grain early in the season, and will realize from it about $9,500. He will clear by the crop $6,000 or $7,000 for his year's work.—Free Press, Winnipeg.

LIVER SAUSAGE WITH ONIONS.

This sausage, which is much liked for restaurants and saloons, is prepared as follows : For 100 pounds use 28 pounds liver cut into slices, well washed and scalded a little with hot water ; 20 pounds cooked soft lard (preferably gut lard); 12 pounds bacon cut into fine dice, but slightly boiled ; 40 pounds lean meat. For this latter use one part soft-boiled beef lungs, one part well scalded calf's lungs or hearts, one part boiled meat of calf's head, calf's neck or breast, the latter not too soft. First chop the liver fine, then chop 10 or 12 onions, boil the gut fat, cut into pieces about bean size ; now roast the onions slowly in the gut lard in an enameled dish until the onions are light yellow, keeping the mass constantly stirred. Add the roast to the whole mass and chop all up fine. Spice with 53 ounces fine salt, 5 3-10 ounces white ground pepper, 2¾ ounces finest ground marjoram, 1 ounce mace rubbed fine. Mix and knead into the mass. The bacon is scalded ; more can be taken if desired. The mass when finished will be perfectly white. Fill into beef middle guts or bung guts, or into white hog casings of desired width and length. Boil at about 210 degs. F. for 25 to 30 minutes. Leave in cold water after boiling until perfectly cool, renewing the water constantly. The lungs, heart, kidneys, etc., used for this sausage should be well watered the day before and scrupulously cleaned.—National Provisioner.

HAD KEPT STORE FOR 30 YEARS.

He was, says an exchange, a man who never minced his words. He ran a wholesale store in one part of the town and a retail department in the other. In the retail department he employed a clerk who had decided and conscientious objections to tobacco and cigars. Still the store carried them and he sold them, but not without an inward protest. He thought it over and finally nailed a sign in a conspicuous position on a post in the centre of the store. The sign read :

NO SMOKING ALLOWED HERE.

It hadn't been long up when the proprietor strolled in and began glancing around with a critical eye. After a time he noticed the new sign. Stepping closer, he folded his hands behind him and regarded its bold lettering attentively, Then his hands reached out, mechanically tore the new sign from its place and ripped it into a dozen pieces. "Boy," he said, with the utmost calmness, "I've kept store for thirty years without a sign like that and I guess we'll try it a little longer."

FOOLED THE DETECTIVE.

A detective in a well-known retail store is engaged in the mental process of kicking himself whenever he thinks of a certain transaction which took place last week. At a time of day when the store was crowded the detective, who was keeping a sharp look-out for evil-doers, was approached by a well-dressed, intelligent-looking man, who informed him that he was employed as detective in another store and had followed a shoplifter from his firm's store to the present place, where they would find her at the glove counter stealing gloves. "Let her alone," said the strange detective, "and when she loads up I will follow her home, and we then can make a big haul." Consent was given to this plan, and the shoplifter stole two or three hundred dollars' worth of goods unmolested. Then she went out, followed by the strange detective. That was the last ever seen of the pair, and the detective wonders how on earth he was duped so easily.—Philadelphia Record.

CRANBERRY CROP A FAILURE.

THE growers of cranberries in Barnstaple and Plymouth counties are very much discouraged over the prospects of this season's harvest, which will not be much, if any, over that of a year ago.

Chief among the causes of the failure of the crop is the damage done by worms, which this year got in their work more disastrously than ever before.

The crop of one bog owner, who three months ago figured on a harvest to the amount of $30,000, is a total failure. There are many similar instances wherein the loss will be somewhat smaller.

The work of picking has already begun on many of the bogs, but the growers are seriously handicapped by the exceedingly warm weather. With the thermometer ranging in the eighties, it is no time to pick the fruit, and yet, the berries must be harvested to save the crop. If the weather continues as it has the past week the larger crop of the "early blacks" will be almost an entire loss.

The later berry, which comes to its full maturity the latter part of September, is not what it should be. The berries are much smaller than they should be at this time. Yet, with the early blacks at a loss this year, there is every prospect for those who ship the later berry to the markets getting good prices for the first quality of stock, and with this crop much smaller than in years past they feel quite hopeful to get through the season about whole.

The failure of the crop will be materially felt among the thousands who are annually engaged in picking.—New England Grocer.

CONTRARIES IN CLERKS.

A clerk in one of the branch stores of Lipton, the English grocer and provision dealer, was recently so persuasive and convincing in his praise of a certain specimen of poultry that he succeeded in selling the article to his employer, who ordered it sent to his residence. The clerk's astonishment when he found that his supposed customer was no other than Mr. Lipton himself quickly changed to satisfied delight upon receiving an increase of salary.

Another instance not quite so pleasant to the clerk contains an important lesson. A few words of quiet instruction given by Mr. Wanamaker as he walked through his store met with the following reply: "Mr. Wanamaker, it is impossible to keep this department in the order that you wish."

Mr. Wanamaker smiled and said nothing, but the following day a more efficient clerk held the place.

THE HOP SITUATION.

Mr. John A. Morton, of Toronto, has recently made his annual tour of the hop districts of Canada and the United States, and reports a considerable reduction in acreage under cultivation in Ontario, but a larger average yield will be gathered from the well cultivated plantations. The crop on neglected "yards" will be light, but the quality will be choice if well cared for, as owing to excessive rains there is danger of slack, heated, or scorched hops. Similar conditions exist in New York. Oregon and Washington crops have suffered from "black mould" blight, and the quality in those states is expected to be poor. California, however, has had a choice quality of crop.

QUEER IN SHAPE, BUT PLENTIFUL.

John Broder tells a remarkable story of a most remarkable fish which was caught by some one out of the Kaweah River, near the river bridge, on the mineral King Road. According to the story, the fish was in the shape of a Maltese cross, having three tails and one head, and was covered with dark spots about the size of a 10-cent piece. It is unnecessary to go into further details in describing this fish. If you will only bait your hook with a gallon jug of 50-cent whiskey you can catch them any place.—"Powhot" in Visalia Delta.

THE ART OF WINDOW DRESSING.

WE will devote this week's talk to a few suggestions about a branch of window dressing which is very seldom, if ever, utilized by a retail grocer, and that is the working up of some local feature into a window display, says a writer in Grocery World. Occasionally one sees in a drug store window a local baseball or football game worked out with little dolls, but the retail grocer, as a rule, sticks very close to the conventional window-display idea, which means the arranging in his window of the various goods which he handles.

We would not advise making displays such as these very frequently, because, while if properly made they invariably bring people to the window, their direct selling power is nowhere near as great as that of a display made actually of goods. Occasionally, however, the taking off of some local hit in a window display will prove both interesting and profitable.

The way to make these local displays is this: Suppose that in your town has been played a baseball or football game, or other sports, which, as is often the case in a country town, attracts universal local attention. Very often these games and other similar sports become the talk of the town for the time being. If you were to use this idea, for example, getting a number of little dolls, which you can get at or through any toy store, and, arranging your window in the semblance of a baseball diamond, placing the players in their proper positions and filling the grand stand, and then labeling the dolls with the names of the local players, the effect will be amusing and interesting, and everybody who passed your window would stop and examine. The effect of a window display like this is, of course, not direct. There is no inducement in it to buy any particular line of goods, but it is all in the line of that indirect advertising which lies in getting one's store continually talked about.

One of the best window displays of this character which the writer ever saw was made by a druggist in a town of about 5,000 inhabitants. There was in the town a local character who was well known to everybody, and as he was the stoutest man for miles around he was more or less the butt of the town, although in a perfectly good-natured way. In almost every town there are characters of this kind. They are seldom taken seriously, and everything they do or say is laughed at.

It happened that this particular man visited Philadelphia on one occasion and accidently missed the last train home at night. Instead of going to an hotel he walked the streets until morning. On this basis the druggist mentioned worked out an exceedingly spicy window display, and labelled it "Fatty ——'s trip to Philadelphia." The display gave the different scenes of the trip, the getting left on the train and the various other incidents which went to make up an occasion which long gave amusement to the people of the town. The display was worked out with little dolls, dressed appropriately, and the druggist told me at the time that the whole display did not cost over $5. The effect of it upon the the people of the town was electrical. Day and night a laughing crowd surrounded the window, and the store certainly must have secured considerable business in consequence.

This will explain the dominant idea of a display which takes advantage of some local feature. Of course, it must be borne in mind that the hit which is illustrated by the display must be of a character which will be readily recognized by everyone.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

Breakfast Foods.

In my rambles the other morning I noticed in many of the retailers' windows displays of breakfast foods. On investigation I found the trade in this line of goods to be picking up as the cool weather advances. Some dealers find the trade in foods put up in packages to be larger than usual, but the general opinion is that the meals, etc., will sell more readily in bulk during the fall and winter months. During the summer the foods put up in packages were more liable to keep well, their air-tight qualities preventing moths from getting into them, and as a consequence sold better.

Large Pumpkin and Squash.

Mr. J. F. Yates, grocer, Queen street east, Toronto, has had on exhibition lately two remarkable products of the farm of his brother, A. Yates, Simcoe County, Ont., in the shape of a mammoth pumpkin weighing 172 lbs. and a great squash of 130 lbs. weight. These are all the more remarkable from the fact that Simcoe County is many miles north of Toronto, and the spring is much more backward there than in the southern counties. Mr. Yates also states that neither pumpkin nor squash were "fed." It is often the custom with growers to feed a "giant" with milk, the method being to stick one end of a piece of yarn through the stem of the pumpkin vine and to put the other end in the milk, when the plant sucks the milk through the yarn. Watermelons are often fed in this way with water, a good-sized plant absorbing as much as a pint a day.

Neat Stores.

Retail grocers, as a rule, keep their stores in a neat and cleanly condition, but a few (generally none too successful) grocers have not yet become cognizant of the fact that a dainty housewife likes to deal in a dainty store.

KURMA

Ceylon Tea

THE DAVIDSON & HAY, LIMITED Wholesale Agents Toronto

One cannot be surprised that a woman particular about her kitchen's cleanliness is not willing to deal with a retailer whose store bears many unmistakable signs of carelessness or uncleanliness.

Business Tact. All men are not endowed with an equal amount of that blessing of the business man, tact; but many do not make use of what they have got. In these days of bargain hunting and rate cutting it is hard to keep a good number of regular customers and yet harder to regain a lost customer. It is also hard to keep some customers who run up a credit account to buy all they can pay cash for in the same store. Yet these are not impossibilities. One dealer who does not cut rates has a habit of taking his customers into his confidence, and giving them full information as to wholesale prices, etc., and showing how, if a dealer cuts rates on one article, he makes it on another. This dealer says his customers are numerous enough to make a good business, and they are smart, wide-awake people who buy the best goods, thus making their business a profitable one.

THE RAMBLER.

NEW SCHEME TO SELL LEMONS.

Consumption of lemons can be largely increased by a plan suggested by a correspondent of a New York fruit-trade paper, who is either an enthusiast on the value of the lemon or who becomes sarcastic because others write so much of its uses. He says : "We call upon 10,000,000 individuals to use one lemon each per day, which would ensure the sale annually of 10,000,000 boxes of this delicious citrus fruit, which has the immense advantage over other fruits in the use it can be put to : as a beverage in hot and cold water, with or without sugar, plain without any water, a little alcohol, if recommended by the doctor ; wines of all kinds ; on oysters, in their season ; as an addition to the lettuce or tomato salad, and, in fact, in nearly every style, and a lemon per diem would not involve a large amount of expenditure.

JOBBER AND RETAILER.

MR. W. H. Preston, ex-president of the National Credit Men's Association of the United States, in a recent speech, gave utterance to some timely thoughts. He, after years' service in both the capacity of retailer and of jobber, could speak without bias either way.

The following are some principles he emphasized : "The jobber is an economic necessity from the fact that his buying in carloads from different factories, and placing them at some central distributing point enabled him to sell an assorted order of goods in small quantities at a better rate than the retailer could buy in small quantities direct from the different factories. Then the manufacturer needed an outlet for his goods upon which he can depend, and the jobber with his traveling men in every part of the country is a much more reliable outlet than the retailer would be.

"The jobber is under obligations to his natural outlet, the retailer, not to sell to the consumer direct, or even to catalogue stores, who through unfair methods of advertising, etc., are doing an all-round injury to the trade.

"Each retailer should be patriotic to the place wherein he does his business, should help build it up, and influence others to do the same. All money sent away weakens, all spent inside strengthens, the resources of the town, thus decreasing or increasing the possibilities for business.

"The organization of the retailers is advisable, not for the purpose of class legislation or persecution of any bodies, but for the adoption and encouragement of better business methods and the education of the consumer to loyalty to home industries and enterprises and also to the improvement, if not abolition, of the credit system.

"Exchange of goods for farm produce is an unbusinesslike system that should be ended at once. It would be of advantage also if all prices were put on a cash basis, and if credit must be had, an open and legitimate charge of interest should be made.

"Legislation is not necessary nor advisable in dealing with department stores, as the general stores are all department stores to a great extent. Unless the retailer convinces the consumer of the ultimate disadvantage of the catalogue stores, these stores will continue to encroach upon the business of the retailer."

THE SAFETY OF THE BAY OF FUNDY.

The following, addressed to the editor, recently appeared in The St. John, N.B., Daily Telegraph :

"SIR,—We are much interested in the efforts you are making to establish the reputation of St. John, N.B., as a safe winter port.

"You have drawn special attention to the fact that during the winter months fogs are not so frequent as during the summer months. We are very much pleased to be able to make the statement that during the summer months, since the year 1878 to this time, in the year 1897, we have shipped from the head of the Bay of Fundy 1,516 cargoes of manufactured and unmanufactured plaster. During this period we know of only one vessel coming to us for cargo which has been lost in the Bay of Fundy, and only one outward bound vessel from us which met with any mishap on the way down the bay.

"With this summer record, and all you claim for the winter season, one can feel justified in thinking that the Bay of Fundy is safe at all seasons for experienced and careful navigators.

"We are especially interested in the establishment of regular steamship service between St. John and British ports, as we look for increased opportunity for business both in manufactured and unmanufactured goods on the other side of the Atlantic in the near future.

"We remain, dear sir,

"Yours respectfully,

"Albert Manufacturing Co.,

"C. J. OSMAN.

IMPORTANT CHANGE IN COTTONS.

THE most interesting subject in trade circles recently has been the withdrawal of D. Morrice & Co. from the selling agency of the Dominion Cotton Mills Co. On Sept. 21 a circular was sent out to the wholesale houses of Canada doing business with the company, announcing the change and stating that their salesmen were now on the road and would wait on the trade.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

Behind this simple announcement there is endless discussion, many rumors, and a good deal of surprise in the trade generally. As far as The Review is able to ascertain the facts, it seems that the Dominion Company felt that the commission paid to the selling agents was larger than the company itself could sell the goods for. A proposition was made to reduce the amount of the commission, but no arrangement could be come to, and the selling agents resigned. The Dominion Company at once engaged two salesmen, Messrs. Cochran and Hardy, and will engage, it is said, three more. Offices were opened at 316 St. James street, Montreal, and Mr. C. R. Whitehead was appointed general manager to succeed Mr. James Jackson, who resigned. Mr. Leslie Craig, the secretary-treasurer, devotes his time to the financial management, while Mr. Whitehead controls the manufacturing entirely.

It was rumored in Montreal and elsewhere that the Dominion Cotton Co. proposed to sell direct to the trade, but this has since been denied. There appears, if rumors can be relied upon, to have been some discussion on this point before Messrs. Morrice resigned the selling agency. But it was not any difference of opinion as to this policy that led to the change in selling. In fact, positive assurances have been given to the jobbing trade that there will not be any direct dealings with the retail. Certain wholesalers were prepared to unite in not selling Canadian white and grey cottons if the retail trade were dealt with direct. For the present, therefore, there is nothing new in the situation, except that the Dominion Company is selling by its own representatives. The seven mills controlled by the Dominion Cotton Co. are as follows: Hochelega, Magog (where the Canadian prints are made), Coaticook, Brantford, Kingston, Windsor, N.S., Moncton, N.B., and Halifax, N.S. (where prints are also made). When this combination of mills was effected it was arranged that they should manufacture white and grey cottons and not compete with the mills grouped under the name of the Canadian Colored Cotton Mills Co., the selling agents of which are still D. Morrice & Co.

NO COMPETITION JUST NOW.

The break, therefore, does not necessarily mean competition. At the same time there is always a possibility of this. The mills controlled by the Canadian Cotton Co., the selling agency of which D. Morrice & Co. still retain, are St. Croix (where colored goods are made), Merritton and the Lybster Cotton Co. (making cotton blankets, etc.), the Canada Cotton Co.'s and Stormont Co.'s mills at Cornwall, the Ontario Cotton Co. and Hamilton Cotton Co. (situated at Hamilton), the Dundas Cotton Co. and the Gilson Cotton Co. at Marysville, N.B. (where flannelettes are made). Of the above mills those at Dundas and the Lybster mill at Merritton are closed down under the arrangement with the syndicate. These mills could be used for the making of grey cottons by the addition of bleacheries, so that the Canadian Colored Cotton Co. could easily compete with the other concern in making white and grey cottons if a policy of competition were resolved upon.

THE NEW MANAGER.

Mr. Whitehead, the new manager of the Dominion syndicate of mills, is a young man of 28, but experienced and capable. He still retains the management of the Montmorenci mill. The Montmorenci mill withdrew from the syndicate about two years ago. It has for years been making cottons for the China market and has apparently done well since its withdrawal, as a new addition is being built by it. This mill, during the past few years, has been selling grey cottons to the Canadian trade as well as to China, and is acknowledged by the trade to make very nice goods. The Chinese trade compels exactness as to weight, etc., so that the Montmorenci cottons are noted as being carefully made. It is also said of this mill that in every detail their business is carefully run; even their bills are carefully made out, so that the appointment of Mr. Whitehead is warranted not only by his experience, but by his record in the mill at Quebec.

WHAT ONLOOKERS SAY.

The above are the bare facts, as far as they can be ascertained when the principal interests concerned make no statement for publication. The public, therefore, are left pretty much to draw their own conclusions. The Review has heard a great many theories advanced to account for the break between the selling agents and the Dominion Company. It is generally supposed that the severance of relations was not altogether amicable, and that competition between the two syndicates may come sooner or later. For the present, as stated above, "all is quiet on the Potomac."

Then, as to the profits enjoyed by the selling agents, an experienced man said to The Review: "You must consider that if Messrs. Morrice got a profit yearly by means of a commission they also assumed the risk by guaranteeing large accounts and bearing the loss if any accrued. You know that in both the large failures of wholesalers in Toronto in recent years Messrs. Morrice sustained the loss; the mills lost nothing."

"But that argument does not apply in this case," declared a bystander who overheard this remark; "it is understood that D. Morrice & Co. did not guarantee the account for the Dominion Company, but received 2 per cent. commission. The accounts of the Colored Company were guaranteed and the commission therefore was higher, being 3 per cent."

Another point of far more general importance is that of selling direct to the retail. On this matter The Review has heard many opinions. One gentleman said: "I have no doubt that there are two sides to this question. The mills could not possibly distribute as cheaply all round as the jobbers can. The latter send their travelers into the back townships and are content to sell cotton in small quantities, because they are handling other lines. Canadian cottons, many lines of them anyway, are not sold in the large centres at all. They are specially manufactured for country trade. Take lines like colored shirtings, denims, cottonades, etc.: these are exchanged for the butter, eggs or poultry of the farmer, so that the manufacturer could not pay the cost of direct distribution for such goods. I have, of course, heard the rumors that the mills would go direct to the retail trade, but from the assurances given by the mills, evidently there is nothing in it. Will they do so later? Well, it is hard to read the future, but it seems to me that, as there are ways now by which a large retail store by placing an immense order can buy direct, it is probable that in time a certain fixed quantity will be considered a wholesale order and sold accordingly. But there are so few firms in Canada which could place such an order, I do not expect, as long as I continue in business, to see such a system in common use."

"Depend upon it," said onother merchant, "this change will lead to others. Though the two syndicates do not compete now, the fact that their interests are separate may lead to competition. Where competition exists there is more or less uncertainty in prices. For instance, there is the recent cut of ⅛c. per yard in one line of flannelettes made by the Canadian Colored Cotton Co. While this does not directly affect the Parks flannelettes, it is done because of their being in the market. Meantime, I do not see how the mills could afford to court a breach with the jobbers. The latter can handle the large lots left over at the end of the season as the retailers could not do, so I do not expect any speedy change."

THE MORAL OF THE SITUATION.

The Review is inclined to think, after hearing all sorts of opinions, that the break between the Dominion Company and the selling agents is indirectly, but inevitably, the result of the old flannelette strife of last year. This produced friction and disagreement, and the policy of the Canadian Colored Cotton Co., being evidently to squeeze the Parks Co. of St. John out of the market, roused a feeling not easily quelled. The feeling has developed into a thorough discontent with the former arrangements. A policy that upset trade and flooded the market with flannelettes at less than cost was neither wise nor fair. Other elements contributed to raise discussion, and now we have the first step in what may eventually result in a complete reorganization of the cotton trade. The Review has much more to say on this subject, but contents itself at present with remarking that the interests of the retail and wholesale trade of this country must be protected by a wise and careful policy on the part of the manufacturing industries. If episodes like the flannelette war and the hideous farce of the unequal duties on cottons and shirts continue to be repeated, an upheaval cannot long be staved off.

THE CANADIAN PRINT SITUATION.

The sale of Magog prints is not affected by the change in selling agents. The old arrangement has been renewed between the mills and wholesale trade, and the jobbers have again acceded to the demand of the mills, which is: "We will continue to sell these goods only after receiving satisfactory assurances that the purchasers of the same will not sell, nor offer to sell, the goods, either directly or indirectly, at less than the regular price." The wholesale trade, therefore, cannot honorably offer these goods at less than the regular mill prices. The chief advantage to retailers seems to be that the big city stores cannot get these goods less than the country trade. The spring prices are as follows:

SAW THROUGH HIS LITTLE GAME.

THE man with the red necktie and the raveled shirt cuffs smiled brightly as he entered the grocery carrying a paper bag.

"Good morning," he said, cheerily; "you remember I bought two dozen eggs from you last night. Well, after I had reached home I found there had been a mistake, and——"

"Fritz," called the grocer, who was doing some figuring on a piece of wrapping paper with a stumpy pencil, "gif dis gentleman von dozen more of eggs righd qwick."

The grocer's boy started to obey, but the man with the red necktie beamingly interposed.

"No, no," he said, "you don't understand me. The mistake——"

"Fritz," said the grocer, without looking up, "gif dot gentleman two dozen eggs, und you don't better make any more mistakes, or I vire you."

"But, my dear sir, that isn't right yet. When I counted the eggs I found there was ——"

"Gif der gentleman dese fife dozen eggs vot you sheated him out mit righd avay, I dell you, Fritz," said the grocer, sternly, as he bit the end of his pencil and frowned, "or I discharge you at vonce."

The man with the red necktie laughed softly and looked sidewise at the canned goods on the shelves.

"The mistake was the other way," he said. "You gave me six eggs too many, and I have brought them back to you. It is a small matter, but it has always been my rule to be correct in small matters as well as in large. Your store is convenient on my way home, and we may be needing some more things in a day or two. Those hams, now, look very nice."

"Fritz," said the grocer, "you gif dis gentleman six dozen virst-class eggs in a bag, und drow in two oranges und a hantful of dose nice dried currants. VALUE OF COLD STORAGE.

In connection with the circular issued from the Department of Agriculture lately on the need of ventilated chambers on steamships for the carriage of apples, the following is a case in point: A lot of 267 barrels of apples was carried lately in cold storage to Glasgow. They are reported as having averaged 18s. per barrel. At the same time a lot of 325 barrels of apples was shipped in the old way to Liverpool, without cold storage, and realized only 8s. per barrel. Both lots of apples were from the same stock. Of the 325 barrels of apples shipped in the old way, without cold storage, 124 barrels were reported "wet" and "slightly wet" and 81 barrels were reported as "slack." Thus, out of the total shipment of 325 barrels shipped in the old way, without cold storage, 205 barrels were reported as arriving in a damaged condition.

CREDITS AND COLLECTIONS.

THE following appeared in a price list sent out by a St. Louis wholesale grocery firm, and contains much wisdom :

Perhaps the most perplexing part of every business is that department which regulates credits and collections. The difficulties which surround the credit man of a grocery house are simply enormous. He has to contend not only with troubles that come to him from those who want facilities, favors and extensions, but he is burdened by adverse criticism from those in the sales department and who should of right know better.

Many merchants do not seem to realize that a man's credit depends largely on the promptness with which he meets his bills. Merchants will sooner or later have to come to understsnd that their lines of credit are regulated, not by their intentions, but by their means, their methods and their promptness. It will not do to put on airs with those from whom we wish to buy goods on credit. It will not do for salesmen to misrepresent ; to report that their customers discount, when in fact they do not discount. The credit man of a jobbing house is a matter-of-fact man. He takes nothing for granted ; he analyzes every statement that is made to him. He, like everyone else, can be imposed on once or twice, but in the long run he learns to place a just estimate on the value of statements made to him by salesmen, by merchants, by mercantile agencies and by all with whom he comes in contact regularly. Excuses may go occasionally, but they will not do as a rule. It is unjust to the close buyer to have the long-winded man buy goods as cheap as the one who meets his bills promptly. In a business like ours in which the selling prices of many goods are limited, in which all pay the same price, it is, as above stated, an injustice to the prompt man to sell goods to the long-winded man at the same price.

There is an element of risk in every account. He who discounts eliminates that element of risk and should buy for less money. He who pays promptly eliminates another portion of the risk, and should buy at close prices. The dealer who is habitually and chronically slow ; who is good only in his own estimation ; who thinks he can do as he pleases about paying, and still maintain his standing, is mistaken, and will sooner or later be forced to realize the position which he occupies in the mercantile community.

Selling goods on credit is the source of many evils with the retail merchants. The sooner they realize that they must cut down the lines of those of their customers who do not pay promptly, the sooner they will be abreast of the times and in line for promotion in the great struggle for prosperity.

We have made it a rule to collect for our bills when they mature, and we have neither the desire nor the means to do business on any other line. We do not wish to do a carrying business. We recognize that all merchants may be occasionally slow, but we do not wish to carry those that are chronically slow. Our salesmen know our wishes and our ideas, and those who act on them have no trouble in securing the trade of prompt-paying, responsible merchants. Those who depend on empty promises find their orders turned down, their trade dissatisfied, their sales decreasing, and their business unpleasant. We have no apologies to make when we ask for our money when it is due. Our customers have a right to stand for everything that we agree to do for them ; we, on the other hand, have the moral, the legal and the commercial right to ask of them to fulfil their part of the agreement and to pay for their goods as they mature.

THE MEMORY OF FISHES.

PROF. LUDWIG EDINGER, of Frankfort-on-the-Main, has raised the question if fishes have memory, and has sent his question all over the world. His doubts are based upon the fact that "until now we believed the function of memory to depend on the action of the brain cortex. All experience in man and in higher animals has led to that conclusion. During the last years it has been proved that fish have no brain cortex at all. They are the only existing vertebrates without a brain cortex. Now, if we could prove beyond the possibility of doubt that fish really have a memory, that they gain experience and can make use of it, then we shall have to give up the till now general opinion that memory has its seat in the brain cortex. Therefore it is extremely important to have an entirely new set of experiences."

We are not prepared to discuss the "brain cortex," but all fish culturists know that fishes have memories. When we had charge of trout ponds it was the duty of one man to feed the adult fish, and they would pay no attention to people walking about the ponds, but would become excited and leap in the air when the feeder appeared with a pan of chopped liver. They remembered him. At the State hatchery, at Caledonia, N.Y., a man used to chop liver in a room set on piles over the water, with which to feed the wild trout in the stream. As soon as the pounding of his heavy knife was felt—we use the word advisedly, because we do not wish to discuss the hearing of fishes at this time—the trout would gather by the hundred where not a fish could be seen a moment before. They remembered the jarring of the chopping which was conveyed through the floor and the piles to the water.

The fact that fish which have been hooked and got away will take the hook again is no evidence that they do not remember it. A hook gives a fish little, if any, pain, unless it may be when it tears the gills or stomach. A hook in the jaw is in a part where there is no feeling to speak of, and the fish evidently attaches little importance to it, having no knowledge of man and his devices.

As an angler we know that the largest and strongest trout in the brook takes possession of the most secure hole among the tree roots under the bank and keeps out all others. Drive him from there to-day and he will be found there to-morrow. Surely that is memory. Catch him and the next strongest fish takes the place that he knew of but could not get. What's that but memory?

The migratory salmon and shad return to the rivers where they were hatched or planted. There is no haphazard about that. They remember the river, whether by the flavor of its water, the instinct of direction or some other sense we cannot say; but they remember it. We cannot imagine what can be said on the other side of the question.

BOCK SAUSAGE.

The following recipe for bock sausage is given in response to numerous requests:

Take about equal parts of beef, veal and pork, chop up fine, add for 100 lbs. 42¼ oz. salt, 3½ oz. cayenne pepper, 3½ oz. white pepper, add some water and a few small dice of boiled bacon (about 10 lbs.). Fill into narrow sheep casings, twist off pairs of about 4 oz., and smoke hot to a light yellow.

Another recipe is to use 60 lbs. beef, 20 lbs. veal, freed from the thick sinews, all chopped up fine. Then 20 lbs. of pork, both fat and lean, are added. When all is uniform, add some water, sufficient salt (about 42¼ oz.) 2¾ oz. saltpetre, 6 3-10 oz. white pepper, 1¾ oz. cloves and some coriander or garlic. Knead with it also 12 lbs. finely cut lard, fill into narrow beef casings; make short sausages and smoke red-brown. To be boiled before eating.

A very good sausage is also obtained from the same mass as garlic sausage is made out of, horseradish being used, however, instead of garlic. Use 4 lbs. horseradish for 100 lbs.; scrape fine and mix up well with the mass. Fill into narrow hog casings, about 4 inches long. To be just cooked and eaten hot.—National Provisioner.

CANADIAN EGGS IN LIVERPOOL.

It will be pleasing news to Canadian egg shippers that their consignments are becoming more welcome than ever in Liverpool; but the reasons assigned by the Liverpool merchants for this growing favor will not be such cheerful reading in Ireland. It is not a matter of yesterday that complaints against the condition of eggs arriving in the Mersey from Ireland have been made. Their bad packing, their want of selection and their staleness have become so proverbial that grocers have declined to have anything to do with them. At a meeting of the merchants this week it was decided to circularise the Irish farmers with a view to getting the anomaly of the present situation redressed; for it is certainly, to say the least, curious that eggs which have traveled between 2,500 and 3,000 miles should arrive in Liverpool fresher than those which have only crossed the Irish Sea. Yet, so it is. French exporters could show our Irish friends the way to remedy this state of things—Grocers' Journal.

BIG DROP IN GLUCOSE.

MUCH to the surprise of syrup refiners and others who use glucose a cut of 40c. per 100 pounds has been made by the glucose trust. This reduction in price may be regarded as a direct stab at outside competition by the new combine. Only two glucose factories remain outside the trust, and these belong to Col. Pope who is the special object of the trust's designs. They cannot be misunderstood when they plainly say: "Sell out or do business at a loss." Col. Pope, however, is a fighter and the loss will not be all on one side as it affects the manufacturers. But the users of glucose! They are not in pleasant frame of mind. They bought a large stock of glucose last week when the price was $1.65 per 100 pounds net. Then the combine put into effect a rebate plan which is said to have cost the merchants $30,000. The price was then cut to $1.40. The cut of 40c. Tuesday is said to have cost the trade $50,000. The burden fell upon less than six houses that had bought 13,000,000 pounds on the verbal guarantee of the combine that no further reduction would be made. These houses will have to cut the retail price and lose considerable money. They are wondering whether they will have to make another cut. The Pope Glucose Co.'s factories have a capacity for only 5,000 bushels of corn a day. The combine uses 100,000 bushels a day. The consumption of glucose in the United States requires about 60,000 bushels of corn a day, and the export nearly 40,000 bushels.

BICYCLE ROAD RACE.

The staff of The Davidson & Hay, Limited, held their third annual road race last Saturday afternoon. The course was a five-mile one on the Don and Danforth road, the start being made at Heber's Hotel. Great interest was taken in the event and the handicappers' task was not an easy one. Limit allowed was 3 minutes. The contestants finished in the following order: Sid. Kennedy, Fred. Oakley, F. H. Oulcott, Jack Bremner, J. McKenzie, Don. Bremner, J. Caskie, A. Oakley, Johnnie Goldring, A. H. Paffard, C. Shields, F. J. Dixon, C. Newman, J. B. Robertson. Jno. Findlay.

Sid. Kennedy, who came home first, also wins the time prize. He started at scratch and covered the distance in 12.43

The prize list was a good one, being liberally contributed to by the members of the firm. The first prize was a handsome gold seal ring donated by Col. Davidson, and the second prize, a gold watch chain, from Major Hay. The presentation of prizes was made by Col. Davidson in the company's offices on Monday afternoon.

COMPETITION OF FOREIGN SUGAR.

A NOTABLE fact in connection with the sugar market is the increasing competition the domestic refined article has to meet from imported refined sugars, particularly German. This has become so keen that, as every trader knows, the domestic refiners have been compelled to manufacture a special grade of granulated sugar entirely from beet root to compete with the foreign article.

The imports of foreign refined sugar at Montreal for the three months ending September 30 show to what extent this trade in the imported article has grown.

In 1896 there were no imports at all of German refined sugar, whereas, this summer the imports at Montreal for the three months in question amount to 367,390 lbs., while from France and Great Britain the imports were 145,462 lbs., against 1,000 in 1896.

These figures show that this foreign sugar under the new tariff has already secured a hold that it is very likely to enlarge, for the indications point to its being entirely shut out of the United States.

With the present countervailing United States duty in force traders south of the line will be unable to import additional supplies, and this will, of course, divert more attention to the outlet which exists in Canada under present conditions.

Already reports state that stocks of foreign sugar in New York are steadily decreasing owing to the causes now at work.

DATE SHIPMENTS LATE.

THE first shipments of new dates will leave Bussorah on the 10th or 15th of the present month, according to cables received in Montreal this week. This means that they will not reach London much before the 10th of November, and that the first supplies will not reach Montreal until after the middle of November. This is about ten or fifteen days behind last year.

Advices from London state that owing to the small supply of old crop there the market is firm, and that high prices are expected to rule on the first arrivals on the turnover between shippers and the large London handlers. This is having its influence on the offers that have been made so far on this side.

Based on the prices named, dates should open between 6½ and 7c., which is about 1c. per pound higher than last season.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are showing samples of Japan teas, which buyers are advised to see before purchasing.

THE CRANBERRY CROP.

The total crop of the United States a year ago was over 900,000 bushels, divided about as follows: Cape Cod and other New England districts, 650,000 bushels; New Jersey and Long Island, 225,000; Wisconsin and other western states, 40,000. Based on above figures the estimated crop for this year shows: Cape Cod and other New England districts, 487,500 bushels, decrease 25 per cent.; New Jersey and Long Island, 231,750 bushels, increase 3 per cent.; Western States, 60,000 bushels, increase 50 per cent.; estimated total crop in bushels, 779,250.

INDIAN TEA.

Shipments of India tea to the United Kingdom from April 1 to the middle of September were 58,150,000 pounds against 57,690,000 pounds for the same period in 1896.

The revised estimate of the present season's crop of Indian tea is 148,000,000 pounds, of which 130,000,000 pounds will be available for export to Great Britain.

UNIFORM PRICE OF SUGAR.

AS readers of THE CANADIAN GROCER will remember, the wholesale merchants have for some time been endeavoring to bring about a uniform price for sugar. We are this week enabled to announce that they have succeeded in their efforts, the wholesalers in Toronto, Hamilton and London having arrived at an agreement.

According to this agreement, all sugars, yellows as well as granulated, are to be sold at a uniform figure. Under the old agreement, which, it will be remembered, expired six or seven years ago, granulated sugar only was sold at a fixed price, any wholesaler being allowed to sell yellows at whatever figure he chose, as long as he did not sell below cost. As is well known, this was the cause of endless trouble, a cut frequently being made on yellows in order to induce a sale of granulated.

The wholesale price of granulated under the new order of things is now 4 5-16c. per pound for less than carload lots, and for carload lots the figure is one-sixteenth less. Yellows range from 3 9-16c. for dark to 3⅞c. for very bright. These prices are uniform for city and country alike. By this re-arrangement of prices Toronto grocers will obtain their granulated sugar one-fourth of a cent per pound cheaper than before.

On Monday last the refineries advanced their figures one-eighth cent per pound on granulated and yellows alike, making the price to the wholesaler 4 3-16c. per pound.

By an arrangement with the refiners the wholesalers are to be allowed a rebate of 2½ per cent. on all purchases up to 250 barrels, and 3½ per cent. on all lots ranging from 250 barrels and over.

Taking the margin of one-eighth and the rebate together, the wholesalers' profit will be, roughly speaking, from 5 to 6 per cent., not one at which anyone is likely to cavil.

What the retailers, as a rule, declaim against is not a uniform price of sugar, but an exorbitant price, and as long as the wholesale trade do not use the agreement as a lever for reaping big profits they are not likely to incur much enmity.

In addition to fixing the price, it has also been decided to change the regulations in regard to carload lots. Heretofore a traveler would make up a carload of sugar for a certain town at a carload price by accepting orders from two or more merchants. This, the wholesalers claim, not only gave them extra work, but often a great deal of trouble as well, for sometimes the orders for a certain point would not total a carload, and then, in order to fill the car, an additional number of barrels of sugar would have to be placed therein and stored in the particular town until such time as a customer could be found for them. Now, however, carloads will only be shipped to one order. This will not, however, prevent retailers clubbing together and ordering through one of their number.

It should be stated that the arrangement is an experimental one, being made only for thirty days. The question of its continuance will have to be decided at the expiration of that period.

COURTESY PAYS.

It is to the credit of the retail grocers that as a body they are courteous. Yet here and there we meet a man whose disposition is so far from sweet that we are glad to get through our business with him and are not in a hurry to return.

More often, however, it is a clerk who forgets to be courteous. Possibly a child or a poorer customer comes into the store, and sees himself or herself neglected, while some "more important" customer has attention lavished upon them. Such a clerk hurts his employer's business both ways: the poorer customer naturally feels the slight, and resents it, while the "more important" customer loses respect for the clerk, and loss of respect is always followed by loss of confidence and business.

CANADA AND GREAT BRITAIN.

EXPORTS from Great Britain during September decreased 7½ per cent. compared with the same month a year ago, and, according to the cable, the British press maintain that it is mainly due to the Dingley bill, which, in the words of The Times, "is to close the American markets very largely to British goods."

It is significant at this time for Canada that the Dingley law should have gone into operation and that the diminished exports from Great Britain should be ascribed to be, in the main, due to that law.

With John Bull business is business. Sympathy as a factor in trade counts for little. It does not matter to whom he sells goods so long as he is paid for them, or from whom he buys as long as he can buy right. But there is, nevertheless, a point where sympathy can be aroused.

Canada awoke it when she put the preferential tariff into operation, and the United States with its Dingley tariff stirred it into greater activity. To-day sympathy is a factor in Great Britain's trade with her colonial possessions.

Of all the goods the United States last year exported Great Britain took no less than $405,741,339 worth, or about 46 per cent. of the whole, while the British Empire took $511,326,162 worth, or near 57 per cent. of the total exports to all countries.

There is no question, then, that Great Britain alone, not taking the Empire into account at all, is incomparably the best customer the United States possesses to-day, a customer which, if it were to impose the same disabilities on United States goods as the latter has upon British goods, would cause Uncle Sam much concern.

A merchant or a manufacturer is never discourteous to his best customer, particularly if he takes 50 per cent. of his output. He is always courteous and solicitous for the maintenance of his trade.

Nations, who are aggregations of individuals, should do the same; but they do not always do so. The United States does not. Her best customer is the special object of her spleen. Her tariffs are designedly shaped to injure Great Britain and her chief colony, the Dominion of Canada, while treaties and awards affecting Canada and the Mother Land are ignored with consistent impunity by Congress.

Canada long ago recognized the antipathy of the United States towards Great Britain and British institutions, because she was the first to feel it. And now Great Britain, unwilling as she is to do so, is feeling it too.

Canada always was, and probably always will be, willing to extend her trade relationship with the United States on equable grounds; but there is yet no indication that the day when such conditions shall exist is even near the dawning. The price at which we can get it is discrimination against Great Britain, and this is a price we never were nor probably never will be willing to pay. In fact, at present we are in less mood to do so than we were at any time in our history.

It is to be hoped the present Government, like its predecessor, will be just as quick to spurn closer trade relations under such conditions. Hon. Mr. Fielding, who is in Great Britain, stated on Friday last, according to the cable, that Canada's "willingness to meet reciprocity approaches from Washington would exclude discrimination against England, which was quite impossible." It is evident, therefore, that the present Government is actuated by the same spirit as its predecessor.

Canada's position in the British market was never as favorable as it is to-day, and her prestige was never as great. Within a few months she has developed, in the eye of Great Britain, from a colonial to a national status. More interest is being taken in her, more pride is felt in her, and more aggressive means are being taken by the manufacturers and merchants of the Motherland to do business with her. As a result of this, together with the inducements for investment which our wonderful natural resources hold out, will naturally follow an increased flow of British capital in the country.

It is to be hoped that the Government of the Dominion will employ itself with increased vigor to the task of increasing our trade with the Old Country, while at the same time carefully avoiding all semblance of double dealing, trickery, or any other improper thing which has become so characteristic of politicians on this side of the Atlantic. Even a semblance of these things might be dangerous, particularly just now.

THE TRADE SITUATION.

THE trade situation in Canada continues to bear the mark of a healthy improvement.

Nearly every wholesaler and manufacturer whom THE CANADIAN GROCER has questioned on the subject, has experienced, during the past four or five months, a steady increase in trade compared with the same period last year.

It is true prices are not yet on the whole satisfactory, but with the improved demand will naturally come better prices. But those who may be looking for the prices of long ago are likely to be disappointed.

The perfection of machinery and the rapidity with which goods are turned out will naturally have a minimizing influence upon prices, but that does not prevent money being made. It chiefly means that economical conditions are changed. Manufacturers and merchants who fail to conform to these conditions will not be able to do business under comfortable circumstances.

Another sign of the times is the manner of buying of the farmers. For some years, as every merchant knows, farmers, as a rule, have been the most conservative of buyers. Not only have they bought in a hand-to-mouth fashion, but they have commonly bought the cheapest goods, and could not be induced to buy anything better, the plea being hard times.

Within the last month or two this has all been changing. Merchants doing business in Toronto in localities where farmers congregate state that the agriculturists are not only buying larger quantities but they are buying goods of better quality.

There is every reason why they should: They are getting at least fair prices for their wheat, hogs, cattle, poultry, dairy produce, hay, etc. And while they are getting, compared with a year ago, more for that which they have to sell, there has been no increase in that which they have to buy.

Aside from the improved conditions being enjoyed by the wholesaler and the retailer, there are the signs of the times as seen in the clearing house returns. These have for some time been steadily increasing.

Taking the aggregate clearing house returns of last week for the three cities of Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg, the increase, compared with the same week in 1896, was over 40 per cent., a most gratifying and reassuring result.

Then there are the railway returns. They are increasing week by week. And railway earnings only increase when there is the merchandise to induce them to do so.

The outlook for the lumbering industry, as far as trade with the United States is concerned, is not good, but it is bright as far as that with Great Britain is concerned. If our trade in lumber is decreasing with the United States it must not be forgotten that it is increasing with Great Britain. During the summer enormous quantities have been shipped across the Atlantic from the St. Lawrence and Maritime Province ports.

Now that good times are upon us business men can prolong their stay by consistently and persistently following good business methods, and by a judicious exercise of push and enterprise.

Because good times are upon us it would be foolishness to become careless in the scrutiny of accounts or injudicious in buying or in any other business particulur.

CIVIL SERVANTS' PRIVILEGES.

THE retail grocery associations of Toronto, Hamilton, and Montreal are doing well in reviving at this time the agitation for having the garnishee law extended to civil service employes: Parliament will meet in a few months, and there is nothing like being in time when legislation is sought for.

Civil servants as a class are not dishonest, but there are a great many of them who will not pay their debts, and the law, to the disgrace of the country, prevents such forces being put into operation to compel them to pay as are operative against all other classes of society.

The day when the civil servant was considered the special ward of the Crown and his person practically sacred passed away long ago, but the special privileges still exist. It is to the task of removing these that the retail merchants throughout the country are setting themselves, and they are entitled to the support of citizens of all sorts and conditions.

We would say to them, keep hammering away.

DRIED APPLE SITUATION.

THE position of the dried apple market is not at the moment altogether reassuring. There are several contributing causes to this.

Six months ago the extraordinary low price of the commodity induced, as the trade well know, an unusual speculative demand, but it is questionable whether the results will come up to anticipations, in spite of the fact that the apple crop in Canada is much smaller than it was anticipated it would be.

In the first place, while the crop of apples is a great deal less than a year ago, yet there is likely to be a good proportion of it turned into dried fruit on account of the small percentage of first-class apples there will be available. And our belief is based largely upon the fact that enquiries for prices are coming in freely from farmers and dealers in localities where the crop of apples is this year known to be light. We have seen a great deal of the correspondence and are not, therefore, speaking from mere hearsay.

Then as to the stocks of last year's dried apples speculatively held: Investigation by an expert has led to the discovery that there is at least 75 cars of 1896 fruit known to be held. A great deal of this held fruit is unfit for human food, worms having played havoc with it, and can only be used for manufacturing purposes. THE CANADIAN GROCER has examined a number of samples during the past few weeks and is fully persuaded that worms have done a great deal of damage to the fruit carried over from last season. And everybody knows what effect on the price of even a good article a superabundance of inferior and low-priced fruit has; so long as it is in evidence so long does it tend to bear the price of the first-class goods.

Now it is well known that Canada's consumptive capacity for dried apples is not large. Estimates place it at fifteen carloads annually. The chief sources from which the consumptive demand comes are the Ontario lumber camps and the Northwest. The eastern part of Canada is now able to about supply its own wants in this particular. Canada has to depend a great deal upon the foreign markets for its outlet for dried apples. Consequently its price for this commodity is largely regulated by the same markets. And the price in the foreign markets is regulated a great deal by the competition we meet there from the United States product.

What then is the outlook in the United States? On the whole it is for a good crop. California, we are told, has an abundant crop. So has Illinois, Kansas, Missouri and other states in the west, while New York has a good crop along the shores of the lakes. In the Southern States the crop is a large one. A private letter states that Illinois will have an immense crop of sun-dried apples.

As to what Canada may expect in the way of competition from the United States, we take the figures now ruling in San Francisco and New York for new fruit. In the former city they are quoted at 2¾ to 4c., and in the latter, according to The Journal of Commerce of Tuesday, at 3 to 4c. per pound for both sliced and quarters. Yet in spite of this fact holders in Canada are asking as high as 4 to 5c. per pound free on board. We hear of country merchants paying one dollar per bushel for dried apples, which is about equal to 4¾c. per pound.

It looks very much indeed as if prices in Canada are much inflated.

Last year a large quantity of California dried apples were brought into Manitoba and the Canadian Northwest in competition with the domestic article, and with the large crop of apples California has, together with the fact that the price of the Canadian dried article is ruling higher, it is quite likely the experience of last season will be repeated this season.

In Canada at the moment the great disturbing factor is the large stock of last season's damaged fruit there is on the market. Because of this fruit and the uncertainty of its effect on values exporters are afraid to attempt to operate, even if they could buy at prices which would allow them to compete with New York.

Were it not for the speculative demand which developed some months ago a great deal of the fruit which is now held and damaged would have been exported, for there was a demand for it at a price.

Nine times out of ten it pays to keep goods moving: to sell them when a market can be found. But people prefer to take the maximum of risk in order to try and secure the minimum of possibility.

A SENSIBLE CONCLUSION.

IN an interview in London, Eng., last week the Canadian Minister of Customs, Hon. Mr. Fielding, stated that "though the present tariff falls short of his free trade intentions and ideas, tariff tinkering is most harassing to trade. Hence, no material change will be made next session."

This may not be good news to politicians whose delight is to meddle with the tariff, but it will be good news for the business men of the country, and should be scattered broadcast over the Dominion.

Aside altogether from the merits of free trade or protection, to undertake any important change in the tariff at the next session of Parliament would be a mistake.

It does not matter whether the work be controlled by free traders or protectionists, tariff revision means, for the time being, quiet trade.

Just now the first step towards a revival of trade has been taken, and the general outlook in Canada is better than it has been for a number of years. To meddle, therefore, with the tariff at this juncture would not only be short-sighted: it would be positively foolish.

THE CANADIAN GROCER is glad the Government has decided to do the sensible thing, and it is to be hoped it will not allow theorists or impracticable persons to deter it from its purpose.

The tariff may have its anomalies, but it is better that there should be a few anomalies than that the whole country should suffer.

The merchant who is respectful towards his customers earns business as well as respect for himself.

ZANZIBAR CLOVES HIGHER.

Zanzibar cloves have been advancing sharply lately. Cables received in Toronto on Monday quoted an advance of ½c. per pound from the previous Friday. This makes the advance about 2c. per pound since June last.

The abolition of slavery in Zanzibar gave the market its first impetus, but now a syndicate is alleged to have got possession of the output, and its intention is to set aside a certain part of the crop not to be sold below a minimum price, and destroy the remainder.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Oct. 14, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE feature of the wholesale trade this week is the inauguration of a uniform price on sugar of all kinds in both city and country, while the refiners have advanced their figures ⅛c. per lb. all round. Wholesalers still report a good movement of merchandise, although the output of sugar is not as large as it was. Canned vegetables are strong and in good demand. The strength is particularly noticeable in tomatoes. Green coffees are meeting with a fair demand. The feature of the tea market is the increased strength of Indian and Ceylon growths in London. Zanzibar cloves are cabled dearer and the market is strong at the advance. Syrups are more plentiful, but the demand is poor. Currants are cabled dearer again this week and the market for all kinds of foreign dried fruits is firm.

CANNED GOODS.

Tomatoes are even exciting more attention than they were a week ago, and the feeling is decidedly bullish. Some of the packers report they are sold out, while others have advanced their views as to price. A bid of even 85c. was refused by one packer and 90c. asked, but no transactions are taking place at these figures, these being the prices at which the wholesalers are selling. The continued mild weather is, of course, favorable for the pack. There is also a firmer feeling in corn, and at least one of the packers has advanced his prices 2½c. per dozen. Peas continue strong. Canned salmon remain in much the same position as before. We quote: Tomatoes, 85 to 90c.; corn, 65 to 85c.; peas, 85 to 87½c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.25 to $1.40; beans, 65 to 80c;. peaches, $2.25 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.65 to $1.90, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $1.75 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 80 to 95c.; gallons, $2 to $2.25; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; other red salmon, $1.20 upwards, according to quality and brand; cohoes, 95c. to $1.10; canned mackerel, $1.25 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.85 to $2.95; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.35 to $1.40; 2's, $2.35 to $2.50; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

Stocks of Rio on the spot are not heavy; in fact, they are lighter than they have been for some time. The demand is good. Jobbers quote green in bags: Rio, 9 to 12½c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 12½ to 18c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 16 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

Syrups are more plentiful, particularly in the medium grades. One refinery has nothing but medium syrups to offer, while another has nothing but brights. Prices are unchanged at last week's advance. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

Advices from New Orleans state the prospects are for a late movement of the crop of molasses on account of the quarantine regulations. Locally there is nothing of interest to note. We quote as follows: New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGAR.

The wholesalers in Toronto, Hamilton and London have agreed upon a uniform price for granulated and yellow sugars, and the refineries have advanced their price ⅛c. per lb. all round. Further particulars are furnished in our editorial pages. The demand for sugar, while gradually easing off, is still of fair proportions. The outside markets are quiet but steady. The American Sugar Refining Co.'s refineries at Boston and Philadelphia have been temporarily closed down. Cable advices from London state that the market is strong, with beet sugar for November delivery ¾d.

higher. Geisecker estimates the present crop of Europe at 4,850,000 tons. It is, however, believed that Licht's estimate will be close to 5,000,000 tons. Wholesalers' quotations for sugar are now as follows: Granulated, 4 5-16c. for less than carload lots, and 4¼c. for carload lots; yellows, 3 9-16 to 3⅞c. per lb.

SPICES.

The market still rules firm on all kinds of spices, particularly on Zanzibar cloves, which are cabled ½c. dearer. Spices are meeting with a fairly good demand. We quote as follows: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb cans; ditto, whole, 11 to 12c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 20c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

NUTS.

Market is quiet and unchanged. We quote: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 20 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

There is the usual trade doing. We quote as follows: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½ to 4½c.

TEAS.

The London, Eng., market is firmer on Indian and Ceylon teas, the quantities coming forward to London being smaller than anticipated, while the quality of the goods is a shade better. A few lots of China green teas were cabled for a few days ago, and the reply was to the effect that the orders could not be filled, the market being bare. Teas held here in first hands are in consequence considered to be of good value. Japan teas continue firm. The volume of business in all kinds of tea is light. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRANTS—Prices continue to advance in the primary markets, a cable this week announcing an appreciation of another shilling per cwt. Local quotations are unchanged. We quote: Filiatras, 6c. in barrels; 6⅛c. in half-barrels and 6¼c. in cases. Patras, 6½c. in barrels; 6¾c. in half-barrels, and 6¾ to 7c. in cases. Vostizzas, 7 to 8c. in cases.

VALENCIA RAISINS—The demand is good and prices are being well maintained. We quote: New goods—Fine off-stalk, 5¾ to 6c.; selected, 6¼ to 6¾c. Old goods—Off-stalk, 4c.; fine off stalk, 4½c.; layers, 5c.

MALAGA RAISINS—There is not much doing, and for the few lots on the market we quote as follows: London layers, $1.70 to $1.90; black baskets, $2.30 to $2.50; blue baskets, $2.50 to $2.75; Connoisseur Clusters, $2.40 to $2.50; Dessert Clusters, $3.60 to $3.80; quarter flats, 75 to 90c.

FIGS—The market is much about the same as a week ago. We quote: 4-crown, 10 to 11c.; 5-crown, 11 to 13c.; 7-crown, 13 to 14c.; 9-crown, 15 to 16c., natural figs, in bags, 4½ to 5c.

SULTANA RAISINS—Advices from Smyrna state that the market there is strong owing to the backing given by some large operators who have confidence in the future of Sultana raisins, owing to the enlarged British and European demand. New fruit is quoted at 10 to 12c. by local wholesalers.

CANDIED PEELS—We quote as before: Citron, 19c.; orange, 13c.; lemon, 12½c.

CALIFORNIA EVAPORATED FRUITS—The market is quiet for apricots and peaches, with prices steady. Oregon prunes are unsettled.

CALIFORNIA RAISINS—Two-crown loose muscatels are reported easier on the Coast.

GREEN FRUITS.

Grapes are the chief article on the fruit market this week, great quantities of Niagara and Concord grapes still coming in. Crawford peaches, Bartlett pears and Canadian tomatoes are done, while cranberries, quinces and chestnuts have begun to arrive. We quote: Lemons, fancy, $4.50 to $5; extra fancy Rhodi, $5.50 to $6. Cocoanuts, $4.50 a sack and 60c. per doz. Bananas, $1 to $1.50. New cabbage, $1 to $1.25 per 100; peaches, 50 to 75c.; cranberries, $7 to $7.25 per bbl.; quinces, 20 to 30c.; chestnuts, $5 a bushel. Canadian apples, $1.75 to $2.50 per barrel and 25 to 35c. per basket; Spanish onions, $1 per case, pickling onions, 75c. per basket; yellow Danvers, 80 to 85c. per bag of 80 lbs.; fall and winter, 35 to 60c.; celery, 25 to 30c. a dozen; grapes, 10-lb. Concords, 13c.; 10-lb. Niagaras, 15c. Concords, large baskets, 1 to 1½c. per lb.; Niagaras, large baskets, 1½ to 2c. per lb.; sweet potatoes, $3.25 per bbl.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—Receipts are not large, yet they are almost sufficient to meet requirements, the price still remaining for the best grade, 15 to 16c. Inferior butter can be purchased in abundant quantities for from 10 to 12c. Creamery butter is plentiful, especially in 1 lb. lots. We quote: Early make, tubs, 17 to 18c.; late make, tubs, 18 to 19c.; prints, 19 to 20c.

CHEESE—Offerings are liberal, but buyers and sellers still do not agree as to prices and little business is done. Local quotations are 9½ to 10c., according to month's make.

SALT.

Trade has begun to pick up well lately, and will continue to improve. Toronto prices are: Carload lots, $1 per bbl., and 65c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl., and 70c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B., barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c.

FISH.

The demand this week has been so great that dealers have not been able to meet it, whitefish and trout especially being in demand. We quote: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5½c. per lb.; whitefish, 7c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg; ciscoes, 75c. to $1.

PROVISIONS.

The demand is still good, supplies for lumber camps continuing active, especially in long clear bacon and barrel pork. Hams have also been in some demand in this quarter. Lard has fallen the ¼c. it advanced last week.

DRY SALTED MEATS — Long and short clear bacon, 8¾c. for carload lots, and 9 to 9¼c. per lb. for ton lots and cases; backs, 9½c.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 12½ to 13c.; rolls, 10c.; hams, large, 11 to 11½c.; 12 to 12½c. for small and 12c. for medium; shoulder hams, 9 to 9½c.; backs, 12c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD — Pure Canadian, tierces, 6¼c.; tubs, 6½c.; pails, 6¾c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $14.50 to $15; Canadian short-cut, $17; clear shoulder mess, $13.50.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Plenty are now coming forward and the demand is good. New laid eggs are worth 15 to 16c., and the second grade brings 11 to 13c.; pickled eggs, 12 to 13c.

POTATOES—There is a fair demand for potatoes and the supply keeps well up to demand. Carload lots are quoted at 45c., while on the market they are worth 60c. a bag.

HONEY—Demand and supply both very good this week. Our quotations are: Light colored, in 60-lb. tins, 6 to 6½c.; 5 and 10-lb. tins, 6½ to 7c.; comb, $1.50 to $1.75 per dozen, and are selling clover honey at 7c. and buckwheat at 5c.

BEANS—Still coming in in good quantities. We quote hand-picked beans at from 85 to 95c. Prime beans are quoted at 80c.

DRIED APPLES—The market is fair; prices unchanged. We quote: 4 to 4½c. per lb. f.o.b. point of shipment.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—The wheat market is firm, though tendency is to weaken. Oats and barley have dropped about 2c. bushel. Peas are firmer. We quote: Winter wheat, 80c.; No. 2 red, 77 to 79c. at outside points; freights to Toronto are about 3 to 5c.; barley, 27 to 31c.; peas, 44 to 46c.; oats, 20 to 21c., Toronto freights, and No. 1 hard wheat is quoted at $1, Toronto freights.

FLOUR — The market is firm, a good demand keeping prices unchanged. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $5.30; Manitoba strong bakers', $4.80; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $4.75; straight roller, $4.35 to $4.50, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—Trade is brisk, the only change of prices being split peas, which have advanced 10c. We quote: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.40 in bags and $3.50 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.70 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.50; split peas, $3.35; pot barley, $3.

SEEDS.

As far as jobbing is concerned the seed trade is over. For export, business is fair, many samples of seed offering, but dealers not bidding up to buyers' expectations. Owing to low price in foreign markets, the holders are reluctant about selling. The quality of the alsike crop is rather poor generally. Alsike is quoted at $3.50 to $4.50 per bushel, superior grades bringing higher figure. Red clovers, $3 to $3.25 per bushel. Timothy, machine threshed, $1 to $1.25, and choice unhulled brings a slightly higher figure.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—There is no change in prices here. In Chicago there has been a reaction, prices having recovered from ¼ to ½c. the decline of last week. Quotations are: Cowhides: Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2, and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS—Few skins are now offered, the season having about finished. Prices are: No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Dekins, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS—Local market quiet. Best fresh taken off are quoted at 75 to 85c.; country lots from 75c. down.

WOOL—Foreign wools are still being imported as a substitute for Canadian wool, all of which is disposed of. Pulled wool also are in fair demand, dealers paying 20 to 20½c. for pulled wools.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

Trade is brisk this week. Prices, however, remain unchanged. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Canadian, 14c.; carbon, safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

Cream of tartar is 2s. per cwt. cheaper.

Indian and Ceylon teas are firmer in London.

Lard has lost the ¼c. per lb. it gained last week.

Currants are cabled another 1s. per cwt. dearer from Greece.

The Canadian refiners advanced the prices of all kinds of sugar ⅛c. per lb. on Monday.

Zanzibar cloves advanced ½c. per lb. between Friday and Monday last, according to cable advices.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Oct. 14, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THERE has been a moderate trade in general groceries during this week, but jobbers are not operating as extensively as they were except in the case of dried fruit. In this line continued advances abroad in Valencia raisins have led to a small-sized rush to place orders for the second steamer and fruit by it will cost all the way from 1s. to 1s. 6d. more than by Avlona, owing to the rise in values at primary points. Currants are firm also, and the same can be said of French and Bosnia prunes. Refiners have advanced their prices ⅛c. on sugar, and tea rules firm, though the demand is light. Molasses and syrups are steady, and spices of all kinds point in an upward direction.

SUGAR.

The sugar market has ruled firm and a more active business is noted than a week ago. The chief news of the week is the intelligence of the arrangement between the wholesalers and the refiners regarding the sale of sugar, the facts of which are given in our editorial columns. The new arrangement has necessitated an advance of ⅛c. in refiners' prices. Granulated is firmly held in a jobbing way as last quoted, with a good business doing, and the same can be said of yellows. In raws there is nothing new to report except that the market is steady, while in German granulated business is doing at 3¾c. in wholesale lots and the domestic refiners are meeting this by producing what they call a German granulated, made entirely from beet, which they sell to the wholesale trade at the same price. We quote granulated at 4¼c. up to 10-bbl. lots and 4⅛c. for larger quantities, yellows, 3⅜ to 3⅝c., creams, 3¾ to 3⅞c. and German granulated, 4c.

SYRUPS.

With very light stocks the syrup market is exceedingly firm, though business is quiet. Values here are firmly held at 2¼ to 2½c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

There is no new feature in this market, which rules quiet, but very firm. Demand is slack for the moment, and round lots of Barbadoes are held at 25c., and Porto Rico, 26c. Altogether it is estimated that the stocks of molasses here do not exceed 6,000 puncheons. We quote in a jobbing way: Barbadoes, 26c., and Porto Rico, 27½ to 28c.

RICE.

The strength in rice continues abroad, but no change is noted on the spot range, as old contracts still cover current business. We quote: Crystal Japan, $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $5 to $5.50; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

The spice market continues active and excited outside, especially on pepper, but spot jobbing values on ground spices are unchanged. We quote as follows: Black pepper, 10 to 12c.; pure white, 13 to 17c., as to grade; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

The coffee market is quiet, and buyers generally have the best of any negotiations now going on. We quote: Maracaibo, 17 to 18c.; Rio, 11 to 12c.; Santos, 13 to 14c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c., and Java, 24 to 25c.

TEAS.

The tea market is generally quiet but steady, the volume of wholesale business being light. In a jobbing way, demand is of a moderate kind for Gunpowders and Japans at a range of 14 to 17c. Advices continue strong from primary points, and it would cost an advance of 1 to 1½c. per lb. to-day to procure supplies compared with eight or ten days ago. We quote as follows: Young Hysons, 14 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15½ to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 17 to 20c. for mediums, and 35 to 65c. for higher grades.

CANNED GOODS.

There is a fair jobbing enquiry for all kinds of canned goods, and prices generally are firmly held. This is especially the case in staple vegetables, such as tomatoes and corn. We quote: Tomatoes, 80 to 90c.; corn, 60 to 75c.; peas, 75c. to $1.25; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 95c.; gallons, $1.65 to $1.75; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.25 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.25 to $1.45; "Lion," $1.25 to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.20, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

The currant market is very firm in its tone and prices are steadily held, while to procure fresh goods ex the second steamer is costing quite as much, if not more, than ex ss. Avlona. We quote: Patras, in cases, 6 to 6¼c.; Filiatras, bbls., 5⅜c.; ½-bbls., 5½c., and cases, 5¾c.; Provincials, 5c. in bbls., 5⅜c. in cases and 5½c. in ½-cases.

Valencia raisins continue firm, prices at Denia having advanced 1s., the best offers on fine off-stalk now being 17s., and the advance has caught a lot of buyers short who declined to book by the first steamer because they thought they could get supplies for less by the second boat. As a result their stocks will cost from 1s. to 1s. 6d. more than the earlier purchases. Accordingly, firm values are looked for on Valencia raisins this fall, and prices are steady at 4½c. for off-stalk, 4¾ to 5c. for fine off-stalk, 5¾ to 6c. for selected, and 6¾ to 7c. for 4-crown layers.

California raisins continue unsettled, and prices for forward shipment from the Coast vary considerably. In fact, the expectation is for a much smaller importation of California raisins this season than last, owing to the fact that they are disproportionately higher than Mediterranean fruit. The first carloads of new fruit are selling at 6½c. for 2-crown; 7½c. for 3-crown, and 8½c. for 4-crown.

Jobbers here will be quoting Malaga table raisins presently for prompt delivery. Based on the cable quotations, London layers should open in a jobbing way at $1.50 per box, Imperial Cabinets $1.75, and Empire Dehesa clusters, $2.

Malaga loose muscatels, in 50-lb. boxes, are also on the way, and they are expected to compete more successfully this fall with the California fruit owing to the high price of the latter. Their price will be much lower, and the quality, according to samples at hand, fully up to the standard.

French prunes are very firm, and shippers have withdrawn quotations this week, while no large sizes are obtainable at all. There are some now on the way that will cost from 4 to 4¼c. in jobbing lots.

Cables state that Bosnia prunes have advanced 1s. 6d., and they are expected to open in a jobbing way here at about 6¼c. for ordinary descriptions.

New figs were offered for the first time this week. They are selling at 12c.

NUTS.

Valencia shelled almonds are dearer at primary markets than they have been for four or five years, but Tarragona almonds open about the same as last year. Shelled walnuts are quoted for shipment on the 15th, and will cost in a jobbing way in Montreal about 16 to 17c. We quote: Grenoble walnuts firm at 11 to 12c.; do. shelled, 20c; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; pecans, 9 to 10c.

DRIED APPLES.

There is no change in dried apples, prices ruling steady at 3 to 4c., with evaporated at 6c.

APPLES.

The green apple market continues active and strong with brisk demand. New winter apples came to hand this week and are selling at $3.50 to $4 per bbl.

GREEN FRUIT.

The green fruit market has ruled quiet this week, but prices generally are steady. Peaches are still plentiful and rather in excess of the demand. Pears also are in over supply, while plums are only offering to the extent of a few odd lots. Receipts of grapes have been very heavy and prices are easier. Cranberries are now on the market and are selling at $7.50 for Cape Cod, and $6.50 to $7 for Nova Scotia. First receipts of Jamaica oranges are offering at $9.50 to $10 per bbl. We quote: Peaches, 30 to 40c.; plums, 25 to 40c.; pears, 20 to 40c., and grapes, 14 to 15c. per basket; bananas, $2 per bunch, and lemons $3 per box; Bartlett pears, in bbls., $2 to $4; cranberries, Cape Cod, $7 50, and Nova Scotia, $6.50 to $7 per bbl.; Jamaica oranges, $9.50 to $10 per bbl.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Although the receipts of eggs continue very liberal for the season of the year, the market rules remarkably steady, and no immediate change in values is anticipated. The demand for small lots on local account is fair, and new laid in single cases are selling at 17c. per dozen. The demand for export, however, is not up to what it was at this time last year. We quote: New laid, 15 to 16c.; choice candled, 12½ to 13½c., and culls, 10 to 11c. per dozen in round lots.

BEANS—There was no change in beans, sales being chiefly in small lots at 80 to 90c. per bushel for primes, and at 95c. to $1 for choice hand-picked.

HONEY.—The supply of honey is ample, for which the demand is only moderate, and prices unchanged. Clover comb sold at 10 to 11c.; bright extracted, 7½ to 8½c.; and dark, 5 to 5½c.

GAME—The demand for partridge continues active, and any coming forward meet with a ready sale at 70 to 75c. per brace.

POTATOES—The market for potatoes is quiet, and prices are unchanged at 45 to 50c. per bag in car lots.

PROVISIONS.

A fairly active jobbing trade continues to be done in provisions, and the market is without any change in values to note. We quote: Canadian pork, $15 to $16 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, at 7½ to 8c., and compound refined at 5½ to 5¾c. per lb.; hams, 12 to 14c., and bacon, 12 to 13c. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

The flour market was without any new feature. Business on local account continues moderately active, there being a fair demand for small lots, and values rule about steady. We quote: Winter wheat patents, $4.75 to $5; straight rollers, $4.50 to $4.65, and in bags, $2.15 to $2.25; best Manitoba strong bakers', $5 to $5.25; second do., $4.50 to $4.75, and low grades, $2.65 to $2.90; Hungarian patents, $5.40 to $5.65.

The receipts of meal were large, there being 2,800 barrels received on Monday, and if this is to be put on the market prices will probably be depressed. The demand was slow. We quote: Rolled oats, $3.40 per barrel, and $1.65 per bag; standard meal, $3.30 per barrel and $1.60 per bag.

There was no change in the feed market. The demand is good and business active. Ontario bran sold at $11, and shorts at $12 per ton in bulk; Mantoba bran, bags included, at $11.50 to $12.50, and shorts at $13.50 per ton.

BALED HAY.

The demand for hay continues good, and the market rules fairly active and steady. No. 1 sold at $11 to $11.50, and No. 2 at $9 to $10 per ton, in car lots on track.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

Cheese is more active this week, and besides the trading on spot there were transactions in the country, which showed that buyers had started in again in earnest. The reaction from the high prices paid for August cheese early in September has been considerable, fully ¼c. per lb., and at prices now current fine fall cheese are cheap when compared with the top prices paid for August. This fact has a good deal to do with the present demand, which is divided, according to all accounts, between operators both on this and the other side of the water. In the Brockville district there has been some pretty heavy contracting, and private advices state that fully forty factories have been taken over on the basis of 9 to 9¼c. for September and October make. In the more eastern section, the Allan Grove and the Eager combinations, which constitute the bulk of the output in it, about 30,000 boxes, have been sold on private terms. These cheese, it is understood, are bought on English account. At St. Hyacinthe on Saturday, about 2,000 boxes sold at 9c., while at the wharf Monday morning, 4,000 boxes from down the river changed hands at 9c.. which is the same price as paid last week. In Ontario Septembers also business was done at 9½c., and altogether the demand is good at steady prices. We quote : Finest Ontario Septembers, 9½ to 9⅝c.; finest Townships Septembers, 9¼ to 9½c.; finest Quebec cheese, 9 to 9⅛c.

The butter market continues easy in tone, and it is understood that offers are being made over the cable for a figure that is less than 19c. on spot. This price represents the extreme bid that buyers are prepared to make on spot, but sellers are reluctant about accepting it as yet. Accordingly trading is dull aside from the local jobbing demand, which concedes full prices. The Liverpool cable quotes finest 90s., and good 60s. We quote: Finest creamery, 19 to 19¼c.; seconds, 18 to 18½c.; dairy butter, 13½ to 14c.

MONTREAL NOTES.

First receipts of Malaga table raisins are expected to arrive very shortly.

Cables from Patras on currants state that the market is 1s. 2d. higher and prices firm at the advance.

Advices state that shelled Valencia almonds are dearer at primary points than they have been for four or five years.

The first receipts of new dates cannot possibly arrive on this market before the middle of November.

Cables this week stated that Bosnia raisins had advanced 1s. 6d. at primary markets.

The first arrivals of new figs were offered on the market this week. They are selling at 12c. per pound.

Brokers here find it impossible to get any quotations on the larger sizes of French plums, for the reason that there is practically no supply.

Refiners have advanced prices on sugars ⅛c. per pound, and the jobbing range is expected to advance in proportion before the week closes.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Oct. 14, 1897.

THERE is a good wholesale demand. Fall orders are coming in freely. Supplies for lumbermen are always a large feature of the fall trade. While there is quite a demand in this way, there is rather less than usual, the lumber market is so flat, and made more so on account of the very high freights. Large quantities of logs and manufactured lumber will be wintered. From the present outlook many think they would get better results to give the trees a year's growth rather than cut a very large quantity this season. Of course, a certain quantity will be got out. Arrangements for handling the winter's export business are moving along with success, and the facilities this year will show great improvement and enlargement. The matter of most general interest in the markets this week is the continued decline in flour, particularly Manitoba.

OIL—In burning oil the demand is active. Prices remain unchanged. In the past two years fall contracts have expired rather earlier than formerly. This year deliveries have to be made previous to Dec. 1. The better terms allowed on those contracts encourage nearly all dealers to buy in this way. It is said the Standard Oil Co. is about to refine Canadian oil in Ontario in large quantities. We quote : Best American burning oil, 17½ to 18½c. ; Canadian water white, 16 to 17c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 15c.; cod oil, 22 to 24c.

SALT—There is a rather better demand. Stocks here are getting quite light, owing to the delay in the arrival of shipments now on the way. There is quite a quantity now due. In Canadian salt the demand for small bags has very largely given place to that for the 10 and 20-lb. boxes. We quote: Coarse, 47 to 50c. ; Liverpool factory-filled, 85c. to $1 ; Canadian fine, 90c. to $1 per bag. ; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.50 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each ; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each ; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz ; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS — The firm feeling in vegetables continues, and as far as tomatoes go quotations from some canners show an advance of 40c. over what standard packers sold for earlier. Our dealers are better supplied with corn than with either peas or tomatoes. Of late dealers have been selling quite freely. New Brunswick canners have no tomatoes to offer. The new factory at Woodstock offer quite a full line except tomatoes, but they want high figures, claiming extra quality for these goods. In apples there is some enquiry, but prices are held high, and the fruit is scarce. There is likely to be a better demand this year owing to the small receipts of green apples. A few lobsters are still offered, but at full figures. Other lines unchanged. We quote : Corn, 65 to 70c. ; peas, 75 to 85c.; tomatoes, 95 to $1 ; gallon apples, $2 to $2.15 ; corned beef, Canadian, $2.40 to $2.50; American, 2-lb. tins, $2.60 to $2.70; 1-lb tins, $1.40 to $1.60; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.20 ; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50 ; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3 ; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85 ; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25 ; pineapple, $2.50 to $2.75 ; salmon, $1.15 to $1.20; lobsters, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, $1.05 to $1.15 ; clams, $5 for 4 doz ; chowder, $2.50 to $2.75 for 2 doz. ; scallops, $5.50 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

GREEN FRUIT — Canadian grapes have been plentiful this week. There have been a number of cars of Ontario fruit received, including upward of three cars of grapes, so that the retail and wholesale price have been about the same. This is the more the case, as some of the cars were consigned to retail grocers. Prices ruled low. Peaches, tomatoes, and pears fared better. In apples, the market shows increased strength. This is very different from last year. The present demand is for Gravensteins, many of which are going to the American market. Nova Scotia winter fruit will be scarce. Some few Ontario apples are being received. Malaga grapes are offered, but Canadians are too low to allow of much sale. Bananas and oranges are scarce. Quinces have fair sale. Lemons are without change. We quote : Oranges, $5 per box ; lemons, $4.50 to $5.50 ; Gravenstein apples, $3 to $4 ; other kinds, $2 to $3 ; bananas, $1.50 to $2 ; pears, 50 to 60c. per basket ; grapes, 20 to 25c; peaches, 40 to 60c.; Malaga grapes, $5 ; native bog cranberries, $4.50 to $5.50 per bbl.; sweet potatoes, $3.25 to $3.50 per bbl.; Cape Cod cranberries, $7 to $7.50 per bbl.

DRIED FRUIT—There is still but light trade doing. California raisins have more attention. The market seems unsettled. The lower prices of last week are still quoted, but reports are conflicting as to the future. The sale of Malaga in 50-lb. boxes has effected the demand for California here. Valencias, of which a fair stock is bought, are firmer. Some bought earlier from New York were landed very low and to better advantage than the larger part of those bought direct. Currants are scarce and dried and evaporated apples firm, particularly the latter, which are very scarce. It is said new dates will be later than usual this year. Demand for new prunes is light. There is no sale for California evaporated fruit. We quote as follows : Valencias, 5½ to 6c. ; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c. ; London layers, $1.75 to $2 ; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c.; prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c. ; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples, 3½ to 4c.; evaporated apples, 6 to 7c.; onions, $2.15 to $2.25 per bbl.; cocoanuts, $3 to $3.50 per 100 lbs. ; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.; new Valencias, layers, 6½ to 7c.

SUGAR — While there is no change, dealers hardly hold prices as firm. There have been good sales reported for the week. We quote : Granulated, 4¼ to 4⅜c.; yellows, 3⅜ to 3¾c.; Paris lump, 5½ to 5¾c.; powdered, 5¼ to 5½c.

MOLASSES—Prices are firmly held. Even Barbadoes, which has ruled so low this season, is looking up, and a better feeling is expected. In Porto Rico there is also a feeling favoring higher values. Some little Demerara which is here is very choice, and a stiff price is asked. We quote as follows: Barbadoes, 23 to 24c.; Porto Rico, 27 to 29c.; New Orleans, barrels, 25 to 28c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.; Demerara, 33 to 34c.

FISH—There is still a firm market. In dry cod, those to hand are of nice quality. Pollock, during the fall, have been moving up in price a little. Receipts are light. New smoked herring come upon a bare market. Some 15,000 boxes were received this week, and were at once shipped by the dealers, so stock is still light. Pickled bay herring is rather easier on account of somewhat larger arrivals. The Canso herring to hand is not as good as usual. In Shelburne, quite a few have come in during the week. They find a good sale. In boneless fish there is a good demand. Prices show quite a range. Persons buying pure cod should see they get it. We quote: Large cod, $3.25 to $3.50; medium, $3 to $3.15; pollock, $1.35 to $1.40; bay herring, $1.40 to $1.50 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 7½ to 8c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50 to $5; boneless, 2½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.; Shelburne, bbls., $3.50; half-bbls, $1.85 to $1.90; Canso, $5 to $5.25 per bbl.,; do. half-bbl., $3 to $3.25; wolves, $2.25 to $2.50 half-bbl.

DAIRY PRODUCE—There is little new. In the local market there is no change in cheese. Buyers, however, are not as anxious. In butter, supply is still ample and the market is dull. It almost seems as if the quality of dairy butter got poorer from year to year. Much complaint is heard about the price, but the fault is with the butter. In eggs, for fresh stock there is a good demand at full figures, but held stock moves slowly. We quote: Dairy butter, 15 to 17c.; creamery, 19 to 20c.; prints, 20 to 22c.; cheese, 10 to 10½c.; eggs, 13½ to 14c.

PROVISIONS—Clear pork, which is sold here chiefly from Boston, shows rather less demand than usual at this season. There is still considerable old pork here, which keeps prices down. Mess is in light supply. It comes chiefly from Prince Edward Island. Beef is held firm and has a fair sale. The American ham still keeps its hold on the market. Prices are quoted lower. United States bacon, however, has had to give way to local cured. In lard, the market has shown more strength than was expected. This week has shown a further advance of ¼c. We quote: Clear pork, $14.50 to $15.50; mess, $13 to $14; plate beef, $13.50 to $14.50; hams, 12 to 13c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; pure lard, 8 to 8¼c.; compound, 6½ to 6¾c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL — There has been quite a reaction in flour, particularly in Manitoban. We quote: Manitoba flour, $5.90 to $6; best Ontario, $5 to $5.10; medium, $4.75 to $4.85; oatmeal, $3.75 to $3.85; cornmeal, $2.05 to $2.10; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $16 to $16.50; bran, do, $14.50 to $15; hand-picked beans, $1.20 to $1.25; prime, $1 to $1.10; oats, 34 to 36c.; hay, $11.50 to $12.50; barley, $3.15 to $3.25; round peas, $1.25; split peas, $3.25 to $3.30; yellow eye beans, $1.75; timothy seed, Canadian, $2 to $2.25; do. do., American, $1.75 to $2; clover, 8¾ to 9c.; alsike, 8½ to 9c.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

Some salmon are still being shipped from the North Shore, two carloads going forward to New York this week.

Nova Scotia shippers are finding quite a demand for dry cod and pollock for shipment to Portland, Maine.

City manufacturers of biscuits, on account of the reaction in flour, have marked their goods down to the old prices.

Hops are again quoted higher, and it is said further advances may be expected. There does not appear to be any chance of a reaction.

It is said the steamer Havana, owned by E. Churchill & Sons, Hantsport, N.S., is to be purchased by a party for the Klondike She is a vessel of about 140 tons.

Buyers should note that boneless fish is not boneless cod fish. But John Sealey not only offers what is a pure boneless cod, but also a grade in which there are no bones. This cannot be said of all so-called boneless fish.

THE CANADIAN GROCER would extend congratulations to Mr. Herbert B. Schofield, of the large wholesale house of Schofield Bros., who this week arrived home with his bride. Messrs. Schofield Bros. represent the E. B. Eddy Co., Limited, here.

During the week Mr. Brittain, representing the William Davies Co, Limited, pork packers, of Toronto, has been in the city. It is said this company is talking about starting a factory here. At present quite a quantity of hogs are shipped from this province west.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 11, 1897.

THE market here shows no marked change from last writing. In wheat the farmers are very generally holding for higher prices. Almost all the threshing is done, and, as before stated, the elevators are full. The price is 74 to 75c. for No. 1 hard on an 18c. freight rate. Business generally is good with steady demand in all staple lines. Payments are fairly well met.

BUTTER—A carload of creamery was forwarded to British Columbia this week, which practically cleared up the balance of the make of factories throughout the province. I understand that it was placed at 20c. f.o.b. point of shipment. In dairy butter the bulk of supply is held by dealers, there being little or none in the hands of country merchants, everything being pretty well picked up. The price, 14 to 16c., according to quality.

CHEESE—Market very firm and factories are holding at high figures. Dealers are of the opinion that there is going to be a shortage in the make and that the supply will not equal the demand. One dealer took a stock of 40,000 lbs. this week and the price was 10c. at the factory. Cheese is unquestionably cheese this year and the factories have all made good money, notwithstanding the low price at the beginning of the season.

EGGS—Owing to the extremely, and we might say unprecedentedly, fine weather for the past ten days, the egg market is slow. Dealers are buying at 15c. delivered at Winnipeg, and selling at 17c. The weather changed sharply Saturday night, and no doubt a few days' cold will improve the market.

GREEN FRUITS—Owing to short crop and inferior quality of Ontario apples the supplies for Winnipeg and the province generally are coming from the southern states. Canadian falls are selling at $4 to $4.50; American winters, $3.85 to $4.25. No Canadian winters as yet on this market. Pears made a sharp advance the other day, and are now selling from $2.25 to $2.50 for 40-lb. boxes, Washington and Oregon fruit. Ontario preserving pears, 50 to 75c. per basket, according to variety and condition; Concord grapes, (Canadian) 35c. per 10-lb. basket; Red Rogers and Niagaras, 35c. Sweet potatoes, $5 per bbl. Bananas are again on the market and selling for $2.50 per bunch. A few late peaches are offering at $1.15 to $1.25, according to condition. Plums are of the past. A few Cape Cod cranberries are finding ready sale at $9 to $9.50 per barrel. Lemons remain the same as last week, $5 to $5.50, for first-class California fruit. Oranges will again be on the market in a few days, though the price will be high and supply somewhat limited.

EVAPORATED FRUITS—This market is a little easier though no change in prices is yet reported.

CANNED GOODS—It looks as if tomatoes were going out of sight. Eastern packers are asking 85c. per dozen. At present the price here is $2.15 per case, but it will go higher almost immediately if these prices are maintained in the east.

RICE—Advices from Japan indicate that the price there has risen so that the Japanese commodity is still absent from this market, and likely to remain so.

TOBACCOS—Macdonald's black has shot up another cent. This is a rise of 3c. per lb. in a little over three weeks.

COFFEES—Rios (green) are a little easier and are now selling here at 11½c.

CURRANTS—This fruit is not yet on the market. Shipments are coming in by a steamer expected to arrive on the 10th, so they will be on this market about the 20th. Present indications are that the price will run 6¾ to 7c. per lb.

RAISINS—Advices from abroad show Valencias to have gone up 1s. per 100 since last week. The stocks here were all bought early, while raisins were cheap, and at present there is no rise, but it is expected there will be a general increase in price in sympathy with the foreign market.

FIGS AND DATES—Are not yet to hand.

TEA—Demand is steady and price unchanged.

SUGAR—Granulated, 4¾c.; yellows, 4 to 4⅛c.

CEREALS—In this line the market is somewhat easier. Rolled oats have dropped 10c. per bag and are now selling at $1.55. Split peas bring $2.25 per sack of 98 lbs.; barley, $1.75.

A LUNCHEON-FOOD DISPLAY WINDOW.

For a luncheon display the window should be draped in light blue, terra cotta, or some other delicate colored cheesecloth so as to resemble as nearly as possible the wall-paper of a dining room. In the centre of the window, or, if the window is deep, pretty far towards the back, should be placed a small tea table covered with a sunny cloth and set with glasses, dishes and all the appurtenances of a tea table. On the table, as if set for a meal, should be placed a number of light prepared foods, such as potted chicken, potted tongue or ham, anchovies, Saratoga chips, shrimps, olives, sardines, salmon, wafers or light cakes, salted nuts and something in the way of sweets. Care should be taken not to put too many of these on the table, and they should be arranged as attractively as possible. At every place on the table there might be a glass of iced tea, with a small section of lemon floating on the top. Chairs should also be put around the table in their proper form. Then at the back of the window, or at the sides, could be placed small cardboard signs bearing the names and prices of articles displayed on the table, or other appropriate remarks.—San Francisco Grocer.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

This department has become so popular that many more notices than there is space for are received every week. In future only important items of information will be inserted. Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

"WE know that business throughout Canada is on the upward move," write Frank Magor & Co., Montreal, "because the goods we handle are more or less luxuries. Our travelers have brought in better orders by far for Southwell's marmalades and jams, Rae's olive oil, Cadbury's cocoas, chocolate and confectionery than during the same period last year."

Morton's arrowroot in 7-lb. tins is in stock with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

Morton's pickles, square bottles, are in store with Lucas, Steele & Bristol; also "Enameline."

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. report a very active demand for dairy and creamery butter from outside dealers.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, are clearing out a line of bright syrups in pails at "bargain" prices.

Warren Bros. & Co. report they are offering special value in Japan tea dust and low-grade Young Hysons.

"If you want A1 imported sardines cheap get our figures for some just to hand," write Lucas, Steele & Bristol.

Rutherford, Marshall & Co. are daily receiving orders for dairy and creamery butter from outside points.

Shipments of French peas, mushrooms and Castile soaps are to hand this week for the Davidson & Hay, Limited.

Rutherford, Marshall & Co. have orders for dried apples to such an extent that they report they are unable to fill them.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co., report that their special prices for hams in barrel lots are causing an active demand for this line.

Full stocks of Labrador herrings, shore herrings, codfish, and boneless fish, are in store with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, report good sales of new fine off-stalk raisins, selected Valencias, to arrive next week.

T. Kinnear & Co. have two or three lines of Japan tea in stock, which can be retailed at 25c. per lb. They state the teas show exceptionally good value, having been bought before the advance.

Rose & Laflamme are again offering this year M. Campuzana's loose muscatel raisins in 50-lb. boxes. The prices ruling on these fruit this season are much lower than the California fruit.

T. B. Escott & Co.: "Our fruit ad. appears in this issue. These goods were bought before the recent advance and we are prepared to sell them at old prices for shipment in November.

T. B. Escott & Co. have a large shipment of blueberries which they state they are offering at reasonable prices. "Packers," they write, "report that prices have advanced materially, as large shipments are going to the United States."

THE COST OF RETAILING.

A MUCH-DEBATED subject, the cost of doing business in a general store, has been brought to the front by The Bulletin and Trade, of Minneapolis. It says :

"A subscriber from Litchfield, Minn., sends to The Bulletin and Trade the following query :

"'What do you consider as the minimum percentage of expense for selling goods in a general country store, such as store rent, living expenses of proprietor, clerk hire, taxes and insurance, and every incidental necessary to conduct business? How do expenses of retailing goods in the city compare with those in the country?'

"The answer to these questions can be nothing more definite than an estimate formed through the judgment of men who have been in the business and have estimated their own expenses in terms of a percentage on their goods. Several merchants in this city have been interviewed regarding this question, and several answers have been received. The result as obtained from these merchants is : Ten per cent. in the city will give the retail merchant, if he is exceedingly economical in his living and careful about his store, a bare living, with nothing to lay up as a profit over his living. This reckons the movement of the goods laid down at the door of the store to the homes of the consumers. This also reckons on a fair total of business.

"A merchant who has run a store on the 10 per cent. plan says it cannot be done, except in very good times, with more than the average of trade. When hard times come, a store run on such a per cent. is almost sure to fail. He says he would not think of doing business on less than 20 per cent. on the average goods he sells. The merchants seen on this question say they believe that a country store can be run at less expense than the city store. One merchant thinks that the country storekeeper can do as well on 7½ per cent. as the city storekeeper can on 10 per cent. The taxes, clerk hire and living of proprietor must be more in the city than in the country. Clerks of good ability cost $50 a month in the city. They can be hired for considerably less in the country. Insurance is higher in the country, but taxes are probably double in the city what they are in the average country town.

"In any case, the estimate must depend in a great measure on the amount of goods sold during the year. There are stores in the country that sell no more than $5,000 worth of goods in a year. The expenses of such a store would have to be painfully small to live on 10 per cent. On the other hand, the department store might be able to come out with a large margin on less than 10 per cent."

It seems to us that The Bulletin and Trade has not erred through extravagance of statement in fixing the percentage of cost of doing business, and we think the higher figures mentioned will commend themselves to the most careful investigator. But the point upon which the merchants' attention should be fixed, in a perusal of the foregoing article, is the relation of cost to sales. The man who can only sell $20,000 worth of goods with the same expense for rent, clerk hire, etc., as a rival incurs who sells $25,000 worth annually, will find that his percentage of cost is much larger than his more successful competitor will find his percentage to be.

If a merchant is in doubt whether it is costing him too much to sell goods, let him push the sales a bit, and keep on doing so whenever any doubts arise. If he does this he will never be alarmed by discovering that the cost of doing business on his plan is too heavy.—Merchants' Review.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Wellington Boulter, of Picton, has returned from his annual trip to the Coast. He reports having sold a large quantity of canned goods and at fair prices.

Messrs. S. Demers, N. Lapointe, John Johnston and R. Manning, of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association, left on the 8th inst. for an extended pleasure trip through the eastern states, visiting New York, Boston and other points.

Mr. John Mouat, W. H. Gillard & Co.'s Northwest representative, reports business in that part of Canada "looking up" considerably, and states that his sales of their standard black teas in that locality this season have been more than double that of any previous year.

ORDER BROOMS LIGHTLY.

The H. A. Nelson & Sons Co., Limited, Montreal and Toronto, had their stock of brooms and whisks totally destroyed by fire on the 4th inst. at the Central Prison, causing a delay in the execution of orders of from four to six weeks. They request their customers to order as lightly as possibly in the meantime in these lines. The fire did not cause the slightest injury to any of the other branches of their business.

SHIPMENTS OF CHEESE.

The shipments of cheese to Great Britain have undergone a great increase, 1,495,469 boxes having been already sent over as compared with 1,168,220 boxes for the same period last year. Last week alone there was an increase of nearly 30,000 barrels in our shipments. The shipments of butter have also increased, 179,054 packages having been sent this year as compared with 107,492 packages last year.

THE TOBACCO CROP.

Ernst Muller & Co., Clarksville, Tenn., review the crop situation on October 1 as follows : "The new crop, which a month ago gave promise of turning out better than had been expected, had most unfavorable weather during September, and instead of being better than we expected, it will be the worst crop we have had for several years. We have had no rain to amount to anything for seven weeks now and the weather has been excessively hot, causing much tobacco of the early planting to be field-fired and dry-weather ripe. On the 20th of September about 40 per cent. of the crop was cut and housed—nearly all of it being of the first planting. The weather, which had been very hot up to that time, turned suddenly very cold, and that night we had frost, which damaged the tobacco in the low lands. Farmers cut their crops as fast as they could on the 21st, although green, with the hope of saving as much as possible, but were unable to get it all in the house, and on the night of the 21st we had a more severe frost, which did much damage to tobacco, both in the low lands and on the hills. Cutting went on furiously on the 22nd, but considerable tobacco was left out, and that night we had another frost, but not so severe as the one we had on the 21st. About 5 per cent. of the crop is still in the field and the balance is cut and housed in the following condition : 60 per cent. fairly good useful tobacco cut at maturity before frost, some of which was damaged by drouth ; 20 per cent. cut green, 15 per cent. damaged by frost. We think this a conservative estimate, as many claim that only 50 per cent. of the crop was cut before frost, but from all we can gather 60 per cent. is about right. Although the weather is very dry and the tobacco in the barns is not cured, the loose market in the country has been opened by the dealers, who are paying all the way from $10 to $15.50 round for the best crops. The whole Clarksville section has been ridden over by the local buyers and Regie agents and all the best crops have been bid upon. Farmers' views are very high in consequence, and many are holding for $20 round."

NOT IN DIFFICULTY.

An item appeared in our issue of September 10 to the effect that the Slocan News Co., grocers, etc., Sandon, B.C., were in financial difficulties. The information came from what we believed to be a reliable source ; but we have since learned that the statement was not true, and we tender our apology to the Slocan News Co. From enquiries we learn that the firm is composed of energetic men, and that, according to a recent statement, it shows a surplus of $12,000.

ONE WAY TO GET GOODS.

MANY people often wonder how department stores manage to get goods made by manufacturers who constantly declare they do not sell such trade or permit their jobbers to do so, says an exchange. Sometimes there may be a leak somewhere which the maker or distributer may be instrumental in creating, but the following instance, given in The Reporter, which is especially worthy of quoting on account of its rather romantic nature, shows clearly how houses holding decidedly rigid views regarding the department store trade could be deceived, although in this case the makers involved happened to be regular sellers to the department stores

Down in the city of Mexico is a large importing house, one of the members of which is a fiery Spaniard and the other a native of the Emerald Isle. The latter married the former's sister, and the net result was a son who, as he grew into manhood, showed a judicious mingling of Celtic and Spanish characteristics that promised a rather aggressive career. The promise is on the the way to fulfilment. Last summer the young man took a little vacation from his desk in his father's office, and accompanied by a bag of money and a boom companion went up to Chicago.

He immediately visited the department stores and found two articles, sold by the hardware trade, which the department stores were pushing very energetically and having an immense sale on. He then went to the manufacturers, both of whom are in Chicago, and told them that he believed he could work up a big sale for their goods in Mexico. He would have to ask them to make him a very low price the first year, he said, as the cost of introduction in Mexico would be great, but that afterwards he would pay their regular quantity rates.

The manufacturers were suspicious, but the young man smoothly answered all questions, and as he was posted as to prices and had the cash with him it ended in their selling him several thousand dollars' worth of goods at a price considerably below that given the department stores, and which pretty nearly eliminated profits from their side of the transaction. The young man paid for the goods and had them shipped to St. Louis, where he said he would make up his car lots for Mexico. When the goods reached St. Louis he was there to receive them and shipped them immediately back to Chicago, where his companion had no difficulty in selling them to the department stores at about 75 cents a case below the manufacturers' quotations. Quite a neat little sum was realized by the operators, and when the manufacturers next visited their largest customers in Chicago they found them loaded up with their goods for several months ahead.

U.S. FILLED CHEESE LAW.

The "filled cheese" law appears to have operated as expected by the framers of the Act, notwithstanding that dissatisfaction has been expressed abroad that it has not entirely shut off the export trade in the filled goods, according to a New York paper. Statistics of the operations of the law from September 8, 1896, up to the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1897, show a decided falling off in the number of factories and the production of artificial cheese. In that period 1,663,067 pounds of filled cheese were manufactured, upon which a tax of $16,630 was collected, against 12,000,000 pounds during the fiscal year 1896, 10,000,000 pounds in 1895, and 14,000,000 in 1893. The number of factories which paid the special tax of $400 during the fiscal year just ended was seven, all of which were in Illinois. They numbered an even hundred in the previous year, and in 1893 reached 265. Only one wholesale establishment paid the tax of $250 and sixty-two retail licenses were issued. Of the latter, four were in Illinois, three in Indiana, twenty-nine in Louisiana, nineteen in Maryland, two each in Missouri, Virginia and New Jersey and one in West Virginia. Within the period named no filled cheese was withdrawn for export.

CANADA'S FRUIT IN BRITAIN.

The Canadian Gazette (London) of Sept. 30, to hand by last mail, says, with respect to the shipment of Canadian fruit to England in cold storage: The first consignment consisted of 880 cases of pears, peaches and tomatoes, and were shipped to Bristol by steamer Merrimac. The ship arrived on Friday morning and the cargo was despatched in time to be disposed of at Covent Garden in the afternoon. The quality was described by the experts as excellent, both the Williams pears and the peaches being very fine, but the system employed in packing is such as would prevent the proper ventilation of the contents of the cases. As a result some of the fruit was more or less out of condition. Mr. Crandall, the representative of the Canadian Minister of Agriculture, inspected the fruit, and was much interested in the opinions expressed in the market as to the need of improved packing. There is no reason to doubt that the Canadian Government officials will take steps to instruct the producers as to a better method of packing. The best to follow is the system employed by the California shippers, and there should then be a good sale on the English markets of Canadian produce, especially as it can be brought here at a less cost than the greater part of the fruit from France. Considering the condition of fruit, the prices realized were regarded as very satisfactory.

MADE HIS PATH EASY.

Mr. George Mann, of Montreal, manager of the eastern branch of the Salada Tea Co., has just returned from a trip through New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. "I saw," he said, "THE CANADIAN GROCER everywhere. The people in the Maritime Provinces are largely drinkers of China tea, but the advertisement of the Indian and Ceylon tea associations, which has been running in THE CANADIAN GROCER for some time, made it comparatively easy for me to open up accounts there for our tea."

MEETINGS OF RETAIL GROCERY ASSOCIATIONS.

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS.

THE monthly meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held on Monday evening, 11th inst., in St. George's Hall, the president, J. S. Bond, in the chair. Letters were received from the Hamilton and the Montreal Associations asking for co-operation in a petition to the Federal Government asking for a repeal of the statute now in force by which the salaries of Government employes are not attachable for debt.

On motion it was decided to write the Hamilton and Montreal Associations that the Toronto members, Messrs. Wm. Lount and John Ross Robertson, had promised their aid to have the statute changed, and suggested that a joint deputation from the different associations should wait upon the Government in the matter.

The Purchasing Committee then brought in the report, and after much discussion arrangements were made whereby much more buying will be done this month than ever before.

It was also decided to meet in the future every fortnight instead of monthly.

Mr. W. J. Sykes gave notice of a motion that next year the association should give prizes for the best kept set of books among the smaller grocers of the city.

A committee was appointed to purchase souvenirs for the team winning the majority of the games in baseball series between the Retail Grocers' Association and the Travelers' Association.

HAMILTON RETAIL GROCERS.

The regular monthly meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association of Hamilton was held in their new board room, 100 King street east, Ladies' College building.

The meeting was well attended. President J. O. Carpenter occupied the chair.

The following grocers were admitted as members: A. Williamson, G. Hayes, D. Laverock, J. and A. Morris, J. Bews, L. Revell, B. Crysler, D. Sutherland, A. Swazie and J. Colvin.

The injustice of allowing Government employes' salaries to be exempt from garnishee was discussed at some length, and the co-operation of the other societies of the country will be asked with a view to bringing pressure to bear on both Governments to have the present law changed.

Mr. W. N. Warburton, general agent of the T., H. and B. Railway, wrote, advising the association that the Michigan Central Railway had agreed to build steps and a platform at the road crossing entering Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park so that future excursions could be landed at that point and thus avoid the long walk from Niagara Falls station to Falls View.

The association instructed the secretary when replying to the letter to ask the officials of the road to call the new station Ballentine's Landing, because Mr. Adam Ballentine had taken so much interest in inducing the railways to make the desired concession.

The association will be pleased to receive framed show cards from any of the manufacturers with which to adorn the walls of their rooms.

WM. R. HARVEY, Secretary.

MONTREAL RETAIL GROCERS.

The regular meeting of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association was held in the Mechanics' Hall Thursday evening, October 7, President Scanlan in the chair.

It was decided to have the secretary communicate with Toronto, Hamilton, London and Quebec Grocers' Associations to ask them to join in sending a delegation to Ottawa, to impress upon the Government the necessity of having the garnishee law extended, to apply to the Civil Service employes.

A QUEER PHASE OF ADVERTISING.

Most of the writers on advertising have to thresh out old straw nowadays, because there are no more new phases of the subject to handle, yet we do not remember to have ever seen in print any allusion to the curious operation of the law of chance in the selection of objects for advertising, remarks Merchants' Review. Some of the too, too prosy and verbose instructors of the art of advertising might enliven their lucubrations by glancing at this particular phase.

Why is it that cocoa and chocolate are so extensively advertised while tea and coffee are so seldom treated in the same manner? It is not because the former are novelties, for they have been on the market ror several generations, and for nearly the entire period have felt the magic stimulus of printer's ink. There are more private brands of coffee than of cocoa, and therefore more competition—then why the coy reluctance to use printer's ink among the coffee roasters and packers?

Why do soap and bicycles get such a "booming" in print and canned goods none at all? There are some rare things canned, such as dandelions, sweet potatoes, cabbage, carrots, beets, onions, turnips, parsnips, sauerkraut and frankfurters, which are not commonly known to some grocery editors, not to mention consumers—and surely here is a fine field for a trial of the magic properties of printer's ink, yet it is very seldom that one sees a canned goods ad. in a newspaper or magazine; indeed, the foolish canners have even cut off the trade journals.

Why is this thus?

HUMOROUS SIGNS.

Of unwittingly ludicrous or humorous signs there are plenty. A tinsmith near Exeter, England, has a sign which reads:

"Quart measures of all shapes and sizes sold here."

At a market town in Rutlandshire the following placard was affixed to the shutters of a watchmaker who had decamped, leaving his creditors mourning:

"Wound up and the mainspring broke."

Equally apposite was one in Thomaston, Ga. On one of the principal streets the same room was occupied by a physician and a shoemaker, the disciple of Galen in front, while he of St. Crispin worked in the rear. Over the door hung the sign:

"We repair both sole and body."

On the windows of a London coffee room there appeared the notice:

"This coffee room removed upstairs till repaired."

The proprietor of the place was not an Irishman, though the framer of the notice over the entrance to a French burying ground, "Only the dead who live in this parish buried here," must have been.

One may see in the windows of a confectioner in Fourth avenue, New York, "Pies Open All Night." A Bowery placard reads, "Home Made Dining Rooms, Family Oysters;" while a West Broadway restauranter sells "Home-Made Pies, Pastry and Oysters;" and still another caterer on East Broadway retails "Fresh Salt Oysters and Lager Beer."

"Boots Polished Inside" is a frequent sign in New York, and on Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, there is a "Stationary Library."

The latter is really a circulating library, and the word "Stationary" adorns one window and "Library" the other.

Philadelphia has a sign reading "Ho Made Pies!" and a barber shop in the same city bears this inscription on the window: "G. Washington Smith, Tonsorial Abattoir."

Machinery is being put in the new grist mill at Goderich, now building by Mr. N. Dietrich, by the Stratford Mill Building Co. The mill is to have a capacity of 40 barrels per day.

ENCOURAGED TO TRADE WITH CANADA.

We are glad to learn from several sources that, though uncertainties on some points of interpretation have hindered the good influence of the new Canadian tariff upon British exports to the Dominion, a decided stimulus is being given to Anglo-Canadian trade by the recent reduction in duties. At least half a dozen English houses of high standing have sent representatives to Canada, with a view, should expectations be realized, of establishing branches there. Traders in certain lines who have hitherto found the old tariff and the want of a satisfactory insolvency law insuperable obstacles to the promotion of their business in Canada, have been encouraged by the lower duties to once more turn their attention to Canada, with every prospect of good results. Much, too, must result from the visit to Canada of the members of such bodies as the British Association and the British Medical Association. They have seen with their own eyes and heard for themselves of the commercial revival which reduced taxation, good crops, gold discoveries and general development are bringing to Canada, and they cannot have failed to note the strong desire of the Canadian Ministry and people to do all in their power to quicken the trade relations between the Dominion and the Mother Land. As one small indication of this we may mention that the visit of the British doctors to Canada is giving a decided stimulus to the British export trade in surgical instruments.—Canadian Gazette, London, Eng.

HOW A BUYER WAS IMPRESSED.

I was going along a street in Edinburgh, on the way out to Leith, and a window display caused me to linger. The shop was not a large one, but the trimmer understood his business, for the goods were arranged with an eye to effect, and the dress and other materials which would not interest a man were set off by the tasteful display of some small articles. Price-tickets everywhere. I wanted to buy a present and entered. At once the eye noticed that the shop was a small one not likely to attract a casual purchaser except for the excellent window display. The first thought was to go out and try some larger place. But being in, enquiry was made to examine one of the smaller articles shown in the window—a pair of glove stretchers. The salesman knew his business, and the article was purchased. Sizing up his customer for a stranger, he produced one or two other things. The end was a purchase amounting to five shillings instead of one shilling, as at first intended. Perhaps good salesmanship was a strong factor, but the window display started the thing.

HE GOT HIS ANSWER.

Yesterday a gentleman from a rural district in the vicinity of Bangor come into town and went to the Bangor House with a fine lot of potatoes. The house steward didn't need potatoes that day, and the farmer was leaving the place with his load when a fresh young drummer approached and, winking at companions in the office, said: "I say, partner, how much for your potatoes?"

"Fifty cents," said the farmer, adding honestly, "they are old ones!"

"Why," said the drummer, with an affected Maine accent which did not bear the stamp of accuracy, "if you had them in New York you could get $1.50 for 'em easy."

The farmer eyed the drummer sharply. Then he picked up his load and walked on, remarking sarcastically as he went:

"Yes, and if I had a pail of ice water in hell I suppose I could get $10 a glass for it!"—Ex.

A CURIOSITY FROM AFRICA.

MR. J. L. WATT, of Watt & Scott, the other day received by parcel post from a brother in British East Africa, a curiosity in the shape of an elephant's foot. The flesh and bone has been removed, leaving only the skin and horny substance which served the late Mr. Elephant with toes. The skin is about quarter of an inch thick. Mr. Watt proposes to use it as a rest for a fern pot.

"I should suppose the bottom of the foot is about twelve inches across," I remarked as I picked up the curiosity to examine it.

"Yes, I suppose it is: it's a foot you know," was the pun Mr. Watt worked off as a reply.

"But isn't it a four foot," remarked another punster, who, by the way, is also a broker.

Then the toes of the foot, which had been the cause of the puns, worked as if with irritation, and there was no more punning.

EXCITING CONTEST.

At Sammy Stewart's fish market on Lisbon street the other day a barrel of big live green lobsters was turned out on the floor, preparatory to washing some of the big ones and putting them in the window for sale. One old father lobster, over two feet long, was found and tossed out of the pile. Mr. Stewart went out into the back room for a minute, and was startled by a great rattling and rumpus in the front shop. The giant mud turtle that he has had about the shop for a few days evidently didn't like the salt water fellows, and had snapped off a leg from the aldermanic lobster. He was about to nip off another when the green-eyed monster made a snap at him which surprised the old hero of Barkerville. The turtle's head was out of the shell several inches, when one of the angular arms of the sea monster caught him by the throat in a death-like grip. The other claw wrestled with one of the turtle's muscular legs, while the turtle caught the lobster's tail in its mouth and bit clean through it. The spectators stood back and held up their trousers' legs while salt brine and blood mingled on the floor. The turtle couldn't draw in its head, and the giant lobster, used, probably, to fierce battles in the ocean depths with monsters more terrible than the turtle, seemed to relish the fight. All at once the claw holding the turtle's head broke off short at the lobster's body, and the turtle, feeling he had enough, waddled away, his head still in the vise of the claw's hold. They broke off the claw with a hammer, and, after that, had only to shake a lobster at the turtle to make him draw in his head like a flash.—Lewiston Journal.

A SUCCESSFUL MAN'S CAREER.

THE merchant prince leaned back in his revolving office chair and smiled cheerfully at a newspaper man. The former was rotund and complacent, the latter symmetrical, but weary. He had for years been ennuied by the sameness of things.

"So you want a brief history of my life," said the merchant prince. "Well, there isn't very much to tell."

"About the usual thing, I suppose," suggested the reporter, sorrowfully.

"Just about. You see, I was born in the country, and until I was sixteen I went to school——"

"I know," interrupted the reporter. "It was a little red schoolhouse with green blinds. It nestled in the shadow of the hills."

"It didn't nestle for a cent," said the millionaire; "it was on the top of a hill, and it was a five-storey brick building. When I was sixteen I left school——"

"To take care of your family—yes, of course, I understand," said the reporter.

"I was expelled for kissing the head taacher's pretty daughter," went on the rich man, ignoring the interruption.

"After that I went to another school, where I remained until I was twenty, when I ——"

"Embarked in your business career and began to lay the foundation for your great fortune," almost begged the reporter.

"No, I went to college."

"You did the four years' course in three years," pleaded the newspaper man.

"It took me six. You see, I was suspended three or four times for getting drunk, and I got into two or three other pretty nasty scrapes, but I finally managed to pull through. After I left college I went home."

"Your father was growing old and needed your help in his declining years," implored the writer.

"Not much he didn't. He told me I was no good at all and sent me to Europe for three years. My, my! but I did have good times there! While I was in Europe the old man died and I came home again."

"At last," murmured the reporter to himself. Aloud he said: "And took the burden of the family and business on your young shoulders."

"Well, you might call it that, I suppose. There wasn't any burden, because father left us comfortably off. Anyhow, I came to New York and managed the business."

"You toiled early and late," suggested the reporter.

"I toiled not at all. I had competent employes, and the business practically ran itself. All went along quietly until Black Friday, when——"

"You lost every dollar you had in the world," said the reporter hopefully.

"I was on the right side of the market and made nearly two millions. Then I went back to my former home."

"Your aged mother needed your loving care"

"I went home to be present at mother's second marriage," said the banker stiffly. "There I met———"

"Ah, yes, of course. All these years you had been haunted by the face of some childhood's friend."

"I met Miss Gertie MacMillions. We fell in love at first sight and were married six months later. I have always been very successful. Is there any other question you would like to ask?"—San Francisco Examiner.

Gross earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway from January 1 to September 30 were $16,330,811, as against $14,628,712 in the corresponding period of 1896, and $12,595,538 in the corresponding period of 1895, showing an increase of $1,712,099, as compared with 1896, and an increase of $3,735,273 as compared with 1895.

MINT ... PUFF-STRAPS

RECOGNIZING the great popularity of peppermint with the sweets-loving public, we are the first to introduce to the trade Pliable Licorice containing this flavor.

The delicious quality of our Pliable Licorice is well known; it is matchless in this respect as well as in its flavor and finish.

Our Triple Tunnel Tubes and Navy Plugs are great favorites also, and are made of the same material, although flavored differently. . . . . .

We recommend all these goods as suitable for Summer Trade; they will please the most exacting taste as wholesome, smooth and palatable confections. . . .

YOUR OVERDUE ACCOUNT.

THE following from the pages of The International Confectioner, of Chicago, is applicable also to Canada. You may have been one of that unhappy number of dealers who, on the first day of the current month, received a statement from some manufacturer or jobber with a foot-note remarking that "$—— of your account is overdue—please remit." This importuning for a remittance may have varied from this form; it may have been less politely worded; it may have been importuned in some more urgent tone; but at any rate you were reminded that some of your bills were overdue, and your creditor desired your prompt attention to the fact.

What did you do about it? What are you going to do about it? It is probably a more momentous epoch in your business career than you have regarded it.

Following up the questions it thus opened out, The Keystone proceeds as follows: We will not here discuss the question of loss in your not availing yourself of the advantages of the cash discount, even if you would have been compelled to make a loan for the purpose of discounting the bill; we will not debate that business proposition herein—for it may be the bill was net, without any cash discount, payable at a specified time. For the purposes of our argument, and to simplify the question—to remove all extraneous propositions—we will assume that the bill was "net," subject to no discount for prompt payment, and payable at a time stated on the bill. What, then, should have been your programme?

In the first place you should not have given the creditor the opportunity to remind you that the bill was overdue. When you found that the bill was overdue, when you found that the date of the maturity of the bill was near at hand, and you were unprovided with funds to meet it, you should have notified the creditor of the doubtful prospect, with such explanation of your circumstances as might extenuate your failure to conform to the terms on the bill—whether the reasons given are dull trade, poor collections, unexpected expense, or whatever they may be. You should state the facts honestly, so that the creditor could determine for himself whether the extenuating circumstances which you relate are of a character to cause him to revise his former estimate of the "credit risk" in your case; and you should tell him before the bill is due that you would be unable to meet it promptly, so that he might have time to make other provision to meet his own payments, in case he had been depending upon your payment to meet his own outstandings. Again, he is entitled to your explanation and apology, because it is fair to assume that the terms given you are the best he can afford; consequently, if the bill is not paid when due, he is the loser, in the accrued interest on the amount of the bill, for every day that payment is deferred after its maturity. He is deprived of that fractional part of the legitimate profit contemplated at the time of the sale. You unsettle his forecasts and estimates; you disturb his plan. The explanation and apology are the least you can offer in restitution.

So far, as to your duty to your creditor: what is your duty to yourself?

As to your own interests in the matter, there is no ground for debate. It is perfectly reasonable to assume that if the creditor has cause of complaint against you for failure in your duty to him, he will be influenced by that grievance in his subsequent transactions with you. Your credit with him has suffered a permanent impairment—slight, maybe, but none the less real, and subject to the constant menace of further impairment from the corroborating testimony for which he will now make inquiry among your other creditors. You do not know how cordially and constantly these manufacturers and jobbers exchange their experiences relating to you—how, whatever the keenness of their trade rivalries, they broadly recognize the value of confidential comparison of their "credit risks." Jones cannot be "slow" with a New York house and Chicago not be soon aware of it; or be doubtful in Boston and secure in Philadelphia or St. Louis; or be suspected in Cincinnati and respected in Attleboro. The science of credit is being more nearly perfected daily.

You may be one of those careless merchants who have abundant means and feel that your actual credit cannot be seriously impaired by "slowness." Very well—but you will suffer by your "slowness" in other ways, all the same. You will not get the "close" prices which the man who pays promptly, or on the exact date specified, will secure; you will not get the "scarce" items in the time of shortages of goods in the market; you will pay the tax on the extra time, which the creditor assumes you will take as usual, in some form or other; you will cheat yourself with the confident belief that you are on the "ground floor" of prices, but you do not occupy that comfortable abiding place. He only gets the best who gives the best in exchange. "Net profit" is the gauge of ultimate liberality on the part of creditors, the world over.

What are you going to do about your overdue account? Ignore it, until the creditor reminds you of it a second time? Let it go until he draws on you for the amount? Refuse the draft, "roast" the creditor in an impertinent letter, and finally pay with reluctance after he has threatened suit! You must do better for him—you must do far better for yourself.

Your duty to him requires, and your self-interest should suggest, this better way: Write him in advance of the maturity of the bill that you regret you will be unable to meet it in full—or in part; offer to pay the interest (to which he is of right entitled) from its maturity until (name a date) when you can meet it; offer to give a note, if he can use it; and wait in confident expectation of a considerate reply. Do this only after you have strained every possible effort to raise the money; make any reasonable sacrifice to provide means of payment; do the very best you can, before you decide that the payment must be deferred.

Above all things, do not be induced to divert the cash which you have accumulated toward the payment of the bill to a "spot cash" purchase from another house. Forego the advantages of the cash purchase, unless you have obtained his consent to an extension, after relating the circumstances. Thus will you square your business conscience, and thus only can you hope to be true to a right sense of duty.

A HINT FOR STOREKEEPERS.

A lesson which many a small storekeeper may learn to his advantage is that within the limits of his resources the same system and methods which prevail in the large store should be used by him. His window may be small and old-fashioned, but it should be as carefully trimmed as though it were of plate glass and larger than the front of his store. His stock may be limited and cheap, but for these very reasons unusual effort to arrange it tastefully should be made. He doesn't have a thousand dollars a day for advertising, nor a specialist to write his ads.; therefore, he should be all the more careful to make what little he does spend for publicity go just as far and be just as effective as possible. The very reasons which are oftenest urged by small dealers in excuse for their lack of intelligent and progressive methods are those which most convincingly prove the necessity of such methods.—Trade Magazine.

ATLANTIC COAST FISHERIES.

The fishing season on the American coast is very near its close and even under the most favorable conditions it can last but a few weeks longer; most of the vessels have already hauled up, as they have been meeting with such little success that it has not paid them to remain out. The catch to date by the New England fleet has been less than 9,000 bbls., while up to the same date last year it was 52,000 bbls. This year's record is said to be the smallest ever known. The receipts from Canadian points the past week have shown a marked falling off from the previous week, and advices from that section state that the catch has stopped and that practically all the mackerel that have been cured have come forward. The catch in Ireland continues light as compared with the last few years and the price of the raw fish has advanced, owing to the continued large demand for fresh fish in Ireland. Philadelphia has been the most favored port this fall as to the receipts of Irish mackerel, more having arrived there than at all the other ports of entry combined. The market being so bare of mackerel of No. 2 size, the receipts from Ireland have been promptly cleaned up on arrival of each steamer. There has been no accumulation of stock so far, and as the arrivals will probably not be in excess of the demand, a firm market is looked for in the future.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

GROWERS HOLD THE KEY.

In reviewing the raisin situation on the Coast The California Fruit Grower of Oct. 9th says: "Growers hold the key to the situation and are taking care of the raisins and the market as best they can. The packing houses are being operated in a limited way on early orders and a few sweatbox goods are being purchased at 3 to 3¼c. to fill the few orders that are coming to hand. Growers generally are holding for 3¼c. in the sweatbox, although a few sales are reported on the basis of 3, 4¼ and 5c. for two, three and four crown, in 50-pound boxes, respectively. It is claimed that these prices simply cover packing charges for 3¾c. sweatbox goods. The low-priced raisins sold early in the season are being distributed and answer nicely the purpose of demoralizing the market. Growers are evidently determined to prevent if possible the market from going lower, and at a meeting held in Fresno on Saturday last they very generally agreed to a plan of stemming and packing their loose raisins in 50-pound boxes, placing them in warehouses and accepting a loan from the local banks of 2, 2½ and 3c. per pound on two, three and four crown goods respectively. Packers are carrying a few raisins for which they paid 3¼ to 3½c. in the sweatbox, and they are evidently waiting for the trade to take hold."

A NOVEL DEPARTURE.

A credit bureau of a somewhat novel character has been established in Chicago, according to one of the papers there. It has been started "for the benefit of people of small means who desire to open an account at the department stores, where they can find everything of use in housekeeping or for clothing themselves. Of course, this bureau is not open to people who cannot give ample security in the way of names or reference, and even have the indorsement of some person of known credit, but, their credit once established, they can go to any store and buy anything they fancy, and have it all kept in one combination account at the bureau. Many people might perhaps have an account with one store, if it was a small one, but to be able to buy at any store on credit gives them the benefit of all the bargain sales, which is an object to everybody." The bureau obtains its patrons by advertising for them in the following fashion:

WANTED—Names of responsible people who would like to open an account in the department stores.

WANTED—Clients who are working on a salary and would like to buy on credit or borrow any sum of money on short time.

WANTED—Honest people to buy goods on weekly instalments.

CANADIAN FRUIT IN LONDON.

A CABLE despatch to The Toronto Globe, under date of October 18, says:

"The shipments of Canadian fruit sent by refrigerator service, while arriving here in fair shape, have not been delivered so far in that state of excellence that is to be desired, although fair sales have been made and there is an eager curiosity on the part of buyers to see just what manner of table fruit Canada can send here.

"On the arrival of the great shipment at Bristol, Mr. W. T. Crandall, agent of the Canadian Department of Agriculture, was on hand to receive it, and by the courtesy of the Bristol and the railway officials secured speedy transit to London, where the day after arrival at Bristol the cargo was disposed of by auction at Covent Garden at fair prices.

"The condition of this cargo was not such as had been expected, however, the fruit being a little over-ripe. Mr. Crandall, who is wonderfully in earnest, set to work to discover what there was lacking in the Canadian methods of packing and shipping which made this undesirable result possible, when California fruit, which had travelled by rail seven days before the ocean voyage, had been delivered at Covent Garden in excellent shape.

"It was found that in the first place the Canadian packages, while handsome and attractive, lacked sufficient ventilation. In addition they were too heavy, which induced careless handling on account of the weight, thus jolting the fruit, and were also unnecessarily expensive. In packing in the refrigerator compartments they were put in solidly, and each compartment filled to its utmost capacity, in some cases even butter, etc., being put into the same compartment as the fruit, when there was not enough fruit to fill it. Then again, by the records kept it was found that the temperature of the refrigerator compartments had not been kept at an even degree during the voyage, and in some cases not nearly low enough, the original temperature having been raised considerably by the heat in the packages of fruit as they were packed on board ship.

"It was found that, in packing the California fruits at New York, between the crates of fruit and the walls cleats were placed to give free air space all around, and that between the crates also on all sides these cleats were placed, thus giving free circulation around each crate. The compartments were not filled to their utmost capacity either, and so upon arrival the California fruit was in the best of condition, although naturally it has not the keeping qualities of the Canadian fruit.

"After thorough investigation, Mr. Crandall reported the result of his discoveries to Prof. Robertson in Canada, and no doubt changes will be made at once in the methods of packing, both in the crates themselves and in the system on which the refrigerator compartments are filled. It is naturally hard to arrive at exactly the proper methods of handling this new and much hoped for trade, but with the thoroughness and perseverance the Canadian officials are showing the shippers may be certain that their trade here will very soon be established firmly, with a pleasing tendency to grow."

A GROCER FINED.

The Sherbrooke Gazette says: "Hilaire Pineault, who keeps a corner-grocery in the south end of the city, was up before Judge Mulvena on Tuesday, on a charge of infringing the Quebec License Act by keeping intoxicating liquor at his place of business. The beverage complained of was that commonly known as hop bitter ale, and advertised as non-intoxicating. The case occupied upwards of two days, principally consumed in the cross-examination of the analyst, who proved that the beverage contained 3¼ per cent. of alcohol. A fine of $50 or thirty days was imposed."

THE CURRANT RETENTION LAW.

A despatch has been received with reference to the law, passed in 1895, and renewed in 1896, authorizing the retention of 15 per cent. of the currant crop. The amount retained was handed to the Government in lieu of taxation, and after having been so treated as to make it unfit for eating, was to be sold for distilling or similar purposes. This year the passing of a similar law has been demanded by currant-growers. As, however, the Chamber is not sitting, and a measure of this kind cannot be imposed by royal decree, the Minister of Finance, in order to meet the wishes of growers, has issued a circular dated the 10th-22nd August to the Custom-house authorities, by which they are instructed not to permit the export of currants unless the exporter deposits, in cash, a sum equivalent to 15 per cent. of the value of the amount exported; the value of the currants being calculated to 150 drs. (£3 9s. 9d.) per 1,000 lbs. When the Chamber meets and the Bill of Retention has been voted, the exporters will be entitled, within 30 days from the passing of the law, to withdraw their cash deposit, giving, instead, currants to the requisite amount. If not withdrawn within 30 days the exporter will be liable to the Treasury for the difference between the conventional price of 150 drs. per 1,000 lbs and the highest price at which the currants sold between the 28th August and the day on which the 30 days' delay expires. It is worth noting that the law of 1895 calculated the price of currants at 90 drs. (£2 1s. 3d.) per 1,000 lbs., whereas the present circular calculates it at 150 drs. (£3 9s. 9d.).—Imperial Institute Journal.

JAMAICA ORANGES.

The crop of Jamaica oranges is several weeks later than usual, but what is lacking in quantity is said to be more than made up in quality. The higher rate of duty is expected to keep out the trash, which in past seasons has had such a demoralizing influence upon the spot market.

SEPTEMBER'S TEA TRADE.

McMeekin & Co., of London, England, in their report of September's tea trade say:

Indian.—The offerings at public auction were 198,000 packages, against 185,000 packages in the same month of 1896. The quality generally was of a useful character, and considering the heavy quantities to be dealt with the market showed great steadiness. Common and undesirable liquoring teas were in rather slack demand during the month, but at the close they went off more readily. Some high quotations were realized for specially fine lots from Darjeeling and Assam. The average of public sale prices was 9d. per lb., against 10¼d. per lb. for the corresponding month of last year.

The imports were 21,135,000 lbs., and the deliveries 10,162,000 lbs., leaving in stock on 30th September 36,775,000 lbs.

The yield in India still looks backward, and to the end of September was probably short of that up to the same time in 1896, and revised estimates have been freely circulated showing a probable deficiency over the year in comparison. It must be remembered, however, that estates have frequently pulled up vigorously towards the close of the season, and any estimates now sent out should be regarded with great caution. On the other hand, a considerable expansion is shown in the figures, both for home consumption and export.

Ceylon.—The offerings at public auction were 91,000 packages, against 92,000 in the same month of 1896. The teas went easily right through the month with improving prices for all classes, partly because of the generally improved quality of the offerings.

The average of public sale prices was 8d. per lb., against 8½d. for the corresponding month of last year.

The imports were 6,867,000 lbs. and the deliveries 8,937,000 lbs., leaving in stock on Sept 30, 22,646,000 lbs.

Three thousand five hundred packages of Java teas sold at steady rates and attracted good competition. In China teas there was little doing, but rates for common teas showed a hardened tendency.

A WINNIPEG TEA FIRM.

Sutherland & Campbell, of Winnipeg, tea packers and wholesale grocers, are meeting with great success in the sale of their "Royal Shield" blend of teas. These goods are particularly suited to the hard water of Manitoba, and are put up in attractive packages of ½-lb., 1-lb., 3-lb. and 5-lb. canisters. The representative of THE CANADIAN GROCER recently spent a pleasant week traveling in Southern Manitoba with Mr. James Lant, who represents this firm.

SITUATION IN CLOVES.

THE GROCERS' JOURNAL, of London, Eng., in an article on the clove situation, says: "It will be remembered that when the slavery regulations in Zanzibar were first agreed upon and it was settled to inhibit entirely the trafficking in flesh and also forbid the holding of any slaves after a certain date, we indicated an inevitable rise in the product of the only industry in the island, though it was not certain how long stocks would take to replete and hasten the event. The price was then about 2½d., low enough to attract the attention of the speculator, and, moreover, the conditions favorable for a rise were eminently better than when Colonel North made his unsuccessful raid on the spice market. It is difficult to get Arabs to combine for any purpose save fighting. They are apt to look with suspicion on attempts of outsiders to regulate their trade; and the chief difficulty to be encountered by a syndicate endeavoring to control the export was the liability of needy Shamba owners to plunge their produce at any moment. But the stars in their courses have fought for Sisera, and the omens point to the syndicate which is bulling cloves making money by their courage in fighting the battle from the first. When the price last week reached 3d., quite a flutter agitated the circles where for so long the spectacle of almost stationary prices has been watched, for between 2½d. and 2 15-16d. the spice has ranged for a considerable period, but 3½d. is a greater rise, and there be those who say this is only the beginning of much greater things.

"What is the position now? It is a most interesting one. Manumission has come into force. The erstwhile slaves want to taste what the sweets of freedom, of which they have heard so much, consist of; and, so rapidly march events now in the mighty continent, long given over to savagery, that the opportunity comes, as it were, unasked. The Mombassa Railway cannot be built without labor, and the freed slaves are just the men to fill the void. It is new work. They have gladly exchanged their old jobs for the new, refusing wages offered them to stay; and the cloves have been to a large extent left to drop off the trees. This must show itself in the exports, and already the statistical position is stronger than it has been for years. Imports this year are slightly in excess of last year, amounting to some 19,000 bales Zanzibar against 17,440, the total, including Penang and Amboyna, showing 19,741 bales and packages up to the second week of September, against 18,616 in 1896; yet stocks have not increased, but have, on the contrary, decreased, amounting to 77,506 bales Zanzibar, against 83,582 last year, the total import being 9,000 packages behind the 1896 figures. This is the more remarkable, having regard to the fact that imports in 1895 to the same date were remarkably heavy, being 52,983 packages. Some of this may have been taken off the market and held speculatively, and a quantity may likewise be held in Zanzibar by the controlling syndicate for a like purpose. But even so, it is unlikely the status quo ante in the clove gardens will be restored for some time, as it will be long ere the manumitted slaves settle down to work again and production goes ahead once more. Nobody will be hurt if prices do move up a little, and unless rates be raised too rapidly there will not be much damage done, though a handsome profit will accrue to the manipulators."

Many merchants instruct their employes to pay particularly careful attention to young children who may be sent to the store. The little ones are very sensitive and will notice the cheerful, smiling face and the apparent anxiety to please and wait on them, and they are glad to go to such a store again.

A preacher was holding forth to a wearied congregation when he noticed a boy in the gallery pelting the people with chestnuts. The clergyman was about to rebuke him when the youngster bawled out at the top of his voice, "You mind your preaching and I'll keep the folks awake."

THE TURNING OF THE WORM.

The driver of the ice wagon was surprised to see the occupant of the house sitting on the front doorstep as he drove up. As soon as the wagon stopped the householder was at the curbstone with his eyes fixed on the scales. The ice man paid no attention to him, but, after weighing a small chunk, started toward the house with it.

"Hold on," said the customer, "I'll take that in."

"You needn't bother."

"But I know just where to put it."

"All right. But you want to be quick, for it's a warm day, and we'll have to deliver the stuff in sponges if we let it stay out in the sun much longer."

The customer seized the tongs and disappeared. In a little while he came out of the house, and, seating himself on the doorstep, began to whistle.

"Well! well!" shouted the ice man. "I can't stay here till next winter."

"Are you waiting for anything?" inquired the customer, blandly.

"Of course, I'm waiting for something. I want my tongs."

"What tongs?"

"The tongs you just used to carry the ice in."

"Oh! I'm sorry; but I don't care to lend them."

"Well, whose tongs do you think they are?"

"Mine."

"Maybe you've gone down town unbeknown to anybody and bought out the ice company with all its furniture," was the sarcastic rejoinder.

"No. But I bought those tongs. I pay you so much a pound for your commodity, don't I?"

"Yes."

"Well, I noticed that the tongs were weighed in with the rest, and I'm not going to pay you for tongs at so much a pound and then not get them. I have been taking ice from you for the last three months, and that makes at least ninety pairs of tongs still due me. If you have any proposition ready, to trade off ice for tongs, I'm willing to listen to it."—Washington Star.

Wholesale Grocers TORONTO

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

Coffee Roaster.

Caldwell & Hodgins, 250 Queen street west, have built for themselves one of the largest and best paying coffee and tea trades of the city. The reason for this, they explain, is that they cater to the trade of only such people as desire and are willing to pay for the best quality of goods. To illustrate to their customers the fact that their coffee is of the best quality, they import their coffee unroasted and roast it themselves on an imported coffee-roaster. This machine stands in the front of their shop, is about six feet high and is of such construction that a customer can see the full process of roasting. As the roasting only takes about twenty minutes, and three or four roasts a week are sufficient, the expense is light, and is more than made up by the difference between the price of the roasted and the unroasted article.

Canned Goods Windows.

This week seems to be the week for canned goods, and many retailers have expended their efforts to make a good showing in their windows, or in front of their shops. As a consequence there are a multitude of windows worthy of remark. Yet two stand out in my mind as a degree or so ahead of the rest. Brown Bros., 486 Queen street west, have a magnificent display of honey, canned goods, jams, catsup, Worcester sauce and pickles, arranged in symmetrical order at the back of their window. The Rossin House Grocery, corner King and York streets, has a fine display of peas, corn and tomatoes in the corner window. Boxes of peas and corn are built in a large pyramid in the centre of the window, and surmounted by single cans of tomatoes. Smaller pyramids are arranged around the larger one, and the floor is covered with the goods. In the central part of the pyramid is a neat card, "All this season's pack."

Saving Time.

There is an old saying that time is money. And to a man in business it is a fact, as was illustrated to me by looking into some of the time-saving methods of the Toronto grocers. I was sitting in the store of C. M. Webb, 273 Queen street west, when a customer came in for some flour.

"How much do you want?"

"Oh, about two or three pounds."

The clerk went to a shelf, handed out a package already tied up, the customer paid him and departed. The whole transaction occupied less than three minutes.

On enquiry I was informed that the firm is in the habit of having sugar, starches, currants, washing soda, in fact, everything possible, tied up in suitable packages during the quiet business hours, thus saving customers' time and their own.

The saving of the firm's time is such that on a Saturday evening two clerks can do as much work as four were in the habit of doing under the old system of wrapping up goods as ordered.

This is not a new idea in Toronto by any means, many of the leading retailers having followed this system for some years to their profit.

THE RAMBLER.

GROCERY DEBTS.

The Retail Grocers' Association of Cincinnati is making efforts to obtain legislation favorable to the business men of the state. At its first regular fall meeting the association, according to an exchange, decided upon the first of a series of measures that it desires to have presented to the Legislature. It will demand that the state exemption law be so amended that when a man who contracts a debt for groceries and other commodities while out of work, shall, when he secures work, be required to pay not less than 10 per cent. of his weekly wages toward liquidating such indebtedness.

During the past three years of hard times, it is said, many persons have run up large grocery bills while out of work, and then, when again employed, took advantage of the exemption law to evade payment of these debts.

CANADA AND HER PROSPECTS.

CANADA'S greatest need is population. We are blessed with a wealth of forest, of fisheries, and of field. Our mining possibilities are enormous, while with a system of inland navigation we have been richly endowed. But population has to be brought in.

At present the area of Canada is 3,456,383 square miles, the largest of all the British colonies, but the head of population to each of these square miles is only 1.4, or about the smallest of any British colony. The last official estimate of the population of the Dominion places it at 5,083,424.

Before a man can be induced to emigrate from his native land he must be assured that there is some tangible reason for his so doing: He must be assured it will pay him; and not only that it will pay him, but that the general conditions of the country are inviting.

There are two chief causes why Canada in the past has not received as large a proportion of the immigrants which have left the Motherland and other European countries. The first is misconceptions regarding the climate of the Dominion and the second is due to the want of proper methods in presenting Canada to the world.

Canada has been looked upon by a great many people in Europe as a section of the North Pole, encircled with icebergs and covered with snow. A greater mistake was never made. Canada experiences some cold weather during the winter, but it is rarely cold enough to be unpleasant to a healthy man or woman.

If there was no other evidence of the avorable climatic conditions of Canada the variety and quality of the fruit the country produces is ample proof on that point.

But the outside world is gradually being seized of the facts concerning Canada, and as they get the knowledge we shall get the population.

The year 1897 has been to Canada probably the most auspicious since Confederation. Never before was she advertised as much, and never before were her resources as much revealed.

Knowledge of her cereal and fruit producing capabilities, and evidences of the enormous richness and vastness of her mineral resources has been disseminated all over the civilized globe. Then the prominence Canada assumed during the Jubilee celebration caused her nationality to blaze forth with such brightness that it was seen not only throughout the Empire, but foreign nations caught well-defined glimpses of it. And within the last few days its financial condition has been brought into strong and favorable relief (1) by the report of the Grand Trunk Railway, and (2) by the success with which the Canadian loan was floated in London.

With Canada's reputation high abroad, and good times upon us at home, the outlook is most encouraging. Canada has turned a lane in her history.

When a man boasts of the superior brand of his honesty see to it that your pockets are buttoned up.

U. S. EXPORTING PEPPER.

The steamer Lahn, which sailed last Tuesday from New York for Bremen, carried 100 tons of pepper for Hamburg, and an enquiry for another hundred tons is now in the New York market.

This is not altogether looked upon as the opening of trade in this article with Europe, but is a result of a low market in New York, prices ranging there about ¼ of a cent lower per pound than in London, and as the loading and discharging expenses are the same from London as from New York, the freight difference is not noticeable.

An enquiry from Hamburg for 1,000 bales of cloves is also due to the same cause.

A HINT TO BUSINESS MEN.

THE municipal reform advocates of New York in bringing out Seth Low for the mayorality have set an example which business men and men solicitous for good municipal government in Canada would do well to follow.

The man who is championing the cause of good municipal government in New York was selected for that purpose not merely because of his moral standing, but because to moral rectitude he has added superior business qualifications.

It is said that whatever some people touch turns to gold; but it has been proved beyond all peradventure that whatever Seth Low has touched has turned out to be a business success.

He had a college education, but he subsequently received a sound business training, and it is the education he received in the latter respect that has given him the reputation he possesses to-day; a reputation that is continental in its extent.

In a few months the electors in Canada will be called upon to choose men for mayorships, reeveships and councilships for cities, towns, villages and townships. Between this and that time the business men of the country should roll upon themselves the burden of searching out men of practical business experience to fill the various offices.

Municipalities, like mercantile institutions, should be managed on business principles. We know that at present this is the exception and not the rule. And it is because it is so that mismanagement is rife and taxation burdensome.

The business men are, to a great extent, responsible for this state of affairs. Very few take as live a personal interest in local municipal matters as they should, and fewer still are willing to allow the duties appertaining to the mayorality, reeveship, aldermanship or councilship to be rolled upon them. And they are getting their reward in municipal mismanagement, and its accompanying evils.

The only surprise is that matters are not worse, for if a business was conducted with the same persistent absence of ordinary business instinct as are the affairs of the average municipality its life would be short indeed.

NEW METHOD OF SENDING FRUIT TO ENGLAND.

SOME interesting experimental shipments of Canadian fruit to the British market are being made by Mr. Alexander Jardine, of the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co., Toronto.

Mr. Jardine is interested in a bed of sphagnum peat, or what is commonly known as peat moss, a feature of which is its peculiar absorbent qualities when dry. And the idea was conceived that this moss, dried and ground fine, would be a suitable substance in which to pack green fruit for shipment across the Atlantic. Accordingly, Mr. Jardine gathered some pears and tomatoes from his own garden in Dovercourt, just outside Toronto's city limits, wrapped them in tissue paper and then packed them in the ground peat moss in cases.

The fruit was shipped by cold storage and arrived in London in excellent condition. The pears sold at twelve shillings and the tomatoes at nine shillings per case, netting a profit of about three shillings on the tomatoes and four shillings per case on the pears.

Following this Mr. Jardine sent another shipment of pears, which, on arrival in Montreal could not be given a place in the steamer, all the cold storage space being taken up. The fruit was kept a week in Montreal and shipped by the next steamer; and this week Mr. Jardine received a telegram stating that even it had arrived in excellent condition.

On Tuesday of this week a third shipment of fruit left Toronto for the London market. It consists of grapes and pears bought upon the Toronto market and put up in the same way as the other shipments. But instead of putting the fruit in cold storage the bold venture is being made of sending it as ordinary freight, Mr. Jardine believing that the moss alone will preserve the fruit.

The outcome of this last venture will be watched with a great deal of interest, for if it is demonstrated that green fruit packed in peat moss can be safely shipped across the Atlantic without being put in cold storage it will mean an enormous saving in freight.

Mr. Jardine has kept cherries in good condition for three months in the sphagnum moss, and he has strong hopes that the shipment just sent forward will turn out well. It is to be hoped it will, for it will mean a great deal for Canada.

While bees may be strangers to idleness there are a good many men who are strangers to industry.

THOSE STEAMSHIP SUBSIDIES.

THE question of subsidies for carrying the Canadian mails across the Atlantic during the winter months is still undecided. In fact, it has become more complicated rather than otherwise.

The Government, it will be remembered, decided that no subsidies should be given to steamers which made United States and not Canadian ports their winter terminus. And tenders were invited under these conditions. A few days ago offers but not tenders were received from the Allan and Dominion Companies.

Their offer is to jointly give a partial service to St. John direct, but they maintain that the traffic is not such as to warrant their giving a weekly service as asked for by the Government. The very best, we are told, the companies will do is to provide a fortnightly service to St. John direct, and running each alternate week, as they do at present, to Portland, making Halifax a port of call.

The position the Government has taken is the right one. Canada has already too long contributed to the upbuilding of United States ports. But whether they can maintain it and still be serving the best interests of the country is another matter.

The people of Canada are, as far as we know, unanimously in favor of subsidies being granted only to such line or lines as will agree to make a port in this country the terminal port. And only upon the ground of expediency should the Government even compromise on the position it has taken.

TIMES ARE BETTER.

"No doubt times are better," remarked a well-known Toronto wholesaler on Tuesday. "I am among the retail trade a great deal, and even those who are chronic pessimists are compelled to acknowledge that business is improving. And those," he concluded, "who have good stocks on hand are particularly happy, values having appreciated since they bought."

REJECTED TEAS FOR CANADA.

AS a result of the inspection law which went into force in the United States a few months ago large quantities of teas have been rejected, all of which will be destroyed unless exported from the country within a certain period.

Canada being the nearest country, it is quite natural that an effort will be made to find therein a market for as much of this tea as possible. In fact we understand some has already been brought in.

Owing to the faulty character of the inspection law a great deal of the tea rejected is of first-class Indian and Ceylon descriptions; but a great deal of it has, no doubt, been righteously rejected. It is for this righteously rejected tea that the Customs authorities should be on the lookout.

We must confess that we have not much faith in the Canadian law governing the inspection of teas. It is not a tea man's test; it is a chemist's test. The only proper way to test tea is in the cup, as every tea expert tests it.

Let the Government appoint practical tea experts in place of the chemists and THE CANADIAN GROCER will guarantee that teas which are unfit for human consumption will be kept out of the country.

NEW CALIFORNIA PRUNES.

The first shipment of new season's California prunes reached the Toronto market this week. It came direct from the Coast.

The quality of the fruit is excellent, and better than a year ago, but prices are higher.

The prices which the wholesale houses are quoting are as follows: 40-50's, 9½ to 10½c. per lb.; 50-60's, 8½ to 9c.; 70-80's, 7½ to 8c.; 90-100's, 6½ to 7c. per lb.

ENTERPRISING, AT ANY RATE.

Yukon mining stocks are being pushed in far-off Japan. One company, whose head office is in Toronto, has a three-quarter column advertisement in The Japan Daily Advertiser, published in Yokohama, inserted by the agent for Japan and China who resides in Yokohama.

The company is to be commended for its enterprise, which reads a lesson to mercantile companies who are not as enterprising.

CURING THE TOBACCO CROP.

"METHODS of Curing Tobacco" is the title of a bulletin just prepared by Milton Whitney, chief of the division of soils of the United States Agricultural Department. The bulletin is considered especially appropriate just at this period, as the tobacco growers are nearly ready to cut, house and cure their crops. Missouri raises large quantities of tobacco of the heavier grades and as so much depends on the proper handling and curing of tobacco as to the grading and consequently the market value of this staple, these extracts from this bulletin will prove interesting to many. The process of curing these tobaccos is essentially as follows :

When ripe, the stalks are cut and split lengthwise and laid on the ground to wilt. They are then strung on sticks, four or six on a stick, and the sticks are hung on a low scaffold in the field. Within a week they are hauled into a well ventilated barn, hung in tiers and cured without the use of artificial heat. The process of curing must be gradual to produce a good and uniform color. This is regulated by the ventilator doors, according to the temperature and the humidity of the air. The crop can usually be cured in six weeks. The leaves are stripped from the stalk during the winter, graded as trash, lugs and bright, medium and dark leaf. These are tied into hands and bulked down for a short time, after which they are prized into hogsheads. The crop goes through a certain amount of fermentation in the bulk, and it must be examined occasionally to see that the temperature does not run too high. When it does, as seldom happens if the tobacco is in good condition when it is put down, the bulk is turned over and a new one built up.

In Virginia, however, there are districts where certain modified methods have been used to such an extent as to give character to the tobacco. These are local methods, however, and are not as prominently recognised now as they were a few years ago.

The bright yellow tobacco of Southern Virginia, North and South Carolina and East Tennessee is grown upon a certain type of very sandy soil. The planting is usually done from May 10 to June 10. The plant is topped to from eight to twelve leaves, depending upon the vigor of the plant and the character of the season. The more vigorous the plant and the wetter the season the more leaves can be left on to mature. The plant is regularly suckered every week if need be. There are various methods of harvesting the crop. Sometimes the entire stalk is cut, as with other tobaccos, usually only those which appear to be ripe being taken and the others being left to mature further. At other times the leaves are picked off as they mature and the rest of the plant is allowed to ripen further.

The second method has a decided advantage from the fact that the leaves of a plant do not ripen at the same time. There is less waste, and the leaves are all gathered at about the same stage of maturity. The plant should be thoroughly ripe when cut in order to give the finest texture and the brightest color. If the whole plant is cut, it is spread onto a stick, or, if the leaves only are stripped as they ripen, they are strung on a string or wire and attached to a lath. The leaves are sorted to a certain extent in the field, keeping those of a uniform color and ripeness together as much as possible. When cut, the tobacco is carried at once to the barn, without exposure to the sun, or without allowing it to wilt or lie upon the ground.

The tobacco barns are tight, with flues running across a short distance from the ground and returning to the chimney, which is built next to the furnace. In early days barns were built of logs, with the cracks completely stopped with mud or clay so as to make them perfectly tight. The barns are usually small, averaging from 16 to 22 feet square and of about the same height to the plate. Frequently as many as 18 to 20 of these barns are built together on a plantation, but never closer than about 100 feet apart on account of the great danger from fire. There are quite a number of different barns and of different flues and of arrangements for distributing the heat, many of them patented and all of them described with more or less minuteness in tobacco literature.

The tobacco is hung in the barn in as fresh a state as possible and the firing immediately begins, so that the heat will ascend into the tobacco while the leaves are stiff and the heat can be equally distributed throughout the space. Three days are needed to cure a barn, and it takes from two to three cords of wood. It requires very careful judgment and careful observation to cure this bright tobacco properly. The least inattention or wrong move is liable to reduce a barn of the finest yellow tobacco to a very inferior grade. No definite rules can be given, but the information must be acquired through experience, preferably under the direction of some person who has acquired skill in the method.

When the fires are started a thermometer is hung on a level with the bottom leaves, and is carefully watched day and night, while at the same time the plants themselves are carefully and frequently inspected. The heat must be increased very gradually, but it must never on any account be checked. It must never be so intense as to cause sweating. The first process in the curing is to maintain a temperature of 80 or 90 deg. until the leaf is yellowed properly. This requires from 18 to 36 hours, and must be very carefully managed. After the yellowing the heat is raised 5 or 10 deg. at a time and held at each stage for one or two hours, until it has attained a temperature of 115 or 120 deg., where it is held for several hours, until the leaf is thoroughly cured. After this the stalk has to be cured by raising the temperature to 160 to 175 deg. by stages of 5 to 10 deg. per hour, and keeping the temperature at this point until the stalk is thoroughly cured.

After the drying the barn is opened and the fires go out, and after 36 hours the leaf is usually in order for removal. It should not be exposed to very damp weather, as this is supposed to injure the color ; but if the air outside is too dry, a little wet straw may be thrown over the flues in order to slightly moisten the atmosphere of the barn. The tobacco is then taken down and bulked on the sticks in piles. It is left in this way for several days to straighten out the leaves and improve the appearance. It is then rehung, being crowded very close to prevent injury as far as possible from atmospheric changes, or it may be bulked down permanently to keep it in order for stripping.

The leaves are stripped from the stem and tied into hands after being sorted into six or eight grades of wrappers, fillers and smokers. The tobacco is then bulked down and left for one or two months, when the color becomes fixed and the slight greenish tingue which was left on removal from the barn is removed. The color is then no longer subject to change. Much of the tobacco is carried loose to the warehouse and sold in the open market. Some of it is packed in small hogsheads and shipped.

It is said to be very necessary to grade the tobacco properly according to the character of the leaf and its color.

GERMANY WANTS CURRANTS.

It is reported from Greece that Germany is in the market for currants to be used in wine making, and that the primary market is likely to be influenced more or less according to the degree of the success of the new undertaking.

A most wonderful phenomenon has recently occurred at Boston, Lincolnshire, England. A poultry-keeper placed a hen on 15 double-yolked eggs and 29 chickens were the result. It is said that the hen's bewilderment at this extraordinary brood from such an ordinary number of eggs was very pronounced.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Oct. 21, 1897.

GROCERIES.

BUSINESS has flattened out this week somewhat compared with the past month or so. What may be termed the harvest trade is about satisfied and we are now between the seasons. At the same time, however, a fairly good volume of business is being done, and the outlook for trade continues bright. A feature of the situation is the continued firmness in values generally. The demand from retailers at the moment is chiefly for canned vegetables and foreign dried fruits. From first to second hands transactions in canned vegetables are light. Coffees are meeting with fair request, and wholesalers report a little improvement in the demand for tea. Syrups are in little better request at steady prices.

CANNED GOODS.

The canned vegetables situation has not changed materially during the week. There has not been much doing in tomatoes from first hands, holders not being disposed to seek business, and wholesalers do not appear anxious to sell in large quantities. We hear of a transaction in a good round lot of tomatoes at 85c., which appears to be the ruling figure with the packers. Some packers are, however, asking 90c. The wholesale price ranges from 85 to 90c. Advices from the Coast in regard to salmon state that the feeling is a little stronger. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 85 to 90c.; corn, 65 to 85c.; peas, 85 to 87½c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.25 to $1.40; beans, 65 to 80c;. peaches, $2.25 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.65 to $1.90, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $1.75 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 80 to 95c.; gallons, $2 to $2.25; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; other red salmon, $1.20 upwards, according to quality and brand; cohoes, 95c. to $1.10; canned mackerel, $1.25 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.85 to $2.95; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.35 to $1.40; 2's, $2.35 to $2.50; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

Further shipments of Rio coffee have been received during the week, and there is a good demand for coffee of that description. In other kinds there is not much doing. Advices from Brazil report that the movement of the crop is large, and there is rather an unsettled feeling in consequence, while the European markets are easier. Jobbers quote green in bags: Rio, 9 to 12½c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 12½ to 18c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 16 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

Wholesalers report a little better enquiry for syrups, and a better trade than last year is expected on account of the lightness of the apple crop. Prices rule steady. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

There is a little movement to report. We quote; New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGAR.

There is very little doing, refiners and wholesalers alike reporting business quiet. For the time of year, however, business is fair. The English market declined fractionally on beet sugar early in the week, and the New York market is dull. Licht's estimate of the yield of the present beet crop of Europe was issued a few days ago. It was slightly smaller than generally expected, being 4,925,000 tons, against his estimate of 4,960,000 tons last year and an actual crop of 4,915,759. Wholesalers' prices are unchanged, being as follows, subject to a discount of 1 per cent. 10 days: Granulated, 4 5-16c. for less than carload lots, and 4¼c. for carload lots; yellows, 3 9-16 to 3⅞c. per lb.

quotations on nuts. Advices from the primary market state there is a probability of higher prices ruling on filberts when the demand sets in. Reports in regard to Tarragona almonds are also firmer. We quote: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 20 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

No special feature to note. We quote as follows: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½ to 4½c.

SPICES.

There has been an active demand for cloves during the week, and some good round lots have changed hands. We hear of one transaction of 400 bales. Peppers are still firmly held. Cassia stocks are light and prices are still tending upward in the primary markets. We quote as follows: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 11 to 12c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 20c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

TEAS.

An improved demand for tea is reported by the wholesale houses, although, generally speaking, trade is on the quiet side. There is a fair demand for Indian and Ceylon teas, but that for Japan teas is limited. An increased enquiry is reported for China black teas, which are just now showing good value. The English market is firm on Indian and Ceylon teas. Brokers report some enquiry for Japan tea, but sellers are asking high prices and holding off. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRANTS—Cables show that prices are being well maintained. The demand is good and shipments ex Avlona are arriving. We quote: Filiatras, 6c. in barrels; 6½c. in half-barrels and 6¼c. in cases. Patras, 6½c. in barrels; 6¾c. in half-barrels, and 6¾ to 7c. in cases. Vostizzas, 7 to 8c. in cases.

VALENCIA RAISINS—Continue in good demand. The Bellona, the second direct steamer, left Denia on Monday last, 18th inst. We quote: New goods — Fine off-stalk, 5½ to 6c.; selected, 6¼ to 6¾c.

MALAGA RAISINS — The bulk of the orders for this market are on the Bellona, which vessel arrived at Malaga on Tuesday to load. Locally there is nothing new to note. We quote as follows: London layers, $1.70 to $1.90; black baskets, $2.30 to $2.50; blue baskets, $2.50 to $2.75; Connoisseur Clusters, $2.40 to $2.50; Dessert Clusters, $3.60 to $3.80; quarter flats, 75 to 90c.

FIGS—No particular feature to note. We quote: 4-crown, 10 to 11c.; 5-crown, 11 to 13c.; 7-crown, 13 to 14c.; 9-crown, 15 to 16c., natural figs, in bags, 4½ to 5c.

SULTANA RAISINS—The demand is particularly good for Sultana raisins at prices ranging from 9½ to 12½c. per lb.

CANDIED PEELS—The demand is beginning to pick up. We quote: Lemon, 11 to 13c.; orange, 12 to 14c.; citron, 17 to 20c.

PRUNES—The first shipment of new season's California prunes reached this market early this week direct from the Coast. All the wholesale houses shared in the shipment, and some business is transpiring. We quote: 40 to 50's, 9½ to 10c.; 50 to 60's, 8½ to 9c.; 70 to 80's, 7½ to 8c.; 90 to 100's, 6½ to 7c.

CALIFORNIA EVAPORATED FRUITS—As peaches are higher than apricots, it is expected that sales of the latter will be large this season. Prices are higher on the Coast for apricots.

GREEN FRUITS.

The first shipment of this season's, Jamaica oranges has arrived, and a shipment of Mexican oranges is expected this week. New layer figs have also arrived. Grapes have dropped off this week, but the growers say there are lots to come yet. Canadian and Cape Cod cranberries are now on the market. We quote: Lemons, fancy, $4.50 to $5; extra fancy Rhodi, $5.50 to $6. Cocoanuts, $4.50 a sack and 60c. per doz. Mexican oranges, $4.25 to $4.50 per bbl.; Jamaica oranges, $9 per bbl. Bananas, $1 to $1.50. New cabbage $1 to $1.25 per 100; peaches, 50 to 75c.; Cape Cod cranberries, $7 to $7.50 per bbl.; Canadian cranberries, $5 per bbl.; quinces, 15 to 20c.; chestnuts, $5 a bushel. Canadian apples, $1.75 to $2.50 per barrel and 25 to 35c. per basket; Spanish onions, $1 per case, pickling onions, 75c. per basket; yellow Danvers, 80 to 85c. per bag of 80 lbs.; fall and winter, 35 to 60c.; celery, 25 to 30c. a dozen; grapes, 10-lb. Concords, 13c.; 10-lb. Niagaras, 15c. Concords, large baskets, 1 to 1½c. per lb.; Niagaras, large baskets, 1½ to 2c. per lb.; sweet potatoes, $3.25 per bbl.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—No material change in the state of the market. The receipts are not yet nearly up to the demand, especially in both creamery and best dairy grades. Many points which formerly shipped dairy butter are now buying dairy and creamery from Toronto dealers. Second grade dairy butter is still offered in abundant quantities. We quote: Dairy, best grade, 15 to 16c.; second grade, 10 to 12c.; creamery, early make, tubs, 17 to 18c.; late make, tubs, 18 to 19c.; prints, 19 to 20c.

CHEESE. — Lots still offering, causing market to weaken. Local quotations are 9½ to 10c., according to month's make.

SALT.

quote: Carload lots, $1 per bbl., and 65c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl., and 70c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B., barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c.

FISH.

The demand is still good, though dealers are better able to meet it this week than they were last week. We quote as follows: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5½c. per lb.; whitefish, 7c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg; ciscoes, 75c. to $1.

PROVISIONS.

There has been a slight reduction in the price of nearly all provisions. Trade in dry salted meats and barrel pork has been good, lard has been active, but smoked meats have moved slowly.

DRY SALTED MEATS — Long and short clear bacon, 8¾c. for carload lots, and 8¾ to 9c. per lb. for ton lots and cases; backs, 9c.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 12 to 12½c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; hams, large, 10 to 11c.; medium, 11 to 11½c.; small, 11½ to 12c.; shoulder hams, 9 to 9½c.; backs, 12c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD. — Pure Canadian, tierces, 6¼c.; tubs, 6½c.; pails, 6¾c.

$14 to $14.50; Canadian short-cut, $16; clear shoulder mess, $13.50.

DRESSED HOGS — Most packers have commenced operations, the producers sending them forward in large quantities. We quote: $5.75 to $6 for heavy, and $6 to $6.25 for light hogs.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—The demand for eggs is good, some dealers having trouble to fill orders. We quote: 15 to 16c., and the second grade brings 10 to 12c.; pickled eggs, 12½ to 13½c.

POTATOES—The local demand is not as great as supply, and the market shows a tendency to weakness. We quote carload lots at 40c. and small lots on the market 45 to 50c. a bag.

HONEY—Not as much business has been done this year as last. The market is firm. We quote: Clover honey, 7c.; buckwheat, 5c.; light color, in 60-lb. tins, 6 to 6½c.; 5 and 10-lb. tins, 6½ to 7c.; comb, $1.50 to $1.75 per dozen.

POULTRY—There is a fair business going on now, though the season has not rightly opened up for some lines. We quote: Geese, 5½c. per lb.; chickens, dressed, 25 to 50c.; alive, 35 to 45c.; ducks, 40 to 75c.; turkeys, 9 to 11c. per lb.

DRIED APPLES—The market is easy; prices unchanged. We quote: 4 to 4½c. per lb. f.o.b. point of shipment as the nominal price.

BEANS — Shipments are arriving. The idea as to price is 80c. for prime and 85c. for hand-picked at the point of shipment.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES — Market is steady, the demand being fair, and stocks pretty well cleared up. We quote: Cowhides—Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2, and 6½c. for No. 3. Steerhides—60 lbs. and up, 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS—We quote: No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Dekins, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS—We quote: Lambskins and pelts, 75 to 85c.

WOOL—Nothing doing in fleece wool: none on market. Pulled wools are fairly active. We quote super pulled wools at 21 to 22c.; extra at 22 to 23c.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—The market is quite firm. We quote: Winter wheat, 83c.; No. 2 red, 79 to 81c. at outside points; freights to Toronto are about 3 to 5c.; barley, 27 to 31c.; peas, 44 to 45c.; oats, 20 to 23c., Toronto freights, and No. 1 hard wheat is quoted at $1, Toronto freights.

FLOUR—The market is in very good condition. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $5.30; Manitoba strong bakers', $4.90; Ontario patents, $4.30 to $4.60; straight roller, $4.10 to $4.25, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—Trade is very good and market is quite firm. We quote: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.30 in bags and $3.40 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.75 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.50; split peas, $3.25; pot barley, $3.

SEEDS.

Alsike is somewhat dull and is quoted at from $3 to $4.50 per bushel, superior grades bringing higher figures. Red clover and timothy still move fairly well. We quote: Red clover, $3 to $3.25 per bushel. Timothy, machine threshed, $1 to $1.25, and choice unhulled brings a slightly higher figure.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

Trade in all lines is good, especially in coal oil. Prices are unchanged. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Canadian, 14c.; carbon, safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

Cranberries have begun to arrive.

Potatoes have fallen slightly in price.

The price of sheepskins has advanced 10c. all round.

Pickled eggs have advanced ½c. per dozen this week.

All grades of flour except Manitoba patents have fallen in price.

Shipments of new season's California prunes are on the market.

The Bellona, the second direct fruit steamer, left Denia on Monday.

Jamaica oranges are on the market, and Mexican are expected this week.

Since confidential orders on Bosnia prunes were executed prices have advanced fully one shilling per cwt.

A shipment of Antoine Solari's Sultana raisins, in tin boxes, are on the way to this market. The goods are of high grade.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Oct. 21, 1897.

GROCERIES.

A FAIR volume of business continues to be done in groceries, there being a good sorting up demand, and the markets generally are fairly active with few changes in values to note. In dried fruit the strong feeling noted last week for Valencia raisins continues and the recent advance is fully maintained and the prospects are that still higher prices will rule. Sugar is firm at last week's advance, and the spice market is active with prices tending higher.

SUGAR.

The sugar market is without any new feature of note. The advance in prices noted last week has been sustained and the demand from refiners for round lots is fair, while the wholesale trade report a good distributing business doing. We quote granulated at 4¼c. up to 10-bbl. lots and 4⅛c. for larger quantities, yellows, 3⅜ to 3⅝c., creams, 3¾ to 3⅞c. and German granulated, 4c.

SYRUPS.

In syrups the feeling is very firm on account of the continued small supplies in first hands, and prices are quoted at 2¼ to 2½c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

This market continues quiet in a wholesale way, but a good jobbing trade is reported. Holders of large lots are very firm in their views, and 25c. for Barbadoes is the very inside figure that would be accepted for a round lot. We quote in a jobbing way : Barbadoes, 26c., and Porto Rico, 27½ to 28c.

RICE.

The demand for rice for the season is only fair, as buyers have ample stocks on hand. Advices are strong and prices rule firm. We quote : Crystal Japan, $5 ; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75 ; Patna, $5 to $5.50 ; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

There is a good jobbing demand for all lines of spices, and in sympathy with the excitement in primary markets values are firmly held. We quote as follows : Black pepper, 10 to 12c.; pure white, 13 to 17c., as to grade ; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

Business in coffee continues quiet, the demand being chiefly for small lots to fill actual wants at about steady prices. We quote : Maracaibo, 17 to 18c.; Rio, 11 to 12c.; Santos, 13 to 14c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c., and Java, 24 to 25c.

TEAS.

The situation of the tea market is unchanged from a week ago. In a wholesale way business is exceedingly quiet owing to the fact that buyers and sellers are apart in their views. The jobbing trade is fair, there being a better demand from country houses. We quote : Young Hysons, 14 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades ; Japans, 15½ to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 17 to 20c. for mediums, and 35 to 65c. for higher grades.

CANNED GOODS.

A fair amount of business continues to be done in this branch, and the market is moderately active and firm. We quote as follows : Tomatoes, 80 to 90c.; corn, 60 to 75c.; peas, 75c. to $1.25; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's ; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.90 ; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality ; cherries, $2.30 ; apples, 3's, 95c. ; gallons, $1.65 to $1.75 ; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.25 to $1.45 ; "Clover Leaf," $1.25 to $1.45; "Lion," $1.25 to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.20, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25 ; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30 ; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands ; ordinary brands, $8 to $9 ; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

There is no change in currants. The demand for fresh stock ex the second steamer is good. We quote : Patras, in cases, 6 to 6¼c. ; Filiatras, bbls., 5⅜c.; ½-bbls., 5½c., and cases, 5¾c.; Provincials, 5c. in bbls., 5⅜c. in cases and 5½c. in ½-cases.

The market for Valencia raisins is exceedingly firm, and the advance in Denia noted last week has been fully maintained, with prospects of still higher prices. Locally values are unchanged at 4½c. for off-stalk, 4¾ to 5c. for fine off-stalk, 5¾ to 6c. for selected, and 6¾ to 7c. for 4-crown layers.

NUTS.

A fair jobbing trade is doing in nuts, and some orders for new shelled walnuts have been placed on the basis of 16 to 17c. here. We quote : Grenoble walnuts firm at 11 to 12c. ; do. shelled, 20c; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; pecans, 9 to 10c.

DRIED APPLES.

The market for dried apples is quiet and prices are unchanged at 3 to 4c., with evaporated at 6c.

APPLES.

The tone of the market for green apples is very strong, and higher prices are anticipated. The demand for winter fruit is good, and an active trade is reported at $3.50 to $4 per bbl.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—There was some demand from foreign buyers for pickled eggs to-day, and several sales were made, including one lot of 500 cases for shipment to Liverpool, at a price equal to 13½c. per dozen here. There is little or no enquiry for new laid stock on account of the high prices ruling at present in this market. The local demand for small lots to fill actual wants continues fair and prices rule steady at 16½c. per dozen for single cases. We quote : New laid, 15 to 15½c.; choice candled, 12 to 13c., and culls, 10 to 10½c. per dozen in round lots.

BEANS—The demand for beans is chiefly for small lots and the market is quiet, but prices are sustained at 80 to 90c. for primes, and at 95c. to $1 for choice hand-picked per bushel.

HONEY—Business in honey is slow for the season, which is due to the mild weather. We quote : Clover comb, 10 to 11c. ; bright extracted, 7½ to 8½c.; and dark, 5 to 5½c.

POULTRY—Owing to the mild weather the feeling in the poultry market was weaker and prices are generally lower. We quote : Turkeys, 9c. ; chickens, 6c. ; ducks, 9c. ; and geese, 5c. per lb.

GAME— The receipts of partridges are increasing, and although the demand for such is good prices have a downward tendency, sales of firsts being made to-day at 60c. and seconds at 40c. per brace, which figures show a decline of 10 to 15c. per brace since Friday.

POTATOES—The market for potatoes is quiet and prices are unchanged at 45 to 50c. per bag in car lots.

PROVISIONS.

A fair jobbing trade continues to be done in provisions, and the market is without any material change to note. We quote : Canadian pork, $15 to $16 per bbl. ; pure Canadian lard, in pails, at 7½ to 8c., and compound refined at 5½ to 5¾c. per lb.; hams, 12 to 14c., and bacon, 12 to 13c. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

The export demand for Manitoba grades of flour was duplicated again on Tuesday, but millers in some cases stated that owing to the scarcity of ocean freight at present to Scotland ports it checked business, and no further sales were made. There was also some enquiry from London and it is expected that business will result in a day or two.

Refusing Orders

Cottams Seed is never sold direct to bird-keepers. We refuse hundreds of dollars' worth of orders every year to make the trade go through the grocer. The loss of immediate profit, we calculate, will eventually be made up by the increased loyalty of grocers to Cottams Seed. Six patents protect its health—and song—giving properties.

Cottams Seed is sold by all wholesalers.

F. W. FEARMAN - HAMILTON

The demand from local buyers continues good, a fairly active trade is reported at steady prices. We quote: Winter wheat patents, $4.65 to $4.90; straight rollers, old wheat, $4.40 to $4.50; straight roller, new, $4.20 to $4.30; bags, $2.10 to $2.25; best Manitoba strong bakers', $5 to $5.25; second do., $4.50 to $4.75, and low grades, $2.65 to $2.90; Hungarian patents, $5.40 to $5.65.

There was no change in the meal market. The enquiry for rolled oats is fair, of which the offerings are light and prices firm. We quote: Rolled oats, $3.40 to $3.50 per barrel, and $1.65 to $1.70 per bag; standard meal, $3.30 per barrel and $1.60 per bag.

The demand for grain is good, both from local and country buyers, and the market is active and firm. Ontario bran sold at $11, and shorts at $12 per ton in bulk; Manitoba bran, bags included, at $11.50 and shorts at $12.50 per ton.

BALED HAY.

There is no change in the situation of the hay market, prices being steady with a fair demand. No. 1 sold at $11 to $11.50, and No. 2 at $9 to $10 per ton, in car lots on track.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

CHEESE—The cheese market is rather firmer to-day, the decline inducing some demand from shippers. We hear of transactions on spot at 9c. for strictly finest of Quebec makes. In this connection 6,000 boxes were offered at the wharf this morning, and sold at 8 5/8 to 8¾c., subject to warehouse inspection. Private cables indicate nothing new in the situation and the public cable is unchanged. We quote: Finest Ontario Septembers, 9½c.; finest Townships Septembers, 9¼c.; finest Quebec cheese, 8⅞c.

BUTTER — The butter market is unchanged, sellers' ideas being too high. The only business doing is on local account, which has no bearing on the export situation. Creamery butter is firmly held at quotations. We quote: Finest creamery, 18½ to 18¾c.; seconds, 18 to 18¼c.; dairy butter, 14½ to 15c.

While a fair share of paper is promptly met, there is enough returned unpaid to make it unpleasant for the business men. Even city retailers are in many cases slow in payment of accounts. Potatoes are being quite freely received; they bring good figures. In rice, the English, which has supplied the market for some time, is again giving place to the Canadian cleaned. Spices show upward movement, as does tapioca. Markets are hardly as firm as last week. Hops have again advanced and higher prices are looked for. The demand here is light and does not show any increase. Prospects for increased export business from St. John during the coming winter continue to improve.

OIL—There is no change in price of burning oil. Demand is good. A schooner with a cargo of American oil for the Fredericton trade went up the river this week. Lubricating oil continues in light demand. In cod oil, the demand for which has been very light and the price of which has been very low, there is an improved feeling, and prices are quoted about 2c. higher. We quote: Best American burning oil, 17½ to 18½c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 17c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 15c.; cod oil, 23 to 26c.

SALT—There is a good demand. The arrivals, which have been expected for some time, are not yet to hand. Some via steamer will be sure to arrive this week. Stocks as yet have been ample for all needs. In Canadian salt there are no changes to note. There is continued steady sale. We quote: Coarse, 47 to 50c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 85c. to $1; Canadian fine, 90c. to $1 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.50 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS — These lines still have continued attention, and even at the increased prices asked by canners, small jobbing orders are being taken, chiefly from buyers who lost the chance of the low prices early in the season. Most dealers are making large profits in canned goods—better than for years. Quotations show quite a range. Many say they have a good demand at the highest figure. In canned fruits, new goods are being received. Prices will be about as last year. Spot peaches are scarce. Apples show advanced prices, and packers do not offer at all freely. A further advance is looked for. New oysters are quoted. Demand here is light. Salmon, while a good many of last season's at the high price are carried over, some low prices are heard. We quote: Corn, 65 to 75c.; peas, 75 to 90c.; tomatoes, $1 to $1.10; gallon apples, $2.10 to $2.25; corned beef, Canadian, $2.40 to $2.50; American, 2-lb. tins, $2.60 to $2.70; 1-lb tins, $1.40 to $1.60; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.20; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.50 to $2.75; salmon, $1.15 to $1.20; lobsters, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, $1.05 to $1.15; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.50 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $5.50 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

GREEN FRUIT—The interest during the week has been in Canadian grapes. The market has been overstocked, and they have been offered at very low prices. Peaches have been quoted low, but have fared better than grapes. The pears to hand are poor. Quite a quantity of Ontario tomatoes continue to arrive. In oranges the market is quite bare, but West India fruit is expected this week. Lemons show fair sale at even prices. Bog cranberries hold firm and prices are likely to continue well above last year's figures. In apples prices keep higher. Arrivals from Nova Scotia are very much smaller than usual; a great difference from last year. Even crab-apples, which last year were almost given away, are scarce and high. A few Ontario apples are here, and enquiries are being made for Ontario winter fruit. There is quite a good demand for sweet potatoes. We quote: Lemons, $5 to $5.25; oranges, $4 to $4.50; Gravenstein apples, $3 to $4; other kinds, $2 to $3; bananas, $1.50 to $2, pears, 50 to 60c. per basket; grapes, 18 to 20c; peaches, 50 to 60c.; Malaga grapes, $5; native bog cranberries, $4 to $5; per bbl.; Cape Cod cranberries, $7 per bbl.; sweet potatoes, $3.25 to $3.50 per bbl.; tomatoes, 30 to 35c. per basket.

DRIED FRUIT—Our dealers are very slow to catch on to low quotations when offered early in the season. They are bears in the market and look for lower prices, often later in the season waking up to the fact that they have lost the chance of a good profit. In some cases this was the way in canned goods. It was so with Valencia raisins, and California fruit, also with peels. Valencia raisins are the only new dried fruit yet to hand. There is a steady sale at full figures. California raisins are now about 1c. above last year's prices, at which most of the stock was bought, though later they were the same price as now. Coast prices are about ½c. below the highest figure, but are not as low as at first offered. Two-crown are easy, but it is doubtful if there is much change in 3-crown; 4-crown goods are firm, and London layers tend higher. They will cost more than Malaga Londons and have small sale here. Quite a few seeded are sold direct from the Coast. Currants are very scarce and new are anxiously looked for. Peels are scarce and many dealers are as yet short bought. Prunes will range higher this year than last. Evaporated apples are paying holders a good profit, but stocks are light. New are high and tending higher. Dried are scarce. We quote onions lower, but the market is firmer. We quote: Valencias, 5½ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c., prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples, 3½ to 4c.; evaporated apples, 6½ to 7½c.; onions, $2.15 to $2.25 per bbl.; cocoanuts, $3 to $3.50 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.; new Valencias, layers, 6½ to 7c.

SUGAR — A fair demand only is to be noted. Refineries have made new terms, allowing an extra 1 per cent. discount on lots of 250 barrels or over. They are finding more demand here as the large stock that was here is getting worked off. We quote: Granulated, 4⅛ to 4¼c.; yellows, 3⅜ to 3¾c.; Paris lump, 5½ to 5¾c.; powdered, 5¼ to 5½c.

Rico is to hand this week. This makes about one thousand more casks than it was expected earlier would be here. Still the market is not overstocked. Other grades are in light supply and the market had very little Porto Rico here before. Barbadoes is held firmer for best. A little old is still here that could be bought low. New Orleans is now on the market. Prices are higher. We quote: Barbadoes, 23 to 25c.; Porto Rico, 28 to 30c.; New Orleans, barrels, 28 to 30c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.; Demerara, 33 to 34c.

DAIRY PRODUCE—Market seems dull. Butter is still dull. Very little sale for creamery, as buyers will not give the price. In eggs, sale is slow. Quite a quantity of held stock is offered and that affects the market. The local demand for cheese all through the season has been light. Fair stocks are held here, and prices are hardly as firm. Stock in the province unsold is not large, and little, if any, decline is looked for. We quote: Dairy butter, 15 to 17c.; creamery, 19 to 20c.; prints, 20 to 22c.; cheese, 10 to 10½c.; eggs, 13 to 13½c.

FISH—There have been a good many pickled herring arriving this week, and prices of bay herring are rather lower, though a good steady demand is expected. Shelburne and Canso are not turning out as well this season. Smoked herring are coming to hand, much better quality than last year; smaller, brighter fish, and not as salt. Some were shipped to Scotland this week. For that trade they are repacked into larger boxes. Boneless fish trade is now active, and prices are now about as last year, though the fish in the first place are higher. Dry cod fish hold their price. Pollock is higher. We quote: Large cod, $3.35 to $3.50; medium, $3.15 to $3.25; pollock, $1.35 to $1.50; bay herring, $1.40 to $1.50 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 7½ to 8c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50 to $5; boneless, 2½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.; Shelburne, bbls., $2.75; half-bbls., $1.85 to $1.90; Canso, $5 to $5.25 per bbl., ; do. half-bbl., $2.75 to $3; wolves, $2.25 to $2.50 half-bbl.

PROVISIONS—There is a firmer market, but in clear pork there is still enough old here to keep the price down. Mess pork is light stock, and firm. Plate beef tends higher. Supplies are at present coming from Boston. In hams, American still have the advantage in price, but our local cured for retail trade are preferred. Lard is still moving up, although a good stock is held. We quote: Clear pork, $14.50 to $15.50; mess, $13 to $14; plate beef, $13.50 to $14; hams, 12 to 13c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; pure lard, 7¾ to 8c.; compound, 6½ to 6¾c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—In flour, trade is rather quiet with prices easy. Oatmeal shows no change. A further advance not looked for at present. Oats show quite a range. New Brunswick oats are now freely offered. They are lower than Ontario, the latter being preferred. Cornmeal is rather lower again. There is a good demand. In feed, prices are still high and it is difficult to get. Buyers are rather advised to postpone buying. Beans are easy and stocks ample. Hay is quiet. We quote as follows: Manitoba flour, $5.75 to $5.80; best Ontario, $4.90 to $5; medium, $4.75 to $4.80; oatmeal, $3.65 to $3.70; cornmeal, $2 to $2.05; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $16 to $16.50; bran, do, $14.50 to $15; hand-picked beans, $1.20 to $1.25; prime, $1 to $1.10; oats, 34 to 36c.; hay, $11.50 to $12.50; barley, $3.15 to $3.25; round peas, $1.25; split peas, $3.25 to $3.30; yellow eye beans, $1.75.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

A cargo of 343 pkgs. of Porto Rico molasses arrived this week from Fajardo.

C. & E. Macmichael have added Burnham's clam bouillon and Burnham's Hasty Jellycon to their stock.

A. H. Calhoun, late of Fowler & Calhoun, cornmeal millers here, is about to start a cornmeal mill in Wolfville, N.C.

The fire in Windsor, N.S., one of the large and progressive towns of the province, on the night of the 16th, destroyed about seven-eighths of the town, including the business portion. Upwards of 3,000 people are homeless. St. John, Halifax and other places were prompt with aid, but the winter season is near at hand and much will be needed during the next few months to prevent actual suffering. Western friends will no doubt do their part.

Notwithstanding the very low freights on flour, etc., from Ontario to Nova Scotia points, which allow this class of goods to be landed there at a lower rate than to St. John, large quantities of these goods still go to Nova Scotia points via Boston by schooner, which is what the low rates were intended to check. The following show the shipments in that way for a week, which was only an average one: 150 bbls. flour, 25 bbls. cornmeal, to Meteghan, per schooner Windsor Packet; 8,000 bushels corn, 350 bags bran, to Halifax, per schooner Neva; 455 bbls. flour, 300 bags oats, 150 bbls. rolled oats, 300 bbls. cornmeal, to Windsor, per schooner Marguerite; 100 bbls. flour, 40 bags mill feed, 45 bags oats, 44,891 feet pine plank, to Dorchester via Grand Manan, per schooner Glenera; 125 bbls. cornmeal, to Windsor, per schooner Grace Rice; 300 bbls. flour, 625 bbls. cornmeal, to Five Islands, N.S., per schooner Ava; 150 bbls. flour, 325 bbls. cornmeal, to Tusket, per schooner Sandolphon; 150 bbls. flour, 125 bbls. cornmeal, to Belleveau Cove, per schooner Mercedes.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 18, 1897.

WITH regard to wheat, the markets in the country are very erratic, caused, no doubt, by small deliveries and the feeling of uncertainty as to what will be done. This makes people so anxious for wheat that some have paid a higher price for it than they can get. The great difficulty, however, is the scarcity of cars. Many of the elevators are full to the roof. The sample still continues excellent. A general price is 76c. on an 18c. freight rate. The light deliveries are caused now, not so much by eagerness on the part of farmers to hold for higher figures, but because they are busy fall ploughing and will not deliver more wheat until the roads freeze up. Business is brisk in all lines of food stuffs and groceries, and some changes of interest are noted in the different lines.

BUTTER—The situation here remains unchanged. A few factories are still making and are holding for 21c., which by experts is considered rather foolish, as the prices for creamery have been speculative all summer and are not likely to go higher, as most of the dealers have secured all the stock they want; but creamery butter is a very good seller at 20c. Dairy is just where it was last week.

EGGS—Market firm. Demand and supply just about equal at present. Dealers are paying 15c. and selling at 16 to 17c. Retail price is 25c. for a first-class article.

CURED MEATS—This market is very peculiar, possibly due to insufficiency of stock coming here, or from too high a price being paid to compete with American goods. Large quantities of the latter are being imported. Prices run about as follows: Breakfast bacon, backs, 10½ to 11c.; do., bellies, 12 to 12½c.; short spiced rolls, 9 to 10c.; hams, 16-lb. average, 11½c.; small shoulders, 9c.; dry salt, short clear, 8¼ to 8½c.

EVAPORATED FRUITS—Prunes are now on the market, and are in good demand, with prices about the same as last year. In fact, all kinds of evaporated fruits are in good demand. This may be attributed to the high price of apples. Evaporated apples, from jobbing houses, are 10 to 10½c. per lb. Dried apples are not offering freely, and it will in all probability be February or March before a reasonable price can be secured. There is no doubt that owing to the high price of green apples and raisins all classes of California evaporated fruits will be ready sellers on this market for some time to come.

CURRANTS—In barrels are on the market at 6½c., and in cases at 7 and 7½c.

RAISINS—Valencias, fine off-stalk, $1.70 to $1.75 per box, according to brand; layer raisins, $2. California raisins are behind importations of Malaga blue fruit. One house has already received Connoisseur clusters, extra dessert and fancy Buckingham clusters.

CANNED GOODS—Tomatoes still continue high and hard to obtain at reasonable figures. Eastern packers claim that their pack will not be heavy, in fact many of the factories are declining to fill contracts. Some of the buyers, however, are skeptical as to this report, thinking it just possible that the very fine fall in Ontario may have caused more of these goods to be put up than packers are willing to allow. Nevertheless, the fact remains that tomatoes are going to be high. Present prices are quoted at $2.20 for first pack, $2.10 for ordinary. Corn is without material change. It is evident that a sufficient quantity has been packed to meet the demand. New corn is freely quoted at $1.50 to $1.60 per case. Pears and peaches are cheap this year for good packs compared with former seasons. Crop seems to have been large and fine. Prices will not be settled for a few days yet. There seems little doubt that peas are a short pack and prices will be high. Beans, wax and string, supply good and prices about the same as last year at $1.65 to $1.75 per case.

RICE—Market firm and steady. The crop in Japan was reported as very large, but owing to a typhoon it is now doubtful what percentage of it will be realized. China rice is selling freely at about the usual price, 4¾ to 5c. per lb.

SYRUPS—Market is very firm, owing to the fact that it is hard to obtain a bright article from Montreal refiners at prices to compete with the American glucose. Heavy sales have been arranged with American houses within the last few days, and they are now quoting for fancy bright stuff 3c. lb.

NUTS — New Tarragona almonds have arrived and prices are low when compared with Valencia stock. It is believed that we have never had soft shell Tarragona almonds delivered in Winnipeg at the price quoted to-day—11 to 11½c. per lb. New Grenoble walnuts will arrive about the middle of November; the quality is unquestionably fine and prices about the same as last year. New filberts are not yet in, but they are expected daily. There is no change in Brazils, pecans or Virginia peanuts.

COFFEE—Rios are a little easier, there being a decline of about 1c. per lb. since last week. Mochas and Javas unchanged.

TOBACCOS—Market is in a peculiar position. Macdonald has advanced 3c., but Tuckett's prices remain unchanged. This may possibly lead to a change and something new within the next few days.

SALT—Nothing new in this product, except the rumor of a possible advance.

CEREALS—This market is very firm, with no indications of a decline.

LONG-SUFFERING MERCHANTS.

Editor GROCER,—Some little time ago it was impossible to get either jars or information from the manufacturers; consequently both farmers and consumers were great sufferers. Plenty could have been procured in the States, but retailers were afraid to bring them in for fear of heavy home supplies being dumped on the market. To-day the country wants syrup, but what is offering is poor stuff. No good table syrup obtainable and no variety. How long are manufacturers to have the "whip-handle?"

MIXED PICKLES.

LONDON RETAIL GROCERS.

THE London Retail Grocers' Association held its regular monthly meeting on Oct. 12, with Mr. F. Harley, president, in the chair.

The chairman of the Finance Committee, re picnic, reported that there was an account presented to him for some work done on the park and the account should be either paid or thrown out. It was ordered that the account be paid.

Mr. Branton, treasurer, reported that he had not prepared a detailed statement of the finances in connection with the picnic.

A communication from Hamilton association was read requesting co-operation in an effort to obtain a change in the present Act whereby civil service employes' salaries are exempt from garnishee.

This question has received considerable attention in the London association for several years past; in fact, the agitation for a change of the Act received its impetus from this association some three years ago, and the members are pleased to note that the several associations throughout the Dominion are taking the question up.

The secretary was instructed to reply to the communication from Hamilton association, informing them that London association are heartily in sympathy with the movement, and will do all in its power to assist in obtaining a change in the Act.

The question was asked as to the practice of the members regarding imperfect fruit jars returned by customers. Several of the members replied that in many cases they had found it policy to exchange, but that there is considerable loss in doing so.

The imperfections complained of were in the top of the jar, it not being evenly ground down, and when the rubbers are put on they do not make the jar air-tight.

The members could not suggest any redress, except to return them to the wholesale firms or manufacturers, as the case may be. It was thought that the manufacturers' attention should be called to the matter, but as the season is now about over no action was taken.

After a pleasant chat on the state of trade generally and the advance in the price of canned goods in particular, the meeting adjourned, the remark being made that such discussions or talks on live questions would benefit the trade, and more of it would do good and probably bring out some of the members who do not attend the meetings as they should. The next meeting will be held on Nov. 9.

E. SUTTON,
Secretary.

TWO STORES CONTRASTED.

ONE day last week the writer was riding along Market street in West Philadelphia when his attention was attracted by two retail grocery stores, one on the southwest corner of a certain square and the other on the southeast corner. These two stores embodied two as distinctly different types as it is possible to imagine. One was the branch store of a prominent Market street house, and the other a branch of a concern whose importance seems so great in its own eyes that it finds it necessary to use the names of both large oceans in describing itself.

The store which was the branch of the Market street store glittered with handsome lights, clean glasses and attractive displays. The windows were scrupulously clean, and the front was tinted in some dark, inconspicuous color. The glimpse of the store's interior afforded by the large windows disclosed the most modern appointments, the utmost cleanliness and the quintessence of up-to-dateness in every respect. It was an ideal high-grade grocery store.

The other store—the branch of the two oceans concern—was the very antipodes of this in every respect. The front was painted in a glaring red, and across it ran a row of dingy gas lights. The windows were small, none too clean, and gave but an imperfect view of the interior. From what one could see of the inside appointments, the manager's idea of good advertising runs largely to large gaudy posters, bearing signs in red paint or ink, exploiting the gigantic bargains which had been perpetrated "for that day only."

These two stores, though on opposite corners, probably do not conflict with each other to the slightest degree. The class of people attracted by one would have absolutely no use for the other. They are as wide apart as the classes of people whose trade they respectively draw.

The moral of this is that a grocery store which attempts to be so cosmopolitan in its character as to please everybody, is seldom, if ever, a success. The better classes demand a little more daintiness in the appointments, a different class of goods, a more exclusive service. The masses care nothing for these; what they are after is low prices.

The moral of this is that the grocer should deliberately select the class of people he expects and desires to reach, and should carefully aim at this class in all of his business acts. And it is well to bear in mind that if you aim for the better class you will get a certain proportion of the lower class, while if you aim at the latter you will probably get none of the better.—Grocery World.

FEDERAL FRUIT INSPECTOR.

The Montreal Grocers' Association have already secured 1,700 signatures of city grocers to the petition which they will present to Parliament, asking for the appointment of a Federal fruit inspector. The signatures comprise the names of nearly all the prominent fruit dealers in the city. The association has also decided to ask the Government to make the salaries of civil servants attachable, the same as the salaries of other members of the community. In this demand the Montreal grocers will be joined by delegations from Toronto, London, Ottawa, Kingston, and other cities.

MONTREAL.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

This department has become so popular that many more notices than there is space for are received every week. In future only important items of information will be inserted. Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

T. KINNEAR & CO. have in stock shipments of currants, consisting of fine Filiatras in cases and half-cases, and "Excelsior" Vostizzas.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are offering great values in green Rio coffee.

Eleme figs in 10-lb. 4-row boxes are in store with T. Kinnear & Co.

Stephens' pickles, patent stopper, are in stock with the Davidson & Hay, Limited.

See Laporte, Martin & Cie's advertisement. There may be something you want.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are offering extra fine value in Ceylon and Indian teas at 12c. per lb.

California prunes, 60-70's to 90-100's, have been received by the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. have received another shipment of Barataria shrimps in 1-lb. tins.

Laporte, Martin & Cie have received a consignment of fine figs, which they offer at close figures.

"Circle" tea books can be had on application to Lucas, Steele & Bristol by buyers of this brand.

Dawson & Co. have the first arrival of Jamaica oranges of this season. They are good and sweet.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, report a shipment of sardines in tomato sauce to hand this week.

Dawson & Co. report special demand for apples. Holders might do well to communicate with them.

Grenoble walnuts and Valencia shelled almonds have just come to hand with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

"We have a complete stock of herrings and codfish at bottom figures," say the Davidson & Hay, Limited.

Rutherford, Marshall & Co. report that they need a large amount of first-class butter to supply immediate wants.

George Foster & Sons report that they are now in a position to ship all back orders for "Golden Leaf" Japan tea.

"Royal" salad dressing is in store with Lucas, Steele & Bristol. When looking for choice Roquefort cheese write them.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol: "Yes, our 'Something Sweet' in 2-lb. cans is pleasing every one. When required we pack our 'Tiger' and 'Bargain' molasses in 25 and 38-lb. pails."

Just to hand, George Foster & Sons, another car of "Atlas Brand" molasses, an extra fine sample at low prices.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, have in store fine, extra and choicest Sultanas, claimed to be the very finest goods packed.

A full assortment of Jergen's heliotrope, vegetine and assorted toilet soaps is in stock with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

T. Kinnear & Co. are in receipt of a shipment of new season's California prunes, consisting of 40-50's, 50-60's, 70-80's, 90-100's.

A full line of Burnham's preparations—clam bouillon, clam chowder and beef, iron and wine—is in store with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, report heavy sales for syrups and molasses during the current month, special values proving the attraction.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, received a shipment this week of Naples oblong filberts. These are particularly fine filberts and are selling off well.

Now in stock at George Foster & Son's, Brantford, new Eleme figs in 12 and 28-lb. boxes; Arguimbau's Valencia raisins in all grades, also new currants.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, report increasing sales for domestic kippered herrings—considered by some buyers as equal to the imported article.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. have been receiving orders for creamery and dairy butter from points which formerly were in the habit of shipping butter.

W. H. Gillard & Co. are offering a wide range of Japan teas, high and medium grades, which, considering the advanced market, should interest buyers.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. are figuring on a largely increased trade in pickled eggs during coming months. The quality this season of this line of eggs is unsurpassed.

All grades of Valencia, Malaga, Sultana, and California raisins can be had from Laporte, Martin & Cie. They are receiving large quantities and their prices are low.

Half-bbls. choice sockeye salmon are now arriving with Lucas, Steele & Brtstol. Their "Empire" brand of 1-lb. cans is handsomely packed — the "Old Flag" looks well.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. now have Griffin & Skelley's evaporated peaches and apricots in 1-lb. packages, which saves greatly in weighing out; also French prunes, all sizes, in 25-lb. boxes.

W. H. Gillard & Co. have some exceptionally fine jams and jellies in stock, in 7, 14 and 30-lb. pails. These goods, while of Canadian manufacture, compare favorably with any imported, and the price considerably lower.

"We have an unsurpassed assortment of figs, comprising 1-lb. and 2-lb. glove boxes, 5's, 8's, 10's, 12's, 25's, 45's and 50's, finest Erbeyli layers imported from the best Smyrna growers, which we quote exceptionally close. We have also Naturals in 25-lb. boxes and 60-lb. bags, Comadres in taps and 'Diova' Turkey figs in 35-lb. boxes for those who require lower priced goods," say the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

CALLED HIS FRIENDS TO THE OPENING.

Mr. Geo. S. Winter, grocer, Brantford, Ont., has had erected for his use one of the best equipped retail establishments in Western Ontario, including a very fine basement, which latter adds much to the general convenience of the establishment.

The Brantford Courier says: Mr. Winter has been in the grocery business in Brantford for the past eleven years and has had the pleasant satisfaction of seeing his business each year grow steadily larger. This is largely owing to the general excellence of his goods and the excellent service rendered. His stock of fancy groceries is probably the largest in Brantford to-day. Two wagons are used in delivering, and orders are called for and delivered each morning, with the exception of Saturday, to all parts of the city. With the more modern new premises and improved facilities for serving his customers this business will no doubt show the same substantial growth in the future that it has in the past.

To open his new store to the public, Mr. Winter held a reception on Thursday, Friday and Saturday last week, inviting the residents of Brantford and vicinity to see the new store and its equipment, and to partake of his best tea or coffee and biscuits. The reception was a great success, as Mr. Winter's enterprise well merited.

HE IS A TEA EXPERT.

MR. ROBERT D. ROSS, manager of the "Kolona" tea department of the Eby, Blain Co., Limited, has severed his connection with that company and assumed the management of "Monsoon" tea.

"Mr. Ross," remarked a well-known broker to THE CANADIAN GROCER, "has a particularly good knowledge of the requirements of the tea trade in Canada. We brokers consider him one of the best judges of tea on the street."

Package teas and tea blending Mr. Ross has made a specialty of, and during his career as a tea man he has been with such firms as the Salada Tea Co. and the Eby, Blain Co., Limited, to say nothing of his experience behind the retail counter.

Mr. Ross is a young man, and he has a bright future before him in the particular occupation in which he is engaged.

Prior to his departure, Mr. Ross was presented by his fellow employes in the Eby, Blain Co., Limited, with a handsome signet ring. He is evidently popular, as well as an expert tea man.

GROCERS AND MILLERS AGREE.

The millers and grocers of Grand Rapids, Mich., have got together in a common-sense agreement and are helping one another. The agreement is reciprocal and both sides profit by it. The grocers were caused much trouble by price-cutters, so the retailers' association pushes the sale of home-made flour and the millers refuse to supply flour to dealers who cut the established price. This is equitable and helps to keep the flour trade in a healthy condition, as well as to encourage the use of home-made flour. Price-cutting wars are of no advanatge to the grocer, and the miller often loses a large book account as the direct result of it, hence both parties to the agreement are interested in the maintenance of prices.—American Miller.

CANADIAN FLOUR IN THE WEST INDIES.

Our excellent contemporary, THE CANADIAN GROCER, gets wrathy over the report of the Canadian agent at Trinidad to the Dominion Government to the effect that Canadian brands of flour have been driven out of the island by United States flour, not because of superior quality, but by cheaper freight rates. It says Trinidad's imports of flour are not large, only between six and seven hundred thousand dollars' worth annually, but it wants the freight rates straightened out. The rate from Halifax is 30 cents, and from United States ports 25 cents, which seems a very small discrimination considering the difference in distance. And it seems only a question of a short time when even the United States Atlantic ports will have to abdicate much of their trade with the West Indies, Central and South America in favor of the Gulf cities. And this will be exactly for the same reason as prevents Halifax from exporting flour thither now. It is a question of proximity.—American Miller, Chicago.

LATE TRADE NEWS.

W. H. McCutcheon, grocer, London, has compromised at 50c.

Wintermute & Co., general store, Cayuga, have assigned to F. W. Wintermute.

The stock of Abbott Bros., Queen street east, Toronto, has been sold for $600.

Frank Kaiser has purchased George J. Smith's grocery and liquor business at the corner of Bold and Caroline streets, Hamilton.

TRADE CHAT.

MR. McKEE, store-keeper of Orton, owns a hen which is in the big egg laying business. Her latest production is a double egg, one inside of the other, and both perfectly formed. Mr. McKee, on finding the egg, broke it to see if it had a double yoke, and discovered the other egg inside.

In addition to the American withdrawals the Bank of England has lost sovereigns for shipment to Egypt recently.

Peter Clark & Co., Sarnia, are having a granolithic walk laid in front of their grocery store, which when completed will add much to the appearance of both the premises and the street.

A mysterious disappearance is that of Mrs. Elizabeth Ballard, who kept a grocery store in Windsor. On June 22 she left home to join her three children in London, and has not been seen since.

EUROPEAN CATFISH.

A large member of the catfish family is found in some European rivers, and it is a formidable beast. The Germans call it "wels," but do not eat it.

The Bohemians have a proverb, "Every fish has another for prey;" the wels (Silurus) has them all. Harper's Round Table says that it is the largest fresh water fish found in the rivers of Europe, except the sturgeon; it often reaches five or six feet in length. It destroys many aquatic birds, and we are assured that it does not spare the human species. On the 3rd of July, 1700, a peasant took one near Thorn that had an infant entire in its stomach. They tell in Hungary of children and young girls being devoured on going to draw water; and they even relate that on the frontiers of Turkey a poor fisherman took one that had in its stomach the body of a woman, her purse full of gold, and a ring. The fish is even reputed to have been taken sixteen feet long.

HOW WORRY AFFECTS THE BRAIN.

MODERN science has brought to light nothing more curiously interesting than the fact that worry will kill. More remarkable still, it has been able to determine, from recent discoveries, just how worry does kill.

It is believed by many scientists who have followed most carefully the growth of the science of brain diseases, that scores of the deaths set down to other causes are due to worry, and that alone. The theory is a simple one—so simple that anyone can readily understand it. Briefly put, it amounts to this: Worry injures beyond repair certain cells of the brain; and the brain being the nutritive centre of the body, the other organs become gradually injured, and when some disease of these organs, or a combination of them, arises, death finally ensues.

Thus does worry kill. Insidiously, like many another disease, it creeps upon the brain in the form of a single, constant, never-lost idea; and, as the dropping of water over a period of years will wear a groove in a stone, so does worry gradually, imperceptibly, but no less surely, destroy the brain cells that lead all the rest—that are, so to speak, the commanding officers of mental power, health and motion.

Worry, to make the theory still stronger, is an irritant at certain points, which produces little harm if it comes at intervals or irregularly. Occasional worrying of the system the brain can cope with, but the iteration and reiteration of one idea of a disquieting sort the cells of the brain are not proof against. It is as if the skull were laid bare and the surface of the brain struck lightly with a hammer every few seconds, with mechanical precision, with never a sign of a let-up or the failure of a stroke.

Just in this way does the annoying idea, the maddening thought, that will not be done away with, strike or fall upon certain nerve cells, never ceasing, and week by week diminishing the vitality of these delicate organisms that are so minute that they can only be seen under the microscope.—Pharmaceutical Products.

WHY SWEAR AT ALL?

Washington and Beecher never swore but once, and Thomas Jefferson and U. S. Grant never swore. The Japanese and Indians have no oaths in their language. The North American Review once gave expression to the following: "The fierceness of men's profanity is in inverse ratio of the affluence of their ideas. The profanest men within the circle of your acquaintance are all afflicted with a chronic weakness of intellect. The utterance of an oath, though it may prevent a vacuum in sound, is no indication of sense. It requires no genius to swear." If this were known of all Americans henceforth there would not be any profanity outside our insane asylums. In his "Norwood" Beecher gives utterance to the following needed lesson: "There is much pious swearing. A bold man means swear, and says it. A timid man means swear, but says 'gracious.' All interjections are swearing—a kind of latent oaths. Legion is the name of methods used for breaking men of their profanity." Soldiers of our colonial days received for every oath 25 lashes. P. T. Barnum was cured of this habit by having to pay a fine of $20.

SARCASTIC.

"Whereas, The crop of wheat in the United States is said to be unusually large; and

"Whereas, The price of wheat has been advanced by the money power; be it

"Resolved, That the condition of the farmer can never be improved by large crops or large returns for the same due to the iniquitous machinations and manipulations of Wall street; and

"Resolved, That we view with alarm and denounce with indignation the alleged increase in the production of wheat and the demand for the same; and

"Resolved, That the alleged foreign demand for wheat is indubitably an artificial crisis produced by the Rothschilds; and

"Resolved, That the wheat crop and the price of wheat cannot be increased or made normal by natural and honest means until the free coinage of silver and the ratio of 16 to 1 has stimulated nature, boomed prices and relieved the downtrodden farmer from the clutch of the usurer and the money shark.

"Resolved, That in the present condition of things, large crops and large prices for the same are an outrage and a curse, and a distinct insult to the Popocrats and Populists"—New York Sun.

A BROOKLYN SODA WATER SIGN.

"In the borough of Brooklyn the other day," said a Manhattan Islander, "I saw standing on the sidewalk, in front of a drug store, a sign that read like this:

TRY OUR ORANGE PHOSPHATE.
IT IS SODA-LIGHTFUL.

"I did not try the orange phosphate, but if it is as good as the sign I am satisfied it is good enough."—New York Sun.

SEEDLESS FRUITS.

More important, probably, than eliminating the thorns on trees and bushes is the extermination of objectionable seeds. The seeds of oranges, grapes, apples, pears and similar fruits are no longer absolutely necessary for the production of plants and trees. Nature slowly and grudgingly relinquishes her right to mature seeds—the secret that she has guarded so carefully for perpetuating many of her choicest species. Before horticulture was reduced to a science most plants depended upon the seeds for their existence, but in these modern days, when budded and grafted stock give more satisfaction than seedlings, they are superfluous to a degree. We might not be able to get along without any seeds, for seedling stock must continue to be raised so long as fruit trees are in demand, but, as all choice stock is budded or grafted, the seeds of our leading varieties of oranges, grapes and apples could be easily dispensed with.—Lippincott's.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND POTATOES.

Our St. John, N.B., correspondent writes: "The present price for potatoes is causing large quantities to be brought to market. In Shediac dealers are buying freely at $1 per barrel. One buyer took in 2,000 barrels in one day. Contrary to reports from many other places, the potato crop on Prince Edward Island is an average one, and the quality particularly good. This is the more appreciated as good returns are expected, the American market taking most of the stock. Of course, the high American duty will somewhat affect the price, but it will be largely paid by the consumer. Prices at present on the Island are ranging from 20 to 25c. per bushel."

AN IRON WILL.

"I CAN'T! it is impossible!" said a lieutenant to Alexander, after failing to take a rock-crested fortress. "Begone!" thundered the great Macedonian; "there is nothing impossible to him who will try." And at the head of a phalanx he swept the foe from the stronghold.

"You can only half will," Suwarrow would say to people who failed. He preached willing as a system. "I don't know." "I can't," and "impossible" he would not listen to. "Learn!" "Do!" "Try!" he would exclaim.

Napoleon in Egypt visited those sick with the plague, to show that a man who is never afraid can vanquish that scourge. A will power like this is a strong tonic to the body, and it will stimulate to almost superhuman undertakings. Such a will has taken many men from apparent death-beds, and enabled them to perform wonderful deeds of valor.

Aaron Burr was dangerously sick when he joined Arnold in leading the expedition against Canada. General Wolfe, sick with fever, led his troops up the heights of Abraham, defeated Montcalm and compelled impregnable Quebec to surrender. But five days before he wrote home to England: "My constitution is entirely ruined, and without the consolation of having rendered any considerable service to the state or without prospects of it."

After a sickness in which he lay a long time at death's door, Seneca said: "The thought of my father, who could not have sustained such a blow as my death, restrained me, and I commanded myself to live."

Prof. George Wilson, of Edinburgh University, was so fragile that no one thought he ever could amount to much; but he became a noted scholar in spite of discouragements which would have daunted most men of the strongest constitutions. Disaster, amputation of one foot, consumption, frightful hemorrhages—nothing could shake his imperious will. Death itself seemed to stand aghast before that mighty resolution, hesitating to take possession of the body after all else had fled.

At fifty-five years of age, Sir Walter Scott owed more than $600,000. He determined that every dollar should be paid. This iron resolution gave confidence and inspiration to the other faculties and functions of the body and brain. Every nerve and fibre said, "the debt must be paid;" every drop of blood caught the inspiration and rushed to the brain to add its weight of force to the power which wielded the pen. And the debt was paid. In his diary he wrote: "I have suffered terribly, and often wished that I could lie down and sleep without waking. But I will fight it out if I can." His imperious will worked on and on after it seemed that every other faculty had abandoned his mind.—Pushing to the front.

ROGOGESKI TEA.

Adulterated tea, which is being sold all over the continent, is described in a German medical paper. This preparation has long been known in Russia, where it is sold under the name of "rogogeski." It is made in the following way: "The manufacturers of this adulterate buy in the tea houses the residue of the tea pots—leaves which have already been used—and mix these leaves while still moist with other leaves and very little genuine tea. The mixture is heated with an addition of extract of caramel and campeche wood, in order to improve the color and the taste. The weight is also increased by the addition of sand or soil, and just before being dried, the leaves are rolled between the hands."

SULTANA RAISIN SITUATION.

THE following is extracted from The Journal de Smyrne, dated 28th ult.

"Since the commencement of the present season the prices ot Sultanas have been maintained firmly, and have given briskness to our market. The arrivals up to yesterday have risen to about 270,000 quintals, against 245,000 quintals for the corresponding period of last year.

"The actual stock is about 40,000 quintals, against 30,000 quintals in 1896. With regard to the prices, they have varied from 3¾ to 6 piastres per oke, according to quality, whilst in the past year it was from 1¾ to 4¾ per oke.

"It is curious to notice that, notwithstanding the heavy arrivals, and contrary to what usually happens in like circumstances, prices have been pushed up very high, to the profit of the cultivator. Is it so with the exporting merchants, who make sales for delivery? Some people explain the rise by the fact that the crop of this year will be less than that of last, over-calculated at 720,000 quintals. Others attribute it to speculations and 'bear' contracts. Now, in all probability the deficit, if there is one, will be some 50,000 quintals only, for one estimates that our crop will give, at a low figure, about 650,000 quintals. On the other hand, one very appreciable circumstance militates in favor of this year's crop, that is, that the drying process (la desiccation) was carried out under excellent conditions, whilst last year the rain spoilt it to a great extent; there is then ample compensation, the quality making up for the quantity even if we admit the deficit mentioned above.

"The consignments to England (London and Liverpool) have up to this day (September 28) been very important: they amount to 500,000 boxes or 120,000 quintals, against 260,000 boxes or 65,000 quintals for last year.

"No wonder, then, that these considerable arrivals upon the consumers' markets are producing a reaction that makes itself felt upon our market, and which will have later on very pronounced effects.

"However, one is able to ask if this congestion is reasonable, or if it does not contain for us factors of bitter miscalculation. Has prudence no longer a place in commercial transactions?"

A PURE FOOD EXPOSITION.

A syndicate has been formed which proposes to hold a pure food exposition in Toronto about the middle of November. The exposition, which will be similar to those held in Hamilton, Detroit, and other places lately, will include exhibits of cereals, coffees, teas, beef teas, etc., and a concert programme will be rendered in the evenings. The place will probably be the Mutual street Rink.

CORRECTED THE CLERK'S ERROR.

A Dorchester women tells me a good story of one of the grocerymen of that classic suburb, according to Boston Traveler. She received a bill for two pounds of "psalmon." When the dealer came to collect his bill, Mrs. B. called his attention to the incorrect spelling of salmon. The dealer exclaimed: "That's the work of my new bookkeeper. I am ashamed to have such bills sent out. He's a good bookkeeper, but he'll have to learn to spell if he wants to work for me. Let me correct the word." Taking out a pencil, the dealer drew a couple of lines through the word and wrote above it "sammon." "There," he said, "I'll teach that bookkeeper how to spell that word or get rid of him."

A RETAIL ORGANIZATION.

The retail merchants of South Dakota have organized in an association. We have received a copy of the report of their meeting and the constitution and bylaws of the new body. The object of organization, as set forth by the opening address, is for the purpose of confining trade within the state to its proper channels and for reforming such abuses as exist in such ways as the association think best. The speakers, without exception, disapproved of endeavoring to secure legislation to hurt department or any other stores, all agreeing it to be a better plan to improve their own businesses by doing away with the exchange of goods for farm produce, by doing a larger, if not a total, cash business and by the education of the consumer to loyalty to home enterprises and to the fact that supply houses are not cheaper than the up-to-date retail store.

The association passed the following resolution: Resolved, that we recommend that merchants do not purchase any goods, wares or merchandise from any jobber, broker or manufacturer who may be known to sell or supply goods, wares or merchandise to "supply" and "catalogue" houses or to sell at retail.

The secretary, in his preface to the report at this meeting, states that a bureau of information has been opened in the office of the secretary for the purpose of disseminating all knowledge helpful to the trade and invites all members to correspond freely with the bureau.

SALMON IN LONDON.

The market for salmon remains firm, but the demand for spot parcels shows the usual tendency to fall off at this time of the year. The inquiry for 1897 pack is brisk, and an extensive business has been done for arrival, it being generally thought that the present low prices may be considered practically safe. It is also natural to assume that with the reduced range of retail prices which must follow, the public will not be slow to recognise the wonderful value of canned salmon as compared with other goods, and that the consumption will, in consequence, be enormously increased. In reviewing the situation this latter point cannot be too strongly emphasized.—Produce Markets' Review.

"Yardsley donated a castor worth 97c. to the minister, and put a tag on it marked $16." "Yes?" "Well, the parson took the article to Yardsley's store yesterday and traded it for dry goods. Yardsley's smile won't be able to be out again for six weeks."—Harper's Bazar.

MINT ... PUFF-STRAPS

RECOGNIZING the great popularity of peppermint with the sweets-loving public, we are the first to introduce to the trade Pliable Licorice containing this flavor.

The delicious quality of our Pliable Licorice is well known; it is matchless in this respect as well as in its flavor and finish.

Our Triple Tunnel Tubes and Navy Plugs are great favorites also, and are made of the same material, although flavored differently. . . . . .

We recommend all these goods as suitable for Summer Trade; they will please the most exacting taste as wholesome, smooth and palatable confections. . . .

PASSING THOUGHTS.

By W. L. E.

THINKING is the exercise which digests ideas, and matures them for practical everyday business purposes.

A well-dressed window is an illustrated address.

The will is the key which opens the way to success.

Dry rot is a sure foundation for business disintegration.

It is possible for a blind man to have a good eye for business.

Tarrying at the wine cup may dissipate heartache, but it induces headache.

A child can make a sand hill, but a mountain is the work of the Creator.

A needle will prick a bubble, but it takes a sword to pierce a coat of armor.

Advertising that is judicious and up-to-date is a never-failing business tonic.

A good many people who go into business hew their way out of it by cutting prices.

Saving money is the result of sacrifice. The man who cannot sacrifice cannot save.

Any movement which aims to dull the price-cutters should be favorably smiled upon.

Every bad article a merchant sends out of his store is a nail in the coffin of his business.

The man who gives is credited for it, but the man who gives credit is often discredited.

A merchant can get along for a while without his trade paper; so can a man without food.

Much depends on how an article is put in the window as well as what is put into the window.

Sour grapes may put an edge on the teeth, but sourness will not sharpen a business man's wits.

Do right no matter how many enemies you make, but do not try to make enemies.

It is lack of energy and not shortness of arm which causes so many to miss opportunities.

Men who cannot live by business truths will not find falsehoods life-lines to business success.

Waste is necessary to the lubrication of a car wheel, but in a business it courteth destruction.

A stands for association, a very good thing to help along such grocers who would go in and win.

Now that good times are upon us, it is to be hoped no one will kill them by bad business methods.

The merchant who cannot keep up with the times is certain to be overtaken by mercantile death.

Stinginess is carefulness gone mad. And the merchant who is in that condition is dealt with stingily.

Business is as exacting as the average maiden, and he who would win must pay proper attention to it.

The summer is ended, and the merchant who has not saved some time from it for relaxation is to be pitied.

Opportunities are not as plentiful as leaves in autumn, but more than one comes to every man during his lifetime.

A man with a hole in his character, like a ship with a hole in her hull, will experience difficulty in keeping afloat.

Cowardice and business are as incompatible as cowardice and war. There is only room for the courageous in either.

The medium may be good, but unless the advertisement is bright, and the article offered right, the results will be bad.

When a merchnnt cuts into his profits he is cutting into the very foundations upon which his business superstructure rests.

The early worm may get into trouble, but it is the late man to business and not the early one who is likely to be overtaken by financial troubles.

LICORICE AND A WELL-KNOWN FIRM WHO MAKE IT.

NOT one person in a thousand, including even grocers who sell it, have the remotest idea as to what licorice is, how it is prepared for the market, or where it comes from. At the same time the preparation of it for commercial ends, in other words, the manufacture of the crude product into the refined substance that the public are in the habit of purchasing, comprises one of the world's most important industries, being used medicinally chiefly as a demulcent, especially in bronchial affections, while it is also consumed in vast quantities in the manufacture of confections, tobacco, and for brewing purposes.

Licorice (liquorice) was in former times spelled lickorice, lickerice and licourize respectively; and licorice-plant, to give the literal Greek meaning, signifies "sweet-root." The plant is leguminous, and it is from the root that the licorice of commerce is taken. It is a perennial herbaceous plant, whose growth reaches from four to five feet; the branches are sparing, and bear pinnate leaves and bluish, pea-like flowers which grow in spikes. The length of the root is three to four feet. It will be remembered that Chaucer, in the "Miller's Tale," 1, 504, says:

"But first he cheweth greyn and lycorys,
To smellen sweete."

The great poet's familiarity with the plant was due to the fact that licorice was and is a product of Yorkshire, England, where it is made into a confection known as Pontefract cakes; and it is also an industry cultivated in Surrey, England. It is, properly speaking, however, a Southern European industry, the plant growing especially on the Mediterranean coast, and its geographical limits travel eastward throughout Central Asia and China. The quality best appreciated in England is made in Calabria, and is sold under the names of Solazzi and Corigliano juice. Spain, on account of its soil and climatic conditions, is peculiarly adapted to the cultivation of licorice. The Spanish root is used entirely by the best manufacturers of stick licorice, as it is sweeter and more delectable, while the Greek and kindred species of root are employed for making the mass used in the manufacture of tobacco, etc.

MR. CHAS. A. SMYLIE, BROOKLYN.

RETURNED Nov 9/97

Nothing but the root of the plant is utilized and its quality varies according to the soil. The root is pulled at intervals of three, four or five years, according to circumstances, by digging trenches and pulling the root until it breaks. After a year or two a stem appears above the ground and in the spring it flowers. From the time the stem shows, until the flowers have fallen, the root is not in condition to extract as the sap does not return to the root until then. From September to March the crop is gathered and is then cured or dried. It requires from four to five months to properly "cure" before becoming marketable, and a dry climate is necessary for this purpose. Asiatic Turkey, Greece, Italy and the Sicilies produce this plant as well, but with varying quantity and flavor in the extract.

Among the pioneer licorice manufacturers on the North American continent are Young & Smylie, of Brooklyn, N.Y. The business of this firm was established in 1845, just 52 years ago, and it has gradually developed until it is to-day the largest of the kind in the world. The output of the firm is from 25,000 to 30,000 pounds daily, and the number of hands employed is from 125 to 190.

The founder of the firm was Mr. Abel Smith, a brother-in-law of Mr. C. A. Smylie, deceased. In addition to Mr. George Young, the present head of the firm, its members comprise Mr. Thomas H. Bauchle, and Messrs. Charles A. and Adolphe E. Smylie, sons of the late Mr. Smylie.

The fact that the business has grown to what it is to-day is not due to the mere fact of age: It is because the firm has made quality the aim of its products. Even the very cheapest line the firm turns out is made of good, pure ingredients. Licorice in all its forms and specialties is manufactured by the firm, and it is sent to every city in America and to many of the South American and European centres of trade.

Among the styles of licorice made by Young & Smylie may be mentioned the "Y. & S." brand of stick licorice in various sizes; "Ringed" licorice, sticks averaging 17 to the pound; "Acme" licorice pellets, in handsomely decorated glass-front tin cans of 5 lbs. net, and in sliding boxes containing 5c. packages; tar, licorice and tulu wafers in handsomely decorated glass-front tins; licorice (Y. & S.) lozenges in glass jars; "Purity," a pure penny stick of licorice; "A B C" blocks, containing the firm's best lozenges; "Dulce," a large glazed penny stick; pliable licorice in plugs, with tin tags, an excellent seller; triple tunnel tubes of pliable licorice, etc.

In Canada the consumption of Young & Smylie's licorice is gradually increasing. Mr. Charles A. Smylie, whose portrait is given herewith, has represented the firm in Canada for about fifteen years, and is, no doubt, known to a great many of our readers.

We notice by a recent issue of a New York paper that Young & Smylie have been compelled to vacate their old quarters at 54 to 64 South Fifth street, Brooklyn, E.D. "The new East River bridge is to end here," says the journal in question, "and the blocks beginning on the river front, crossing Kent avenue and running eastward to within 100 feet of Wythe avenue, between South Fifth and South Sixth streets, are to be used as an anchorage. The river front block cost the city $350,000, and the portion of the other block will reach a trifle over $319,000. This, in addition to the $6,000,000 that the bridge will cost, and about $900,000 for the New York side approach and other expenses—a total of $7,500,000. Against such an array of figures the house of Messrs. Young & Smylie were obliged to throw up their hands. But the quarters which they will move into about November 1st will give them one of the largest factories in Greater New York. The premises comprise a plot covering an area of 125 x 300 feet, consisting of one building, 50 x 240 feet, four stories; one building, 50 x 100 feet, two stories, and one building, 25 x 50 feet, two stories. There are 375 horse-power engines and 400 horse-power boilers, and every modern facility will be afforded for manufacturing, including the increase of hands beyond the present staff of 125 persons. The plant is located in Lorimer, Bayard and Richardson streets in the Eastern District.

Good Advertising

For Wide Awake Retailers

By F. James Gibson.

Our "Good Advertising" department is to help our subscribers to do better advertising. The gentleman whom we have selected as its conductor is well known as one of the foremost advertising specialists of the day. Any of our readers who desire the benefit of Mr. Gibson's criticisms on advertisements or advertising methods, or his advice on any advertising subject, can have it or both entirely free of charge by writing to him in care of this journal.

If correspondents so desire, fictitious names or initials may be used for publication. But all requests should be accompanied by the subscriber's name.

From The Dry Goods Review.

THE first essential of good advertising is truthfulness. The man who lies in his advertising not only commits a moral wrong, but he makes a mistake that will ruin him if he keeps at it long enough and hard enough.

I know of a very large store in New York which is owned and conducted by a man whose morals are deplorable, according to common report. This man is smart enough to know that to be succesful he must conduct his business, which is a retail one, on the lines of the highest rectitude. One of the things he is most particular about is his advertising. No statement ever goes into an ad. of his that is not absolutely true. If he says that a certain line of silks has been marked down from $2 a yard to $1, the public can depend on the statement absolutely. The result is that every advertisement of the firm is believed. It is easy to see what a great "pull" a reputation like this gives a business house.

When you once fool a man or a woman (especially a woman, and women are the great retail buyers of goods,) it is difficult to command belief in future advertisements. The advertiser who is in the habit of fooling the community soon finds himself distrusted. And it doesn't need a prophet to foretell that success will never ride on a tandem bicycle with him unless, perhaps, he gets into the green goods business or something similar.

There was a time not long since when most advertisements were generally received with incredulity. "Oh, it's only an advertisement!" was then a common expression, and to some extent this distrust in advertising still exists. But it is gradually passing away under the influence of the truthful advertising, which advertisers are by degrees finding out to be the only kind that pays in the end.

I am asked to criticise the ad. of J. M. Steel's, Clarksburg, Ont. (Fig. 1).

I don't think much of this style of an advertisement. Of course, it is above the average country paper ad., but it has very serious faults. In the first place, it leaves the impression on the mind that Mr. Steel is afraid to quote the prices on at least half the articles mentioned. Why should not the price of Morton's herrings be quoted as much as the price of Clark's corned beef? The three most important items in the ad., judging by the type, (salt, soda and tea,) certainly ought to have prices quoted for them, unless, perchance, Mr. Steel is sole agent for the three brands mentioned. Even then, prospective purchasers ought to be told how much money the things will cost. Neither are we told, for example, what Ludella tea is like—whether it is a Ceylon, India or a China tea; or whether it is a package tea or a bulk tea. Another fault of the ad. is the double rules run across both columns. These rules have the effect of fencing off the rest of the ad. from the name at the bottom.

Supposing that Mr. Steel's ad. had been written something like Fig. 2.

Here is an ad. (Fig. 3) from far-away Victoria, B.C., on which my criticism is desired. The man who wrote this ad. is evidently no novice in ad.-writing. Taking it all round it is a pretty good ad. It would have been an improvement if the ad. had been all about clothing or all about underwear. Either of these subjects are quite large enough for even a much larger ad. than this. Ads. as a rule (especially those read by men) are quite hurriedly read. One line of goods or one idea is about as much as an ad. of this size ought to deal with. Of course, if the ad. were what is called a general ad. it would be all right to refer to more than one line of goods. In fact, all lines could with advantage be referred to in a general kind of way. But such an ad. is not likely to bring much of an immediate response. It is definite information about something in particular that attracts attention and brings the business. The item of serge suits mentioned by Mr. Cameron is of sufficient importance of itself for a whole advertisement.

Suitable Clothes

Mean comfort and peace of mind. You can't afford to wear unsuitable clothes. Our stock is full of suitable things in men's, youths' and boys' wearing apparel. Take Serge Suits; like all other clothes, there are good, medium and trash. "Our Kind," the good kind; prices $6.50, $8, $9 and $10 the suit.

Underwear.

Our underwear department is now complete. Underwear to be comfortable must fit. If your outfitter can't fit you, suppose you try us. We sell good underwear as low as 50 cents a garment. A special line of boys' fleece lined underwear, all sizes, $1 per suit.

CAMERON

The Cash Clothier, 55 Johnson Street.

Fig. 3.

I have taken the liberty of re-writing the ad. as I think it ought to have been written (Fig. 4):

Cameron's Clothing.

Something you can't afford to do.

You can't afford to wear poor clothes. It is a weakness of human nature to judge by appearances. Even a dog will bark and growl at a tramp while he will let a well-dressed man pass by unmolested.

There are two ways of getting good clothes. Go to a first-class make-to-order tailor, let him take his time and charge you what he likes; the other way—the best way—is to come here.

Take our serge suits for example: a make-to order tailor would probably charge you $15.00 to $20.00 for a suit that will fit you no better, look no better, and be no better than one of our $10.00 suits. Of course we have cheaper serge suits—$9 00, $8.00, and down to $6.50.

EVERYTHING IN BOYS' AND MEN'S CLOTHING AND UNDERWEAR.

CAMERON

The Cash Clothier; 55 Johnson St.

VICTORIA, B.C.

Fig. 4.

For the convenience of such of the readers of THE REVIEW as are in the clothing business I herewith offer a few suggestions in clothing-advertising literature.

It pays to wear good clothes. It pays for three reasons: First, you feel yourself to be a better man; secondly, you look to be a better man; and lastly, you are a better man. Is this not worth paying a little extra for?

You go to your tailor, you leave him an order, you wait a long time for the clothes and maybe they don't fit when you get 'em.

You come here, the clothes are ready to try on, we fit you in a few minutes and save you one-fourth to one-half the price.

But are the clothes as good? We say they are. If we are wrong we give you your money back. We can't afford to be wrong.

Come and try, anyway.

What proportion of his accounts does the make-to-order tailor fail to collect? Ask him and see if he'll tell you.

But whatever the proportion is, you are taxed your share of it when you buy from him.

But when you buy here you pay for what you get only. CASH IS YOUR FRIEND.

Cash is our friend, too, and that's why we stick to it in both buying and selling.

Have you decided yet where you are going to buy your spring suit of clothes?

Come in here, anyway, and see what we have. If we can't fit you at one-fourth to one-half less than your make-to-order tailor has been charging you, we'll tell you.

Another thing we do besides fitting you is to sell you good clothes.

Good fit, good clothes, and the low prices that go with cash dealings are a combination hard to beat.

Come and join the combine!

About the cheapest advertising, and a kind that comes pretty nearly being as good as any, is the putting of circulars or leaflets in parcels going out of the store.

These circulars ought not to be large; 5 inches by 3½ inches is quite large enough for the largest, and most of them can with advantage be smaller.

This form of advertising is good for the special reason that it has the ear, or, rather, the eye, of the buyer at a favorable moment. She has been to your store, she has been favorably impressed, and has made her purchases. At the moment she is feeling well disposed towards you. She reads the little circular, and ten to one it has a more favorable effect on her mind than if she had read the same ad. along with several others in the columns of a newspaper.

My observation leads me to believe that comparatively few retail dealers use this form of advertising to any extent.

Of course, it is not well to put too many of these circulars in one parcel. One, or two, or three small ones at the very most should be the limit.

Closely connected with this form of advertising is the use of wrappers with your advertisement on it. The majority of retail dealers seem to think that it's a good thing to have their firm names printed on the outside of these wrappers in flaring type. This is a mistake. Customers are often prevented from carrying their parcels home because of this same flaring type. They don't want to be walking advertisements for someone's dry goods store. The proper way is to have a nicely worded sentence or two, dealing with some nteresti ng feature of your business, printed in modest type. When the goods are wrapped up put the printed side of the paper inside. When the customer gets home she will be sure to see the ad. when she opens her parcel.

One of the pitfalls for the unwary advertiser is the temptation to say what he thinks are smart and funny things.

Even if ads. were mostly read by men this would be bad enough, for the reason that not one man in a million can write funny ads. that are any good as ads. Now, women do the most of the ad. reading and most of the buying at retail—75 to 90 per cent. of the total. It is a well-known fact that women take far too serious a view of the spending of their allowances to appreciate even genuine wit and humor when it is mixed up with the prices of dry goods, provisions and what not.

The safest and by long odds the best plan is to fill up your advertisements with plain, straightforward, business-like talk.

AN INSANE BUSINESS PRACTICE.

By David.

THERE is a prevailing idea that the majority of the managers of wholesale paint and oil firms are pretty shrewd business men. Let us hope that the houses given to the following insane methods of doing business are decidedly in the minority and that, for the benefit of all concerned, their number will "grow smaller and smaller, and more beautifully less."

A commercial traveler of repute, representing a large wholesale grocery firm in Ontario, relates his experience as follows: "I was driving, during the summer, through the County of Waterloo and, calling in one of the most prosperous villages, I displayed my samples of rich Mocha, Old Government Java and choice Lal-Ram tea and Acadia granulated before the merry eyes of my Pennsylvania-Dutch customer, whom we will call Mr. Dinkelpender. After growing eloquent on the virtues of my full-strength-up-to-date-anti-pyroligneous vinegar for making 'sauer-kraut' Mr. D. said:

"'Mine frent, Allspice, I vill gif you an order provided you take back all dose canned goots vich I have mit me dree years all-the-vile, and mail a gretted note chust the same as I pays!'

"Mr. Allspice vowed he could not exchange good, fresh groceries for shop-worn, three-year-old, antiquated tinned salmon and green corn, and demanded an explanation.

"The worthy storekeeper explained that he lately made an exchange of the whole of his stock of ready-mixed paints to a Toronto manufacturer, who replaced it, apparently, with a fresh line or possibly some newly labelled rubbish that had been transferred from some other dealer who, by making the 'trade,' thought he was getting a bargain.

"Our tea and coffee salesman respects his situation as well as his reputation, and refused to do business in such a slip-shod fashion.

"I investigated the above and found the facts strictly correct. In some instances the exchanged product has been resold in the same or neighboring towns at 60c. per gallon, the buyer of the job lot in turn selling at $1 per gallon to the demoralization of trade, seeing the retail price should be $1.40 to $1.50 per gallon."

A SOLUTION OF THE CUT-RATE EVIL.

ATTENTION is called to the success of the scheme to protect their goods, and the retailer from cut prices, employed by the Quickcure Co., Limited, of Quebec. Their plan shows they are in earnest in the matter, and have a shrewd business conception of the evil and its cure.

Their plan is two-fold, either of them being essential to the success of the other. (1.) They have only one price for their goods, in large or small quantities—so any dealer, no matter how little he buys, only pays the same rate as the largest buyer. (2.) Goods are only sold under their contract of sale not to sell or in any way dispose of the Quickcure Co.'s preparations at less than the regular retail prices; a breach of which contract would render a dealer liable for so doing and also liable "for obtaining goods under false pretences."

The abolishing of any better price, or larger discount, for their goods, when bought in large quantities, fills a double purpose: It enables the company, if necessary, to watch more closely a firm or individual who appears to be handling a quantity in excess of what appears to be legitimate sales, and thus check any that might find its way into the hands of those disposed to cut the price; it also establishes confidence between the dealers and the company, as it shows the latter only desire such sales as are made to those who adhere to the terms of the contract; in this they show their faith in their preparations, and the demand they are determined to create for their goods; to this end, we understand, they have increased the list of newspapers and magazines in which they advertise to over 500 in Canada; and they also have exhibited at 37 exhibitions all over Canada and distributed half a million pamphlets thereat.

That the scheme has been popular is testified to by over 900 dealers who keep their goods, and state "they give universal satisfaction to both themselves and their customers;" also the influential testimonials from people known all over Canada, which they publish, must create a widespread demand for their goods, which are put up as handsomely as any in the world. It would be well for those who do not yet keep these goods to lay in even a small supply, as it may create a bad impression among your customers if they have to go elsewhere for these goods, which are gradually finding their way into every house, where they become staple articles, as they are really possessed of unequalled merit. We believe this is the first proprietary medicine company in the world to establish only one price for all their goods, and which is looked on as a distinct advance towards protecting the retailer from the departmental store that sells at cut rates (as the small buyer buys as cheaply as the largest), and this, combined with a contract of sale, to be rigidly adhered to, may cause other manufacturers to adopt the two ideas which form the Quickcure Co.'s scheme to protect retailers from cut rates. Each one can hasten the day when other manufacturers will do this by making such a rapid success of the Quickcure Co.'s goods that all manufacturers will unite, the world over, on the same lines and protect their best customers, the upright retailers.

RIPE STRAWBERRIES IN OCTOBER.

A Kinmount, Ont., subscriber, signing himself "A Lover of Fruit," writes as follows: "Having read your articles re Canada as a fruit-growing country, I thought it might interest you to know that one of our business men, Mr. C. Wellstood, boot and shoe dealer, who takes a great interest in gardening and fruit growing, picked a ripe cultivated strawberry on October 7. Canada must be all right if she can grow two crops of strawberries in a garden one hundred miles north of Toronto."

THE SCOTCH FISHERIES.

SCOTCH fish, such as herrings, etc., put up in cans in tomato sauce and other ways, have of recent years become a staple delicacy in Canada, and no first-class grocer's stock is now complete without a supply of these goods. Orders for these goods are usually taken during the fall and winter for shipment in the spring, so that the present is the period when jobbers place orders for supplies. Prices this year, owing to the exceptional conditions governing the Scotch fisheries during the season, promise to be higher than the average. It is estimated that existing stocks in packers' hands in Scotland will hardly supply the anticipated demand between now and next spring, and the new pack, for the above reasons, will be very small.

The Scotch herring fishing season this year on the east coast of Scotland, including also Orkney and Shetland, will stand unparalleled for its curious combination of unexpected record catches, general widespread disaster and unusually high prices.

From the opening of the season the fishing has been extremely fluctuating, and occasionally for days in succession almost whole fleets returned to the various ports either entirely blank or with a most meagre supply of fish. So discouraging did the state of matters become that fishermen during the latter part of August resolved to bring the season to a speedy close. It is believed that the deficiency, as compared with 1896, from Shetland to Berwick, amounts to fully 390,000 crans. Details given by the Scotch press regarding the take and prices during the season at Aberdeen and other ports fully confirm this. The season at Peterhead, although large catches were landed there during the last week of August, was practically closed by the middle of that month. Indeed all accounts agree that there has not been such a disastrous season for many years — not since 1888 — when at some of the leading ports the catch was only 95,000 crans, against 93,000 for the present year. The quality of the fish, as well as the price, has also varied exceedingly. Generally, the quality has been inferior and greatly mixed, a large proportion of the herrings being of small size. In spite of this, prices have risen sometimes beyond all precedent, in several instances exceeding £2 per cran. The average price for the season was about 29s. per cran. THE CANADIAN GROCER was supplied with the following figures regarding the different Scotch ports :

Berwick	130,280	110,580
Fraserborough	93,500	201,224
Peterhead	66,000	151,000
Aberdeen	46,873	125,256
Wick	28,760	73,600
Berwick District	22,400	48,000
Helmsdale	10,380	14,163
Buckie	9,780	14,458
Montrose	3,460	34,607
Stonehaven	6,296	13,246
Macduff	5,200	7,200
Lossiemouth	5,330	8,169
Burghead	4,451	7,434
Boddam	3,416	9,012
Arbroath	2,400	1,300
Kirkwall	1,600	10,348
Total	445,126	829,597

The export of cured herrings from Scotland has not been large, but in spite of this fact prices have risen sharply, ruling at 38 to 40s. per barrel for large fulls. In addition to the Scotch, the Dutch herring fishing, it may also be stated, is far short of last year's results, the total to the end of August for the Low-Countries fleet being 38,496 barrels, against 84,853 for same period in the previous year.

With the large shortage in view, advices to commission men in Canada are firm, and buyers who are in the want of any supplies of Scotch fish delicacies will certainly gain nothing by holding off.

A SUCCESSFUL HOUSE.

THE duty of supplying grocery specialties has become of recent years an indispensable branch of the jobbing trade. In fact, many articles that are classed under the heading more properly belong to the category of staples, for the grocery bill of fare of the average consumer nowadays is as much unlike the good old days as it possibly could be.

A leading house in this branch of the trade in Montreal is Robert Greig & Co., who represent in Canada the following well-known firms : Bryant & May, Limited, London, Eng., matches and wax vestas ; Rowntree & Co., Limited, York, cocoa and chocolate ; Carr & Co., Limited, Carlisle, biscuits ; M. A. Craven & Son, York, confectionery ; J. Buchanan & Bros., Limited, Glasgow, jams, marmalade and peels ; John Mackay & Co., Edinburgh, essence of coffee ; Robinson & Wordsworth, Pontefract, liquorice ; A. J. Caley & Son, Norwich, chocolate confectionery ; Lorimer & Co., London, sauces, etc. ; Chancellor & Co., London, Mack's starch ; Walter Hubbard, Glasgow, rusks ; James Marshall, Glasgow, food preparations ; Blondeau & Cie., London, vinolia toilet preparations ; Dandicolle & Gaudin, Limited, Bordeaux, preserved vegetables, fruits and fish ; Maison Bordin, Paris, preserved goods ; J. Stauffer & Cie., Belgium, prepared soups, etc. ; Keopff Bros., Germany, gelatine ; E. Selbmann, Germany, fancy boxes ; S. Zinn & Co., Germany, fancy baskets ; Pratt Food Co., Philadelphia, poultry and cattle foods ; E. C. Rich, New York, jellies, etc. ; also agents for the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for Maconochie Bros., London, pickles, preserved fish, etc.

The reputation of these firms and the goods they manufacture requires no extended mention ; it is world-wide.

Mr. Greig, the sole partner in the house, got his business training with D. Morrice & Sons, one of the leading commission houses of the Dominion. When he left their employ he was at the top of the tree. This was in 1892, when he bought out the business he is now directing. One of the house's leading specialties is "Crown Brand" extracts. These are put up under Mr. Greig's personal supervision, as he prepares the formula himself. Everything that goes out, therefore, he is in a position to positively guarantee. The sale of these goods has increased many fold, and they took the only medal awarded for goods of this description at the Toronto Exhibition this fall.

That the quality of all the goods handled by the firm can be absolutely relied upon, the growth of the business clearly testifies. The second year, moreover, was double that of the first ; the third double that of the second, and the fourth double that of the third. This increase of 100 per cent. in volume each year speaks for itself.

There are eight travelers constantly on the road representing the house from Halifax to Vancouver.

"There is always a black spot in our sunshine," says Carlyle ; "it is the shadow of ourselves."

SACCHARINE AND ITS HISTORY.

HYDRA sugar is the commercial name of the expurgated and re-crystallized form of the article which has been known for nearly twenty years or more as saccharine, which while possessing to an intense degree the quality of sweetness, was so combined with objectionable impurities as to render it unfit, or not well adapted, for more than a very limited line of uses, says a German exchange.

Hydra sugar, the purified form, which is the pure sweet, 100 per cent. pure, is a most interesting product, inasmuch as it is capable of such extended use in the arts and manufactures, being perfectly wholesome, according to extended and thorough examinations by various experts in food products, and is therefore not open to the objection that is sometimes rightly urged against synthetic substitutes for long well-known substances.

The material was first produced in the laboratory of the Johns Hopkins University at Baltimore about twenty years ago, and when the announcement was first made that such a substance had been produced from coal tar with such marvelous sweetness it was received with incredulity by all, even by the renowned scientists of Europe, who jested over the matter, and suggested that, according to tradition, bread had been made from stones, and that the recent discovery probably heralded the re-approach of the age of miracles.

It did not take long, however, to convince the world that the sweetening power and other good qualities of this article, when it could be obtained in a perfectly pure state, had not been exaggerated. The trouble until recently has been to furnish an article free from objectionable impurities at a reasonable cost. This purely economical problem has now been solved satisfactorily, and the goods are offered under the name of hydra sugar, which is perfectly pure and 550 times sweeter than pure cane sugar. It has been tested and experimented with on human and animal life by innumerable well-known chemists, and is found to be perfectly wholesome. It has the indorsement of the German and American Governments, who use it in army rations. It is frequently prescribed by physicians, and is an absolute necessity for diabetic patients, by whom it is used in tablet form as a sweetener of beverages, tea, coffee, etc.

It has not to any considerable extent the food properties of sugar, but on the other hand, it lacks some of the undesirable properties; and this, taken in connection with the fact that comparative cost, relative strength considered, is considerably lower than even the now very low prices of pure cane sugar, makes it a most interesting article, not only to scientists, but to manufacturers and to the general public.

SEEKING A GROCERY CLERKSHIP IN LONDON.

IN HIS usual soulless manner, the editor seemed to think that if I did something for a change it would break the monotony of things. So he came to me with a suggestion.

"Every smart youth employed in the provinces," he said, "has one great ambition in life, and that is to come to London to work—to London, where the streets are paved with gold" (this is a thing I had never noticed, but the editorial eye is keener than that of the proverbial eagle), "and where," he continued oracularly, "every ambitious boy is a probable Dick Whittington."

"It would be an interesting thing, then, to find out what the country shop assistant—a grocer's assistant—has to expect when he comes to London in search of employment."

I applied first at a shop in Whitechapel. This was, without doubt, the most woefully dirty grocer's shop I had ever seen, and it simply reeked with the smell of warm candles and strong cheese.

At first glance I thought there was no one in possession, and I was rather startled to hear a shrill voice cry: "Ma! Wanted! Wan——ted!"

A little girl, with a long, single plait of hair down her back and a wonderfully dirty face, was sitting on a high chair "minding shop."

"May I see your father?" I said.

She did not vouchsafe a reply, but turned her head to a little window with a muslin curtain, and screamed again at her invisible parent: "Ma! come 'ere! 'Ere's a man wot's come after the place!"

"Ma," whose face was nearly as dirty as the little girl's, entered and eyed me suspiciously, then turned and screamed in a voice exactly like her daughter's, only louder:

"Jim! Jim! Come 'ere!"

Jim, a very small man, quite out of breath, presently revealed himself from the rear. He eyed me almost timidly for a few moments, then cast his eyes on a bunch of brooms that hung from the ceiling.

"Can't yer speak?" snarled his wife, pulling him by the shoulder. "Ask the man what he wants. What wages do you want, young man?" she said, turning savagely to me.

"Yes; what wages do you wan't?" echoed the little man.

"Twenty-five shillings a week to live out," I said.

"Well, you won't get it, then!" she answered snappishly.

Passing down the same street a few minutes later I saw a round-faced, jolly-looking grocer in a little shop by himself, and determined to see what he would offer me.

"Do you want a hand?" I said, entering.

"Can't afford it," he said; "trade's too bad."

He kept me there talking, however, and when a tiny girl not so high as his counter entered and squeaked "Farden's-worf of snuff," he told me that most of his trade was made up of halfpenny-worths of sugar, pennyworths of tea, and such-like things.

While he was talking, a smell of boiled beef steamed out through the glass door of the little sitting-room at the back. "That's my dinner," he said, noticing my glance.

"You might stay dinner with me," said the kindly fellow, apologetically looking in another direction. "Hungry work looking for a job. I know what it is."

I thanked him heartily, and went away.

My next venture was in Camden Town, down a street of warehouses.

Half-way down the street I came to an office with a brown wire blind, through which I could dimly see a young clerk scratching away in a big ledger. On the blind in gold letters were the words: "Messrs. X. & Co. Engaging Department." At various respectful distances I saw twenty or thirty serious-looking young men, who were evidently intent on getting a situation.

The advertisement, which stated that there were several vacancies, had told applicants to call between eleven and one. It now wanted ten minutes to eleven. None of us dared jeopardise his chances by applying before the stated hour.

The manager who engaged employes was picking his teeth with a wooden match, and giving directions to the youth with the big ledger.

By this time there were five or six young men sitting quietly round the room, and others came in at intervals, until all the chairs were occupied, and seven or eight men were standing.

The majority of the applicants were smart and tidy-looking, and wore brown bowlers to a man. There were several, however, who had a suspicious fringe about the bottoms of their trousers, and their clothes at the knees and elbows were painfully shiny.

The manager took the wooden toothpick out of his mouth, and, looking at the cadaverous individual, ejaculated "Well? Where do you come from?"

"Glasgie," he said. "I was foor years in the grocery and preveesions."

"Are you a good hand?"

"Weel, sir, I'm no' so bad. Ah couldna——"

"You won't do for us," said the manager.

Poor fellow! his accent had doomed him.

Two or three others went up and were dismissed. The manager, evidently tired of questioning, looked thoughtfully out of the window.

I knew it was my turn, but he had not yet called "Next!"

He turned from the window, and his gaze settled on me. I felt as if I were about to be tried at the Old Bailey, and shifted uneasily in my seat. I was deciding to put a bold front on it when he startled me.

"Now, then, hurry up!"

I stood before him.

"Well, where do you come from?"

"Birmingham, sir."

"Birmingham? Ha! provisions?"

"Can you wrap up?"

"Oh, yes," I replied.

"What can you wrap up?"

"Eggs, butter, cheese, lard, bacon," I said, mentioning at random all the provisions I could call to mind.

"Can you serve butter?" he interposed, evidently displeased.

I thought it best not to appear too brilliant, and answered modestly: "Yes, sir, I used to serve butter every day."

"London style?"

Of course I did not know that London had a style of wrapping different from any other style, and I answered "Yes."

"How?" he replied laconically.

I felt that he had me, and I tried to wriggle.

"Well, you see, sir, when a customer came in, of course she'd er—come in, and—and I'd say 'Butter, ma'am?' Then I'd"—he did not seem inclined to help me, so I plunged on—"I'd, you know—I'd take a piece of paper——"

"You didn't use a knife?" he interrupted, almost angrily.

"Oh, no," I said. "Oh, no; we never used a knife; we used a—a—one of those little——"

"You mean a pat?"

He must have thought that I was a paragon of a grocer, for he suddenly said: "Now, if you are really a good butter-hand, I will engage you. Come here on Wednesday morning. 24s. a week. You must live out."—Answers.

CANADA MUST HAVE AN INSOLVENCY LAW.

VIEWS OF THE TRADE ALL OVER CANADA.

WHOLESALER AND RETAILER, ALMOST WITHOUT EXCEPTION, IN FAVOR OF A CHANGE OF SYSTEM—DEFECTS AND ABUSES NOW EXISTING POINTED OUT—SUGGESTIONS FOR THE PROPOSED NEW MEASURE.

THE question of an insolvency law for the Dominion is again beginning to occupy the mercantile mind, and promises before many months to be a very live one. With a view to obtaining the opinions of business men appertaining to this question, THE CANADIAN GROCER has had correspondence and interviews with wholesalers, retailers, etc., in different parts of the country, and the results are subjoined.

A BLOT ON OUR NATION.

Mr. Hugh Blain, of the Eby, Blain Co., Limited, said: "I am in favor of an insolvency law—a law that would ensure a uniform procedure throughout the whole Dominion in punishing dishonesty and in equitably winding up insolvent estates. In this Jubilee year of lofty ideas of national life we should make up our minds to remove the cause of so many disgraceful blots on the business record of the country for a number of years past.

"It seems to me that some of the speakers in charge of the toast of 'Dominion Trade and Commerce' at the Board of Trade Banquet, might have said to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in effect, but inspired by the occasion in more vigorous and eloquent language: 'I indorse all that has been said in favor of preferential trade with Great Britain, but let us see that we safeguard that preference when we give it. The British merchant, conscious that there is a preference given him to sell, will naturally suppose that he will at least get justice when he asks for payment. He will hardly expect a spider's parlor in a country professing such friendship; and yet such has unfortunately too often been the case. No country in the world could offer better facilities for fraudulent trading than this Canada of ours. The British seller has a preference in placing his goods with the Canadian buyer, but the Canadian buyer's relatives and local creditors have the preference in realizing the proceeds. And what is true with regard to the British seller can be applied with equal truth to the Canadian, when selling outside of his own province. Indeed, the law is so defective that the grossest frauds are perpetrated against you, even under your own eye and to your own knowledge, and yet you are utterly helpless to prevent it. The most pronounced free-trader would favor protection from such treatment. Will the Dominion Government give it? If so, it must practically say to the Provincial Legislatures: "We will pass an insolvency law and over-ride your iniquitous local Acts which permit and sanction such dishonesty.'" Sir Wilfrid might have said in reply: 'Your Board prepared an Act in 1893 which would doubtless have passed, but for dissensions among the members of your own Board.'

"This," continued Mr. Blain, "would have been correct. The Bankers' Section wanted special privileges, which the merchants could not agree to, and, in consequence, the bill was killed. Unfortunately, just demands are too frequently defeated in the Lobby. The Government should introduce the measure, be responsible for its provisions, and give us a just and equitable Act without fear or favor. Something must be done, and should be done speedily, if we are to stay the gradual declension of business morals. With the exception of Quebec, the most notoriously dishonest preferences are given in the other provinces. The law at present puts a premium on dishonesty. Our only safety in business is that the great majority of our traders are honest men; but this condition can hardly continue, because honesty cannot successfully compete with these dishonest methods. It is absolutely necessary that we should have either an insolvency law or our criminal law amended and made effective against these fraudulent practices.

"Looking at the subject from a national standpoint, it seems incredible that while since Confederation we have been successfully overcoming the barrier of race, creed and party, the provincial laws affecting interprovincial trade have been creating nothing but discord and animosity. It must be a source of sincere regret to every true Canadian to see the several members of Confederation enacting laws that in practice weaken the common bond which binds us together. Let the Dominion Government step in and give us a uniform law for all and it will tend to make us a more prosperous, a happier and a better people."

"In regard to a discharge clause, what are your views?"

"An insolvent, under proper conditions, should, in my opinion, receive a discharge. It must not, however, be too easily obtained or you will encourage insolvency and offset the benefits of the bill. In theory it may appear wrong to break the terms of a contract and compel one of the parties to take in full settlement less than agreed, but in practical business experience, where the insolvent has made a complete surrender of all his assets for the benefit of his creditors and has not been guilty of unworthy conduct, most people will agree that he is fairly entitled to a discharge.

"There should be a limit of time before the discharge could be granted. No one should be reinstated immediately in business, free of liability, without the consent of his creditors. The insolvent should be made to show that he kept books which contained a fair record of his business and that he acted honestly with his creditors.

"A discharge from the court should only be granted by a judge of the superior court. This would make the conditions entitling an insolvent to a discharge to a large extent uniform, and would eliminate local prejudice and the great variety of local opinion surrounding county courts, which were such a serious objection to the Act of 1875. The insolvent, whether opposed or not, should be compelled to prove to the court that he was entitled to his discharge."

"How about assignees?"

"I would have no official assignees. That was one of the great objections to the old Act. Assignments, in my opinion, should be made to some official as interim assignee who would not be permitted to hold the estate longer than the first meeting of creditors, and whose duties would be restricted to calling the creditors together and to doing such things only as were absolutely necessary in the interests of the estate, and for which he should get only a nominal fee. The creditors at the first meeting should then appoint an assignee on the ground of fitness only, and not because he was labelled by a Government or other body as official assignee. This would effectually do away with canvassing for insolvent estates such as was the practice under the old Act of 1875.

"These are some of the salient features introduced in the Act prepared by the Board of Trade in 1893, which, as already intimated, would probably have been passed but for dissension among ourselves and which the Government should have passed in the interests of the trade and commerce of the country."

AGAINST AN INSOLVENCY LAW.

Mr. Wm. Ince, sr., of Perkins, Ince & Co., when asked for his opinion said: "I am not in favor of an insolvency law. I did, a good many years ago, in conjunction with Messrs. Henry W. Darling & E. W. Thompson, take a great deal of trouble in trying to frame an insolvency law which would be acceptable to the trade generally. Although it was before the Government, it never became law. But the late Sir John Abbott, then Minister of Justice, I think, took it in hand and promised to consider it when drawing up a bill of his own. It, however, came to nothing. Since then the Board of Trade has repeatedly made attempts to have a law passed, but all to no purpose. Although, as I have said, I helped to frame a bill, yet I have never been strongly in favor of a bankruptcy act. The part I took in framing the bill was merely in deference to the wishes of others, and particularly those of the dry goods trade.

"My reason for not supporting an insolvency law is that I feel it is utterly impossible to get the House of Commons to pass an insolvency act which would be satisfactory to the whole trade of the country, especially in regard to the granting of discharges, which, I think, should be left in the hands of a majority of the creditors, with, of course, a certain supervision by the judges. In our own business we have found that we can get along much better without an insolvency law than we could under the old insolvency act. I can recall but very few instances in which an insolvency act would have been any help to us. While I hold these views, still I would acquiese in a good insolvency act, but I am quite content to go on without one."

During a further conversation, Mr. Ince remarked, with some vigor: "The great trouble about all matters of insolvency is the apathy of creditors." And then he went on to illustrate his point: "At the first meeting probably every creditor will be represented, at the second there will be a marked decrease in the number, while at the third there probably will not be a quorum, and ultimately the matter is likely to be practically left in the hands of the assignee, and solicitor whose interest would, of course, be to make the most they could out of it."

THE EVILS OF THE PRESENT SYSTEM.

Mr. E. B. Greenshields, head of the old firm of S. Greenshields, Son & Co., said:

"You ask me for my views about the passage of an insolvency act for the Dominion of Canada. There is no doubt in my mind about the absolute necessity of this, if Canada wishes to give justice to her citizens, and to show to other nations with which she has trading relations that her desire is that all creditors should share equally and fairly when they are so unfortunate as to make bad debts in her land. When the object of an insolvency law is stated in this plain way, surely there is no person of ordinary moral sense but will say that we should all strive to obtain it. I have taken an active interest in this matter for years, and some time ago, with a little of the hopefulness of earlier years left in me, I thought we were on the eve of legislation. But the years have come and the years have gone and we are still in the "as you were" position. When Sir John Abbott was in office he told me that if the principal boards of trade of the country agreed on the main features of an insolvency law, the Government would bring in a measure. Acting on this the boards of trade of Montreal and Toronto prepared what I think is an admirable draft bill. This we presented to Sir John Thompson, and from the reception we received from the Government we thought our work was done. But no time has been found in the hurried business of Parliament from then till now for this important measure, though much has been wasted over many matters of little or no importance to the country.

"The present situation is about the following: In the province of Quebec the common law provides for fair treatment of all creditors, with, perhaps, the exception of preferences being given for rent and the ranking on business estates of marriage contracts. In all the other provinces the common law is as bad as it can be. Preferences of all kinds, especially transfers of book debts, chattel mortgages and sales of stocks when merchants are insolvent, are legal. In the Lower Provinces a man can, in the act of assigning, and in the deed of assignment, instruct his assignee (whom he himself appoints!) to pay certain of his creditors in full and divide the balance, if there is any, among the rest. Not long ago in New Brunswick a wholesale dry goods firm transferred all their assets to a limited company, with instructions that the assets were to be used in paying its creditors in, I think, two years if they were sufficient. The creditors, who were the real owners of this estate, were not consulted and had no voice in the unusual disposal of their own property! To-day, in Ontario, a merchant though insolvent can sell out his business and take the proceeds and pay his debts or not as he chooses. He usually has to pay, however, some one or more creditors, for the people he sells to, or through whom the arrangement is made, usually manage, before he is allowed to leave, to make him disgorge sufficient to pay their friends' claims. The immorality of this is beyond doubt. Its legality, as far as the payments to the preferred creditors are concerned, is, according to our antiquated laws, also equally beyond doubt. The transfers of book debts are also very objectionable. A debtor signs an agreement transferring his book debts, present and future, to a creditor. This document, without any publicity given to it, remains with the creditor till the debtor fails, when it is produced and has been held to be a legal lien on all the book debts of the estate. In New Brunswick they have amended the common law and the situation is improved. But even now perverse ingenuity can still favor one or more of the creditors of an estate. In a case the other day at St. John, as no chattel mortgage could be legally given in New Brunswick, a quantity of goods, it is said in their original packages, from the west, were sent over the border to a village in Nova Scotia and a chattel mortgage given on them there! In Ontario there is a Distribution of Assets Act, but it is often useless as there is no clause in it by which the creditors can compel an insolvent to assign, so that he can defend the suits brought against him through the courts, using the creditors' money to fight them, and make away if he choose with all the assets he can dispose of. This shows the weakness of provincial Acts, for the Privy Council of England has upheld the contention of the Dominion Parliament that it alone can deal with insolvency legislation, and has decided that the Ontario Act is valid, because it makes no provisions to compel an assignment, but is really a Distribution of Assets Act. By the same reasoning, the Province of Quebec Insolvency Act is invalid, for it provides machinery for compelling assignment, and arresting a debtor who in certain circumstances will not assign.

"This shows that the only relief the country can get for this state of affairs is from the Dominion Parliament, and the present Government should be urgently asked to bring in the measure that was submitted to the late Government. Its leading features are:

"1. Complete doing away with all preferences. This can be easily done with the exception of transfers of book debts and sales of assets when the merchant is really insolvent. An eminent commercial lawyer in Toronto told me it was difficult to prevent these when the proceeds were used in payment of debts, even if they all went to one or two creditors. But means can surely be found, such as compulsory notice to all creditors of such transfer or sale, and so many months given for objections before they would be legal.

"2. Equitable distribution of the assets with as little expense as possible.

"3. A reasonable discharge clause for honest debtors. It might be well to leave this to the creditors, and many people would prefer this, but the fact remains that no Insolvency Act can be carried at Ottawa without this clause. Indeed, I personally think it would be wrong not to have it, as we all know how sometimes from one motive or another a single creditor will refuse to give a discharge, even when he has no charge to lay against the insolvent except that he was unfortunate in business. But this clause should be a strict one, and safeguarded in every way so that no improper use could be made of it.

"4. No class of official assignees. Those who had charge of the Boards of Trade Insolvent Act were very particular in insisting on this. They wanted the present system under which the creditors employ any competent accountant they choose to wind up the estates. They were very much opposed to any class of assignees being officially appointed by the Government.

"It will be seen from what I have said that the country has a right to demand from this Government redress of the great grievances the mercantile community suffers from, and this on the broad ground of justice, 'the great standing policy of civil society.' If there is any duty specially laid on the Government it is to see that the laws of the country are equitable. It is a disgrace to Canada that in the end of the nineteenth century, when she is taking such a prominent place in the world, her commercial laws should be so iniquitous and so directly opposed to any system of right morality."

of a good insolvency law. Under the existing state of affairs it is all too easy for a merchant, predisposed to dishonesty, to fail and get started in business again. This calls to my mind the story about the old Dutch grocer. It is an old one, and probably you have heard it before. This old Dutch grocer lived in a town where his competitors had, one after the other, failed, and in some instances more than once, but they usually managed to continue in business, much to his discomfort and annoyance. So one day he decided to fail too. He accordingly wrote to his creditors: 'I'm bust.' As he was a man known to be in good financial standing, the announcement surprised them, and some of them sent out representatives to investigate.

"'Why, what's the matter?' asked one of them.

"'O, I'm bust, I'm bust.'

"'How much do you owe?'

"Having told them, one of the creditors asked:

"'Do you own that farm over there?'

"'Yaw.'

"'Is it encumbered?'

"'Naw, not vif von cent.'

"'Cattle, stock and implements all yours?'

"'Yaw.'

"'Well, how about your other property? Is that all unencumbered?'

"'Yaw.'

"'But, my dear sir, you cannot fail; you have more than enough to pay five dollars for every fifty cents you owe.'

"'I don't care, I'm bust, I'm bust. I vill bay you vifty cents on ze dolla.'

"'We can't accept it. You are able and must pay one hundred cents on the dollar.'

"'I must! Vhy, my tear vrend, dose udder vellows all vail and bay you vifty cents on ze dolla. Me, your best customer, you make me bay von hundred cents on ze dolla. I tell you I'm bust.'

"And I tell you what it is," added the traveler, "he struck it about right. The present way of doing things is not fair to the honest merchant."

A BROKER'S VIEW.

Mr. Henry Wright, of Wright & Copp, did not care to be interviewed, but during a brief conversation he remarked: "There should undoubtedly be a uniform law for the Dominion. We are doing business from one end of Canada to the other, and what we want is a bankruptcy law which is the same in British Columbia as it is in the Dominion. But if we are going to have a law of this kind let it be a good one."

"What about a discharge clause?"

"O, I believe that every honest man should be granted a discharge."

In speaking of dishonest debtors, Mr. Wright related his experience with one. He had sold a certain article at 30 days. Two days afterwards he learned that the buyer was disposing of it at two cents per pound less than he had bought it for. In about a week that man assigned.

A WELL-KNOWN RETAILER'S VIEW.

"Do I favor an insolvency law? Why, yes. I think nearly every one does." This remark came from Mr. Henry Swan, of Swan Bros., the well-known retail grocers of King street east, Toronto. Mr. Henry Swan is a retailer of over thirty-four years' experience, and remembers well the old insolvency law.

"An insolvency law," he continued, "is fairer to the insolvent; it is fairer to the creditor."

"What do you think about the question of a discharge clause?" I asked.

"There has always been a difficulty regarding the discharge clause; but I am firmly of the opinion there should be one. I think there should be a certain amount which an insolvent should pay in order to obtain his discharge. And yet it would not do to have a law like unto that of the Medes and Persians. There would have to be some latitude. Circumstances should be taken into consideration. For instance, a merchant may allow, through forgetfulness, his insurance to run out, and he may have his premises destroyed by fire, as a result of which he may be compelled to assign. Now if he was an honest and upright fellow it would not be fair to deny him a discharge because he was unable to pay a certain amount on the dollar. Then there may be loss by flood and storm which may cause a man to fail. Leniency should be shown in instances of that kind. Of course there is this much to be said about a discharge: the higher the percentage of payment necessary to a discharge the fewer would be the failures.

"These questions are delicate, but that does not alter the fact that we should have a Dominion insolvency law; and the sooner we have it the better. Preferential treatment and chattel mortgages should not be allowed.

"Here," said Mr. Swan, in conclusion, "we are extending our trade with Great Britain and other countries, and we should certainly increase the security of the manufacturers and others in those places whom we want to do business with."

CHAIRMAN OF THE TORONTO BOARD'S INSOLVENCY COMMITTEE.

Mr. S. Caldecott, head of the firm of Caldecott, Burton & Spence, who is chairman of the committee of the Toronto Board of Trade on an insolvency law, spoke to THE REVIEW as follows:

"The committee of which I am chairman has met, and, after giving the matter consideration, deemed present action useless until an answer had been received from the Government, as to whether it was intended to pass an Act during the coming session or not. However, we invited the co-operation of other boards of trade, and have secured the approval of nearly every board in the country in favor of a proper bankruptcy law. The committee have had a number of schemes before them, but it was thought better not to formulate any plan just now, but wait to see the Government's measure and then seek to make such changes as the trade thought advisable.

"A number of safeguards ought to be introduced into a new law, especially in the way insolvents obtain discharges. Discharges should be guarded so as to make it difficult to fail, but if a merchant did fail he should not get a discharge if he had made false representations about his business in order to get goods, if he had exhibited recklessness in trading, or if it was shown that there had been extravagance in his personal expenditure. If not guilty of these things discharge could be obtained, provided the estate were handed over to the creditors."

"Did not the movement in favor of the last proposed law break down owing to a dispute between the banks and the mercantile interests?"

"Yes, to some extent; the point on which there was disagreement was the desire of the banks to rank fully on two estates. That is, if 'A' borrows from 'B' and the note is discounted in the bank, the bank in the event of both 'A' and 'B' failing, wanted to hold both lender and borrower for the money. The merchants resisted this contention, which is not even embodied in the present Ontario law."

"The impression now is, Mr. Caldecott, that the banks get a preference in an insolvent's estate by having the best of the assets transferred to them before the failure?"

"There is nothing in the Ontario law giving such a preference. It is only the weakness of a merchant who is in a tight corner for money which leads him to pledge the best of his assets to the bank in order to get accommodation. If it were not for the general honesty of traders we could not get along under the present law.

"The reason we want a change is to prevent rogues from continuing in business and to make it more profitable for honest men to do business. In France they have a law whereby the merchant must take stock once a year, and if he finds himself insolvent he must immediately notify his creditors and call a meeting to decide what shall be done. If he continnes, knowing himself to be insolvent, it is a criminal offence, and he is liable to condign punishment.

"We want a clause in the new Canadian law forcing the merchant to keep an accurate account of all his cash transactions and all his personal expenditures. That would be a great check on a man's continuing in business after he was really insolvent. If an insolvent failed through extravagant personal expenditure it should be enacted that his discharge should be suspended for a length of time. We ought to have a uniform law in Canada. If intercolonial trade is to be developed on a sound basis there must be such a law. That is what merchants in the United States are agitating for. In Canada what we want is a law just to debtor and creditor, and one of the essential features of it should be that creditors would have the control of an estate, appointing their own officials to deal with it and not having an official assignee foisted upon them."

A FAVORABLE OPINION FROM P. E. I.

James Paton & Co., Charlottetown: "It is our opinion that an insolvency law for Canada should be passed immediately after the House sits. In that law we would propose that no preference whatever be given to any one, and even those holding bills of sale or judgments against the bankrupt should be compelled to share the same as any ordinary creditor."

NOVA SCOTIAN ADVOCACY OF A NEW LAW.

W. & C. Silver, Halifax, say: "We most emphatically second your agitation. It cannot be denied that we have in this country a larger proportion of honorable and high principled men engaged in trade than perhaps any other country in the world. If this were not the case it would simply be impossible to carry on a wholesale business with long credits at all. In justice to this happily predominating class, as well as to the wholesale merchants, there is an urgent demand to protect them from that class which fortunately is in the minority, who prey on the others like parasites—men who are either incompetent, idle, and extravagent, or else are weak in moral fibre, scheming and unscrupulous.

"We are strongly in favor of a bankrupt law modelled after the British, which on the whole works in a satisfactory manner. But, at all events, let us by all means have some provision that shall secure equitable distribution of assets without nefarious preferences.

"In fact, legislation in our country does not keep up to date. We require in these days of company promotions to have the same safeguards imposed as older countries like England have found necessary to prevent the guileless public from being shorn, or at least to make it more difficult. The field about here has lately been much cultivated in this direction, and, without any salutary checks on the directorate, it is likely to prove a happy hunting ground for the writer of the alluring company prospectus. At all events, the mercantile community should rise like one man and see to it that the man who proposes to settle at 50c. on the dollar should not unfairly compete with his neighbor who honestly pays 100c. without being compelled to make an honest division of all his assets under the light of a searching investigation by a qualified official, and under such common-sense provisions as required by the British Act, which originated in Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's fertile brain."

THE TURPENTINE DISTRICT.

By William H. Evans.

THE pine tree, from whence what is commonly known as spirits of turpentine is produced—as far as the American continent is concerned—flourishes in the large sandy districts of the states of North and South Carolina, Georgia and some parts of Florida. Savannah is the chief shipping port, but large shipments are also made from Charleston and Wilmington.

The pinus australis, or long leaved pine, although comparatively still abundant in some sections, is being most unmercifully "farmed" or tapped for turpentine, and unless the woods are conserved one of the richest sources of the south will be seriously endangered. As is well known, turpentine is very extensively used in the manufacture of varnishes, japans and paints. It is also used medicinally, both internally in small doses and as a liniment in throat and lung complaints and in rheumatic and neuralgic cases. The rich odor emanating from the pine forests is also extremely beneficial in bronchial troubles, and there are several invalids' resorts among the pines in South Carolina and Georgia, especially for people affected with chest affections. Turpentine is obtained, to be brief, by making an incision or pocket in the pine tree, into which the crude "turps" or sap flows. This is gathered and transported to the stills for distillation. A visit to one of these stills in the pine forests or "piney woods," as they are locally termed, is extremely entertaining. The "works" are of a most simple and rough character, but those who delight in seeing nature yielding one of its most interesting products, even by crude artifice, are amply rewarded by a survey of the unique and interesting surroundings. The colored gentry who work at the "stills" are a jolly lot, and will meet the visitor cordially, especially if the "white gemmen from de north" is of a genial character and can crack a joke, produce a flask of "benzine" or has a pouch full of the fragrant weed. In this out-of-door life, producing turpentine and the various products which go under the head of naval stores, one sees the negro at his best, and I have seen some handsome "darkeys," magnificently proportioned, strong as lions and full of agility and "go." The country negro is far ahead of the town-bred article for physique. Before the war, although he had no luxury, the negro was reasonably comfortable, and his surroundings and mode of life were more healthy than they often are now. He lived in the country, whereas he now crowds into the towns; his log cabin let in more air than the houses in which he now often dwells. Stoves and furnaces were unknown in the south, with their dry and pernicious heat, cheery open fireplaces with resinous pine logs being mostly in vogue. Consumption was rare, but acting as waiters in super-heated rooms is killing their vitality rapidly. Sambo was fairly well fed in the old days and happy in his environment; he was debarred from many excesses in which he now indulges without stint. The pure Africans are becoming fewer in number, and the gradual admixture of white blood tends to deteriorate them and destroy their stamina. The pine district of the south is very much frequented in the winter season by visitors from the north who wish to escape the rigors of a northern climate. At certain seasons the character of the scenery is very picturesque, with the cotton fields, oaks, magnolias, myrtles and jasmines. The trailing arbutus, the creeping and climbing vines are profuse and lend a charm to the landscape.

There are a number of towns and resorts in which to spend a pleasant sojourn. Aiken, S.C., is a favorite resort. The surrounding country is somewhat hilly, the ground high and the air dry and healthful until about the first of May, when the heat becomes trying and the insects decidedly annoying. Savannah is the chief shipping point for turpentine, and is a beautiful place, well laid out, with some very pretty drives. Wilmington, North Carolina, and Charleston, South Carolina, are both coast towns from whence "spirits" are exported in large quantities, and are interesting places largely patronized by northern tourists on the journey to and from Florida who desire to get acclimatized by easy stages. Charleston is a nice stop-over point, and is full of historical reminiscences. Here is Castle Pinckney, the ancestral home of the author of the saying in revolutionary times "Millions for defence but not a cent for tribute." Fort Sumter, where the first gun was fired in the civil war, April 12, 1861, can be visited by ferry boat. A promenade on the battery or sea wall, which looks out into the harbor, is very enjoyable and refreshing on a cool spring evening. St. Michael's Church is a grand edifice, having numerous monuments and "brasses" inscribed with names and having associations dear to the heart of the hospitable southerner.

FROM A DRUMMER'S NOTE BOOK.

Eight of us dined one day this week at an hotel west of Toronto. One of us (a stranger, though, to the rest), was "kicking" a good deal about the bill of fare. When he had said about as much as the waiter would stand, an old, hard-shell traveler, turning to me, said :

"Say, talking about tough meals, you ought to have been with me last Sunday. Say, I had about as hard a lay-out as you could imagine."

Several of the boys said : "Where were you ?" (thinking he must have struck some far-off hotel).

"I was at home." Needless to say, the stranger tumbled.

In an hotel bus this week there happened to be six of the biggest travelers on the road, all weighing over 210 lbs., and one little fellow about 110 lbs. The little fellow was squeezed in between two of them and was very uncomfortable, and remarked :

"People ought to be charged by the pound for traveling like this."

"Shut up," said the big fellow on his left. "If that were the case the driver would never wait for you."

MAYFLOWER TEAPOTS.

A single fact of authentic history may outweigh a long-held and sincerely-believed family tradition. Years ago, says a contemporary, a Philadelphia gentleman treasured as a family heirloom a china teapot, said to have been brought over by one of his ancestors in the Mayflower, in 1620. He was, in fact, so well pleased with this heirloom, that he had a dozen facsimiles of it made at a china factory, with an inscription on each telling its history. These he gave as souvenirs to valued friends. One of them was shown to the late Dr. J. Hammond Trumbull, the accurate historian. "You say," he asked, "that the original of that came over in the Mayflower? Well, that's singular, for tea was not used in England as a beverage until from twenty to thirty years after the Mayflower made her trips." The mention of that little fact affected the relative value of Mayflower teapots, although some of them are still shown with pride by the poorly informed. As late as 1650, tea was a rarity in England, costing from $30 to $40 a pound, and only used on rare occasions by the nobility. China teapots were obviously not in use by New England settlers in those days.

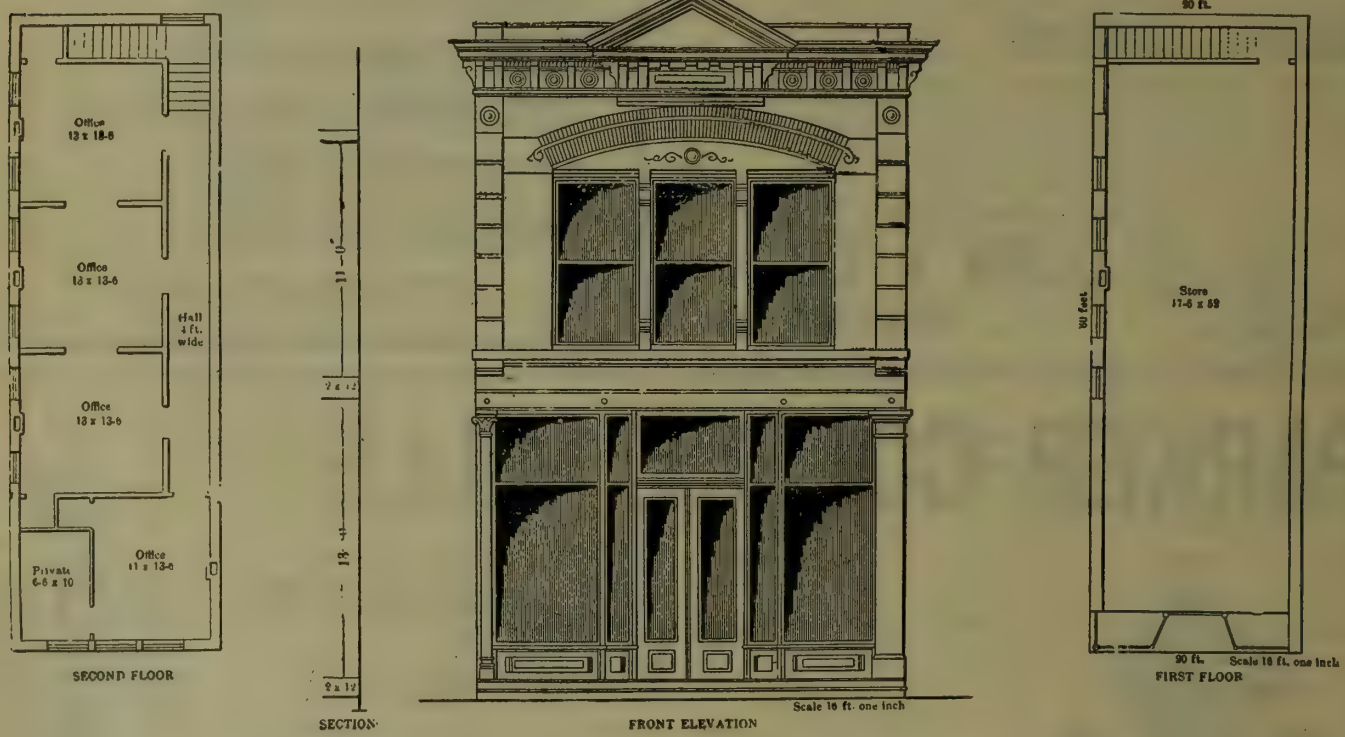
PLANS FOR A COUNTRY STORE.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has on several occasions been asked to furnish plans suitable for country stores. Subjoined we present a design taken from The National Builder for a country store building, 20 feet wide, arranged for a corner, with a side or rear entrance to rooms in the second storey, either to be used as offices or apartments. The elevation shown is drawn to a scale of 16 feet per inch, and the floor plans are 32 feet to an inch. The building should be erected on a stone foundation wall, 18 inches thick, or a footing 18 x 24 inches, laid in lime mortar. The first storey wall should be 16 inches in thickness, and the second storey 12 inches thick, of good, hard-burned brick, all laid in good mortar.

The front of the second storey may be finished in selected or pressed brick, of a yellow or red tint, laid in black putty, rod joint. These bricks should have stone trimmings as caps and sills, as indicated by the signs of the elevation. The first storey store front should be constructed of iron columns, finished with oak sash and doors, the thickness being 2¼ inches, finished up in the usual manner with door-plates, imposts, panels, etc., of the style and workmanship indicated by the drawings accompanying this article.



The glass for the store front to be plate, all other glass double strength. The joist for first and second storeys of this building should be 2 x 14 inches, of pine, placed 12 inches from centres; the ceiling joist of second storey being 2 x 6 inches, set 16 inches from centres; the rafters being 2 x 10 inches, set 20 inch centres. All joist and rafters to be bridged twice with 2 x 2 inch cross bridging. The floors and roof to be covered with 1 x 4 inch mill-worked flooring, blind nailed. The first storey should have an extra hardwood floor of 1 x 3 inch maple. The flat roof may be covered with single sheets, flat lock, or with composition formed of four thicknesses of felt, covered with gravel, or, of course, with any other suitable material.

The building should be plastered in two-coat work, hard finished, or, the ceiling of first storey may be finished up with 1 x 3 inch fancy-beaded and matched pine, blind nailed. All doors of the second floor to be 2 feet 8 inches wide, by 7 feet 6 inches high, of pine, finished, five panels, O.G., all hung and trimmed with suitable hardware. The castings for all the doors and windows to be 1 x 5 inch molded pilaster, the base being 8 inches high, molded, all in clear pine. A building of this character, erected within good building centre, would cost $2,500 to $3,000. General merchants sometimes build such places for themselves, and even those who do not may sometimes be called upon to advise people who may desire some such cottage.

The attractiveness of a store depends a great deal on its style, and the style of this store's architecture is beyond question.

HE ACCOMMODATED HIS CLERK.

A NEWLY engaged clerk in the employ of the Standard Oil Co. was sent to work in a small room that contained a health lift. Every morning at about 10 o'clock, when this clerk was particularly busy with figures, a small, black-mustached man, quite diffident in manner, entered, said "Good morning," walked on tiptoe to the corner, and exercised for a quarter of an hour. It became a bore to the clerk, who at last one day remarked with considerable heat to the stranger:

"How do you expect me to do my work properly while you are fooling with that blasted machine? I'm getting tired of it. Why don't you put it where it won't worry a person to death?"

"I am very sorry it annoys you," said the stranger, flushing; "I will have it removed at once."

A porter took it away within an hour. A few days later the clerk was sent for by Mr. Flagler, whom he found in earnest conversation with the small, black-mustached man. The latter smiled at seeing him, gave Flagler some instructions, and left the room.

"Will you tell me who that gentleman is?" the young man asked, a light beginning to break upon him.

"That was Mr. Rockefeller," was the reply.

It was the clerk's first acquaintance with the head of the great corporation by which he was employed.—Boston Journal.

A GLARING INEFFICIENCY.

A COUNTRY without efficient commercial laws, like a country without efficient criminal laws, is not in an enviable position.

Canada is a country whose commercial laws in one particular are so glaringly eneffi-cient as to injure its financial standing among the merchants of Europe.

The particular deficiency is the absence of a Dominion insolvency law. Canada has [been] in this condition about eighteen years, notwithstanding that the Dominion Parliament, the only legislative body in the country having the power to enact an insolvency law, has been importuned again and again by the Boards of Trade and other commercial bodies to supply the desideratum.

The old insolvency law was created in 1875 and repealed in 1879. The reason for its repeal was its bad reputation ; and what was the cause of its removal from the statute book has no doubt helped to keep a successor off the statute book, well and carefully built as were most of the bills designed so to take its place.

Within the last few months the business men of the country who recognize the necessity for a Dominion insolvency law have again become aroused. They are no longer in the mood to importune. They are in the mood to demand what is an inalienable right.

In previous movements of the kind the motive was to secure the passage of a law for the benefit of the business men of the Dominion. While this motive is in evidence in the present movement, yet a new and an important one is being exercised. We have reference to the consideration of the interests of the manufacturers and merchants in Great Britain, with whom our desire to do a larger business was so greatly stimulated by the preferential tariff adopted some months ago. In another part of this issue we print interviews with a number of business men throughout the country and therein several of them specifically point out that if Canadians desire to extend their trade with Great Britain they should certainly place on the statute book laws which will protect their interests.

That the interests of the creditor class abroad doing business with Canada are not properly protected is known to all men.

Not long since an importer in a commercial centre in Canada wrote to his English creditors, told them he could only pay them 40c. on the dollar, and enclosed a cheque to each for the amount of his indebtedness minus 60 per cent., while to his creditors in Canada he paid 100c. on the dollar. This is only one of similar instances THE CANADIAN GROCER has heard of. But the creditors in these instances were fortunate indeed compared with some who never received one cent on the amounts due them, not forsooth because the debtors were always dishonest, but because the law was always deficient and allowed unscrupulous and selfish creditors to guard their own interests at the expense of their fellow creditors. For instance : A short time ago a retail merchant doing a large business in an Ontario town was induced by his chief creditor to give him a mortgage covering stock, real estate and everything in sight and out of sight. By-and-bye the mortgagee quietly sold out the business and pocketed the proceeds. When the other creditors became aware of what had been done and went to the mortgagee to try and get him to share with them the proceeds of the sale they were met with an emphatic No.

With such a state of affairs as this existing it practically means a reign of terror in a commercial sense. And it is a realization of this fact that is helping on the present movement.

A striking feature of the agitation now being carried on is the strong feeling in favor of the abolition of preferences. One thing is certain, the practice of giving one creditor a preference over another has been a great evil, but whether it should be made unlawful is another question. The practice has undoubtedly earned a bad name, and unless preferences can be surrounded with proper safeguards that will prevent a continuance of the abuse of the system now so common it would be infinitely better that it should be forbidden altogether in any future legislation that may be enacted.

Another thing that in future legislation great care should be taken in regard to, is the matter of assignees. In the interviews published elsewhere it will be noticed there is a general demand for the abolition of official assignees. Official assignees were the curse of the old insolvency law, and the lesson then taught should not be in vain. The insolvent should assign to the sheriff, whose duties would end after the first meeting of the creditors, the matter of the appointment of a permanent assignee being left in the hands of the latter.

The discharge of an insolvent is another delicate question. The man who is dishonest is entitled to no commiseration ; but it is not so with the honest but unfortunate merchant. Every honest insolvent who has surrendered everything to his creditors is, other things being equal, entitled to a discharge. The amount on the dollar he shall pay in order to qualify for a discharge is difficult to determine. It seems to us that the law in this respect should have some elasticity, and that while the creditors should have a voice in either granting or denying a discharge, yet we think the final voice in the matter should be that of the court.

The snag which caused the destruction of the last insolvency bill introduced in Parliament was the opposition of the bankers, who seemed determined it should not become law unless they were given special privileges. They wanted to be doubly protected. In other words, they assayed to rank on two estates. Under the insolvency law of 1875 they did, with the result that they sometimes got more than one hundred cents on the dollar.

The banks, by playing the hog, wrecked one attempt to secure an insolvency law. They should not be permitted to stand in the way of any future attempt.

The demand for an insolvency law is a just one ; the demand of the banks to rank on two estates is an unjust one. The Government should be the judge in the matter, and at the next session of Parliament introduce and carry through an insolvency law applicable to the whole country.

FAMINE IN PULP.

THERE is almost a famine at the moment in pulp on the American continent. This one would think impossible, in view of the plentiful character of pulp wood on this continent, and in Canada particularly. But it is true, nevertheless. And an undoubted authority is THE CANADIAN GROCER'S informant.

The cause of the famine is not, however, the scarcity of pulp wood ; it is the want of water, which has prevented the mills from turning out their usual quantity.

So keenly is the shortage being felt that we know of mills that could not ship a carload of pulp, while it is understood that the manufacturers at the Sault are getting $25 per ton for what they can produce.

The people at the Sault Ste. Marie mills are daily receiving cable and telegraphic orders to ship every pound of pulp they can spare outside their contracts, regardless of the price. The cables and telegrams are, as a rule, from Great Britain and the United States, but some have come from far-off Japan.

Owing to the difficulty of securing pulp, some of the paper makers are refusing orders for wood-board.

CREATING OPPORTUNITIES.

He is a wise man who is able to grasp opportunities, but he is a still wiser man who is able to create opportunities for extending his business.

Opportunities are created by someone or somehow, and just as manufacturers are able to make their own machines for turning out certain articles, so business men should be able to turn out opportunities for increasing their trade.

When the farmer takes his plough into the field it is for the purpose of cultivating the soil that it in turn may cultivate wheat, or some other commodity.

Cultivating opportunities in business is really creating opportunities. The bright, energetic merchant, with his head ever evolving new ideas and his will-power ever putting them into operation, is really creating opportunities. He sows and he reaps. And a man usually reaps what he sows.

TEA MARKETS STRONG.

STRENGTH is still the predominating feature of the market for all growths of teas. This is evident from the advices which have been received during the past few days from various sources.

Ceylon teas which sell at from about 6 to 6½d. are 1 to 1¼d. per pound above the figures ruling two months ago, and teas which ruled at from 10½d. upward are from 1¾ to 2½d. from the lowest point. Teas, for example, which cost 25c. are now worth 30c., and teas costing 21c. are now valued at 25c.

We know of an instance where one house in Toronto offered another house an advance of 2c. per pound on a nice flavory Ceylon Pekoe, but failed to secure it.

A London, England, advice states that the market for Indian and Ceylon teas does not appear likely to be overweighted during the present season.

The consumption of Indian and Ceylon teas continues to increase. The consumption of Indian and Ceylon tea in the United Kingdom from January 1st to September 1st was 92,006,158 and 65,306,015 pounds respectively, against 88,080,621 and 59,861,211 respectively in 1896. The exports for the same period also show a marked increase. They were 3,758,006 pounds of Indian tea and 7,804,955 pounds of Ceylon tea, against 2,461,673 and 5,885,257 respectively in 1896.

Advices from Japan indicate a continuance of the strong conditions there. The market there is now about 2c. per pound above the quotations of two months ago, while, for teas which sold six weeks ago at 16½c., an advance of a cent and a half per pound is demanded.

The third crop of Japan tea is turning out poorly. Partly on account of this it is the opinion that prices will be maintained, as those holding the earlier and better quality teas will retain them until buyers want them.

The China market has closed and what are held to be the last shipments for the season are to hand, and prices rule firm, but there is not much business doing.

WILL THEY DECLINE ?

ADVICES recently from the Coast state that offers on California raisins and other dried fruit for November delivery are rather lower than those which governed the October shipments. This, however, is doubted by others who claim that they have not received any lower offers yet.

The decline, according to the advices to hand, is about equivalent to ¼c. per pound on California raisins as compared with the opening quotations.

Those who do not look for any radical decline in the near future state that heavy rains have seriously delayed shipments from the orchards. Their advices also state that the growers are as obstinate as ever about holding, and are trying to make arrangements with the banks to enable them to carry their fruit. Their reason for doing so is the belief that under the new tariff a much larger quantity of Pacific Coast fruit will be consumed in the Eastern United States markets, as the new scale is almost prohibitive against Mediterranean fruit.

THE W.C.T.U. AND LIQUOR-SELLING GROCERS.

ONE of the subjects discussed by the Women's Christian Temperance Union when in session in Toronto was liquor-selling grocers. The leader of the movement said that much progress had been made in inducing women not to buy groceries from men who sell alcohol, but some members of the Union could not be persuaded so to do, one woman claiming that she had saved thirty-six dollars a year by dealing at such a store. This latter remark created murmurs of indignation. Some asserted it was inconsistent, and one delegate declared she would "tear the white ribbon from the breast of anyone dealing with liquor-sellers," while still another asserted she had been obliged to give up her best milliner because that person dealt with a grocer who sold liquor. The question of boycotting grocers who sold cigars was also discussed.

The W.C.T.U. is an organization which is doing a noble work in the uplifting of fallen humanity, and in setting itself to the task of inducing legislators to enact laws which will make it less easy for coming generations to fall.

But neither the righteousness of their mission nor the good they are doing licenses them to employ arbitrary and illegal methods, such as boycotting, etc.

We believe it is better that the grocer should not handle liquors. This is an age of specialization, and the more irons a man has in the fire the farther away is he from accommodating himself to this specializing tendency. There was a time in the history of the country when practically every wholesale grocer not only had liquors in his stock, but nails as well, but now there are only a few, comparatively, who carry liquors, and none nails and other such articles appertaining to the hardware trade.

But the members of the W.C.T.U. are not doing their cause any good when they resort to irrational means of propagating it. A good cause is never served by the employment of bad methods, and when such are employed it savors of weakness rather than of strength.

Every W.C.T.U. woman has a right, if she so thinks fit, to transfer her patronage from a grocer who sells liquors to one who does not, but she has no right to tear the white ribbon from the breast of the member who does not see eye to eye with her on this question, or to boycott a milliner who deals with a liquor-selling grocer, for boycotting is illegal, let alone foolish.

THE SUGAR SITUATION.

THE sugar market is in rather a hesitating mood at the moment. Europe declined a little again, but there is still some uncertainty regarding the effect of the weather on the growing crop.

In New York the arrivals of cargoes of Java sugar at the refineries have made the latter independent of supplies on the spot. Consequently the feeling there is dull and weak.

The statistical position, however, is bullish rather than otherwise. During the past four years the world's increase in the consumption of sugar has been on an average about 200,000 tons annually, while it is generally estimated that the present yield will be no larger than that of last year. It has been estimated that, assuming the present stocks at 1,000,000 tons, and the prospective crops of cane and beet at 2,400,000 and 5,000,000 tons respectively, and that the consumption remains stationary, there will only be on September 30, 1898, a stock of 800,000 tons, which is 200,000 tons less than at present. Should there be the usual average increase, the difference would of course be 400,000 tons. The total supplies last year were 8,600,000 tons, or 200,000 more than the estimated supplies for the ensuing campaign.

The trouble is the diminution in the cane crop, Cuba's crop being estimated at last year's low figure, while in the West Indies there is a shortage, some of the islands having no cane sugar for export.

THE BEAN OUTLOOK.

The outlook for the bean market in Canada is much more favorable than it was a year ago as far as values are concerned.

During the last campaign, as every one in the trade knows, beans went a begging, good hand-picked stock being sold at ruinously low prices. In fact, during the greater part of the year the market was practically without a bottom.

So far this season, the conditions have been much more favorable. On the Toronto market during the past week there have been transactions in large lots at 85c. per bushel for prime beans, and for small lots 90c. seems to be the idea. Hand-picked would be worth about 5c. per bushel more. There has also been some enquiry on export account.

A FAKE ADVERTISING SCHEME.

THE advertising fakir goeth about as a roaring lion seeking whose dollars he may devour. He never sleeps and he is omnipresent. He may change his tactics, but behind the mask is the same old fakir. But everybody does not recognize him all the time, and consequently there are some people who are being victimized by him nearly all the time.

We have been induced to make these remarks by the receipt of a circular which a wild west hippodrome concern is distributing among manufacturers and merchants in Canada courting an advertisement from them. In return for good Canadian money the proprietors of the "wild and woolly west" show offer to paint in big letters on the top of their tents the advertisement of anyone whatsoever who will comply with the conditions demanded.

We do not know whether they have secured any victims. If they have not, they doubtless will, for to have one's name in large letters on a tent where thousands of people can see it from day to day is very alluring—to the man who does not think.

But the man who does think knows that faking is not advertising. And tent-top advertising is fake advertising.

People who go to "wild and woolly west" shows or any other shows go there for the purpose of seeing what is within the tents and not what may be on the top of them. They are not interested in groceries, hardware, dry-goods, etc. It is on the show their attention is centred.

The newspaper is the proper medium for advertising. And it is infinitely better to put an advertisement in a poor newspaper than on the roof of a good show. The columns of a newspaper is the natural medium ; the roof of the show is the unnatural medium.

The best thing for the circular in question is not consideration, but the waste paper basket.

CANADA SINCE CONFEDERATION.

MEASURING area by area Canadians are not at all disposed to feel humiliated when comparing themselves with the United States, but when comparisons as to population, manufacturing importance and material wealth generally are made between the two countries, too many of us in the Dominion are inclined to sit in sackcloth and ashes. And it is not altogether without some reason.

To every square mile of territory we have only 1.4 persons, while the United States has 18 persons, while in manufacturing industries and commercial interests Canada also occupies a much inferior position. But if those who confine their comparisons along these lines would only extend them and at the same time contemplate the possibilities of the Dominion, it is the loud timbrel they would be sounding and not throwing ashes upon their heads.

Our population, while only a little more than five millions, is composed of elements for nation-building which are decidedly of a good order. Across the border there are millions of people who we would not take under any consideration, and whom the United States would be only too glad to give to us, and with a premium thrown in. Then, as to agricultural possibilities, they are undoubtedly of a most promising character, while practically all the arable land in the United States has been taken up. To say nothing of the unlimited areas open for settlement in the Northwest Territories and the extensive areas in Ontario and Manitoba, there are 7,000,000 acres of surveyed but ungranted land in Quebec, and a like number in New Brunswick, while Nova Scotia has 1,500,000 ungranted acres and Prince Edward Island 45,000 acres.

Although Canada is essentially an agricultural country, we have really no reason to be ashamed of our position in respect to manufactures.

CANADA AS A PRIZE-WINNER.

At the last agricultural show at Sydney, New South Wales, Canadian exhibitors of manufactured goods took prizes in every display in which they entered and in which prizes were given. One firm took first for railway trolleys, first for farm wagons, second for wagons, third for dump drays; another took first and second for buggies, and a third took first for display of paints and varnishes. All the articles, too, came from stock, and were not specially prepared for the exhibition.

Canada is, however, in a national sense, but an infant. The Dominion was only born thirty years ago. And thirty years in the life of a nation is not even as a day in the life of a man.

Figures are, as a rule, dry things, but when they relate to one's own country they should not be uninteresting. And not only should they be interesting, but inspiring as well, particularly when, in the main, they are favorable, as are those relating to Canada from the day of her birth till the present.

Want of population is one of our chief causes of complaint. But even in this respect our cup is by no means all sorrow. The population in 1871 of what is now the Dominion of Canada was 3,635,000. Prince Edward Island did not come into the Confederation till 1873, but its population in 1871 is embodied in the figures we give above. In 1881 the population of the Dominion was 4,324,810; in 1891, 4,833,239, and it is at present officially stated to be 5,083,424. During the thirty years of our history as a confederation the increase in population has been about 40 per cent. And our outlook for population now is better than it ever was.

The exports of animal and agricultural products have steadily increased since Confederation, the value of the quantity we sent out in 1896 being, notwithstanding the fall in prices, over 118 per cent. larger than during the year of Confederation. The following table gives these exports of animal and agricultural products in ten-year periods; also the percentage taken by Great Britain and the United States, respectively:

Year.	Total Value.	Percentage Exported to G. B.	Percentage Exported to U. S.
1867	22,452,473	20.24	65.92
1877	27,587,236	49.76	44.75
1887	41,357,870	59.04	36.07
1896	48,791,344	85.45	12.65

The quantity of animal and agricultural products exported in 1896 to Great Britain was the largest, both in regard to value and in percentage to total exports.

WHEAT AND FLOUR EXPORTS.

Our total exports of wheat and flour in 1868 were equal to 4,201,422 bushels, and in 1896 they were 14,318,607 bushels, an increase of 250 per cent. Our exports of barley have fallen off enormously, thanks to the McKinley tariff. In 1882 our exports of that cereal reached 11,588,446 bushels, but last year they were less than one million bushels. Maize increased from 10,057 bushels to 2,499,080 bushels, and in 1894 the exportation of this grain reached over ten million bushels. Under the classification "other breadstuffs" the quantity exported in 1868 was 14,577,964 pounds, and in 1896 it was 38,723,905, or an increase of over 171 per cent.

According to the census returns there were 411,214 more horses in the country in 1891 than in 1881; in cattle, 686,597 more; in swine, 526,231 more. Sheep, on the other hand, decreased 484,897 during the ten years. Of horses we, in 1874, exported 5,339 and in 1896 the number was 21,852; of cattle, 39,623 and 104,451 respectively, and of sheep 252,081 and 391,490 respectively.

As in animal and agricultural products so in exports of cattle and sheep: those to Great Britain have gradually increased, while those to the United States have as steadily decreased. In 1875 we shipped to Great Britain 455 cattle and to the United States 34,651, but last year (1896) the number was 97,042 to Great Britain and 1,646 to the United States. In sheep practically the same results are shown. In 1874, 1875 and 1876 we sent no sheep to Great Britain, but in the first-named year we exported 248,208 to the United States. The year 1877 saw us ship 3,170 sheep to Great Britain and 198,820 to the United States, while in 1896 Great Britain took 219,810 head and the United States 162,775 head.

The increase in provisions, the product of Canada, has been most gratifying, as the following brief table will show. We also give the value of the quantities sent respectively to Great Britain and the United States:

Year.	Quantity in lbs.	To G. B. Value.	To U. S. Value.
1874	83,126,411	$ 7,084,349	$1,741,948
1884	106,433,119	9,598,004	2,038,230
1894	209,638,105	20,789,467	238,179
1896	246,881,998	20,805,579	133,718

In quantity the increase between 1874 and 1896 was nearly 200 per cent. The increase in the value of the exports to Great Britain was 193 per cent. and the decrease to the United States about 340 per cent.

CANADA'S GREAT FISHING INDUSTRIES.

One of Canada's chief assets is her fisheries, and the increase in the output of these has been as satisfactory as it is great. In 1869 the yield was valued at $4,376,526. Ten years later the total was $13,529,254, and in 1895, the last year for which we have figures to hand, the aggregate value was 20,185,298. The fisheries of Nova Scotia easily occupy the first place, while New Brunswick and British Columbia were in 1895 almost tie for second place. The number of fishermen employed in the Dominion in 1895 was 71,334, against 61,395 in 1879.

Of our total catch of fish we export more than 50 per cent., the total value of the exports for 1895 being $11,077,765, and of this amount $4,462,002 worth were taken by Great Britain, $3,301,671 by the United States and $1,088,824 by the British West Indies. The total amount taken by the British Empire was $5,794,961.

In the development of our mineral resources the progress has not been as marked as the character of these resources warranted; but, as everyone is aware, the prospects in this respect were never so bright as they are to-day, what with the gold fields of Kootenay, the Klondike and Ontario promising as they do. At the same time, however, the production in both 1895 and 1896 is a great deal above the average of previous years. Last year the production of metallic, non-metallic and sundry metals was valued at $23,627,305, or over 91 per cent. above the average of the three years of 1886-7-8.

THE MINING INDUSTRY.

It will thus be seen that, notwithstanding the comparatively little development of the mines that is going on, the value of the output already exceeds that of the fisheries. What it will be in another year or two no one can say, but that the output of gold alone will before long exceed in value last year's yield of minerals of all kinds is not at all improbable. Our exports of minerals last year were valued at $8,650,436, compared with $6,304,970 worth in 1891. The United States took all but about a million dollars' worth of this. Coal is the most valuable of our exports of minerals, as it also is in the matter of production, and the increase in the quantity exported since Confederation has been gradual, until in 1895 it reached 1,070,973 tons, as against 265,335 tons in 1868. Last year the quantity was scarcely as large, being 981,132 tons.

The foreign trade of the Dominion (exports and imports) has increased over 82 per cent. since Confederation, while the exports have increased about 112 per cent. and the imports by about 61 per cent. The following table gives the imports, exports and the total trade for ten-year periods :

A HINT AS TO THE AREA OF CANADA.

Its area exceeds that of Europe (minus Russia and Scandinavia) and Australia.

	Imports.	Exports.	Total trade.
1868	$73,459,644	$57,567,888	$131,027,532
1878	93,081,787	79,323,667	172,405,454
1888	110,894,630	90,203,000	201,097,630
1896	118,011,508	121,013,852	239,025,360

The exports last year were the largest on record. The aggregate foreign trade of the Dominion per head of population was $3.94 compared with $2.61 in 1868.

A BAROMETER OF MANUFACTURES.

One class of imports which may be taken as a sort of barometer of our manufacturing condition is that of articles in a crude state which enter into the manufacture of various goods. For the three fiscal years 1877-79 these averaged in value $9,012,196, but by 1896 they had swelled to $22,854,825, an increase of about 144 per cent. In articles imported wholly or partially manufactured for use as materials in the manufactures and mechanical arts an increase is also to be noted, the total value of such goods brought into the Dominion in 1896 being $19,319,806, against $9,998,241 as the average for the three years 1877-79, or over 94 per cent. of an increase. On the other hand, imports of manufactured goods ready for consumption have remained almost stationary during the period covered from 1877 to 1896.

The following table gives the percentages of goods entered for home consumption imported from the United States and Great Britain to the total value of imports during the ten-year periods of 1875, 1885 and 1895 respectively:

	1875.	1885.	1895.
Great Britain	50.45	40.31	29.58
United States	42.47	45.91	51.91

Thus, in view of the fact that our export trade has fallen off enormously with the United States and increased enormously with Great Britain, the result shown in the above table is significant. What effect the preferential tariff of one-fourth will have in reducing the 22.33 per cent. that is now to the advantage of the United States, and transferring the balance of trade in favor of Great Britain, remains to be seen. In providing the minimum tariff Canada has done something towards bringing this about; and she may do more in this or some other way. But exporters in Great Britain can assist a great deal by bringing their goods more prominently before the Canadian public and energetically pushing for trade.

The following table gives the exports of the mine, fisheries, forest, animals and their products, agricultural products and manufactures for each year from 1891 to 1896 inclusive, and the figures are condensed from Statistical Year Book:

	1891.	1892.	1893.	1894.	1895.	1896.
Mine	$5,782,424	$5,905,628	$5,328,835	$5,799,337	$6,981,550	$8,056,047
Fisheries	9,715,431	9,675,393	8,743,050	11,102,692	10,692,247	11,077,765
Forest	5,434,912	5,288,087	5,592,893	6,834,184	5,517,342	6,067,741
Animals and their products	25,967,741	28,594,850	31,733,499	31,881,973	34,387,770	36,507,641
Agricultural products	13,666,858	22,113,284	22,049,490	17,677,649	15,719,128	14,083,361
Manufactures*	25,145,071	24,035,488	28,462,031	27,215,691	26,144,376	30,476,932

*Includes sawn lumber of all kinds, box shooks, shingles, ashes, treenails, staves, headings.

It should be remembered that these figures represent values. If they represented quantities the result would show larger increases for the later years, for, as everyone knows, prices have declined a great deal during the six years covered by the table, and still a great deal more since the year of Confederation. This fact should be borne in mind in considering all other figures besides those just quoted.

The banking institutions, like the commercial interests of the country, also show a steady expansion. This is evident from the following table, which is given for ten-year periods and 1896:

	1868.	1878.	1888.	1896.
Capital paid up	$30,507,417	$63,682,863	$80,345,035	$62,043,173
Notes in circulation	9,350,646	20,475,586	32,205,259	31,456,297
Total on deposit	33 653,594	70,856,253	125,136,473	193,616,049
Discounts to the people	52,299,050	119,682,659	141,002,373	213,211,996

Assets	79,860,976	175,450,274	243,504,164	320,937 643

The deposits in the various savings banks of the Dominion, including post office, other Government and special savings banks, for the same periods as given above were: 1868, $5,057,607; 1878, $14,128,185; 1888, $51,846,350; 1896, $61,259,152. The amount per head of population was in 1871, $2.96; in 1881, $5.44; in 1891, $10.39; in 1893, $11.04; in 1894, $11.17; in 1895, $11.36, and in 1896, $11.95.

CANADA'S RAILWAY SYSTEM.

The paid-up capital of the loan companies increased from $8,042,158 in 1874 to $40,504,504 in 1895; the reserve fund from $1,336,462 in 1874 to $11,131,307 in 1895; the deposits from $4,614,812 in 1874 to $19,945,944 in 1895; the total liabilities from $16,229,407 in 1874 to $141,834,490 in 1895; the total assets from $16,229,407 in 1874 to $142,781,369 in 1895.

In 1875 the number of miles of railway in operation in Canada was 4,856½, and in 1896 it was 16,270; in 1875 the train mileage was 17,680,168, and in 1896 it was 44,500,602; in 1875 the number of passengers carried was 5,190,416, and in 1896 it was 14,810,407; in 1875 the tons of freight carried were 5,670,836, and in 1896 they were 24,266,825; in 1875 the earnings were $19,470,539, and in 1896 they were $50,545,569; in 1874 the working expenses were $15,775,532, and in 1896 they were $35,042,655; in 1875 the passengers per head of population were 1.34, and in 1896 they were 2.88; in 1875 the tons of freight per head of population were 1.46, and in 1896 they were 4.73.

Canada has a canal system aggregating over 90 miles. In 1884 the tonnage through these canals was 3,393,928, and in 1895 it was 3,869,738. Canada's total expenditure on canals up to 1896 aggregated $80,925,522.

THE MARINE INDUSTRY.

While her trade and commerce has been expanding Canada has not forgotten to guard the interests of her marine. In 1868 there were 198 light stations and 227 lighthouses in the country, but in 1896 the numbers were 629 and 770, respectively. The expenditure in the meantime increased from $371,071 to $854,690.

The tonnage of sea-going vessels which entered and cleared at Canadian ports was 4,319,321 in 1868 and 11,458,824 in 1896. Of this latter sum, 2,141,272 tons were contributed by Canadian vessels against 1,634,333 in 1876. In 1876 the number of Canadian vessels to thus clear was 8,554, and in 1896 13,462.

While the number of Canadian vessels which arrived at and departed from Canadian ports on inland waters was less in 1896 than in 1868, yet the tonnage register was larger. In 1868 the number was 26,682 and in 1896 16,355, while the tonnage was 4,826,780 and 5,967,917 respectively for the years named.

The tonnage of vessels, British and foreign, engaged in the coasting trade was 10,300,936 in 1876, and 27,431,753 in 1896.

One of the evidences of the development of Canada since Confederation is the post office statistics. In 1868 there were 3,638

BUTTER—Our market continues very firm and all grades sold up close. Shippers will do better to send forward while fresh, for when cheese factories close the make will increase.

EGGS—We look for continuous firm market for new laid and fresh gathered.

POULTRY—Some little is coming forward and finding ready sale. We would again impress shippers with the necessity of having their patrons dry pick (not scald) and never draw for this or any other market. Carefully pack in medium size boxes, also on each box mark contents, number of birds and weights. Following these instructions will avoid mistakes, and you can depend on getting market prices.

DRIED APPLES—We are developing this trade more extensively than in the past and would request holders to communicate with us when they have some for sale.

We invite correspondence and solicit consignments of anything pertaining to the produce line. . . . . .

post offices and in 1896 there were 9,103. Registered letters sent in 1868, 704,750; in 1896, 3,505,500. Total letters posted in 1868, 18,100,000; in 1896, 116,028,000. The number of post cards sent in 1876, the first year in which a separate record of them was kept, was 4,646,000; in 1896, 24,794,800. The number of letters per head of population was 5.37 in 1868, and 22.64 in 1896. The number of newspapers, periodicals, books, etc., per head of population sent through the mails in 1868 was 5.60, and in 1896 it was 19.57.

The ordinary revenue and expenditure of the country in 1868 was $13,687,928 and $13,486,092 respectively; in 1896 the figures were $36,618,591 and $36,949,142 respectively.

In 1869 the amount received as premiums by the fire insurance companies doing business in Canada was $1,785,539, and in 1896 it was $7,079,794. The amount of fire insurance at risk in 1869 was $188,359,809, and in 1896 it was $842,746,853.

The amount of life insurance effected in 1869 by Canadian, British and United States companies was $12,854,132, and in 1896 it was $42,951,991. The amount effected by the purely Canadian companies was $1,156,855 in 1869, and $26,176,830 in 1896. Thus while the life insurance business of Canada, foreign and home companies included, increased two and a half times, that of the Canadian companies increased about twenty-five times.

It will perhaps not be uninteresting to note that in 1868 there were 570 applications for patents in the Dominion, and in 1896 the number was 3,728. In 1868 there were 34 copyrights registered, and in 1896 the number was 653.

This article has been hurriedly prepared, but one can scarcely help, on a perusal of it, to recognize that the progress of Canada since Confederation has on the whole been remarkable.

THE PRINCIPLES OF BUSINESS.

NO calling requires a greater use of brain power than business, and few require a higher order of general ability, says an economist writer. The great secret of success in business—the secret in fact, of success on a large scale—is to conceive of it as a matter of principles, not merely as a series of transactions. There are great merchants as there are great statesmen, and there are small merchants as there are small politicians, and the difference between the great and the small men is very much the same in both. The small politician works by the day, and sees only one opportunity before him; the small merchant does the same thing—he is looking for the next dollar. The statesman, on the other hand, is master of the situation, because he understands the general principles which control events; this knowledge enables him to deal with large questions and to shape the future. The great merchant does the same thing. His business is not a mere money-getting affair, not a mere matter of barter, but a science and an art; he studies the general laws of trade, watches the general condition of the country, investigates present needs, foresees future wants and adapts his business to the broad conditions of his time and place. He puts as much brains into his work as does the statesman, and he ends by being not a money-getter, but a large minded and capable man. An eminently successful man of the statesman-like quality said the other day that the more he understood life the more clearly he saw that it was all done on business principles, by which he meant, not only that the universe is governed by unvarying laws, but that the promptness, exactness, thoroughness, and honesty are wrought in every fibre. On these business principles all life is conducted—if not by men, at least by that power which is behind man. It ought to be the ambition of every young man to treat his business from the point of view of the statesman, and not from that of the politician.

Refusing Orders

Cottams Seed is never sold direct to bird keepers. We refuse hundreds of dollars' worth of orders every year to make the trade go through the grocer. The loss of immediate profit, we calculate, will eventually be made up by the increased loyalty of grocers to Cottams Seed. Six patents protect its health—and song—giving properties.

Cottams Seed is sold by all wholesalers.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

Making use of Space. It is surprising how great a quantity and variety of stock can be carried in a comparatively small store. Some dealers give as a reason for not carrying a great variety of stock that their store is not large enough, and that they cannot afford larger premises. J. F. Morrish, Yonge street, has not a large store, but one standing in the store for any length of time is soon impressed with the fact that he carries as great a variety as some of the much larger stores. Both sides and the back of the shop are laden with his wares, while one counter is entirely covered with goods. There is lots of room for customers, but every available corner of space not necessary for convenience in attending to customers is filled, and filled in such a way as to be quickly reached and also to be easily seen by customers.

Dried Apricots, Peaches, etc. The California dried fruit dealers are now putting up their dried apricots, peaches, etc., in 1-lb. boxes. There is considerable shrinkage in these goods, and when sold in bulk dealers have a certain shrinkage loss, which when the fruit is sold in boxes is not felt. The boxes, too, are of neat design, and, from all appearances, one would judge a greater demand will be felt for these fruits as now put up than was experienced for them in bulk.

Shelf Display. While a customer is waiting for articles ordered to be weighed and tied up, he or she naturally looks around the store to see what is to be seen. Many orders come in this way, as many people are impulsive and likely to buy something they see, even though they had no intention of purchasing it when they came into the store. To meet such people it would always be well to have a good, well-arranged shelf display, with suitable cards drawing attention to the most likely goods. In one store on Queen street east I was looking for an article, and not seeing it, asked why it was not kept in stock, and found that it was on the shelves all right, but out of sight. There are many articles in which quite a trade might be worked up if they were well displayed and pushed—articles which the public are not acquainted with.

Even Weight. Many years ago when I was an errand boy in a country store I got a good scolding from my employer for not giving "just enough over the weight to make the people think they were getting a little for nothing." It was my first lesson in the art of what P. T. Barnum was the greatest exponent: "making those you deal with think they are beating you," and I must confess the average grocer has learned the art. How accurately they weigh a purchase, always making the article sold weigh down the weight well, yet always taking it off the scales while it is sent up again by the reaction from the fall of the last article dropped into the bag. And the average customer goes away thinking she deals with a "nice, generous grocer."

THE RAMBLER.

Campbell & Brodie call the attention of the general store trade to their immense stock of boots, shoes, rubbers, etc. They manufacture and import all the latest novelties in footwear as well as the standard lines in all grades, both coarse and fine, in dongola, buff, split, calf, etc. in nailed, sewed and "Goodyear" work. Moccasins and driving shoes in all grades are a special feature with them, and their stock of these goods is complete. They handle the celebrated "Maple Leaf" and "Columbia" brands of rubbers.

JOTTINGS OF A HOLIDAY.

By W. L. E.

"A HOLIDAY IN BED" is the title of a sketch by J. M. Barrie, which I read a few years ago. In it the author discourses upon the enjoyments accompanying such holidays, the condition on which said enjoyments are obtained being that you are always to pretend to think you are going to get up in a few minutes. Well, I have had a sample of both this summer: Within a few months I had three holidays in bed because I had to and I had a couple of holidays abroad for the same reason. I do not want any more holidays abed; but I am prepared to take all I can get abroad.

I am a westerner (not from the "wild and woolly west" be it known, but from Western Ontario), and one of my holiday trips was down the St. Lawrence route. I am not going to write a description of that route. That would be superfluous, for other pens than mine have, in poetry and in prose, eloquently described its beauties, its peculiarities and its fascinations. All I feel inspired to do is to chronicle a few impressions, observations and incidents appertaining to the trip. I do not know what spirit inspired me. Perhaps it was the spirit born of the fact that it was my initial trip down the St. Lawrence. Others, I know, have felt it before, and men who have any soul whatever in their composition will so continue to feel as long as the world lasts.

Given fine weather, and I had that to perfection, a trip from Toronto to Quebec on one of the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company's steamers is one which every Canadian ought to take, at least, once in his lifetime, and as many times more as possible. It's a revelation, it's a tonic, it's a panorama of everchanging beauty and incident. And it is a great deal else; but you must go and see. August had just bid good-bye to us for a twelve-month when my journey began, and the fields along the lake shore were taking a rest after having yielded up their golden harvest. Overhead hung a cloudless sky which grew opal and then crimson as evening came on. The little bays and indentations along the lake shore seemed like havens of rest, while the glamor which hung over the hills in the distance was as a veil encircling our paradise and shutting out a coarser and more matter-of-fact world beyond.

By the time we were winding our way through the Thousand Islands the sun had begun its daily labor of imparting light and heat. The waves were dancing in glee thereat, although, between you and me, a stiff breeze made them clap their hands a little louder than they otherwise would have done. But the islands sat calmly and coldly on their dark rocky foundations and only permitted the scrubby trees they bore to gracefully bend their heads to us as we sped past them.

Thought Manitoba Couldn't Grow Wheat.

We had not many passengers on board, if comparison is made with the number who traveled earlier in the season. But still there were a good many more than the two or three necessary to a pleasant time on shipboard. At least seven out of every ten, I should say, were citizens of the United States. And pleasant company they were. The American who travels usually is, for he learns that the United States is not the only country that is "God's country." And when this knowledge comes in, spread-eagleism and other forms of offensiveness are crowded out. But there was one American on board who, although he was sixty, genial, and evidently an ordinarily intelligent man, did not know much about Canada. At any rate I gathered so from one remark of his. He was talking with a Winnipegger and the conversation had turned upon Manitoba.

"I suppose it is too cold in Manitoba to raise wheat," said he.

"What!" ejaculated the man from Winnipeg. "Too cold to raise wheat in Manitoba! Why, man dear, we raise the finest hard wheat in the world."

"Well," rejoined the American, "I always understood they couldn't."

"Well, you are wrong," continued the man from the Prairie City. Isn't he?" he added, as he turned to me.

"Yes, of course he is," I replied.

"Of course you are," persisted the westerner. "And, let me tell you, excellent wheat can be grown right within the Arctic circle."

A Purple Woman.

The man who thought wheat could not be grown in Manitoba was from Ohio, and when he saw the evidence was against him he stuck his hands deep into his pockets, pressed his lips firmly together and moved to where his wife was sitting. And a queer looking woman that wife was. You have probably noticed a plum which has fallen to the ground before it was mature. It is usually shriveled, and the part which has been towards the sun carries a light purple color. I can liken the face of the Ohio woman to nothing else. And if her husband did not know anything about Manitoba wheat I vow she knew nothing about the art of tasty dressing, for over her purple face she wore a flaring hat in which purple ribbons and purple flowers predominated. Her front teeth were prominent, and two of them were literally covered with gold, reminding me of veins of free gold in an upcropping of quartz, while, to complete her get-up, several of her fingers were loaded with rings of gold, diamonds, pearls, and I wot not.

Never saw Apples Growing Before.

The man from Winnipeg, to whom I have just referred, was accompanied by his wife, a woman with one of those kindly smiles, a remembrance of which a man carries with him through life, and a daughter of seventeen who was stepping for the first time out of her customary environment. My heart warmed toward them before our journey had long begun, and many were the interesting chats we had. During one of those chats with the head of the family I learned one thing that seemed almost incredible in this great apple-growing country of ours. It was to the effect that his seventeen-year-old daughter had never seen an apple on a tree until a few days before I met them. We had been talking about apples and the difficulty of cultivating them in Manitoba, when the father remarked:

"Why, there is my daughter, she never saw an apple on a tree until a few days ago, when we were coming down the Detroit River. Our boat was near the shore and I espied an orchard. Calling my daughter, I handed her the glasses and told her if she wanted to see apples on a tree there was her chance. But," he added, "we shall probably have apples in Manitoba yet. They are now trying a new scheme of protection. Heretofore the protection against the winter's storms has been placed on the north side of the trees. Now, they are going to try the south side. You know, sometimes in April we have warm days which are followed by a cold spell. It is this irregular weather which injures the apple trees, and it is thought that by putting the protection on the south side the evil results of the intermittent heat and cold will be minimized. The difficulty in Manitoba is to bring trees to maturity."

Newly Married Couples.

On board were five newly married couples, all Americans. And, like most married couples, they attracted a good deal of attention. I, like all others, was interested in them. And I was actuated by no idle curiosity either. Whenever I see a newly married couple, whether they are strangers to me or not, I always have a sympathetic feeling towards them. Whether the flowers bestrewing our pathway shall be roses or thistles depends largely upon our own sowing. Where in matrimony there is not a wise selection, the possibility of happiness is not bright. And an unhappy married life is hell. But no matter how much care may be exercised in the selection, there is, after all, a little bit of the lottery in matrimony. But I did not refer to the newly married couples with a view to moralizing ; it was with the intention of relating the experience of one of these couples in regard to their baggage. They had travelled all day from Detroit and their baggage had been sent on in bond to Kingston ahead of them, where they were to catch the boat at four o'clock in the morning. When, however, they arrived at the Limestone City, their baggage was there, to be sure, but there was no Customs officer on duty. They pleaded with the man in charge of the baggage to let them have their trunks, but he was obdurate. In the midst of the dilemma another man strolled into the office, and on hearing their story, exclaimed: "Oh, I'll pass it for you." "You have no right to do so," said the man who had already refused to pass the baggage ; "you are not a Customs officer." "Well, I don't care whether I am or not, I'm going to pass their baggage." And pass it he did. "I don't know what we should have done if he hadn't," declared the young bride as she related the incident to me.

Got a Little Astray.

As we glided down the St. Lawrence we were, of course, ever on the alert, guide book in hand, for places of interest, historical or otherwise. One place every Canadian on board wanted to catch a glimpse of was the famous windmill at Windmill Point, which Von Schultz and his fellow rebels held for a time in 1837 against the Canadian militia. Not having studied our guide books as closely as we should have done, and not having remembered history as well as we ought to have done, we got off the track a little and imagined that an old, partly roofless windmill on the bank of the river some distance above Prescott was the improvised fortress of 1837. Fortunately for myself, I espied the real and memorable windmill, now a lighthouse, situated about a mile below Prescott. I hastened to acquaint my Winnipeg friend of the fact, but Windmill Point was out of sight before I found him.

"O, why did you tell me!" he exclaimed with a touch of irritation. "I was satisfied."

But I do not think that ignorance in regard to matters historical is a bliss.

Pat Purcell's Grave.

At Cornwall we took on a citizen whose delight was to point out to a group of us who got around him places of interest as well as places of no interest. The church at St. Regis, in which hangs the bell of tragic history, was brought to our attention, as was the little graveyard at a sharp point in the river four miles below Cornwall, from which the body of Pat Purcell, late M.P. for Glengarry, was stolen one night for pelf, which the thieves never got. Our eyes were also directed to the marshy spot, on the opposite side of the river, where his body was found anchored a year afterwards. Neither did he forget to point out to us the plain mausoleum of heavy masonry, a stone's throw from the river, in which the remains of the late Mr. Purcell now rest embedded in cement, awaiting the Resurrection morn or the vagaries of the near-by river, which has already been their place of interment for a year.

From the Graveyard to Cheese.

From talking of Pat Purcell's body we took to discussing cheese, or rather a Pittsburger in our group did. And United States cheese was his Alpha and his Omega. We Canadians in the group exchanged glances, winks and smiles, but said nothing. We thought where ignorance was bliss it is folly to be wise. Shortly after the dinner bell rang, and as we sat at table the aforesaid Pittsburger began to munch cheese.

"Is this Canadian cheese?" he asked, as he approvingly smacked his lips.

"It is," came in a chorus.

"Why, it tastes just like American cheese," he acknowledged with surprise.

Impressions of Montreal.

Montreal—old as history is on this continent and modern in commerce—pleased me very much. It was in my young boyhood days I saw it last, and except for remembrance of Victoria bridge, was as if I had never seen it. It is so many years since I saw Liverpool that I scarce can remember anything about it except its broad river and handsome dray horses, and yet Montreal made me think of Liverpool. I cannot explain why it did. All I know is that it did. Perhaps it was its "shippy" appearance, its substantial warehouses, its numerous drays loaded with merchandise and its commercial importance and activity. Montreal is essentially a commercial city, and its cognomen "The Commercial Metropolis" is no misnomer. It is business here and business there and business everywhere. People, Canadians as well as foreigners, can have no adequate conception of Canada without visiting Montreal any more than they can describe a circle by continuing in a straight line. I do not propose to describe Montreal. Space will not allow it and necessity does not demand it. Like Max O'Rell, it is only my impressions I purpose to record. From what I had both heard and read in the west I had anticipated that three-fifths of the conversation I would hear would be in French. But my anticipations were wrong. In the hotels, along the streets, in the street cars, along the docks the predominating language I heard was the English. And when I thought of the man who fears for the survival of the English language I sighed ; sighed for his foolishness. Poor fellow, he ought to come and see in order that his blindness might be healed.

"Why," said a friend of mine who has been a resident in Montreal a year or two, and to whom I recited my impressions, "I know a number of business men who spoke altogether in French when I came here who have mastered the English language and use it a great deal."

I noticed, too, except in one instance, that when I was addressed in French and I intimated that I was not conversant enough with the language to speak it, that English was tendered me instead. And when I asked a question in English, in English came the reply, except, too, in one solitary instance.

A Crowd, but No Company.

Only once did I get in a crowd where everyone appeared to be speaking French, and that was on the boat for Quebec. I never felt so lost and forsaken before in a crowd ; not that I object to French. It is a delightful language, and my desire to master it is, after visiting the province of Quebec, greater than ever. But on this particular occasion I must say I was lost, although I was not at all disconsolate. And while I looked about on the sea of faces, for there was a large number of people on board, I thought of this passage from one of Bacon's essays: "For a crowd is not company, and faces are but a gallery of pictures, and talk but a tinkling cymbal * * * " But the night was a beautiful one. The moon shone brightly, and as she was scarcely to the full she seemed to be leaning her head sideways toward us, as if in the act of saying: "I see you people are having a good time down there." The face of the moon is in all lands and in all places a familiar one, and as I looked into it I began to feel a little more at home.

The View From Quebec.

If you want to get a delightful landscape view, and one the like of which you cannot get elsewhere, go to Quebec and get up into the Citadel, nearly four hundred feet above the river, and stand on the battlements. Watch the big Atlantic steamers wend their way down the river, take a sharp turn, and disappear. That's pretty. So is a view across to Point Levis. But these are all as nothing compared with the view eastward across the level, low country, thickly dotted with the picturesque, white-walled homes of the habitants glistening in the sun, to the Laurentides mountains, clothed in misty purple, which form the background. That is a picture which it is worth traveling from one end of the continent to the other to see. That is a picture that no artist could ever reproduce. It is transcendantly beautiful. Montreal, from "Lookout Point" in the mountain, is grand, imposing, but the smoke from factory, steamer and locomotive mar the picture. The Niagara River, from Queenston Heights, is glorious, thrilling, but the picture is narrow. It has neither the color nor the variety of striking features which are caught by a peep from the battlements of historic Quebec.

Bicycles in Quebec.

My companions during my sojourn in Quebec were two gentlemen from New York State. One was a physician, tall and thin, the other was a journalist, medium in height and rotund in figure. We assimilated in the stream of passengers getting off the boat. Two jollier fellows, two nicer companions I never met. Into the bus we clambered, and up the steep, winding hill we were towed by a team of knock-kneed horses, for be it known that all the horses in Quebec are knock-kneed, due to climbing the "Ancient City's" forty-five degree hills. Steep as are Quebec's streets it has not prevented the omnipresent bicycle from locating there. One of the first things we noticed, as our horse labored up Mountain Hill, was a bicyclist walking and vigorously pushing his wheel before him, much to the amusement of our party. And when the bicyclist, tired of pushing, lifted his wheel on his shoulder and took to a long flight of iron steps, put there to relieve the declivity of a side street, the amusement developed into a loud laugh.

Circumnavigating the Walls.

Quebec City we "did" afoot. At the Kent gate we mounted the walls which encircle the old city and wended our way around them to the Citadel. And, in passing, allow me here to remark that whenever you visit Quebec do what we did—tramp around the walls. It is bracing. It is delightful, and there is no other way you can get as good a conception of them. My American friends were lost in wonder, love and praise at the magnitude of the walls, and the labor entailed and the money involved in their construction. Within the Citidel walls a guard was placed at our disposal, and we were trotted around to the various points of interest within the enclosure to the music of a solitary bugler who was stationed in one of the embrasures in the walls, evidently for the discipline of himself or for the torture of somebody else, for the music had no charms for the savage or any other breast.

A Bunker Hill Cannon.

Stationed in the parade ground within the Citadel is an old bronze cannon about three or four feet long. It was captured from the Americans at Bunker Hill during the memorable engagement there in 1775, and on its breach is the coat of arms of the state of Massachusetts together with an inscription reciting its capture by the British. Of course it is in the Citadel for ornament and not for use, and was put on exhibition, the guard told us, at the request of the Montgomery Guards when some time ago on a visit to the "Ancient Capital." Previous to that it had laid in the storehouse and was in evidence only to a few.

"By gosh!" remarked my journalistic companion as he stroked the gun. "I do declare. Say, guard, how much will you take for it? I'd just like to have that out in front of my office door. I'll give you five hundred for it."

"She eez not for sale," replied the guard, who by the way was a French-Canadian. "But we were bid $1,000 for her ze o-thair day."

And then the guard told us an anecdote. A short time before a party of Americans were visiting the Citadel. They had with them a little boy not yet in his teens. While they were standing around the Bunker Hill cannon, one of the soldiers jocularly remarked to the little fellow:

"There; see what we British took from you Yankees at Bunker Hill."

"Ugh," grunted the youngster disdainfully, "you come down to Boston and we'll show you a whole country we took from the British."

The Canadian Thermopylae.

While up the Ottawa River I had the pleasure of spending a couple of hours at Carillon, celebrated in history as being in the vicinity of the Canadian Thermopylæ, where Dollard des Ormeaux and his 16 fellow heroes in 1660 withstood 800 Iroquois for several days and then perished in their effort to save the French settlement at Montreal. During my wanderings about the sleepy little village I ran across the parish priest, a dark-featured, pleasant-faced man of about 40. The Canadian Thermopylæ was the subject uppermost in my mind, and I forthwith began questioning him as to its location.

"The guide books," he said, "tell us it is about three miles farther up the river, but they are wrong. I have for some years made the matter the subject of special study, and although I have not yet been able to exactly locate the site, I am pretty sure it is somewhere around where this village stands to-day. I think it was either about where the steamboat lands or just about the spot we are now. (We were then about a mile north of the steamboat landing.) I have been over to London in regard to the matter and have searched the records of the War Office, but failed to find the plan which would give the location. There is, however, such a plan, and the authorities at the War Office have promised that if they ever come across it they will forward it to me." And before the worthy cure and I parted we had resolved ourselves, to the music of the water which rushed over the celebrated Carillon dam, into a Dollard des Ormeaux Admiration Society. It is to be hoped the exact site will some day be located and that a monument suitably commemorating the bravery of the heroes who died there will be erected thereon.

SPECULATING IN CHEESE.

THE course of values in the cheese market during the past eight weeks or so constitutes an interesting object lesson to Canadian cheese producers. They have been advised time and again that in the aggregate it pays better to take the market price when their goods are ready than to speculate by holding for a possible rise. It is quite true that the latter course in special cases means a handsome profit. This fall it has not, and those factorymen who have indulged the gambling spirit, which is the bane of many commercial transactions nowadays, have lost pretty heavily for it.

It is easy to understand the basis of their reasoning. The exporters and operators in Montreal all speculate, and evidently, if their appearance and apparel count for anything, prosper by doing so. No doubt the latter do pay bigger tailor bills, and quaff more expensive liquors, than the man who produces the cheese in the country. It is pretty safe venturing, however, that the latter gets a better return on his investment than the former.

The operator in Montreal and elsewhere not only has a great deal larger capital invested, but he has to be content with a margin that would not give the producer his bread and butter. He is enabled to do so owing to his large turnover, and if he does realize big returns from some deals, they are quite as often offset by as heavy losses, as, for instance, the spring of 1895, when over 500,000 boxes of Canadian cheese sold in London at a dead loss of $3 per box. It has been the invariable rule also that the man who persistently speculates sooner or later goes to the wall. It is not necessary to mention names, but the history of the trade for the past fifteen years furnishes several instances of disastrous results, for which speculation carried to an extreme was alone responsible.

Of course in a literal sense all business is a speculation, and the cheese operator has to speculate by laying in supplies in anticipation of future calls from his customers on the other side. But this is no argument that the factorymen should do likewise. What is one man's meat is another man's poison.

The cheese exporter, owing to the very nature of his calling, and the competition of his rivals, has to provide ahead to a certain extent.

In other words, he has to carry a stock the same as any other trader. But he spends a lot of money to keep himself posted regarding the market. His yearly cable bill alone, would constitute a handsome competence. He is, therefore, ready for every move, and is better able in a sense to protect himself. That is part of his business training.

The producer's training and abilities are in another direction, and unless he is prepared to accept all the chances, and pay as liberally for information affecting his position, he should curb his gambling spirit.

The tables appended show how he has lost money by not doing so this fall. By them it will be noted that during June and July there was no wide fluctuation in prices. This was due to the absence of speculation. The factorymen were selling their cheese as it was ready for market. In August the speculative operators ran prices up to 10c., and bought quite a lot of that month's make around that figure. The pit was dug then into which factorymen fell. Demand slackened after these high-priced purchases, and prices steadily receded. The factorymen stubbornly refused to accept the situation. They held on firmly during September, and only commenced to let go this month. The result is a loss of ½ to ¾c. per pound on practically all their September and October make, and a portion of the August as well.

It will be noted by the tables that factorymen in the east, that is in Quebec, did not lose nearly as much as their western confreres. They sold steadily right along at the decline, and the difference between the highest and lowest, on eastern cheese during September and October, is much less than on western. By selling as their goods were ready for market they saved from ¼c. to ½c. per pound. The tables show the highest and lowest for several years for the sake of comparison :—

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

A MEETING of the Executive of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held in St. George's Hall, Elm street, on Monday night, and was followed by a special meeting of the association to consider the Pure Food exhibit to be held in the Mutual street rink.

The chair was taken by Mr. R. Mills, in the absence of the president, Mr. J. S. Bond.

A report was heard from the Purchasing Committee, and after some discussion it was decided to purchase more goods.

Mr. Robinson, of Robinson's Musee, appeared before the association in regard to the Pure Food Exposition which is to be held in the Mutual street rink. Mr. Robinson had just returned from Detroit, where an exposition of this nature was being held, and which he had attended to study the management of such an affair. He urged the association to co-operate with the management of the exposition, as it would be of material benefit to the grocers and the public generally. The expenses of the show would be heavy, but all surplus would be distributed between six different charities, to be named by the Toronto dailies, all of which are in full sympathy with the proposal. The Lieutenant-Governor had promised to open the exhibition, and the Mayor will take the chair on the opening day.

Mr. Taylor, of The Mail and Empire, appeared on behalf of his paper, expressing its entire sympathy with the project.

Mr. A. G. Booth moved, and Mr. Frank Johnston seconded, the following resolution addressed to the management of the exposition : "Resolved, That this association, having heard the scheme of a proposed exposition of pure foods, and the various ways of cooking same, as brought before the association by Mr. Robinson, are in sympathy with the project, and believe that such an exposition would be productive of much good, not only to the grocers, but to the citizens generally. Furthermore, we hereby pledge the co-operation of the association in endeavoring to make your exposition a success."

The tickets of admission will be 25c., but grocers belonging to the association will be given tickets at 10c., which they may give to customers, either gratis, or with goods. These tickets may be had by members on application to Mr. Hawes, secretary of the association.

As answers had not been received from the Hamilton and Montreal associations in regard to the garnisheeing for debt of Federal employes, the matter was left over till the general meeting of the association.

LOBSTERS AND THE LOBSTER INDUSTRY.

AS an article of food lobsters in Canada promise soon to become a luxury which only people in comfortable circumstances can afford to have upon their table. But the possibility of the lobster being denied to the family of moderate means is not nearly as serious as is the threatened extermination of the lobster industry to Canada.

In spite of the fact that the lobster industry is not as prosperous as it once was, yet it ranks fourth in order of importance when compared with the other individual fisheries. The most important of all our fisheries is the cod fishery. It is valued at about four million dollars per annum. Then comes the salmon fishery, and after that the herring, while the lobster industry stands next, with a total value of $2,210,096, according to the figures for 1895. Of this latter amount $1,666,388 worth was in cans and $543,708 worth were live fish.

Canada has reason to be proud of her lobster industry. Her lobster grounds on the Atlantic are considered the most remarkable in the world. Prof. Edward E. Prince, commissioner and general inspector of fisheries for Canada, in a recent essay on the "Natural History of the Lobster," says in regard to the lobster grounds on the Atlantic: "Their extent and the abundant supplies of lobsters which, during the last twenty-five years, they have produced, are not to be paralleled elsewhere." Some years ago the lobsters on these grounds were so numerous that it was no uncommon thing to see, after a storm, miles of the shore strewn between tide-marks with lobsters. On the New Brunswick shore in 1873 after a storm as many as one thousand dead lobsters were counted within a distance of two rods. In those days lobsters were so common that their value was not appreciated. If fishermen and packers in those days of plenty imagined the supply was inexhaustible they may be pardoned, although if they had been conversant with lobster history they would have known that other countries had ages before found it necessary to enact laws to preserve this particular crustacean from extermination. Sweden 200 years ago enacted laws to protect its lobster fisheries, the earliest lobster regulations being adopted in 1686, and the Scandinavian lobster supply has outlasted that of all other European countries.

DEARNESS OF LOBSTERS.

Because of their diminished quantity lobsters in Canada to-day are enormously dearer than they were ten years ago. A live lobster of eleven inches in length could have been obtained from a fisherman for a couple of cents. They are now worth 10 to 20 cents, while a case of canned lobsters which sold in 1887 for $4 to $5 could not be bought now for less than about 100 per cent. in excess of those figures.

Among the causes assigned for the depletion of the lobster are its limited geographical range, its extremely local habits and migration, its perils when shelling, the dangers that threaten the lobster's eggs, and the delicate character of the young fry for many months of their life. Then there are the dangers caused by spreading baited traps over the grounds which the lobster haunts when it comes in from deeper water to hatch its young.

In Prof. Prince's essay, which has been issued by the authority of the Dominion Government, is a great deal that is interesting in regard to the history of lobster life. The lobster is an inshore creature and does not wander far out to sea. Its geographical range along the Atlantic shore is limited, as no lobsters are found north of Chateau Bay in Labrador, or south of Delaware Breakwater. Each particular bay or inshore area within the range above referred to may be said to have its own local supply of lobsters. Such localities, when once cleaned out, are not replenished in the way they should be, did schools of lobsters constantly move over extensive areas. Certain bays could be named which once abounded with lobsters, but reckless and illegal fishing cleaned them out, and lobsters from other localities have not migrated to take their place.

In the Dominion of Canada there remains the last great lobster fishery of the world, and, as we have already intimated, this fishery has reached a critical stage. The signs of exhaustion are unmistakeable. Small miniature lobsters five to nine inches long, which a few years ago we rejected, are now eagerly taken, and where once two or three lobsters were sufficient to fill a one-pound can, now all the way from five to ten are required. Ten years ago the average size of lobsters was 10 inches (2 lbs. weight), while 30 years ago an old fisherman has testified that 13 inches (3½ lbs.) was the average.

A prominent packer in Prince Edward Island publicly stated that in a certain cannery the number of cans packed, as compared with the number of traps fished from that factory, showed this startling decrease: During a period of six seasons at that factory, the average number of one-pound cans to each trap fished was in 1891, 24; in 1892, 16¾; in 1893, 13⅓; in 1894, 12½; in 1895, 7¾; in 1896, 5½.

HOW LOBSTERS TRAVEL.

When moving at leisure the lobster walks nimbly along on the tips of his toes, holding its nipping claws slightly raised in front, waving its long feelers aloft, while the short second pair is held straight to the front like rigid bayonets, and turning its protruding stalked eyes in every direction. The tail is held spread out behind so as not to touch the ground. When alarmed it swims backward by the convulsive and powerful strokes of its tail at the rate of 25 to 30 feet per second. The lobster is most active at night. As to food, the lobster is not very particular; it eats almost anything that comes in its way, from live or dead fish to seaweed, notwithstanding that it has a delicate sense of smell.

The dense armor of hard limy material which encases the lobster permits only of limited growth, so that the shell must be cast off repeatedly, as the lobster increases in size season after season. The shell consists of four layers, and all four are pierced by delicate canals. The shell undergoes peculiar changes when the "shelling" period arrives. Some of the salts, which impart hardness to it, begin to disappear in such places as the middle of the great shield covering the head and thorax, and along each side of the snout and other parts. This change gives the elasticity required to allow of the shell being the more easily thrown off. A thin skin forms underneath the shell, and the lobster then shows very evident signs of the painful process about to begin. A lobster about to moult loses its bright color, acquires a loose lax appearance, and becomes very uneasy and shy. It seeks the shelter of rocky clefts or immerses itself in a soft sandy bottom, lying sidewise. It bends upon itself so that the skin connecting the shield and tail bursts. The muscles of the legs tug vigorously, and the great claws, soft and pliable as India rubber, are withdrawn like the hand from a glove. The creature pushes itself through the gaping slit, the head being pulled out, leaving the tail to be drawn out last of all. The newly shelled lobster has a limp and collapsed appearance, but its colors are extremely fresh and brilliant. Water is so rapidly absorbed through the soft new shell that the lobster enlarges and swells up with surprising rapidity. It is not for seven or eight weeks after moulting that the lobster has again a hard shell. The process of shelling takes place every year, and it is usually during the summer months.

accomplish the hatching of their fry in a few weeks, whereas late spawners, during the months of September, October and November, probably do not hatch their young for six or eight months. The adult lobster has been proved by actual observation to grow about two inches and a half in sixteen and a half months, and the larval lobster has been demonstrated to grow in three and a half months no less than half an inch, and these facts go to show that in four or five years it is quite possible for the mature size to be reached. Lobsters grow for many years, and have been known to attain an enormous size. This year a lobster was captured off the Jersey coast which measured three and a half feet in length, two feet around the body ; feelers, one foot and a half long ; small legs, one foot long ; felt claw, two feet long and ten inches wide ; tail, fourteen inches from end of tail to body.

PRODUCTIVENESS OF THE LOBSTER.

The lobster is, perhaps, the least productive of all the marine animals of economic importance. A herring deposits double the number of eggs produced on an average by the lobster ; a mackerel four times as many ; a cod four hundred times as many, and a Canadian oyster four thousand times as many. A ten-inch lobster carries, as a rule, 18,000 to 20,000 eggs. It is estimated that the lobster fishery of Canada annually destroys between sixty and one hundred millions of lobsters, a considerable portion of these being lobsters about to spawn or recently spawned.

The enemies of the lobster are legion. Almost every predaceous fish in the sea devours it, parasites and disease attack it and mackerel feed on its young.

With proper precautions lobsters may be carried alive and healthy great distances. Early this century some loyal Nova Scotians shipped in a sailing vessel several barrels of lobsters to King George III. They reached London safely and alive. And this has not been the only successful experiment of the kind.

Our exports of lobsters last year, according to the Trade and Navigation Returns, were as follows : Fresh, 42,540 barrels valued at $340,928 ; canned, 14,490,459 lbs. valued at $2,146,309.

Fortunately the Canadian Government is beginning to recognize the dangers which menace the lobster industry of the country, and conferences have been held in the Maritime Provinces to consider the matter. It is to be hoped that vigorous means will be taken for the preservation of the industry before it is too late. The artificial hatcheries are doing a great deal to augment the supply of young lobsters, since the Bay View hatchery at Pictou, N.S., was established in 1891, no less than 500,000,000 fry having been hatched. But something more needs to be done than is now done to conserve the lobster grounds along the shores of the Atlantic.

CIGARS IN THE GROCERY STORE.

The attention of our readers is called to the announcements of Mr. J. Bruce Payne, of Granby, whose name is familiar to the trade as a manufacturer of high-class cigars. Mr. Payne is offering a number of "leaders," which he claims are sure trade-winners, and will establish a reputation for the merchants handling them. Cigars are becoming more and more a necessary feature of an up-to-date grocer's stock, and merchants who handle these goods say they are an exceedingly profitable side line. Men who drop in "just to get a cigar" will often leave an order for other things. Mr. Payne's goods are known from one end of the Dominion to the other, and to him belongs the credit of being the first manufacturer to offer his goods in the frozen regions of Klondike.

of the Teas in the stock of the average American Tea Dealer must be . . .

JAPANESE TEAS

Because 61,000,000 pounds of the 93,000,000 pounds of tea imported into the United States and Canada last year were from Japan and Formosa. This indicates an established preference of the American tea consumer, and an established trade of the American tea dealer. This trade is to be increased by a campaign of judicious publicity. The Japanese Government has appropriated a large sum of money to be expended in America, under the direction of the Japan Tea Traders' Association, in presenting the merits of Japanese Tea, and the best methods for preparing it for drinking.

This plan will, without doubt, increase the demand for Japanese Teas—the kind that most dealers already handle, the kind that has given consumers the best of satisfaction.

The co-operation of dealers is invited.

GREEN VS. DRIED FRUIT.

By W. A. R., Montreal.

THE CONSUMPTION of fresh green fruit in Canada, both domestic and imported, has been steadily increasing of late years, but it was not until the present season that the increase became really remarkable.

There is, of course, no means of getting at the aggregate turnover of domestic green stock and the figures for the fiscal year in regard to imported have not yet been published at Ottawa. Some idea of the extent of the business can, however, be gathered from the daily receipts at leading centres like Montreal. That city this summer became one of the leading markets on the continent for green fruit. Receipts each day for a period extending over a fortnight in August ran all the way from 6,000 to 12,000 baskets per day, and although the volume has been sensibly decreased since the flush, the daily offerings are still of considerable dimensions, amounting to two or three carloads per week.

Most of this fruit consisted of domestic peaches, plums, pears and grapes from Ontario. In fact, a feature of the trade this summer was that our own Canadian fruit practically killed the trade in California stock. Carload after carload of the latter, after being sent all the way to Montreal, sold for less than the actual carrying charges, owing to the exceptionally keen competition from the home article.

Many people consider that there are still further possibilities in connection with this green fruit trade. They believe that with increased cold storage facilities throughout the country, and refrigerator transportation both on the cars and across the ocean, that the necessity of slaughtering the fruit simply for what it will bring will be obviated. If the fruit can be kept, and if an outlet can be found for a fair proportion of it in Great Britain, owing to its being shipped fresh in cold storage chambers, the chances of a congested market will be less than at present.

Another interesting development of this large business in green fruit is that wholesale grocers complain that it has interfered with the demand for dried fruits. It is but natural that it should do so; for if a consumer can get the fresh article he is hardly likely to put up with a dried substitute. It seems doubtful, however, as contended by some traders, that green fruit is destined to entirely replace dried. It is quite true that the seasons for green fruit are considerably longer than they were in our forefathers' days, owing to improved methods of communication, storage facilities and other advances. But while allowing for all this, there is still a considerable blank to fill. At any rate the Trade and Navigation Returns go to show that while the importations of green fruit have been considerable, the business in the dried article has also expanded.

A comparison of the returns of 1890 with those of 1896 affords a fair idea of the situation, for it was during that period that the increase in the volume of trade in green fruit commenced. The following table shows the position of green fruit in the two years :—

	1890.		1896.
	Quantity.	Value.	Quantity.	Value.
Grapes, lbs	1,135,428	$ 79,008	1,118,759	$ 65,294
Oranges and lemons, pkgs	441,340	658,474	543,418	857,350
Peaches, lbs	35,939	2,309	3,810,004	99,629
Plums, bush	238	1,219	84,607	26,227
Strawberries, etc., lbs	225,916	23,692	361,892	32,903
Cherries, etc., lbs	38,156	7,453	75,014	7,661

The notable increases were in peaches, plums, and strawberries, the increase of last year over 1890 in these three lines alone being $131,639. This does not account for the business in the domestic article, but men in the trade assert that its volume was one-third greater. But while all this additional quantity of green fruit was being consumed in 1896 as compared with 1890, it does not seem to have materially checked the demand for dried fruit. On the contrary, if business in green fruit for 1896 was greater than in 1890, the same condition prevailed in dried fruit also. This is clearly demonstrated by the imports in the respective years under consideration :

	1890.		1896.
	Quantity.	Value.	Quantity.	Value.
Currants, lbs	5,015,402	$159,370	6,727,072	$131,036
Dates "	1,155,814	38,239	923,202	25,281
Figs "	1,037,934	55,693	1,425,416	57,904
Prunes "	3,032,043	89,008	2,615,683	97,002
Raisins "	8,598,031	405,640	10,499,929	304,467
Other fruit	453,371	43,600	1,869,192	107,103

While the aggregate value of some of the lines is less for 1896 than 1890, it will be noted that the quantity imported is greater. This is the case in currants, raisins and figs, and the fact that the money involved in the turnover was smaller is due to the position of values in the respective years. In fact the only line that shows any sensible decrease is dates, which decreased from 1,000,000 odd pounds in 1890 to 900,000 odd in 1896.

On the whole, business in dried fruit seems to have been fully up to average, and the increased business in green fruit appears to have meant a larger appetite among consumers rather than an increase in one branch at the cost of the other. It is possible that the rule will not apply this year, owing to the exceptional trade in green, but the fact has yet to be demonstrated.

JAPAN'S GREAT ENTERPRISE IN AMERICA.

Several months ago the Japanese Tea Guild sent to America a special commission, composed of Mr. S. Mitsuhashi, president of Shizuoka Prefectural Assembly, and Mr. J. Ohara, member of Japanese Parliament, to investigate the condition of the Japanese tea trade in the United States and Canada, and to co-operate with Mr. T. Furuya and Mr. T. Mizutany, the American representatives of the Japanese Tea Guild, in giving publicity to the merits of Japanese teas and the method of preparing them for drinking which would insure the best results.

Mr. Furuya and Mr. Mizutany are planning to open tea bazars in many of the principal cities in the United States and Canada, where ladies can enjoy a cup of fine Japanese tea made by experts, and at the same time receive instructions which will enable them to make it equally well at home. It is believed by these gentlemen that, when Americans are in possession of the secret of making good tea, the consumption in this country will fully equal that of Europe, in proportion. The Japanese Government has appropriated a large fund to aid the Japanese tea growers and tea merchants in prosecuting this educational work, and it is hoped that American ladies will be apt students. The main bureau of the Japanese Tea Guild has issued an official recipe for making Japanese tea, the translation of which is as follows :

First—Use a small, dry and thoroughly clean porcelain teapot.

Second—Put in one teaspoonful of tea leaves for each cup of tea desired.

Third—When using Japanese teas pour on the required quantity of fresh boiled water, and let stand with closed lid from two to three minutes. Never boil the leaves. In order to retain the natural flavor, Japanese tea leaves should be kept in tight can or jar, free from moisture.

To thoroughly enjoy the natural, delicate and sweet flavor of Japanese teas neither sugar nor cream should be used.

A BIT OF HISTORY.

THE SIMPLE FACTS concerning the growth of a great business are of public interest. When any industry has reached such proportions as to become a real factor in the current history of the commercial world, the story of its development is worth reading. Such a story is told on this page.

The business of J. L. Prescott & Company, who now manufacture more stove polish than any other firm in the world, had its beginning in a humble way only a quarter of a century ago. In the Spring of 1870, in a small village in Maine, Mr. J. L. Prescott began the manufacture of stove polish. A one-story shed, about sixteen by eighteen feet in size, constituted the whole plant, and the output of about five gross per day was carried to the railroad station in a wheelbarrow. Year by year, solely through the merit of the goods made and [the personal effort of the manufacturer, the sales increased until in 1888 they reached about 18,000 gross, when Mr. A. L. Prescott and Mr. C. O. Littlefield, under the firm name of J. L. Prescott & Company, succeeded to the business. They soon prepared and put upon the market the first paste stove polish which ever proved to be a success, christening the new product, ENAMELINE, "The Modern Stove Polish." Confident that they now had what the world wanted, they began to make it known by extensive advertising. Their expenditure for the first year was equal to twice the amount of their capital at the beginning of the year. They believed in ENAMELINE, and were not disappointed, as the demand for their goods, resting primarily upon their real merit, which was made known by liberal advertising, soon made it necessary to run their plant night and day, and called loudly for larger facilities. The development of their business was the first purpose of the firm, and year by year the appropriations for advertising were larger and larger, until now the figures reach hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. Increased factory facilities were yearly provided, to handle the rapidly increasing volume of business.

It soon became evident that ENAMELINE was to be the world's stove polish, the demand even then reaching beyond the American market, and that a new location must be selected near one of the great centres of commerce, where adequate facilities for manufacture and shipping could be provided. The very logic of the situation, led to the selection of New York City for the new head-quarters, and in the Spring of 1896, an extensive factory, constructed after modern plans, was put in operation at Passaic, New Jersey. The five gross per day of 1870 had then grown to between three and four carloads daily, and the product was being distributed to every English speaking country on the globe, also to Germany and Scandinavia, from warehouses conveniently located as noted on the other side of this sheet.

The year 1896 has witnessed the largest growth of any in the history of ENAMELINE. Two additions to the main factory, and three separate buildings are now being erected at Passaic. The combined length of these new buildings is nearly four hundred feet, and when completed, will practically double the present capacity of the works. The sales for the year exceeded one-half the stove polish consumed in the entire world during the year and were nearly three times the amount made by any other single manufacturer.

The reader can better appreciate the phenomenal growth and magnitude of this business from the following facts. Nearly three million feet of pine lumber are now used annually for shipping cases. About five tons of tin plate are used each day in making the tin boxes in which ENAMELINE is packed. This amount of tin plate, when spread out, would cover nine acres. Paper labels are put upon each of these tin boxes. These labels are now bought in one hundred million lots. About fifty gallons of paste are used each day in putting the labels upon the boxes. All Wholesale and 97 per cent. of the Retail grocers, also nearly all House Furnishing, Stove and Hardware dealers of the United States sell ENAMELINE.

This brief sketch, which is a characteristic one of American enterprise, will do more to sustain the confidence of the trade, by its plain statement of facts concerning the history of ENAMELINE, than much vain boasting, which has no more substantial foundation than the fertile brain of the paid writer.

BLACKENE, "The Modern Benzine Paste Stove Polish," is made and guaranteed by the same firm, and is to the Stove Dealer what ENAMELINE is to the Housekeeper.

The trade are often imposed upon by irresponsible parties, who claim that their paste stove polish will not dry out or harden in the box. From such parties there is no redress when the goods spoil. There need be no loss on ENAMELINE, as it is guaranteed to keep perfectly, and should it in any case prove in the least defective, the manufacturers will gladly redeem it in cash.

WALL PAPER FOR GROCERS.

THE accompanying illustrations are half-tone engravings of two combinations of designs in wall paper which are proving to be good sellers with M. Staunton & Co., the well-known manufacturers, Yonge street, Toronto.

This firm are producers of so many designs that dealers desirous of getting a correct idea of the variety they make will require to look through the samples now shown to the trade by their salesmen.

Combination No. 1208.

The orders received so far indicate that M. Staunton & Co. have succeeded in bringing out just such a line as the trade are looking for, good everyday sellers, of popular designs, with prices to meet any competition.

This being Jubilee year, this firm made displays at the exhibitions held in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa, at all of which places their exhibit received very flattering comment from both trade and public. These exhibits served to show Canadians that just as fine goods are produced in Canada as are made in other countries.

Diplomas were awarded them at Montreal and Ottawa, and a silver medal has been received from the Toronto Exhibition. These were the highest awards given.

Their business has of late been increasing to such an extent that they have found it necessary to add to their already large plant another printing machine, and accessories for the same, in order to ensure prompt delivery.

Quite a few grocers and the majority of general merchants find wall paper a desirable and profitable line of goods to handle, and there should be an opening for many more to go into the business. Any dealers who have not yet seen their samples should drop a card to them, when arrangements will be made for showing them samples.

PATTISONS LIMITED.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of Pattisons Limited was held on 5th inst. at Leith—Mr. Robert Pattison, chairman of the directors, presiding. The directors' report showed a profit amounting to £56,898 5s. 2d. Of this, £15,000 was carried to the reserve fund, £4,000 was applied to the reduction of the good-will account, £2,000 was appropriated to the reduction of property account, and, after paying preference shareholders their dividend and the ordinary shareholders 10 per cent. dividend, and providing for the interest due to the vendors, there was a balance of £3,361 4s. 1d. carried forward. The profits from the brewery had very largely exceeded the estimate, and the output was now over 600 barrels per week. Large extensions had been made to enable the directors to cope with the increased demand and the directors had thought it advisible to acquire additional ground adjoining the brewery with a view to yet further development of the brewery branch. The directors, along with Mr. Grant of Glenfarclas, had acquired on favorable terms the well-known Glenfarclas-Glenlivet Distillery, and were in course of extending the distillery at a cost of about £15,000, which would make it one of the largest in the Glenlivet district. The directors further reported a considerable extension in the general business; and in order to provide further accommodation, the directors had bought for £12,000 the property, covering two acres of ground, known as the Bonnington Sugar Refinery. The directors had decided to build another large warehouse of eight storeys about 200 feet square.—Distillers' Magazine, July.

THE CASH REGISTER AND ITS DEVELOPMENT.

MUCH is heard in these days of the development of the telegraph, the telephone, electric lighting and various applications of electricity. None the less interesting is the story of the development of the cash register, which has become, in these days, almost an indispensable part of a merchant's equipment.

Some 12 or 15 years ago, the first cash register, in crude form, was shown to merchants. It originally consisted of a dial, showing two sets of figures for dollars and cents, and registering the amounts by the pointing of the hands of the dial. This was very crude, but was used by many merchants, because it was a decided advance upon the old methods of business.

The next step in invention was a paper strip, ruled in columns corresponding to definite amounts of money, which were indicated on the keys of the register. These keys when pressed, punched holes in the columns. It was necessary, to find the total of the day's business, at the close of the day to take from the register the strip of paper, count the number of holes in each column, multiply by the amounts represented by the columns, respectively, and then add the totals of these different columns.

Following this came the wheel register, in which the keys, when pressed, turned the wheels for each denomination. As they revolved they indicated the number of times each amount was sold. In order to find the total, the amount represented by each wheel must be multiplied by the number of sales indicated on the wheel and then the separate quantities must be added together. The next step in invention was to indicate on each wheel the actual total of the sales of that denomination. At a glance the operator can tell how much has been added on each wheel. These amounts must then be combined in order to obtain the total of the day's business. This machine is the detail-adder, so well known among merchants, and is still made. It served an excellent purpose, and was a very great improvement on all previous methods in retail business.

However, like the earlier telegraph and telephone, the detail-adder was satisfactory only for a time, because there was nothing better. Some merchants still use it, but with nearly all wide-awake dealers, both in the United States and Canada, it has become a back number and has given way to the later invention of the total-adder. This register, upon pressing the keys, adds into one amount all the sales of the different wheels. As a result, the total of cash receipts at any hour of the day may be seen at once. Special transactions, such as money paid out, money changed, money received on account, etc., are also taken care of by this register.

The latest development, however, is the register which combines the total-adder with the detail-printer and check-printer, giving a most excellent opportunity for complete system and for special forms of advertising, as well as showing a full history of the day's business.

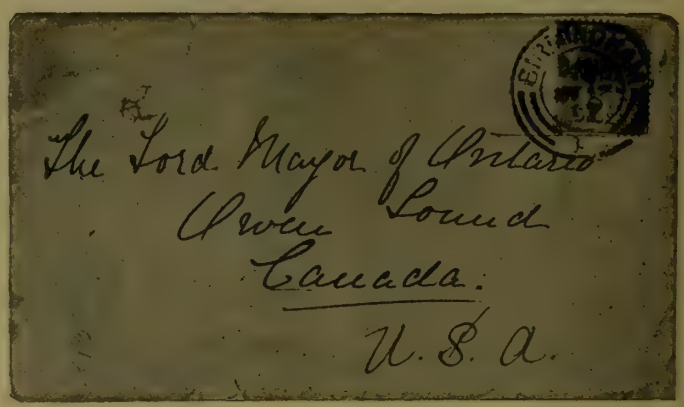
The advantages of registers of this class are that they add into one total all the sales made during the day, print a check showing the amount of the sale, as well as the date, consecutive number, clerk's initial and proprietor's card, tell how many sales have been made each day, keep each clerk's sales or the sales in each department separate, take care, in the same way, of credit sales, money paid out and money received on account, tell at what time in the morning the store was opened, and print on a strip of paper inside the register, under lock, a complete, detailed record of each transaction as its occurs.

These later developments of the cash register are remarkable for their precision and comprehensive character. The merchant who desires to keep pace with the system and business of to-day is no longer satisfied with the detail-adder, but finds necessary, for the most economical conduct of his business, the latest style of total-adder and check-printer. The various improvements made have placed the detail-adder far in the rear, so that the detai register that formerly cost $150 or more, is now supplemented by one that will do the same work satisfactorily at a cost of $50 or $60.

These steps in the development of this important adjunct to good business show the advancement of invention as fully as do the more frequently heard of improvements in the applications of electricity.

AN EXTRAORDINARY BLUNDER.

THE ignorance which abounds in Europe in regard to the geography of Canada and the flag to which the country owns allegiance is astonishing. Even in Great Britain, the parent state, grave mistakes are sometimes made in matters of this kind. The following cut, a reproduction of an envelope handed to THE CANADIAN GROCER by a subscriber, is an ocular demonstration of this :



There is no Lord Mayor of Ontario. In fact there are no Lord Mayors on this continent. We have mayors. Owen Sound, Ontario, has a mayor. His name is T. I. Thompson, and when he is not attending to his municipal duties he sells hardware. Into his hands the letter fell. It bears the postmark of "Birmingham, July 12, 1897," and was from a lady in that well-known city who desired the "Lord Mayor of Ontario, Owen Sound, Canada, U.S.A.," to supply her with certain information regarding certain real estate.

Judging from the chirography, the writer of the envelope had been taught to use the pen but not the book of geography, even of the British Empire.

Alas, alas ! And is that all the preferential tariff, the visit of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Canadian troops to Great Britain has done for Canada ? Talk about a father not knowing his own child, this doubly discounts it.

In the event of this reaching the eye of someone sitting in the same darkness as the Birmingham lady, we beg to remind them that Owen Sound is a town in the province of Ontario, that Ontario is a province in the Dominion of Canada, that Canada occupies the bigger half of the North American continent, covering an area of 3,456,383 square miles, and is the greatest of the British colonies and not a part of the United States.

A RE-ORGANIZED TEA FIRM.

The Monsoon Tea Co. is being re-organized. The new manager, Mr. Robert D. Ross, has ideas in regard to business as well as a knowledge of tea, and he is using these ideas in order to promote the interests of the company of which he is now the practical head. A part of the programme is the centring of the energies of the firm on lead package teas. Hereafter all "Monsoon" tea will be in lead packages of quarter, half and one pound. And in this shape the tea will be vigorously pushed.

It is a mistake to offer your friends inferior tea when you can just as easily give them Blue Ribbon.

In order to the obtaining of more commodious premises, the company will in a few days remove its place of business from No. 13 Front street east to No. 7 Wellington street west. The new premises have a frontage of about 30 feet, are four storeys high and they will be fitted up with all the appurtenances necessary to the carrying on of a modern first-class tea package business.

A DOMINION SCALE ON SUGAR.

THERE was an important conference of wholesale grocers in Montreal Monday and Tuesday of this week. It was virtually a meeting of a Dominion Guild and various matters of detail were discussed.

The subject, however, that took up most of the time was the question of a uniform scale of prices to govern the sale of sugar throughout the Dominion. Practically the whole of the two days were consumed in discussing this difficult subject, and eventually an arrangement was arrived at which it is felt will be acceptable to the entire trade.

The representatives from the various cities in Ontario and Quebec will submit the proposed arrangement to the trade at their respective headquarters, and it is expected that it will be in force in the course of two or three weeks. Until it is an accomplished fact, the exact details are kept private, but THE CANADIAN GROCER is assured that it will not mean any material change in the existing price of sugar.

It is understood that it will provide for the division of the country into districts, the price to govern each district being the ruling figures at prominent points of distribution, as, for instance, Kingston, Toronto, Hamilton and London, in Ontario; and Montreal and Quebec, in the eastern province. The jobbers in the Maritime Provinces are also to be consulted, and the ruling price there is also to govern.

The fundamental principle in the scheme is that houses in one city will not undersell those of another in their own territory. The margin is to be fixed so low also that it will be no temptation to the more unscrupulous to embark in cutting expeditions.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

RUTHERFORD, MARSHALL & CO are daily receiving large shipping orders for tub butter, and advise holders to ship promptly while good prices are being realized.

Turn your money over quickly by handling "Enameline."

Warren Bros. & Co. are showing good values in Sultana raisins.

Perkins, Ince & Co. expect another car of Rio coffee in a week or so.

North Shore cranberries in barrels are in stock with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

Laporte, Martin & Cie are giving this week a list of their dried fruits, etc. See pages 84 and 85.

J. A. McLean is looking for round lots of butter, for which he is willing to pay the top price.

T. Kinnear & Co. report their sales in "Crown Blend" tea to be increasing very much.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol apologise for delay in shipping "Circle" tea, but the past week orders got ahead of packing.

Extra choice apricots and peaches in one-pound cartoons to retail at 15c. are being offered by H. P. Eckardt & Co.

Another importation of "La Vierge" Castile soap, in cakes and bars, has been received by the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

Half-barrels of sockeye salmon are in store with Lucas, Steele & Bristol; also Labrador and choice No. 1 split herrings.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, are showing a very fine sample of extra bright, new evaporated apricots in stock this week.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are offering an Indian tea at 11c., which is showing good value. A sample will be sent on application.

Balfour & Co., wholesale grocers, Hamilton, write: "October was the largest and most satisfactory month's business we ever had."

Warren Bros. & Co. are just in receipt of a large shipment of California apricots in 50-lb. boxes which they are offering at a low price.

T. Kinnear & Co. have in stock a fine line of Eleme figs in 10-lb. boxes; also mat figs. They consider both lines show value.

The F. F. Dalley Co., Limited, of Hamilton, say that the sale of "English Army" blacking has increased 50 per cent. over 1896 output.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, report a full stock on hand of new Sultana raisins, all grades, and California prunes 50-60 to 90-100.

"The increased sale of 'Ludella' Ceylon tea is the best indication that it is being appreciated by tea drinkers," say the packers.

H. J. Heinz & Co. have introduced an excellent mincemeat in tins and crocks, which their agents, H. P. Eckardt & Co., say is taking well.

George Foster & Sons report that they have now in stock Crosse & Blackwell's soups, Spanish olives, lucca oil and preserved ginger.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. are experiencing a good demand for their "Maple Leaf" smoked hams, for which they are quoting special prices.

The Dawson Commission Co., Limited, have a car of Mexican oranges on the way here, and expect to have them on the market in a few days.

The John L. Cassidy Co., Limited, are offering an eight-inch fruit bowl, which has every appearance of being cut glass. It is of a cut pattern and very heavy. As the price they ask is only $1.25 per dozen, any business man will know that they are not cut glass, but they look so much like it that they would be cheap if offered at double the price.

Perkins, Ince & Co. have just received samples of Young Hysons which show exceptional value, to arrive on the steamer Empress of Japan.

Foster & Sons: Now in store "Maple Leaf" and "Imperial" salmon; and expected in a few days "Holly Leaf" salmon; all popular, fast-selling lines.

A shipment of choicest "Golden-Tipped" Ceylon Pekoe—an exceptionally fine flavory tea—is to hand this week for the Davidson & Hay, Limited.

A complete range of California evaporated fruits, consisting of prunes, apricots, peaches and plums, are in store and selling rapidly with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

"When in a hurry for goods write, wire or phone us," write Lucas, Steele & Bristol. "We are the quick shippers, and get off all our orders the same day as received."

Laporte, Martin & Cie's stock of wines this fall is far superior both in quality and quantity to that of previous imports. Bought at very favorable prices, they are offered, we are told, at very low figures.

"Our daily average sales of 'Kurma' during the past two months are away ahead of the best previous two months' sale since we introduced this package tea," report the Davidson & Hay, Limited.

"Our brands of cleaned currants, we are pleased to say, are selling freely and repeatedly all over the province and beyond, and we can hardly keep pace with the demand," say the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

The Griffin & Skelly Co. are putting up seeded raisins, choice evaporated peaches and choice evaporated apricots in one pound cartoons. The packages are attractive, and the goods are meeting with a good sale on the Toronto market.

The F. F. Dalley Co., Limited, are running their mills night and day to catch up to the increased demand they are having for "Toledo" corn starch, "Boston" laundry starch, self-rising flours and their package spices. They are now negotiating to put in more machinery to meet the increased demand for their goods.

THE QUALITY OF SYRUP.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER: I have read with some surprise the remarks of your correspondent "Mixed Pickles" in your issue of this date.

If the country wants syrup to-day of good quality, let it apply to the wholesale grocers of Toronto, who have the goods on hand and will be glad to supply its wants.

Your correspondent need not "suffer long." There is plenty of good syrup on the market for present requirements, and I trust "Mixed Pickles" will soon see a sample of it.

Yours truly,

WALLACE ANDERSON,

Toronto Agent Acadia Sugar Refining Co., Limited.

Toronto, Oct. 22, 1897.

A PATENT PROCESS COFFEE.

"Royal Dutch" coffee, advertised in this number of THE GROCER, is prepared by a patent process, which, it is said, removes by steam (before roasting) any tannic acid and unripe waters of vegetation in it, and produces a food beverage, strong, perfect in flavor and entirely free from those qualities which in many prepared coffees, they claim, produces headache, biliousness, indigestion, etc. "Royal Dutch" coffee is sold only in packages of one and and two pounds, sealed and branded with patentee's name on each package as a guarantee of its pure qualities. Fraser, Viger & Co., Montreal, have sold "Royal Dutch" coffee for the past five years.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Oct. 28, 1897.

GROCERIES.

NOTHING particularly new has developed in the wholesale grocery trade during the week. The volume of business is much about the same as it was at the last review. One of the features of the wholesale trade at the moment is the quantity of goods, bought for future delivery, which are now being shipped. The Avlona's cargo of foreign dried fruits is being taken into the various warehouses and is again being distributed among the retail trade. Canned goods are in much the same position as before, the price of vegetables ruling steady to firm. The improved demand for tea noted last week on retailers' account has been maintained, and advices from the primary markets reveal increased rather than decreased strength in Ceylon and Japan growths. The demand for currants is large and prices are firm with an upward tendency. The demand is also good for Valencia raisins, while Sultana raisins are higher in the primary market. On account of the higher prices ruling in the primary markets, some of the local mills have been compelled to advance their figures on pepper.

CANNED GOODS.

There is no change in the situation. Canned tomatoes are being held at the figures which have been ruling for several weeks. We hear of transactions in tomatoes from first hands at 85c,, but it is said the packer who sold at this figure has refused to accept any more orders except at an advance. Peas and corn are steady. The wholesalers report a fair demand for canned vegetables, but there is not much doing in other lines of canned goods. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 85 to 90c.; corn, 65 to 85c.; peas, 85 to 87½c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.25 to $1.40; beans, 65 to 80c.; peaches, $2.25 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.65 to $1.90, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $1.75 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 80 to 95c.; gallons, $2 to $2.25; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; other red salmon, $1.20 upwards, according to quality and brand; cohoes, 95c. to $1.10; canned mackerel, $1.25 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.85 to $2.95; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.35 to $1.40; 2's, $2.35 to $2.50; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

Coffees remain in much the same condition as a week ago. Jobbers quote green in bags: Rio, 9 to 12½c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 12½ to 18c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 16 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

Wholesalers report a fair demand, but the representatives of the refineries are doing little or no business although they have good supplies to offer. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

Business is moderate only. We quote; New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGAR.

Sugar continues quiet locally, and prices unchanged. Europe suffered a slight decline, but there has been a recovery. The weakness in Great Britain is due to heavy deliveries of continental sugar for which no market can at the moment be found in the United States. The reason the refineries in the United States are not buying raw sugar in Europe is that they have been getting some supplies from Java. The statistical position, however, is bullish, as noticed in our editorial columns. Although the market locally is very much quieter than it was a few weeks ago, yet the demand is fair for this time of the year. Wholesalers' prices are unchanged,

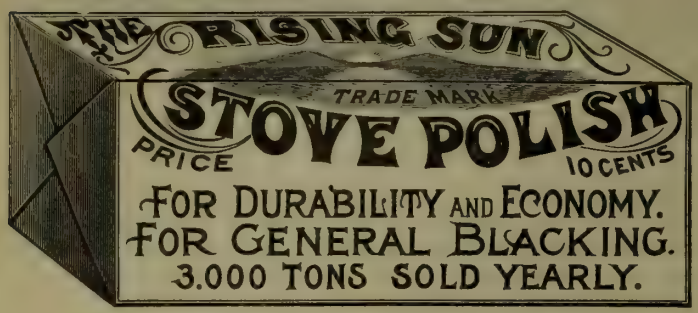
THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH AND THE SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH



MORSE BROS., Proprietors, Canton, Mass.

For sale by all Wholesale Grocers ; also the McClary Mfg. Co., London, Montreal, Winnipeg, Vancouver and Toronto.

being as follows, subject to a discount of 1 per cent. 10 days : Granulated, 4 5-16c. for less than carload lots, and 4¼c. for carload lots ; yellows, 3 9-16 to 3⅞c. per lb.

NUTS.

An improved enquiry is noticeable this week, and an increased business from this out is looked for. We quote : Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 20 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c. ; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green ; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack ; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeaux walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots ; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

The demand for rice, tapioca and similar goods is just moderate. We quote as follows : Standard " B, " broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c. ; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½ to 4½c.

SPICES.

Owing to the continued advance of pepper in the primary market, some of the local mill men have found it necessary to advance their prices 1c. per lb. Prices in the primary market are about 3c. per lb. above the lowest point. Local dealers report a good demand for pepper and ginger. Business in pickling spice is falling off. We quote as follows : Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 12c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 14c. in 5-lb. cans ; ditto, whole, 11 to 12c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18 to 20c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 20 to 22c. in 5-lb. cans ; ditto, whole, 18 to 20c., according to quality ; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb. ; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

TEAS.

The position of the tea market is increasing rather than diminishing in strength. The Ceylon market is up from 1 to 1¼d. in some grades, and the Japan market is 1½c. per pound higher than it was six weeks ago. The quality of the third crop of Japan tea now coming forward is very poor. There is an enquiry for Japan tea, but buyers will not pay the prices asked. There have been some arrivals of Pekoe Souchong Ceylons at about 13 to 13½c., which show good value. Indian teas at about 15c. are being enquired after. New Indian teas are not showing uniformity. Local wholesalers report an improved demand for teas, particularly Indian and Ceylon growths. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are : Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades ; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades ; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades ; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRANTS—The market is rather dearer on account of the fall in exchange in Greece, which, of course, makes the sterling exchange higher. There is still a scarcity of currants on spot, and prices are firm at quotations. We quote : Filiatras, 6c. in barrels ; 6⅛c. in half-barrels and 6¼c. in cases. Patras, 6½c. in barrels ; 6¾c. in half-barrels, and 6¾ to 7c. in cases. Vostizzas, 7 to 8c. in cases.

VALENCIA RAISINS—The demand for Valencia raisins continues good. There have been further arrivals ex Avlona, and the market is now supplied with the various grades. We quote : New goods—Off-stalk, 4¾ to 5c.; fine off-stalk, 5½ to 6c.; selected, 6¼ to 6¾c.; layers, 6½ to 7c.

CANDIED PEELS—Citron peel is rather firmer in the primary market. Locally there is nothing new to notice. We quote : Lemon, 11 to 13c.; orange, 12 to 14c. ; citron, 17 to 20c.

PRUNES—Shipments of California prunes are coming in freely, and they are meeting with a good demand. Some of the houses have already been cleaned out of certain sizes of the cheaper fruit. We quote : 40 to 50's, 10½c.; 50 to 60's, 8 to 8½c.; 60 to 70's, 7½ to 8c.; 70 to 80's, 7 to 7½c.; 80 to 90's, 6½ to 7c.; 90 to 100's, 6 to 6½c. Silver prunes, (fancy), 13½c.; egg plums, 9½c.

MALAGA RAISINS—There is little enquiry. We quote : London layers, $1.70 to $1.90; black baskets, $2.30 to $2.50; blue baskets, $2.50 to $2.75 ; Connoisseur Clusters, $2.40 to $2.50 ; Dessert Clusters, $3.60 to $3.80 ; quarter flats, 75 to 90c.

FIGS—Advices from Smyrna state that the crop of figs has been damaged by rain and that prices are in consequence higher. Some of the large packing houses have been compelled to shut down. We quote : 4-crown, 10 to 11c.; 5-crown, 11 to 13c.; 7-crown, 13 to 14c.; 9-crown, 15 to 16c., natural figs, in bags, 4½ to 5c.

SULTANA RAISINS—Prices in the primary market continue to advance. Locally quotations range all the way from 9½ to 12½c. per lb.

CALIFORNIA RAISINS—The rains have held back the crop very much in some districts, and it was difficult to get shipment during the first half of October.

CALIFORNIA EVAPORATED FRUITS—Shipments of evaporated apricots are fairly liberal and the local market is now well supplied. They are selling all the way from 9½ to 16c. in 25-lb. boxes and at 13 to 14c. in 1-lb. cartoon boxes. Evaporated peaches are also on the market in one-pound cartoon boxes, and they sell at 13c. per lb.

DATES—Are not likely to be here in the ordinary way before Christmas, but some shipments have been ordered by fast route, sea and rail, and they are due to arrive on this market about

GREEN FRUITS.

The demand for green fruits is generally good, and the supply keeps well up in everything except Spanish onions, which are decidedly short. The demand for chestnuts is light. Fancy Rhodi lemons, quinces, Spanish onions, Canadian apples, bananas and grapes have advanced in price, and sweet potatoes and cocoanuts have fallen somewhat. We quote: Lemons, fancy Rhodi, $5 to $5.50; fancy Verdilli, $3.25 to $3.75; choice Verdilli, $2.50 to $3. Cocoanuts, $4 a sack and 60c. per doz.; Jamaica oranges, $9 per bbl.; bananas, $1.25 to $1.50; peaches, 50 to 75c.; Cape Cod cranberries, $7 to $7.50 per bbl.; Canadian cranberries, $5 per bbl.; quinces, 20 to 30c.; chestnuts, $5 a bushel; Canadian apples, $2.50 to $2.75 per barrel and 30 to 40c. per basket; Spanish onions, $1.25 per case; pickling onions, 75c. per basket; yellow Danvers, 75 to 80c. per bag of 80 lbs.; fall and winter, 35 to 60c.; celery, 25 to 30c. a dozen; grapes, 10-lb. Concords, 18 to 20c.; Niagaras, 20c.; Concords, large baskets, 1½ to 2c. per lb.; Niagaras, 2 to 2½c. per lb.; sweet potatoes, $3; winter pears, $3.50 per bbl.

SALT.

The market is quiet this week, the scarcity of cars preventing dealers from doing much business. We quote: Carload lots, $1 per bbl., and 65c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl., and 70c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B., barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—All dealers still report a great scarcity of all grades of butter. We quote: Dairy, best grade, 10 to 17c.; second grade, 13 to 15c.; low grade, 11 to 12c.; creamery, early make, tubs, 17 to 18c.; late make, tubs, 18 to 19c.; prints, 20c.

CHEESE.—A round lot of first-class white cheese has been purchased in the west for 10c. per lb. Local quotaions are 9½ to 10c., according to make.

PROVISIONS.

There has been another reduction in the price of dry salted meats and smoked meats. Trade is brisk.

DRY SALTED MEATS—Long and short clear bacon, 8¼c. for carload lots, and 8¼ to 8½c. per lb. for ton lots and cases.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 12 to 12½c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; hams, large, 10c.; medium, 11c.: small, 11½c.; shoulder hams, 9 to 9½c.; backs, 12c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD—Pure Canadian, tierces, 6¼c.; tubs, 6½c.; pails, 6¾c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $14 to $14.50; Canadian short-cut, $16; clear shoulder mess, $13.50.

DRESSED HOGS—We quote: $5.75 to $6 for heavy, and $6 to $6.25 for light hogs.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—The demand for eggs is fair, though cold weather will likely increase it. We quote: 15 to 16c., and the second grade brings 10 to 12c.; pickled eggs, 12½ to 13½c.

POTATOES—The market is firmer this week, prices having risen, and demand keeping well up to supply. Carload lots are worth 50c. and small lots on the market 60 to 65c.

HONEY—Market is but moderate. We quote: Clover honey, 7c.; buckwheat, 4c.; light color, in 60-lb. tins, 6 to 6½c.; 5 and 10-lb. tins, 6½ to 7c.; comb, $1.50 to $1.75 per dozen.

POULTRY—Season is opening up slightly better on all lines. We quote: Geese, 6c. per lb.; chickens, dressed, 25 to 50c.; alive, 35 to 45c.; ducks, 40 to 75c.; turkeys, 9 to 11c. per lb.

DRIED APPLES—Business is quiet and prices unchanged. We quote: 4 to 4½c. per lb. f. o. b. point of shipment as the nominal price.

EVAPORATED APPLES—We hear of a transaction in last year's stock at 6½c. per lb. for shipment to the Northwest. A feature of the trade at the moment is the receipt of enquiries from the Northwest. The idea as to new season's fruit is 8c. f.o.b.

BEANS—Sales of large lots are reported at 85c. for prime beans, and 90c. for small lots. There is a little enquiry for export.

FISH.

The demand for cured fish is good, especially for cod. That for fresh fish is also brisk. The supply of the latter line is liberal, with the exception of whitefish, which is very scarce. We quote as follows: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5½c. per lb.; whitefish, 7c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $5.75 to $6 per bbl. and $3.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $5 per bbl. and $2.75 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg; ciscoes, 75c. to $1.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—The market has an upward tendency, and trade is brisk. We quote: Winter wheat, 83c.; No. 2 red, 80 to 82c. at outside points; freights to Toronto are about 3 to 5c.; barley, 27 to 31c.; peas, 44 to 45c.; oats, 20 to 23c., Toronto freights, and No. 1 hard wheat is quoted at $1, Toronto freights.

FLOUR—The market is firm. No dealers are stocking, as wheat shows an upward tendency. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $5.30; Manitoba strong bakers', $4.90; Ontario patents, $4.30 to $4.60; straight roller, $4.10 to $4.25, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—We quote: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.30 in bags and $3.40 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.75 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.50; split peas, $3.25; pot barley, $3.

SEEDS.

Red clover is offering more freely, but little timothy is to be had. Alsike is still slow. We quote: Alsike, $3 to $4.50 per bushel, superior grades commanding higher figure; red clover, $3 to $3.25 per bushel; timothy, machine threshed, $1 to $1.25, and choice unhulled brings a slightly higher figure.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES — Market is still steady. We quote: Cowhides — Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2, and 6½c. for No. 3. Steerhides—60 lbs. and up, 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS—The market is nominal, few or none offering. We quote: No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Dekins, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS—We quote: Lambskins and pelts, 75 to 90c.

WOOL — Fleece wool is still dull. Pulled wools are fairly active. We quote super pulled wools at 21 to 22c.; extra at 22 to 23c.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

Business is brisk, a good all-round demand being experienced. Prices remain unchanged. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Canadian, 14c.; carbon, safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

Butter is still scarce.

Grapes of all kinds have advanced ½c. per lb.

Dry salted meats and smoked meats have declined in price.

Spanish onions are scarce, and have advanced 25c. per case.

Owing to the advances in the primary market, spice men in Toronto are quoting pepper 1c. per pound higher.

The Tait-Bredin Co., Limited, Toronto, has decided to retire from the manufacturing of biscuits, and will confine its attention to the bread-making branch of its business.

At the Food Fair now going on in Boston, Mass., the "Salada" Ceylon Tea Co. have a beautiful pagoda. Mr. McGuane is in charge, and is meeting with great success. It is pleasing to see a Canadian tea firm spreading.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Oct. 28, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE general grocery market presents no radical change from the situation of a week ago. There has been some irregularity in the ruling jobbing price for refined sugar, but it is hoped that steps now in progress will surmount the difficulty and lead to a more settled basis. Syrups and molasses are steadily held. Advices on teas continue of a steady character, but jobbers are only operating in a conservative way. The demand from the retail trade is quite active for the season. Rice, spices and other staples are much the same. Dried fruits rule firm, and there have been some large operations between first and second hands in Valencias at firm values. California fruits still rule steady, but lower prices are looked for on two and three-crown for November shipment. Canned goods are steadily held on the whole.

SUGAR.

The sugar market rules fairly active in a local way, but values on refined during the past eight or ten days have been unsettled, and jobbers here have been practically selling for any price they considered proper. This is due to the action of those jobbers outside the Montreal Guild who have been supplying their customers with the staple practically at cost. This week, however, representatives of the Ontario and Montreal Guilds are in conference, and it is hoped that a universal Dominion basis will be agreed upon. Up to this writing values have been unsettled, prices ranging from 4 1-16 to 4¼c. on granulated, and 3½ to 3¾c. on yellows, according to quality. German granulated is selling in round lots here at 3⅝ to 3¾c., and this fact constitutes the unsettling factor. There is little change outside in the market for raw sugar, and refiners here also appear to be pretty well supplied.

SYRUPS.

There is no change in syrups, business ruling moderately active. Prices are unchanged at 2¼ to 2½c. per lb., and have a steady tendency, for stocks in jobbers' hands are light.

MOLASSES.

There is little doing in molasses at the moment in a large way,

WE ARE PAYING CASH FOR DRIED APPLES

W. B. BAYLEY & CO.
EXPORT BROKERS
46 FRONT ST. E. Toronto

as buyers and sellers stand apart regarding values. There is a good distributing trade, however, and as jobbers' stocks are light values in this connection are very steadily held. Altogether, the stock on spot is estimated as not exceeding 5,000 puncheons, or 3,000 less than this time last year, when over 8,000 puncheons were carried in store. In a round way Barbadoes has changed hands at 23½ to 24c., and in a jobbing way the best price that a buyer can secure is 26c.

RICE.

There has been a good volume of business in rice, and prices are firmly held under continued firm advices from primary markets. Letters from Japan stated the other day that everything indicated a late movement of the crop owing to unfavorable conditions. We quote: Crystal Japan, $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $5 to $5.50; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

There is an active jobbing demand for spices, which has led to a large volume of business. Prices all round also are firmly maintained, especially in pepper. We quote as follows: Black pepper, 10 to 12c.; pure white, 13 to 17c., as to grade; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

There has been little change in the coffee market, but a rather steadier feeling is noted in Rio outside, and nothing could be laid down here this week under 10c. In an ordinary way values remain

TEAS.

Cable and other advices from Japan regarding teas continue strong and the feeling is also very firm at New York. A letter from Yokohama of the 7th states that most of the teas are poor in cup and will not pass the United States inspection, and also that picking on many of the plantations was stopped on the 31st of August. Advices from Foochow state that the small shipments of teas now on the way to this market cannot be matched, while it is predicted that scented Orange Pekoe will be much dearer than last season. Reports from Shanghai of the 24th were very strong on Congou, also stating that an advance equivalent to 1¼c. had been established and that the majority of the offerings at that date were sold. At Kobe, Japan, on the 4th, the market was described as quite active. The arrivals at both Yokohama and Kobe to the 4th were about 1,200 piculs in excess of arrivals last year at the end of November, while the settlements this year are about 4,000 piculs short of those last year at the same time. This is attributed to the fact that teas were rushed from the country earlier in the season on account of the demand for teas to fill orders ere the question of the American duty was settled. The expectations, however, that the crop this year will exceed that of last will hardly be realized, as farmers were obliged to stop picking on the 31st of August on account of the new regulation enforced by the Tea Guild. The stocks remaining at Kobe and Yokohama, as well as in the interior, are estimated as not exceeding 20,000 piculs purchasable teas, which, with the total arrivals to date, will be 347,009 piculs for the entire year, against 353,471 for last. This will show a shortage of about 6,400 piculs. The local demand here does not appear to be influenced, however, and business is quiet in a wholesale way. A fair distributive trade is doing, however, and prices are unchanged in this connection. We quote: Young Hysons, 14 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15½ to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 17 to 20c. for mediums, and 35 to 65c. for higher grades.

CANNED GOODS.

There is a fair business doing in canned goods from jobbers' hands. The latter, however, appear to be satisfied with the supplies they have on hand for the time being. Representatives of several canners were in town this week, but they found the trade very indifferent buyers. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80 to 90c.; corn, 60 to 75c.; peas, 75c. to $1.25; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 95c.; gallons, $1.65 to $1.75; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.25 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.25 to $1.45; "Lion," $1.25 to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.20, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

There has been very little change in the Valencia raisin market. Practically all of the fruit ex Avlona has already been distributed and for what is left the holders are asking jobbers firm prices. In fact the latter could not fill any wants inside of 4¼c. for off-stalk. We quote: 4½c. for off-stalk, 4¾ to 5c. for fine off-stalk, 5¾ to 6c. for selected, and 6¾ to 7c. for 4-crown layers.

California raisins are firm, and though advices from the Coast in some cases speak of lower prices, brokers here are unable to quote any change, though they admit that it is likely that 2 and 3 crown fruit may possibly be obtained for November shipment for less money than October lots. They consider that 4 crowns will hold their price, as they are scarce on the Coast. We quote: 2 crown 5½c., 3 crown 6½, and 4 crown 7¾c.

Cable advices on Sultana raisins from London state that prices there are 3s. to 4s. higher, and that demand is active. There have been no sales to arrive yet of any moment.

The currant market continues steady. We quote: Patras, in cases, 6 to 6¼c.; Filiatras, bbls., 5⅜c.; ½-bbls., 5½c., and cases, 5¾c.; Provincials, 5c. in bbls., 5⅜c. in cases and 5½c. in ½-cases.

Prunes rule firm in tone, especially California stock, which are held as follows: 40 to 50s., 9¾ to 10c.; 50 to 60s., 8¾ to 9c.; 60 to 70s., 8¼ to 8½c., and 70 to 80s., 7½ to 7¾c. French and Austrian prunes continue steady.

Evaporated apricots are held very firm. Sales in one-pound cartoons are noted at 12c.

Peels are very strong, especially citron, which are costing 20 per cent. more than the opening prices. Cable quotations on English are equivalent to 17 to 18c. landed here. Orange and lemon peel are also firm, the cost price having advanced about 3s. on the opening prices.

New figs are offering in 14-oz. boxes at 9 to 10c.; in 10-lb. boxes at 10 to 11c., and in bags at 4c. per pound.

NUTS.

There is nothing special to report in this line. We quote: Grenoble walnuts firm at 11 to 12c.; do. shelled, 20c; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; pecans, 9 to 10c.

DRIED APPLES.

The dried apple market rules steady and unchanged at 3 to 4c., and evaporated, 6c.

APPLES.

There has been an active trade in winter apples, and prices are firmly held at $3.50 to $4 per barrel.

GREEN FRUIT.

Fairly active in some lines, but basket fruit, which has been all the go, is being worked off the market. New Almeria grapes are offering this week at $5 to $5.50 per cask, and other prices are unchanged. We quote: Lemons, $2.50 to $3 per box; Jamaica oranges, $8 to $8.75 per barrel; bananas, $2.25 per bunch; California peaches, $1.75 to $2 per box; Canadian do., 40 to 50c. per basket; Canadian pears, $2 to $5 per barrel; Almeria grapes, $5 to $5.50 per cask; do. California Tokays, $2.25 to $2.50 per crate; cranberries, $7.50 to $8 for Cape Cod, and $6 to $6.50 for Nova Scotia per barrel.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Advices from abroad in regard to Canadian pickled eggs are very encouraging and the indications are that considerable business will be done yet before the close of navigation. Locally the demand is only fair and prices show no change. We quote: New laid, 15 to 15½c.; choice candled, 12 to 13c., and culls, 10 to 10½c. per dozen in round lots.

BEANS—There was no change in beans. The demand is principally for small lots at 80 to 90c. for primes, and at 95c. to $1 for choice hand-picked per bushel.

HONEY—The demand for honey is slow and the market rules quiet. We quote: Clover comb, 10 to 11c.; bright extracted, 7½ to 8½c.; and dark, 5 to 5½c.

POTATOES—In potatoes trade was quiet and prices are unchanged at 45 to 50c. per bag in car lots.

PROVISIONS.

There is no change in the local provision market. A fair trade continues to be done in a small way at steady prices. We quote:

Canadian pork, $15 to $16 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, at 7½ to 8c., and compound refined at 5½ to 5¾c. per lb.; hams, 12 to 14c., and bacon, 12 to 13c. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

Demand for flour has been active recently, expecially on export account. Large transactions were put through this week on Glasgow and London account at an advance of 6d. to 1s. over bids made a fortnight ago. Demand locally and also from the Montreal provinces has been quite brisk. We quote: Winter wheat patents, $4.65 to $4.90; straight rollers, old wheat, $4.40 to $4.50; straight roller, new, $4.20 to $4.30; bags, $2.10 to $2.25; best Manitoba strong bakers', $5; second do., $4.50, and low grades, $2.65; Hunganan patents, $5.40.

There was no change in the situation of the meal market, business being quiet on account of light offerings. We quote: Rolled oats, $3.40 to $3.50 per barrel, and $1.65 to $1.70 per bag; standard meal, $3.30 per barrel and $1.60 per bag.

The demand for feed continues good, and the market is active and firm. Ontario bran sold at $11, and shorts at $12 per ton in bulk; Manitoba bran, bags included, at $11.50 and shorts at $12.50 per ton.

BALED HAY.

Increased receipts have led to a decline of 50c. to $1 per ton, and we quote $10.50 to $11 for No. 1, and $8.50 to $9 for No. 2 per ton, in car lots.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

CHEESE—Does not seem to have any bottom at present, for prices continue to recede in a manner that is unprecedented, when it is considered that fine fall cheese is being offered. This week transactions were confined chiefly to the offerings of Quebec makes. About 3,000 of these were offered, and they sold around 8¼c, with some lots for a fraction less. This is a decline of over ⅜c. per lb. on the prices realized last week. Values on western makes are purely nominal, but buyers claim that if they had the orders they would have no difficulty in finding sellers willing to make substantial concessions, even from present prices, for the sake of realizing as soon as possible. We quote: Finest Ontario, fall makes, 9 to 9¼c.; finest Townships, fall makes, 8½ to 8⅞c.; finest Quebec, fall makes, 8¼ to 8⅜c.

BUTTER—Gives little prospect of any change for the better. Shippers are not willing to pay what holders ask; in fact, many of them are not in a position to name any price at all. Business, therefore, is confined to the local jobbing trade. Dairy butter, when fine, meets a fair sale, but the decline in the price of creamery is curtailing its chances. We quote: Finest creamery, 18¼ to 18½c.; seconds, 18c.; dairy butter, 14½ to 15c.

MONTREAL NOTES.

London cables state that citron peel is 20 per cent higher than the opening prices and firmly held at the advance.

The first arrivals of new Almeria grapes were offered on the market this week. They are selling at $5 to $5.50 per cask.

The steamship agents of the ss. Avlona closed out a lot of 4,000 boxes of Valencia raisins to J. A. Mathewson & Co. for 4½c.

Yokohama advices of the 7th predict that most of the teas which are of poor cup will not pass the United States inspection.

Cables state that Sultana raisins have advanced 3 to 4s. at London. Smyrna advices state that the rise there has been even greater.

W. Boulter, of W. Boulter & Sons, canners, Picton, Ont., was among some of the Ontario canners who called on the trade in Montreal this week.

Sales of "Salada" tea in Montreal last week were the largest since that tea was introduced in that city, reports Mr. Mann, the manager of the business there.

It is expected that 2 and 3-crown California raisins may be bought lower for November shipment than the October contracts, but firmness is anticipated on 4-crown fruit.

M. de Repentigny, of Montreal, has opened a branch grocery store, corner of Ann and William streets. M. de Repentigny intends to sell cheap and for cash only.

Advices from Kobe, Japan, October 4, state that the farmers were compelled to stop picking tea on the 31st August, owing to a new regulation enforced by the Japanese Tea Guild.

Demand for Lazenby's soup squares for the Klondike trade is quite extensive. The British Government has just placed a large contract for these goods for shipment to the Indian frontier.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Oct. 28, 1897.

A GOOD general business is doing, but it is hardly as active as it should be at this season. There is, however, a much better feeling throughout the city than at this time last year. In spite of the dull lumber market at present and that many have stocks they will have to carry over, the season has been a successful one in that line. In groceries, where last fall there seemed to be no bottom in the market, this fall a number of lines show a good profit. Farmers are feeling the effect of the better times. In cheese they have got a good price, and the output has been large. For pork the present market is good. Potatoes have brought a high figure, though the market has been somewhat weakened by the large quantities which have been hurried into it. The feature of the grocery trade is the profit canned goods are showing. Everything points to a good winter here. A large export trade will pass through here, which will give our people, those who a few years ago had little or no employment in the winter, good steady work.

OIL—The larger part of the orders for fall shipment have been booked. Dealers report a satisfactory business. They are, and will be for some time, busy filling orders. In cod oil the firmer feeling and improved price continues. We quote: Best American burning oil, 17½ to 18½c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 17c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 15c.; cod oil, 23 to 26c.

SALT—Rather over seven thousand sacks Liverpool coarse salt arrived this week by steamer. It had been delayed, and stocks were getting light. It found ready sale. Another cargo about the same size is shortly expected. Salt from this out is likely to be in larger supply. At present, prices are low, and those in need will find it a good time to buy while these cargoes are landing. We quote: Coarse, 45 to 46c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 85c. to $1; Canadian fine, 90c. to $1 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls.,

It is poor economy to buy ordinary tea when Blue Ribbon can be had at a reasonable price.

$3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.50 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS—Holders of vegetables are happy, particularly those who bought early. Tomatoes show best profit and best outlook. Our dealers, compared with the size of our market and the quantities bought other places, are fortunate. One factory sold 6,000 cases here, including fruits. In salmon the market has been weak, owing to new coming in so much lower than the old. A good demand from the west is noticed for sardines, clams and other canned fish. We quote: Corn, 65 to 75c.; peas, 75 to 90c.; tomatoes, $1 to $1.10; gallon apples, $2.10 to $2.25; corned beef, Canadian, $2.40 to $2.50; American, 2-lb. tins, $2.60 to $2.70; 1-lb tins, $1.40 to $1.60; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.20; 1's, $1.40 $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.50 to $2.75; salmon, $1.15 to $1.20; lobsters, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, $1.05 to $1.15; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.50 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $5.50 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

GREEN FRUIT—There is fair business doing. In apples the high prices have affected the demand. There have been but few auctions this fall, while last year they were about the only way you could sell them. Oranges are coming in more freely. They are received from the West Indies, but as yet are rather sour. Canadian grapes are higher, and not as plentiful as last week. Pears are scarce, as are peaches and tomatoes. Cape Cod cranberries are high. Native are looking better than usual. Lemons have good sale and hold their price. We quote: Lemons, $5 to $5.50; oranges, $4 per box; Gravenstein apples, $3 to $4; other kinds, $2 to $3; bananas, $1.50 to $2; pears, 50 to 60c. per basket; grapes, 25 to 35c; peaches, 60 to 70c.; Malaga grapes, $5; native bog cranberries, $5 to $6 per bbl.; Cape Cod cranberries, $7.50 to $8 per bbl.; sweet potatoes, $3.25 to $3.50 per bbl.; tomatoes, 30 to 35c. per basket.

DRIED FRUIT—New goods are now being freely received. Valencias show quite a range in quality. Some fine off-stalk here are the best for that grade ever seen. Currants, which come on a bare market, keep about the price of the old. In evaporated apples, there are a few here, but the high price is affecting the demand, and many think the ideas of many people west will have to come down or trade will be very light. Dried find light demand, and feeling is hardly as firm. Our dealers are buying peels lightly this fall. We quote: Valencias, 5½ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c., prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples, 3½ to 4c.; evaporated apples, 7 to 7½c.; onions, $2 to $2.10 per bbl.; cocoanuts, $3 to $3.50 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.; new Valencias, layers, 6½ to 7c.

SUGAR—Market shows no change. There is but fair business doing. Dark yellows have very light demand. We quote: Granulated, 4⅛ to 4¼c.; yellows, 3⅜ to 3¾c.; Paris lump, 5½ to 5¾c.; powdered, 5¼ to 5½c.

MOLASSES—Market is hardly as strong. The late arrivals of Porto Rico have upset the prospects of profit which dealers before had a fair right to expect. The decrease this year in demand for the lumber woods also affects the market. There is but little New Orleans here owing to the high prices asked for it. We quote: Barbadoes, 23 to 25c.; Porto Rico, 28 to 30c.; New Orleans, barrels, 28 to 30c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.; Demerara, 33 to 34c.

FISH—Business has been good and prices fully maintained. In dry cod the market is firm and a good business doing. Pollock is scarce and dearer. Smoked herring come in slowly, and are having a large sale; Boneless show active demand. It is for western trade. Prices are firm on account of the high price of dried. Alewives are beginning to move off, but prices are low. Shelburne pickled herring is offered, but quality is but fair. A few Canso are here. We quote: Large cod, $3.35 to $3.40; medium, $3.10 to $3.25; pollock, $1.55 to $1.60; bay herring, $1.40 to $1.50 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 8 to 8½c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50 to $5; boneless, 2½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.; Shelburne, bbls., $3.25; half-bbls., $1.75 to $1.80; Canso, $5 to $5.25 per bbl.,; do. half-bbl., $2.75 to $3; wolves, $2.25 to $2.50 half-bbl.

DAIRY PRODUCE—Butter keeps dull. It is received freely. Creamery shows very little sale. Cheese is rather easier with light demand. Eggs are dull with prices rather lower. We quote: Dairy butter, 15 to 17c.; creamery, 19 to 20c.; prints, 20 to 22c.; cheese, 10 to 10½c.; eggs, 12½ to 13c.

PROVISIONS—Clear pork is rather firmer, but the old, which is still held, keeps the price here still low. Mess pork, which is much smaller stock than clear, responds to the advance better. In beef the market is also lightly supplied. It shows more advance than either of the above. In hams local curers are now largely supplying the trade. Lard holds its advance, with good stock here. We quote: Clear pork, $14.50 to $15.50; mess, $13 to $14; plate beef, $14 to $14.50; hams, 12 to 13c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; pure lard, 7¾ to 8c.; compound, 6½ to 6¾c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—Flour has been quite active during the week, millers' agents making good sales. Stocks here have been light. The firmer feeling has affected buyers. Winter freight rates are now on; this, with an advance on the part of the millers, has moved prices up. We quote as follows: Manitoba flour, $6 to $6.10; best Ontario, $4.90 to $5; medium, $4.75 to $4.80; oatmeal, $3.65 to $3.70; cornmeal, $2; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $16 to $16.50; bran, do, $14.50 to $15; hand-picked beans, $1.20 to $1.25; prime, $1 to $1.10; oats, 34 to 36c.; hay, $11 to $12; barley, $3.15 to $3.25; round peas, $1.25; split peas, $3.25 to $3.30; yellow eye beans, $1.75.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

The output of cheese in Carleton Co., N.B., this season is estimated at 110 tons.

Merritt Bros. & Co. received about 7,000 sacks Liverpool coarse salt ex ss. Mantineau this week. They have another cargo near to hand.

Farmers are making a good thing out of potatoes, both in the state of Maine and in New Brunswick. One dollar is the prevailing price.

Reports from Prince Edward Island point to active business. S. Jones, of Summerside, shipped this week to Boston 1,600 live geese and over 2,000 lambs. There was also from the same place shipped for the English market 3,249 boxes cheese, valued at $19,178. Thos. Dillon was the shipper. Another factory shipped 568 boxes of cheese.

Don't buy Blue Ribbon if you prefer thin, artificially-flavored tea.

CHRISTMAS GOODS.

It may seem early to talk of them, but as we have a lot of territory to cover our travellers will begin taking orders for Fancy Confectionery for Christmas trade on 1st Nov., not necessarily for immediate shipment. We have some really beautiful toys in the Candy line that it will pay you to handle.

HEAD OVER EARS IN WORK.

This expression does not emphasize too forcibly the position in which we have found ourselves, especially during the last two months, supplying the great rush from all quarters for Brantford Starch.

We thank our Grocery friends for remembering us so kindly, and we can only say that we will continue to treat our customers right, by maintaining the high quality of our Starches, by shipping all orders promptly, and by by answering all communications cheerfully and punctually.

Grocers!

Being specialists in the manufacturing of Coffee Mills, we know what is required in a mill.

Therefore: Why not blend your own coffee and grind it in a COLES MILL? You cannot fail to give the highest satisfaction.

Thousands of Grocers have added to their worldly goods by doing this; why not you?

THE CANADIAN GROCER

Vol. XI. (Published Weekly) TORONTO AND MONTREAL, NOVEMBER 5, 1897 ($2.00 per Year) No. 45

BUYING AND SELLING COFFEE.

COFFEE is a commodity which every grocer sells, but it is also a commodity with which every grocer is not as familiar as he ought to be. If properly handled coffee is an article which yields a fairly good profit, and the fact that comparatively few grocers make little or no effort to push it must be largely attributed to the fact that they do not know how to do so. Coffee is a delicious beverage, and as its consumption is smaller in Canada than in a good many other countries, it is obvious there is room for its expansion and money for the grocer who will undertake missionary work in this respect.

With a view to getting some data as to ways and means of building up a trade in coffees, I had a chat a few days ago with Mr. Stephen Hustwitt, the well-known tea and coffee expert.

"Now Mr. Hustwitt," I said, "what would you recommend in regard to buying coffees?"

"Well, in the first place," he replied, "it depends a great deal whether the grocer has a coffee mill. There is one thing it is very necessary every grocer should have, and that is a coffee mill. It is nice, too, that he should have a roaster; but of course you cannot expect every grocer to have one. In fact I only know of one or two retail grocers in Toronto who have one. Grocers who have not roasters should buy their coffee from a house which can be relied upon for keeping freshly roasted coffee. I would advise the grocer to buy his coffee weekly, or, better still, twice weekly, for the fresher coffee is the better."

"How about kinds of coffee to buy?"

"The most reliable coffees the dealer can depend upon are Javas and Mochas. They are the best coffees both in regard to color and flavor. They stand up more even than other growths. Such coffees as Rio and Santos do not run even. Jamaica and Maracaibo coffees rank next to Java and Mocha descriptions. The Indian coffees are not yet thoroughly understood. Coffees, you know, like teas, change, owing to the different districts in which they are grown. The Indian coffee is very heavy, and is of an oily nature. It is better, therefore, for grocers not to touch the Indian coffees unless they have had some experience with them."

"How would you advise the retailer in the matter of selling coffees?"

"Every retailer I would advise to sell his coffee whole, and grind it for his customers in his mill. Yet, here caution should be used by the retailer not to push too large a sale of coffee on each customer, and for this reason: where an article like coffee is to be used fresh you do not want to push too heavy a quantity at once, because the fresher the customer gets his coffee the better will he be satisfied, just as will the grocer who buys his coffee in small lots. It is all right to push apricots, peaches or articles which do not deteriorate in keeping."

"How about keeping coffee in the store?"

"Coffee can always be kept in tins. Roasted coffee should never be kept exposed, because atmospheric changes will quickly affect the bean. Grocers should make a display of coffee, but should purchase small quantities of green coffee for that purpose.

"Could you give me any pointers in regard to selling coffee?"

"Well, I will try. People, as a rule, as you know, ask for pure coffee when in very many cases the customer does not know what coffee he wants. Coffee drinkers require a little chicory, and yet they do not often know it. If you mention chicory they would shudder at the thought of it. Experienced grocers, recognizing this fact, always have near their mill a canister of root chicory, fresh roasted, which they can use a little of when grinding the coffee. They must, of course, use their judgment as to how much chicory they should put in. By thus judiciously using chicory they give their customer a more palatable coffee, and consequently please him. A grocer very often makes a mistake in putting up pure coffee when a customer comes into the store and asks for such. The coffee thus often put up without any chicory displeases the customer. On learning this the grocer should offer to take it back, and then in giving him fresh coffee should put in a little chicory. He will find, as a rule, that he has given satisfaction. On the building of a trade in coffee much depends upon the intelligence of the grocer. As a matter of fact, coffee with a little chicory is better than pure coffee. It is far better to tone down Java and Moca and reduce the cost with first-class chicory than to use the poorer grades of coffee, such as Rio and Santos. What I mean by that is this: I would rather put eight ounces of good Java coffee and eight ounces of first-class chicory than I would use eight ounces of Java and eight ounces of Rio. These are, of course, rather large proportions, but I merely use them as an illustration. Chicory does not deteriorate the quality of the coffee nearly as much as poor coffee would deteriorate the quality of good coffee. The Java flavor would be more distinct with chicory than with a poorer coffee. It is the same with coffees as it is with teas. In blending you have to be very careful that you do not smother the fine flavor by putting in a low grade article. Just here is where many grocers make a mistake, imagining that by mixing a high-priced tea with some low grades they want used up, the quality will be maintained, while the very contrary is the result. Good coffee will not bring up the quality of a low-grade coffee.

coffee. It is so susceptible to influence. Take, for instance, a stock of 100 lbs. of coffee and divide that into twenty-five-pound lots, and put each parcel into a different roaster, and the chances are that you would not afterwards recognize them as being the same coffees. They would all seem to be different in flavor. A great dea depends upon the roasting of coffees; much more, in fact, than most people are ready to acknowledge."

"In regard to pushing the coffee trade, what would you recommend?"

"It would pay the grocer first of all to make a special coffee display in his window. The sample could, of course, be green coffee. A sample should also be placed on the counter in an attractive bowl. This people would not only see, but it would afford the grocer a good opportunity to introduce the subject of coffee and try to effect a sale."

"Do you think the coffee trade in Canada is increasing?"

"I think it is, and could be increased still more by a careful study of the trade. Let the grocers avoid using low-grade coffees. There is nothing that will injure the sale of any article as much as inducing the sale of poor goods."

"What do you think about package coffees?"

"I would caution the trade against them, because they are likely to become shelf goods, and when they become shelf goods they will, of course, deteriorate in quality and thus injure the coffee-drinking trade."

TRADE MATTERS IN BRANDON.

As Brandon is one of the recognized wheat centres of the province, and wheat at present such an absorbing topic, your correspondent thought a trip up here and some notes on the spot might be of interest. Coming up along the line of the Northern Pacific nearly the whole distance is through a good grain country and operations in wheat seemed to be very active. At almost every station some local man met some buyer, on the train, and the talk was all car lots, scarcity or supply of cars, rates, elevator space and the like. A very marked feature along the Northern Pacific is the amount of building done during the past season, and in fact many buildings are still in course of completion.

CHANGE IN THE BUSINESS SITUATION.

In the city of Brandon the whole business situation has changed. For a few years past this little city has been feeling the effects of a rather inflated growth, a good many houses and buildings stood empty and the general volume of business was small. Now all this is changed and one of the real estate men assured your correspondent there was not a vacant house in town and in fact many old buildings which had been discarded for years had been refitted and were now bringing good rents.

Saturday morning about 8.30 the loads of grain began to come in. By noon Rosser Avenue (the main street) was like a fair. The fact that 80c. was offering for wheat caused a rush, and a tremendous amount was bought and sold. Of course, much has been written aud printed about the combine, and at no point in the province has the war waged hotter than at Brandon. One man, R.E.A. Leech, secretary of Farmers' Institute, has gone on the street as a buyer on his own account, in opposition to the combine, and on Saturday bought 45,000 bushels at 80c. on a 19c. rate of freight.

80 PER CENT. OF CROP MARKETED.

It is generally thought here that fully 80 per cent. of this year's crop has already been moved, and that there will not be more than twelve million bushels for export, and some of the large millers will find themselves left when they come to look for Manitoba wheat. The perennial question of grading and mixing is well to the front this year, owing to the particularly fine sample of wheat offering, the Manitoba farmers feeling that if their wheat could only reach the millers and the English market without interference it would greatly enhance the reputation of the province. Many remedies are suggested. Perhaps one most frequently urged is that all outward inspection from Fort William be abolished and the grade given by Government inspectors at whatever point inspected be sufficient without the grain being again graded at Fort William. Rightly or wrongly, there is a strong feeling against the way matters are managed at Fort William.

BRANDON'S LARGE CREAMERY.

Another feature in the industrial life of Brandon is the establishment of a large creamery by the Whitelaw Trading Co. This creamery does not depend for its supply of cream on the immediate vicinity of Brandon, but has it brought in on all converging lines of railway. During the summer, contributions came from Reston, Pipestone, Finlay and Deleau, Napinka, Melita, Beresford and Lauder, Alexander, High Bluff and Poplar Point, Oak River, Pettypiece and Rapid City, Belmont, Hilton, Wawanesa and Roundthwaite. The rate by rail for cream is much cheaper than hauling by team and the district being heretofore almost exclusively a wheat country, a large territory has to be covered to secure a sufficient supply of cream. This firm has made on the average about 3,500 lbs. of butter per week, and will continue to manufacture until the end of December, if not later. The butter has been sold at an average price of 18½ cents per lb., and of course from this time on none will be sold under 21c. or 22c, there being a ready market in the city for all they can manufacture. The firm are much pleased with the result of their venture and will largely increase, and, if possible, double their business for next year. During the winter they will put in additional cold storage facilities. The advantages of a creamery at a strategetic point like Brandon are many. The district around Brandon is, and always will be, a great wheat country ; at the same time it is desirable, and, in fact necessary, to prosperity that each farm should have at least six or eight cows. These numbers are too small to make home dairying profitable, but if the cream from these cows finds a ready market at the creamery it means so much ready money every week during the season, plenty of the best kind of feed for pigs, always a profitable product, and eventually—as dairying and poultry keeping are such nearly allied industries—it will lead to increased interest in poultry keeping, of the profitableness of which too much can hardly be said. At the present time in Brandon, dealers are paying from 15 to 15½c. per doz. for eggs and the supply is short. The farmers reap the advantages named and the city has first-class butter of uniform color, quality and flavor put fresh on the market every morning, a blessing not to be lightly esteemed when one considers the resemblance between the dairy butter seen on grocers' counters and Joseph's coat of celebrated memory. In order that the cream be of the best quality and the farmers derive as much benefit as possible from the by-products, the Whitelaws are inducing their patrons to invest in cream separators and already 73 of those sending to this factory use them.

NEW GROCER FOR GUELPH.

Guelph is to have a new grocer. His name is A. W. Lawrence. Lately he has been with Mr. H. Stark, a Grand Valley merchant, but he is an old "Royal City" boy, so that he is not starting business among strangers. He will open up early next week and will carry a general line of groceries. Mr. Lawrence is a young man, and THE CANADIAN GROCER wishes him success in his new venture.

THE GROCER of that date had a good article under the heading "The Day is Done." It must have interested many readers because it hit the bullseye right in the centre. Speaking of the retail grocer's business the writer says at the close: "the time has seemingly passed for advertising low prices—advertise high quality now." If every grocer will read that article we believe that our Pan Dried (Registered) Rolled Oats will be on sale at three-quarters of all the grocery stores in Canada before Christmas.

A UNIQUE SITUATION.

THE relative position of foreign dried and evaporated fruits and Canadian evaporated apples is somewhat unique at the moment.

As everyone in the trade is aware, the bull element has taken possession of the market for dried and evaporated apples, prices having been worked up to an enormous figure.

New season's evaporated apples are being quoted by jobbers as high as 10½c per pound; but that is not the most interesting feature of the situation, for California evaporated peaches are being quoted down as low as 9½c. per pound in 25-pound boxes on the Toronto market, while evaporated apricots in 50-pound boxes can be obtained as low as 9c. per pound. If California prunes are wanted, they can be secured from the wholesale houses at even 6c. per pound for the smallest sizes.

With prunes, apricots and peaches selling at these low figures it is evident evaporated apples will either have to come down in price or remain unsold.

The situation is indeed a unique one.

TORONTO'S OCTOBER TRADE.

The export returns for the port of Toronto for October this year are very satisfactory, showing an increase of $73,075, as compared with the corresponding month last year. The greatest increase is in meats of all kinds, of which $91,656 more were exported in October this year than in October last year. The increase in the value of horses exported is over $48,000, which is accounted for by the sale of race horses valued at $46,350. The export of lumber has decreased over $57,000, and no wool was exported at all, as against $30,383 last year. The value of bicycles exported has increased nearly $20,000, and manufactured goods exported have increased $37,861 in value. Agricultural products, eggs, etc., have decreased somewhat in value of export. The imports on free articles amounted to $644,442, compared with $503,896 last year.

GAME AND FISHING LAWS.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has received a copy of the digest of the Game and Fishing Laws, by A. H. O'Brien, M.A., assistant law clerk at the House of Commons. It is a complete epitome of the provincial and Dominion law affecting birds, animals and fish, alphabetically arranged, and giving references to the different statutes and orders-in-council now in force. It is a thoroughly standard and reliable work, having been issued under the authority of the Ontario fish and game commissioners, and should be in the hands of every sportsman and fisherman. It will be sent post free for price, 25c., on application to Mr. Geo. Rennardson, 74 Church street, or the Canada Law Journal Co., Toronto.

GOOD COFFEE MILL.

In these days of close competition and energetic business methods it is necessary that every retail grocer should have always on hand the best and cheapest in every line. For instance, in the case of coffee the general public are becoming more fastidious, yet desire it at the cheapest rate. In order to meet this demand every grocer should have a coffee mill which is up-to-date—one that is not slow and hard-running, for time is money. The mill of the Coles Manufacturing Co., 1615 North 23rd street, Philadelphia, after ten years of hard usage by thousands of grocers, has won for itself the reputation of being the quickest, easiest running and finest mill made. It has a most accurate adjustment of grinders, also an attachment whereby the grinders can be separated in case any foreign substance finds its way into them. The makers guarantee the mill in every respect.

R. C. Tait, Shediac, has so far this fall bought 30,000 bushels potatoes.

A U. S. TRIBUTE TO CANADA.

LAST week's issue of the New York edition of Bradstreet's has an interesting article in regard to the trade condition in Canada. In part it says:

It was pointed out in Bradstreet's last week that general trade in the Dominion of Canada is relatively more active and has made a proportionately greater advance since the beginning of the recent revival than business in the United States. This will prove in the nature of a surprise to those who have continued to look at affairs in the Canadian Dominion as of the slow-coach variety. But so pronounced is the revival, not only in agricultural but in commercial and industrial lines throughout the Dominion, that business men, merchants and bankers are confidently predicting an era of prosperity greater than they have ever previously experienced. The wheat crop of Ontario, like that of the United States, is large, but is relatively more satisfactory than here, as it is the largest in the history of the province. The higher price for wheat, coming in conjunction with the large crop, has done quite as much for the Canadian as for the American farmer, and the movement of grain from the Dominion to the mother country has been relatively quite as rapid as from this country. This has resulted in a marked increase in the demand from country storekeepers throughout the Dominion and has reflected that revival in almost all lines of trade, causing even an increased request for real estate. The Toronto correspondent of a London newspaper remarks that values of city property have advanced, that not only the Canadian Pacific Railway but other land corporations report large gains in the number of sales of far-off property in Ontario and even as far away as in Manitoba and the North-West Territory. Canadian bank statements in the early fall months are declared to have been the best for many years and their note circulation the largest for five years. There was also an increase in bank deposits, and balances due Canadian bankers from the United States, where the former loan large sums of money to aid in the movement of the crops, were $12,000,000 larger in September than in August, and if there were anything further needed to show that general commercial demand in the Dominion had risen to a high level, it is found in the statement by dry goods dealers and others that there has been a heavily increased movement into consumption of kid gloves, silks, satins, velvets and pianos.

Coming from a United States publication the article is most significant. It is, as a rule, odium and not praise we get from newspapers across the border, and Bradstreet's has fully earned the thanks of the business men of Canada for presenting the truth in so pleasing a form.

[illegible] our heads. Too high, no use firing. Now a small flock of five comes a little to the left, but lower than the first; will they notice the decoys? No, they head past, but when almost overhead swing around to the tin geese and flags. Deceived, they give a scream of disgust and prepare to resume their flight, but they are only thirty yards away. Bang! bang. First one barrel and then the other, and one slowly separates from the flock, flies a few yards and drops with a heavy thud in the stubble; bounces up a foot, falls back and with bill buried in the soil gives up the ghost.

The sport has begun and they come fast, flock after flock; first, a thin black streak appears on the horizon, which increases in size until each individual bird is seen. They are coming out against the wind, and many a shot is fired which apparently does no damage, the lead rattling against the breasts of the geese and dropping in the stubble like hail. Some thirty rounds were fired, which resulted in a bag of six. Others were seen to drop in the distance, some at least a mile away, and were probably secured by some other hunter.

When the morning flight was about over THE GROCER, standing up in the pit to survey the carnage, was startled by a "honk! honk!" close to his head, and a fat brant was alighting amongst the decoys. Now is the time! Give it to her before she gets away!

We wait for the flight back to the lake, but the wind has fallen and the birds are up in the clouds, with the exception of a few flocks that have been feeding near at hand. We succeed in knocking down two more, and, as the hired man is to drive us back to town, we gaze fondly on our game, and vow that goose shooting overtops any kind of sport known.

Windy, stormy days are the best, as the flight is near to the ground. The beauty of the sport is that you have so much shooting with so little hard work. The geese go out from the lake at daybreak to the feeding grounds on the stubble, and return at 9 in the morning. The second flight leaves the lake about 3 in the afternoon, and returns just before dark, so that if you are installed in the line of flight thousands of geese will pass over your head four times during the day.

Whitewater Lake is situated on the Deloraine branch of the C.P.R., between Boissevain station and Deloraine, and is one of the best spots in America for goose shooting. The geese remain from about Sept. 1 to Nov. 1. Thousands are shot every year, and should any of our eastern readers take a trip to Manitoba in the fall they can be sure of excellent sport at Whitewater Lake.

The farmers are always glad to see the hunters, and the best of accommodation and a hearty welcome is accorded visitors.

If intended for local use it is sold fresh; if shipped, it should be put into cold smoke. It is eaten cold with vinegar or oil, or with caper sauce. If not cooked snfficiently, it is liable when slicing to break.—National Provisioner.

INDIAN AND CEYLON TEA IN BOSTON.

Mr. P. C. Larkin returned on Tuesday from Boston where he has been visiting the Food Fair as well as the agency of his firm. "MacLaren's cheese and 'Salada' tea were much in evidence at the Show," he remarked to THE CANADIAN GROCER. "The Fair occupied a building about the size of the main building at the Toronto Exhibition and it was a great success."

"What about the prospect for Indian and Ceylon tea in Boston?"

"I think Boston is going to be a great field for Indian and Ceylon teas if it is well exploited. A large majority of the people who tasted our tea at the Food Show expressed a liking for it, and in a great many cases asked where it could be bought. 'Salada' is now on sale in about two hundred stores in Boston, besides many places outside that city."

The lobster factory of Woodman Bros., at Alberton, P.E.I., was burned on Monday; cause unknown.

Frank F. Humphries has purchased a half interest in the fruit, fish and oyster business of G. M. Kent & Co., 6 King street west, Hamilton.

BUSINESS MEN AND GOOD GOVERNMENT.

GOVERNING a country is no plaything. It is business. Real and earnest business if it is done right. True it is often made a comedy, and a comedy of errors at that. But that does not alter the fact that the foundation of good government as well as of good business management is the employment of sound business ethics.

Government by the politicians for the politicians at the expense of the country is unfortunately the rule instead of the exception.

Under this deplorable state of affairs we see offices created for party heelers and party heelers appointed to responsible positions for which their qualification is not fitness but faithfulness to party.

No one political party has a monopoly in this respect. Conservative as well as Liberal and Liberal as well as Conservative are in the same boat. A blind fate seems to possess them both. They may differ in every other line of policy, but in this one thing there is no dissimilarity. And it does not matter whether it be in Dominion or in Provincial politics, all are characterized by the same inherent sin.

Theorists, ward-heelers, professional men, are, as a rule, the predominating parts which go to make up a government, whether it be of the Dominion or of the several provinces. And whether they would or not, they are not qualified to transact business on business principles. Partisan principles are the paramount underlying motive forces.

The leaven which shall leaven this lump of unbusinesslike governments, parliaments and legislatures is the election to these parliaments and legislatures of a larger proportion of men endowed with practical business common sense. The duty of bringing this about devolves, of course, upon the practical business men of the country. And as this, what may be termed saving proportion, increases, the unbusinesslike legislation will naturally decrease.

It is not necessary that there should be a business party created. On the contrary, it is better there should be none. What is wanted is that business men throughout the country should sever the chains which bind them to their respective parties in order that as independent Conservatives or independent Liberals they may become a saving remnant and a guarantee for good government.

They have nothing to gain by being the servants of their respective parties in all their ramifications of evil as well as of good. On the contrary, they have a great deal to lose and the country a great deal to suffer by their so doing.

To follow party whithersoever it leadeth is a guarantee of the continuance of bad government.

Unbusinesslike government, bad government, cannot long continue where the business men speak through the ballot box as an independent business element and not as a unit in one or the other of the political organizations.

At the last Dominion elections, and later still, in the Quebec provincial elections, the business element was stirred up to independent action as it was never stirred before; and while it did much good, it might have done a great deal more good.

Before many months the business men in the province of Ontario will be given an opportunity of exercising their influence at the polls, for before next midsummer the present Legislature will have expired through lapse of time.

The determining influence which should guide every business man in marking his ballot is not whether the present Government should be retained in power or whether the present Opposition should remain on the Speaker's left: The determining influence should be, is the candidate a practical business man or is he a professional partisan like unto the average member which sat in the last House.

Good government is more to be desired than party success, and the welfare of the country than a particular cause. But unless business men work and vote for practical business men to the sacrifice of party fealty the results will be the very opposite from those desired.

BEET SUGAR MAKING IN CANADA.

EARLY last year the Owen Sound Beet Sugar Co., Limited, a corporation started for the purpose of making sugar from beet root, distributed seed among the farmers in that part of the country with a view to inducing them to provide the raw material necessary to keep their proposed refinery in operation.

Some time since the County Council of North Grey took the matter in hand and appointed a commission to investigate the product of this seed. This commission has discovered that in three districts the yield run from 5 to 24 tons to the acre, in another from 12½ to 35 tons to the acre, and in the third from 9 to 28 tons per acre. Specimens have been sent to both the Provincial and Dominion authorities for analysis. The result will be awaited with some interest.

So far attempts at sugar beet cultivation in Canada have proved abortive. The last practical effort at manufacturing sugar from beet was that made at Berthier, Que. At one time it appeared to promise well, but it eventually collapsed and a year or two ago the machinery was sold to a beet sugar factory in the United States and removed by the purchasers.

That sugar beets can be cultivated in Canada seems beyond all question, but why the industry has not yet proved a profitable one is difficult to determine. Perhaps it may be the want of knowledge either in regard to the cultivation of the beets or as to the process of manufacture into sugar. Probably both of these have been contributory causes, while inadequate capital has perhaps been a third deterrent.

It is said the cost of a successful factory is all the way from $200,000 to $1,000,000. And not only is much money involved, but patience and much experimenting as well.

It is to be hoped the Owen Sound Beet Sugar Co., Limited, will be able to demonstrate that which has not yet been done, namely, that beet-sugar manufacturing can successfully be carried on in Canada.

SMUGGLING IN MAIL BAGS.

ONE thing which every loyal Canadian must regret to see is the great number of sensational newspapers from New York, Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo and other points in the United States which are distributed every week in Western Ontario.

These papers are ever disseminating doctrines antagonistic to Great Britain and to Canada, and while they may make no impression upon the mind of the mature Canadian, it must be remembered that these same journals also fall into the hands of the young, whose minds are easily impressed.

It does not follow that all these young minds become imbued with anti-British and anti-Canadian notions, but where there is a steady bombardment week after week, year in and year out, it is certain that the national spirit is not strengthened any. And it is a strengthened nationality we need in this country. The opposite we cannot afford.

But the mail bags which bring this anti-Canadian literature into the country are, it is alleged, loaded besides with contraband goods, such as tobacco, etc.

No one, of course, charges the United States Government with being a party to any such practice, but it is gravely charged by merchants doing business in Western Ontario towns than those who handle these bags are.

One thing is certain : a great deal of laxity exists in the matter of inspection of these bags. The very fact that they come into the country in such great numbers induces superficial examination. The mail bags supposedly containing only United States literature are taking across from Detroit and Buffalo and bundled off at the different stations in a hurry ; and it is the simplest thing in the world for confederates to carry on an enormous smuggling trade with the newspaper mail bags as their medium.

The Dominion Government should certainly investigate the charges regarding smuggling and in future establish a closer scrutiny of the newspaper mail bags coming from the chief centres of the United States, no matter how much or how little delay in the delivery of their contents may be entailed.

It may not be politic for the Government to stop the incoming of objectionable United States newspapers into the Dominion, but it is its duty to see that bags which bring in this objectionable literature do not also contain contrabrand goods which injure the trade of the legitimate merchants and manufacturers of the country.

The clerk is the private in the business army, and if he does not do his duty how can the battle be won ?

THE DISCHARGE CLAUSE.

IN each of the attempts which have been made to introduce a Dominion insolvency law the discharge clause has proved a bone of contention ; and in the attempt which in all likelihood will be made at the next session of Parliament there may be expected a repetition in this respect.

Practically everybody is agreed that there should be a discharge clause, but it is not everybody who is agreed as to the ways and means of the insolvents obtaining it.

When the last insolvency bill was before the House the bankers contended for 66⅔c. on the dollar as the amount an insolvent should pay before he could be entitled to a discharge, but the Senate fixed the amount at 50c. on the dollar.

It seems to us that a fixed statutory amount should only be embodied in an insolvency law after the most careful consideration and after it had been demonstrated that the best net results would be thus obtained.

The object of a discharge clause is chiefly two-fold : (1) to relieve honest but unfortunate insolvents from the burden of their misfortunes, and (2) to prevent dishonest insolvents from again resuming business in their own name.

To fix, however, the amount which shall be paid in order to obtain a discharge would often shut the door against a worthy case and open it to an unworthy.

A merchant who is honest, capable, but unfortunate, and who has surrendered all his assets to his creditors, is entitled to a discharge even if he is unable to pay twenty-five cents on the dollar. To keep such an one in bondage is only differing in degree from the now obsolete custom of putting a man in a debtors' prison until he was able to liquidate his liabilities.

On the other hand, fifty cents on the dollar, or any other fixed sum, would be no obstacle to the insolvent who failed designedly. Before he failed he would have provided the wherewithal for his discharge. A rogue fails in order that he may make money.

The more we are inclined to study this particular question the more are we inclined to the belief that the amount an insolvent shall pay should not be fixed by statute.

Of course, it would not be advisable to make the way of escape from the consequences of insolvency too easy. That would induce insolvency, and the last state might possibly be worse than the first. When a merchant finds himself in a tight corner financially it is better that he should exert himself to get out than he should passively allow himself to be squeezed into insolvency because of the knowledge that it would be the easiest way out of his difficulty.

But because the statute did not define the exact terms upon which an insolvent should get his discharge it does not necessarily follow that the demands upon him should be less onerous than if there was a statutory amount fixed, while, on the other hand, it is certain they would be less likely to be unduly irksome to the honest but unfortunate insolvent.

Let the matter of a discharge be first of all delegated to the creditors for consideration. After a careful investigation of the estate they would be the best qualified to determine the amount an insolvent should pay, or if he was entitled to a discharge under any condition whatsoever, even if he paid 90c. on the dollar.

Just as creditors now sometimes agree to a compromise when they should not, so in all probability would they sometimes agree to a discharge when they ought not. But eventualities of this kind could be guarded against by the question of a discharge being finally referred to the judge for adjudication.

Fixed statutory amount or no fixed statutory amount, the granting of a discharge should not be finally left in the hands of the creditors. To do so would sometimes result in justice being laxly administered in one instance and too rigorously in another. Spite and leniency are frequently in evidence at meetings of creditors, and therefore such a court cannot be said to be always qualified to mete out justice.

CURRANTS AGAIN ADVANCE.

CURRANTS continue to occupy a strong position, a further advance of 6d. being reported by cable this week.

The first laid-down cost of staple currants on the basis of this latest advance is something like 5¾c. per pound, and anything of quality costs, of course, more money.

Stocks which arrived by the Avlona have been pretty well used up, and there are many buyers for spot goods, but there are practically no sellers. One at least of the principal wholesale houses was this week compelled to send upon the street for currants to fill its orders.

The Bellona, the last direct steamer, will not arrive in Montreal till about the 15th inst., and deliveries cannot be made in the west till between the 20th and 25th inst. In the meantime the shortage will be more severely felt than at present, for the demand keeps brisk.

It will doubtless be remembered that the crop of currants is only about 135,000 tons, where 180,000 tons were expected by the early estimates.

NO BOTTOM TO CHEESE.

THE bottom seems to have dropped out of the cheese market, and in doing so has left a void so great that it will be difficult to fill.

Since the first of September the decline has been 2c. per pound, or $1.40 per box.

According to all precedent, finest fall cheese around 8½c. to 8¾c. ought to be cheap, but the rule does not apply this year. As one week passes into another, purchases, which looked cheap when made, become dear, and people are really wondering when rock bottom will be touched.

The keynote of the remarkable weakness at present ruling the market is the fact that every exporter on this side, as well as buyers on the other, are loaded up with cheese for the time being. Current daily demand is moderate, and traders having plenty of stock on hand for present and future wants, are independent regarding supplies. Accordingly, each successive week they have shaded their bids, and it is quite likely that they will continue to do so with the conditions as they are at present.

Another depressing influence has been the existing strike of the British engineers and a threatened lock-out of the cotton operatives. This would throw out 200,000 work-people in the northern district of Great Britain, where large quantities of cheese are consumed. Naturally, therefore, dealers on the other side, having large supplies in view, do not care to increase their obligations.

The statistical position, both hereand on the other side, is a strong bear argument. On the 1st of November the officially declared stocks at Liverpool were 125,000 boxes, against 80,000 at the same time last year. In Montreal the estimated stock at present is about 350,000 boxes, or 50,000 to 75,000 in excess of the same time last year. This weight of goods on both sides of the water is bound to influence buyers ; and until it has been reduced somewhat, demand is bound to drag.

THE PROSPECTIVE PROFITS IN MOLASSES.

OPERATORS in molasses in Montreal who have held on to their purchases all through the fall stand a good chance at present of making a handsome profit. There are only one or two who had the pluck to stay to the end, and as the market is at present they stand to make 1 to 1¾c. per gallon, the largest lots having cost 23¼c. laid down in store.

The action of jobbers during the past week is an indication that supplies in second hands are diminishing, and they will soon have to replenish. The bulls do not believe that they have anything to fear from the stocks held in the Maritime Provinces.

It would cost 27c. to lay down Barbadoes molasses in Montreal either from Halifax or St. John, and sellers would be quite content to realize for less than that figure. Besides, recent private advices state that all the molasses there is down at the seacoast will be wanted for domestic requirements and no consignments from there need be anticipated.

When a man goes into business he should go in for health as well as for wealth ; for wealth without health is not worth much.

A MERCHANT'S TEA PARTY.

ONE merchant in a town of 4,000 population, upon the receipt of a large and exceptionally good shipment of tea, had the town talking about it inside of a week. He put in, beside his regular advertisement, a local or two in each of the town's newspapers. Then he procured a table of as large dimensions as the window allowed, and set it as neatly as if he were laying a banquet for the mayor and council, putting on some of the daintiest table delicacies he carried, and had a "tea party" for children (accompanied by parents). One of the clerks, entering into the spirit of the display, offered his services as Mother Bountiful, and, donning a bulky, gaily-colored wrapper and bonnet, served tea and biscuits to the delighted children, all the time (in asides to parents) dilating on the value of the tea, the table delicacies, etc., displayed.

In order to keep the interest up the merchant advertised that the "party" would last only one hour each day, from four to five o'clock. The rest of the day the table stood in the window ready for the next "party," a splendid advertisement of his teas and table delicacies.

No tea was given to any but children, the wily merchant well understanding the weakness of womankind, curiosity, to be worth arousing, and he succeeded, fully 75 per cent. of the ladies entering the store buying some of the tea. Though not nearly to so great an extent, the merchant found the demand for his table delicacies also increased as the result of that "party."

But the chief result of the venture was the fact that the children afterwards seemed to come much more readily to his store.

That was his initial attempt at original window display, but since then he has had a "sandwich party" to advertise his ham, salmon, tongue, bologna, etc., a "plum pudding party" to advertise his raisins, currants, spices, etc., and is now contemplating a "bun feast" to spread the fame of his flour, meals, baking powders, flavoring extracts, etc.

Between parties he dresses his windows with the view to convince the public that he keeps nothing but the best goods, each display being accompanied by a card with a brief and sensible talk on the goods displayed.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, NOV. 4, 1897.

GROCERIES.

LOCALLY no particularly new features have developed during the week. The volume of business is fair for this time of the year. Sugar is quiet, although for the season fair quantities are going out, and among the orders are several carload lots. One of the features of the trade is the scarcity in currants. All kinds of foreign dried fruits are meeting with a good demand. Canned goods are not meeting with a brisk demand, although quite a few are still going out. Rio coffees are in active request. The improved demand noted last week for tea has been maintained. Syrups and molasses are quiet.

CANNED GOODS.

The feeling in regard to tomatoes is hardly as strong as it was, for while some of the packers are quoting just as high as before, others are reported to be willing to take lower figures. The feeling, however, is by no means weak, but it is the opinion that values have touched their highest point. The demand for canned vegetables is fair only. Canned salmon is still going out, although the demand is not brisk. According to our exchanges the position of canned salmon on the London market is stronger than for some time past. Toronto wholesalers report the demand brisk for kippered herrings of Canadian pack. We quote: Tomatoes, 85 to 90c.; corn, 65 to 85c.; peas, 85 to 87½c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90c. to $1; extra sifted, $1.25 to $1.40; beans, 65 to 80c.; peaches, $2.25 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.65 to $1 90, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $1.75 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 80 to 95c.; gallons, $2 to $2.25; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; other red salmon, $1.20 upwards, according to quality and brand; cohoes, 95c. to $1.10; canned mackerel, $1.25 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.85 to $2.95; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.35 to $1.40; 2's, $2.35 to $2.50; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16; Canadian kippered herrings, $4.50 per case.

COFFEE.

There is a good supply of Rio coffee on the market and more is arriving, while the demand, on account of the lowness of prices, is more than usually brisk. Jobbers quote green in bags: Rio, 8½ to 12½c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 12½ to 18c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 16 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

Business in syrups is quiet with prices firm. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

There is not much doing, but prices are firm at the recent advance. We quote. New Orleans, bbls., 23 to 35c.; ditto. half-bbls., 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c. in bbls. and half-bbls.; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-bbls., 33 to 35c.

SUGAR.

The sugar market is in a somewhat uninteresting condition. Locally the demand is only fair, although some movement in carload lots is reported. The London and New York markets are still dull. In the latter place the refiners are out of the market for raws. Austrian granulated is receiving some attention on the local market, some good quantities having been sold at 4 3-16c. per lb. in bags for ordinary quanties. We quote, subject to a discount of 1 per cent. 10 days: Granulated, 4 5-16c. for less than carload lots, and 4¼c. for carload lots; yellows, 3 9-16 to 3⅞ per lb.; Austrian granulated, 4 3-16c. in bags for less than carload lots.

NUTS.

Grenoble walnuts are being offered from Havre en route for Canada. It is reported by cable that the man who some years ago cornered the market is now trying to corner the market for Grenoble walnuts, and is said to have secured 3,000 bales of the new crop. Sicily filberts are cabled dearer owing to bad weather in the interior and small arrivals at Messina. We quote: Brazil nuts 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 20 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeaux walnuts, 8 to 9c.; Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

Japan rice is firm in the primary market. We quote: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½ to 4½c.

SPICES.

Trade is moderate for this time of the year. We quote: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 12c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 14c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 11 to 12c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18 to 20c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 20 to 22c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 18 to 20c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; ditto, best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

TEA.

The increased enquiry for teas noted last week has improved rather than otherwise, although the market is not yet by any means active. Ceylons and Japans are the descriptions most wanted. China teas are much as they were before. Prices for all kinds of tea, particularly for Japans and Ceylons, are decidedly strong. According to cables received in England two weeks ago the exports of India tea to the United Kingdom for the first half of October were 8,790,000 pounds against 9,200,000 the same time last year, and the total from April 1 as 77,840,000 pounds against 77,230,000 last year. The exports of Ceylon teas to the United Kingdom for the first half of October 2,100,000 pounds against 3,500,000 same time last year. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indias and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

CURRANTS—The cable announces another advance of 6d. per cwt. The demand on the local market is good, but there is a scarcity in supplies. The Bellona, the last direct steamer, will not be in Montreal till about the 15th inst. We quote: Filiatras, 6c. in bbls; 6⅛c. in half-bbls and 6¼c. in cases. Patras, 6½c. in bbls.; 6¾c. in half-bbls. and 6¾ to 7c. in cases. Vostizzas, 7 to 8c. in cases.

VALENCIA RAISINS—The situation, both in the home and foreign market, is much about the same as a week ago. We quote: New goods—Off-stalk, 4¾ to 5c.; fine off-stalk, 5½ to 6c.; selected, 6¼ to 6¾c.; layers, 6½ to 7c.

MALAGA RAISINS—Are costing such reasonable prices this season that the sale is sure to be large on the arrival of the Bellona. Their cheapness will be all the more marked in view of the fact that all other fruits are high in price. Bevan & Co., of Malaga, report that the size of the fruit is not quite as large as last year owing to the dryness of the season, but shipments already to hand show nice quality. We quote: Connoisseur clusters, $2.20; black baskets, $2.10 to $2.20; Imperial cabinets, $1.65 to $1.85; Royal Buckingham, $3.50 to $3.75; extra dessert clusters, $3.40 to $3.60.

CALIFORNIA LOOSE MUSCATELS — Shipments are arriving this week, and they are going out well in a small way. We quote: 3-crown, 7½c. per lb.; 4-crown, 8½c. per lb.; 1-lb. cartoons, 12c.

SULTANA RAISINS—Are meeting with fair demand. Something unique in the way of Sultana raisins on this market in the shape of fancy stock is 10-lb. tin boxes. This fruit is packed by Antoine Solari, and is branded "Diamond Jubilee." It sells wholesale at 14c. per lb.

DATES—There is a good demand at from 5 to 5½c. New dates, when they arrive several weeks hence, will probably sell at about 6½ to 7c. per lb.

FIGS—Natural figs are cabled 3s. per cwt. dearer. These figs, excepts taps of Comadra, are rather scarce on spot, and there are no more of fine quality to be had in Smyrna. The cause of the shortage is damage by rain. The finer goods are not held in abundant supply. We quote: 4-crown, 10 to 11c.; 5-crown, 11 to 13c.; 7-crown, 13 to 14c.; 9-crown, 15 to 16c.; natural figs, in bags, 4½ to 5c.

PRUNES—The small sizes of French prunes are offering, but the better grades are held too high for exportation. There will be practically no importation of European prunes this year, the supply coming from California. We quote: 40 to 50's, 10½c.; 50 to 60's, 8 to 8½c.; 60 to 70's, 7½ to 8c.; 70 to 80's, 7 to 7½c.; 80 to 90's, 6½ to 7c.; 90 to 100's, 6 to 6½c. Silver prunes (fancy), 13½c.; egg plums, 9½c.

CALIFORNIA EVAPORATED FRUITS.—The second shipment of new season's California fruits are on the market, and prices are now down to what is considered a proper basis. We quote: Apricots, 9 to 9½c. per lb. in 50-lb. boxes, 9½ to 16c. in 25-lb. boxes, and 13 to 14c. in 1-lb. cartoon boxes; Peaches, 9½ to 12½c. in 25-lb. boxes, and 13c. per lb. in 1-lb. cartoons.

GREEN FRUITS.

The market this week shows an all-round activity, the demand for all lines being quite brisk. Jamaica oranges are on the market in large quantities. The prices of bananas, celery, Canadian cranberries and Canadian apples have advanced. We quote as follows: Lemons, fancy Rhodi, $5 to $5.50; fancy Verdilli, $3.25 to $3.75; choice Verdilli, $2.50 to $3. Cocoanuts, $4 a sack and 60c. per doz.; Jamaica oranges, $9 per bbl.; bananas, $1.50 to $2; Cape Cod cranberries, $7 to $7.50 per bbl.; Canadian cranberries, $5 to $6.50 per bbl.; quinces, 20 to 30c.; chestnuts, $5 a bushel; Canadian apples, $2.75 to $3.25 per barrel and 40 to 50c. per basket; Spanish onions, $1.25 per case; pickling onions, 75c. per

PROVISIONS.

There has been a good steady demand this week for dry salted meat and barrel pork. Lard has advanced ¼c. all round. Dressed hogs are moving more freely at easier prices, and packers are taking all offered. Smoked meats, shoulder hams and rolls have fallen ½c. per lb. in price. We quote:

DRY SALTED MEATS—Long and short clear bacon, 8¼c. for carload lots, and 8¼ to 8½c. per lb. for ton lots and cases.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 12 to 12½c.; rolls, 9 to 9½c.; hams, large, 10c.; medium, 11c.; small, 11½c.; shoulder hams, 8½ to 9c.; backs, 12c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD—Pure Canadian, tierces, 6½c.; tubs, 6¾c.; pails, 7c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $14 to $14.50; Canadian short-cut, $16; clear shoulder mess, $13.50.

DRESSED HOGS—We quote: $5.50 to $5.75 for heavy, and $5.75 to $5.90 for light hogs.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—The demand is steady, dealers taking up all arriving although they are now coming forward freely. We quote: 15 to 16c., and the second grade brings 11 to 13c.; pickled eggs, 12½ to 13½c.

POTATOES—The supply is plentiful, and the demand is good. Carload lots are worth 50c. and small lots on the market 60 to 65c.

HONEY—Market is easy. We quote: Clover honey, 7½c.; buckwheat, 4c.; light color, in 60-lb. tins, 6 to 6½c.; 5 and 10-lb. tins, 7 to 7½c.; comb, $1.50 to $1.75 per dozen.

POULTRY—Turkeys are coming in very freely. Chickens are not so plentiful. Prices are unchanged. We quote: Geese, 6c. per lb.; chickens, dressed, 25 to 50c.; alive, 35 to 45c.; ducks, 40 to 75c.; turkeys, 9 to 11c. per lb.

DRIED APPLES—The demand is brisk, and many dealers report the supply to be meagre. We quote 4 to 4½c. per lb., f.o.b. point of shipment as the nominal price.

EVAPORATED APPLES—There is practically nothing doing. We quote this season's fruit at 8c. f.o.b., and as high as 10 to 10½c. is being asked by jobbers

BEANS—Quotations are 85c. for prime beans in quantities and 90c. for small lots.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—Good dairy is not so scarce as it has lately been. Creamery is easier, from 19 to 20c. seeming to be about the leading price for pound prints. We quote: Dairy, best grade, 16 to 17c.; second grade, 13 to 15c.; low grade, 11 to 12c.; creamery, early make, tubs, 17 to 18c.; late make, tubs, 17 to 18c.; prints, 19 to 20c.

CHEESE—Market is easy. Local quotations are 9 to 10c., according to make.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—Market unchanged, the demand continuing steady. We quote: Cowhides—Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2, and 6½c. for No. 3. Steerhides—60 lbs. and up, 9c. for No. 1, 8c. for No. 2 and 7c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS—Stocks well cleared up. We quote as follows: No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Dekins, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS—We quote: Lambskins and pelts, 75 to 90c.

WOOL—Fleece wool is quiet, there being none in the market. Pulled wools are fairly active. We quote super pulled wools at 21 to 22c.; extra at 22 to 23c.

SEEDS.

The trade for some time yet will be governed by values for export in competition with other markets. Red clover of ordinary average quality is moving just now at $3 to $3.20 per bushel at outside points, while for rich, bold seed a somewhat better figure would be paid. Alsike covers a wide range in qualities this season, prices varying from $3 to $4.50 per bushel. Timothy, in sympathy with American markets, runs from $1 to $1.25 per bushel.

FISH.

The market is fairly good all round. Finnan haddie is in good demand, the price having fallen ½c. Pike has also fallen in price. We quote: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 4c. per lb.; whitefish, 7c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb.; fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 6½ to 7c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $5.75 to $6 per bbl. and $3.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $5 per bbl. and $2.75 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg; ciscoes, 75c. to $1.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—Market generally is firm. Wheat is quite strong, a rise of 2c. having taken place during the last week. We quote: Winter wheat, 83c.; No. 2 red, 83 to 84c. at outside points; freights to Toronto are about 3 to 5c.; barley, 27 to 31c.; peas, 44 to 45c.; oats, 20 to 23c., Toronto freights, and No. 1 hard wheat is quoted at $1, Toronto freights.

FLOUR—The demand is good. Prices have advanced in sympathy with the price of wheat. We quote in carloads on track at Toronto: Manitoba patents, $5.40; Manitoba strong bakers, $5; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $4.80; straight roller, $4.20 to $4.25, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—We quote: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.30 in bags and $3.40 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.75 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.50; split peas, $3.25; pot barley, $3.

SALT.

Business would be brisk now if railroads could haul all goods ordered. We quote: Carload lots, $1 per bbl., and 65c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl., and 70c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B.. barrels, 70c.; sacks, 50c.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

Business is fairly good this week. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Canadian, 14c.; carbon safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

Clover honey has advanced ½c.

Currants are 6d. dearer in Patras.

Shoulder hams and rolls have dropped ½c. per lb. in price.

Dressed hogs have declined 25c. for both light and heavy stock.

There has been an all-round advance of 10 to 20c. per bbl. in flour.

According to mail reports from Liverpool, the receipts there of Valencia raisins from the beginning of the season to Oct. 12 amounted to 2.987 tons, against 1,806 tons for the same period last year.

Mr. P. C. Larkin shipped one of his "Ideal" tea packers to Buenos Ayres this week.

Cables to J. L. Watt & Scott, and E. Fielding, quote an advance of 3s. per cwt. in natural figs in bags.

The crop of Naples walnuts is reported to be small, but of fine quality. The crop is later than in former years.

Advices from Smyrna report a very firm market there for Sultana raisins, the stocks having been greatly reduced by the demand of consuming markets, and the prospects point to maintenance of present prices.

According to mail reports, receipts of currants at Liverpool to Oct. 12 amounted to 9,012 tons, against 5,688 tons for the same period last year. The estimated stock in bond in Liverpool on Oct. 12 was 4,628 tons, as compared with 3,700 tons on the same date in 1896.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Nov. 4, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THERE has been a fair volume of trade transacted in general groceries during the week, and values, as a general thing, exhibit no change. Sugar is steady, though the competition of cheap German granulated is becoming a strong factor of the situation. Syrups are steady, and with light stocks in first hands, and indications of increased demand from jobbers, firmer values are looked for in molasses. Spices are firm, and the coffee market is unchanged. The same applies to rice, while in tea jobbers have been around the market for supplies, and show more disposition to buy than heretofore. The tendency of the staple is very firm. Dried fruits are steady and unchanged from a week ago.

SUGAR.

In spite of easiness outside both in raw and refined there has been little change in the position here. This is not surprising, considering the fact that Canadian prices on refined have been all along away below those in the United States. There is a fair demand for the season, and the volume of business doing is considered satisfactory. Values here in a jobbing way range from 4 to 4⅛c., according to quantity, on granulated, and yellows 3⅜ to 3¾c. as to grade. If the proposed Dominion agreement is confirmed it may mean some advance in the price, but nothing will be decided in this connection for a week or so. Outside advices this week reflect little change, the market for raws continuing heavy. Mr. Licht's estimate of the total production in Europe is 98,500,000 cwt., of which Germany produces 38,500,000 cwt.

SYRUPS.

There is no new feature in syrups. Stocks in refiners' hands are very small and the market remains quiet with prices fully maintained at 2⅜ and 2½c. as to grade and quantity.

MOLASSES.

No actual change is to report in the molasses market. Enquiry in a wholesale sense is limited, but the demand in a jobbing way is more active than it was, and stocks in second hands are said to have melted away perceptibly during the past ten days. As they were lighter than usual a demand from first hands should follow as a natural result. Supplies here also are of limited compass, and prices are firmly held with the possibility of advances, as they cannot be replaced at the same cost. We quote Barbadoes 25 and 26c. in a jobbing way.

RICE.

There is a fair demand for rice, but jobbers being pretty well stocked up the volume of trade is not heavy, though it is of a steady character. In sympathy with foreign advices the tone continues firm. We quote: Crystal Japan, $5.00; standard B., $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $5 to $5.50; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25; and Java kinds, $4,25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

The strong feeling in pepper is the chief fact of the situation, no new supplies of white pepper being obtainable under 15c. in round lots. Jobbing demand for all kinds of spice is of a fairly active character, We quote: Black pepper, 10 to 12c.; pure white, 17 to 20c., as to grade; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar (French), 25 to 27c.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; and nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEE.

There has been little change in the coffee market, and a moderate business is doing at quotations. We quote: Maracaibo, 17 to 18c.; Rio, 11 to 12c.; Santos, 13 to 14c.; Mocha, 24 to 25c., and Java, 24 to 25c.

TEAS.

The tea market since last report has been more active, as jobbers have shown more disposition to operate, and as they have advanced their bids some business has been put through. In fact, more activity is confidently predicted, as stocks in second hands are pretty generally admitted to be light. Pingsueys were wanted during the week, and 350 package lots of Japans changed hands at 16c., while Congous were placed at 15c. and some lots at 16c., the same invoices being offered the previous week at 15 to 15½c., with no takers. We quote: Young Hysons, 14 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15½ to 21c. for mediums and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 17 to 20c. for mediums and 35 to 65c. for higher grades.

CANNED GOODS.

There is little change in the situation. A fair jobbing demand is experienced, but jobbers are doing little buying, as they consider that they have enough to carry them along for some time yet. We quote: Tomatoes, 80 to 90c.; corn, 60 to 75c.; peas, 75c. to $1.25; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 95c.; gallons, $1.65 to $1.75; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.25 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.25 to $1.45; "Lion," $1.25 to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.20, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 for extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

There is no change in Valencia raisins, but there is a fair jobbing enquiry for prompt and future shipment at steady prices. We quote: Off-stalk, 4½c.; fine do., 4¾ to 5c.; selected, 5¾ to 6c., and 4-crown layers, 6¾ to 7c. To arrive this month jobbers are quoting a fraction less money, but for prompt shipment the above figures hold.

The firm tone is maintained on California fruit, and for prompt delivery last week's quotations still govern, viz., 2-crown, 5½c., 3-crown, 6½c., and 4-crown, 7¾c.

The currant market is very firm, and though sales are being made at former prices for goods now in stock jobbers demand an advance on stock to arrive this month. We quote: Patras, half-cases, 6¼c.; Filiatra, do., 5¾c.; do. half-bbls, 5½c.; do., bbls., 5⅜c. Provincials, 5c. in bbls., 5⅜c. in cases, and 5½c. in half-cases, and Vostizzas, half-cases, 8c.

Loose muscatel Malaga raisins are offered at 6 to 7c. Layers and clusters are steady, ranging from $1.35 to $4, according to brand and package.

French prunes exhibit a very firm feeling, and on the small sizes an advance of ½ to ¾c. is demanded for fresh shipments. No quotations are obtainable from primary markets on the large sizes. No new French prunes are yet in stock, but for stock to arrive this month 4¼c. is asked. The Carlisle City brought in the first shipment of new Austrian prunes, which range from 6 to 7c., according to size. California prunes are firmly held, as quoted last week: 40 to 50s., 9¾ to 10c.; 50 to 60s., 8¾ to 9c.; 60 to 70s., 8¼ to 8½c., and 70 to 80s., 7½ to 7¾c.

Evaporated apricots are firm and selling at 11½ to 12c.

Peels continue strong, as quoted last week citron being offered at 16c. on spot, but fresh supplies cost more money.

Figs are offering at 9 to 10c. in 14-oz. boxes, 10 to 11c. in 10-lb. boxes and 4c. in bags.

NUTS.

Business in nuts is quiet on the whole. Sicily filberts are offered at 7c., Grenoble walnuts at 10c., Terragona almonds at 8c. and Valencia shelled almonds at 21 to 22c.

DRIED APPLES.

There is no change in dried apples, business ruling quiet and prices unchanged at 3 to 4c., while evaporated are held at 5½ to 6c.

APPLES.

There is a good demand for apples, and under the light supplies values rule steady. Firsts are held at $3 to $4 per bbl.; seconds, $2.50 to $3, and inferior, $1.50 to $2.

GREEN FRUIT.

Green fruit is moderately active for all lines, and prices are generally steady. We quote: Lemons, $2.50 to $3 per box; Jamaica oranges, $8 to $8.75 per barrel; bananas, $2.25 per bunch; California peaches, $1.75 to $2 per box; Canadian do., 40 to 50c. per basket; Canadian pears, $2 to $5 per bbl.; Almeria grapes, $5 to $5.50 per cask; do. California Tokays, $2.25 to $2.50 per crate; cranberries, $7.50 to $8 for Cape Cod, and $6 to $6.50 for Nova Scotia, per bbl.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—The egg market continues steady and a good business in pickled for export has been transacted. We quote: New-laid, 15 to 15½c.; choice candled, 12 to 13c., and culls, 10 to 10½c. per dozen, in round lots.

BEANS—There was no change in beans; the demand was quiet to-day at 80 to 90c. for primes, and at 95c. to $1 for choice hand-picked per bushel.

HONEY—Business in honey was very quiet and values were steady. We quote: Clover comb at 10 to 11c.; bright extracted at 7½ to 8½c., and dark at 5 to 5½c.

POTATOES—There is little doing in potatoes and the market rules quiet and steady at 45 to 50c. per bag, in car lots.

PROVISIONS.

The demand for provisions was slow to-day and trade was quiet, but prices show no change. We quote: Canadian pork, $15 to $16 per barrel; pure Canadian lard in pails, at 7½ to 8c., and compound refined at 5½ to 5¾c. per lb.; hams, 12 to 14c.; bacon, 12 to 13c. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

The flour market has exhibited some irregularity during the week, but on the whole values are firm in tone and Manitoba millers have advanced their prices 15c. per bbl. over last week's range. We quote: Winter wheat, patents, $4.75 to $5; straight rollers, $4.35 to $4.50; bags, $2.10 to $2.20; best Manitoba strong bakers', $5.15; second do., $4.65, and low grades, $2.80; Hungarian patents, $5.55.

The meal market was without any change. We quote: Rolled oats, $3.40 to $3.50 per barrel and $1.65 to $1.70 per bag: standard meal, $3.30 per barrel and $1.60 per bag.

In feed business is active, and prices are maintained. We quote: Ontario bran at $11, and shorts at $12 per ton, bulk; Manitoba bran, bags included, at $11.50.

BALED HAY.

A fair trade was done in hay, but the supply is far in excess of requirements and prices have an easy tendency. No. 1 sold at $10.50; No. 2 at $8 to $8.50 per ton, in car lots, on track.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

There is no let-up to the decline in cheese. This was demonstrated at the wharf Monday morning, when 6,000 boxes were sold at 7½ to 7¾c., the outside price being made only in a few cases. It is quite true that the offerings were all October make, but even allowing that this was so, a clean slump of ½ to ¾c. per pound since the previous Monday is enough to dishearten even the most sanguine. Enquiry over the cable gives no sign of life and current daily business is of small dimensions, being confined to a process of averaging up, dealers who have dear goods on hand acquiring sufficient cheap stock to even up for the higher priced. Buyers in Great Britain are evidently nervous regarding the possible strike of the cotton operatives, and the effect it will have on the demand. In addition they have got enough to get along with for the time being, and both these circumstances tend to confine demand to immediate necessities. There was little trading on spot, aside from the boat goods, and values have a wide range, owing to the great difference between buyers' and sellers' views. On the average values were nominally ⅛c. lower than Saturday, and we quote: Finest Ontario Septembers, 8⅝ to 8⅞c.; finest Townships Septembers, 8⅜c.; finest Ontario Augusts, 8⅛ to 8¼c.; finest Quebec Septembers, 8⅛ to 8¼c.; finest Quebec Octobers, 7¾ to 7⅞c.

The only trading in creamery butter is on local account, local jobbers paying 18½c.

Bird Seed Points

Appreciate down weights, paper bags, twine, time, trouble, dirt, and other waste, and you'll educate customers to use packet bird seed instead of loose. Appreciate the peculiar properties protected by six patents, securing health, song, long life and active appetite to birds using Cottams Seed, and you'll never keep any other brand in stock. A bird's long life means a long bill for seed.

Cottams Seed is sold by all wholesalers.

for moderate quantities. Exporters were not in the market to any extent, their bids being too low. They want finest fall creamery at 18c. now, and holders, while they have modified their views, are hardly prepared to accept this decline. There is still a fair quantity of stock remaining in factorymen's hands of the September and first half October make. We quote: Finest creamery, 18 to 18½c.; seconds, 17½ to 17¾c.; dairy butter, 14½ to 15c.

MONTREAL NOTES.

Manitoba grades of flour have been marked up 15c. per bbl. in this market during the week.

Valencia raisins on spot are held steady, but fractionally lower prices are quoted for future delivery this month.

Licht's estimate of the European sugar production is 98,500,000 cwt. of which Germany is credited with 38,500,000.

No quotations are obtainable on the larger sizes of French prunes from primary markets, and an advance equivalent to ½ to ¾c. is asked on the smaller sizes.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER,
ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 1, 1897.

THE week has shown fair business, though the dulness in lumber is making itself felt in general trade. Very few men are being sent into the woods compared with last year. This makes a very much less demand for such supplies as molasses, pork, beans, etc. It is said the cut this year will be at least a third less than that of last year. Potatoes have been a matter of interest during the last few weeks. Large quantities have been received here, and the market is rather easier. This is largely due to western potatoes coming into the Boston market and breaking the price there. In general lines there is little change as far as prices are concerned. Flour has been rather more active, owing to increased firmness. In spices there is an improved sale and prices tend upward. New dried fruit has been received freely during the week. Apples find but fair demand this fall, owing to high prices asked. Receipts from Nova Scotia are not large.

OIL—There is little to report. Any activity there is is confined to burning oil, and that to the shipping of orders previously booked. Lubricating oils are quiet. In cod oil the firmer feeling continues. There is no large demand, but receipts are light. We quote: Best American burning oil, 17½ to 18½c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 17c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 15c.; cod oil, 22 to 24c.

is. Hundreds of thousands of Dollars are being expended yearly to educate the public in regard to Enameline. It sells on sight. It puts dollars into the pockets of dealers who handle it.

SALT—A cargo of Liverpool coarse was to hand this week, containing some 6,000 bags. The cargo of last week had supplied the more urgent demand, so that sale was less active than otherwise would have been the case. Another cargo is shortly expected, and after December 1 receipts by steamer will be regular. Prices are unchanged, but the feeling is easy. In Canadian salt there is nothing new. This salt has large, steady sale. We quote: Coarse, 47 to 50c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 85 to $1; Canadian fine, 90c. to $1 per bag; 5-lb. bags in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.50 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS.—The strong feeling continues. Dealers find no trouble in getting the advanced prices. The trade here is short on gallon apples, for which there is sure to be a demand this year. In salmon there is quite a range in quotations on account of quite a quantity being carried over from last year which cost much higher than that imported this season and because of different grades in the market. As a rule, however, the prices quoted are lower than even the lower cost of this season warrant. Lobsters are scarce. Oysters as yet show very light sale. We quote: Corn, 70 to 75c.; peas, 75 to 90c.; tomatoes, $1 to $1.10; gallon apples, $2.20 to $2.25; corned beef, Canadian, $2.40 to $2.50; American, 2-lb. tins, $2.60 to $2.70; 1-lb. tins, $1.40 to $1.60; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.20; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.50 to $2.75; salmon, $1.10 to $1.20; lobsters, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, $1.05 to $1.15; clams, $5 for 4 doz.; chowder, $2.50 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $5.50 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

GREEN FRUIT.—A good business is being done. In apples the high prices affect the sale. Receipts are away below last year. In oranges the best now on the market are Jamaica, the price of which is quite high. In lemons there is light sale. In Ontario fruit business is about over. A few grapes are still offered however. Malagas find better sale. Cranberries are good sale, with the native fruit in good supply. We quote: Lemons, $4 to $5.25; oranges, $6 to $8 per bbl.; apples, $3 to $4.50; bananas, $1.50 to $2; grapes, 25 to 40c.; Malaga grapes, $5 to $5.50; native bog cranberries, $5 to $6 per bbl., Cape Cod cranberries, $7 to $8 per bbl.; sweet potatoes, $3.25 to $3.50 per bbl.

DRIED FRUIT—This line is having more attention. New goods are coming to hand. Good stocks of Valencias are now here. New figs are to hand, and show splendid quality. The pound boxes are much better than usual. Stock held is quite large. New California raisins will soon be here. Stock bought to arrrive is small. The same is true of prunes. In prunes and evaporated fruits there should be a good demand this year on account of the high price of evaporated apples. Stock of this last named is very light here, and prices are out of sight. Dried apples tend upward, but have limited demand. Currants are good stock and hold their price. The large demand continues to be for cleaned. Onions are plentiful. We quote: Valencias, 5½ to 6c.; California L. M., 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c.; prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples, 3½ to 4c.; evaporated apples, 7 to 8c.; onions, $2 to $2.15 per bbl.; cocoanuts, $3 to $3.50 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.; new Valencias, layers, 6½ to 7c.

SUGAR—There is but fair business doing. Prices seem firm. We quote: Granulated, 4¼ to 4⅜c.; yellows, 3⅜ to 3¾c.; Paris lump, 5½ to 5¾c.; powdered, 5¼ to 5½c.

MOLASSES—The feeling seems easier as the season advances. The smaller demand than usual on lumbermen's account is much felt. Stocks are not large, and reports from outside points are favorable. Those holding stocks are sellers. The small cargo of Porto Rico mentioned in a previous report found much less demand than was expected. We quote: Barbadoes, 23 to 25c.; Porto Rico, 27 to 30c.; New Orleans, barrels, 28 to 30c.; Antiqua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.; Demerara, 33 to 34c.

DAIRY PRODUCE—This is a quiet line. Butter is dull. A fair sale at a price for best stock, but it is in limited supply. Cheese is easier and local demand is not large. Stocks here, while not large, seem ample. Eggs are slow, except for strictly fresh, which find fair demand. We quote: Dairy butter, 15 to 17c.; creamery, 19 to 20c.; prints, 20 to 22c.; cheese, 10 to 10½c.; eggs, 13½ to 14c.

FISH—There is a good steady sale at firm prices. Receipts are not large. Dry cod fully hold last week's prices. In pollock the price is higher than for a long time, and on account of light catch is likely to remain so. Bay herring find ready sale. The price is steady, with stocks light. Bloaters and kippered herring are now being received and there is a steady sale. We quote: Large cod, $3.50 to $3.60; medium, $3.25 to $3.30; pollock, $1.55 to $1.60; bay herring, $1.40 to $1.50 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 7½ to 8c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50 to $5; boneless, 2½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.; Shelburne, bbls., $2.75; half-bbls, $1.85 to $1.90; Canso, $5 to $5.25 per bbl.; do, half-bbl., $2.75 to $3; wolves, $2.25 to $2.50 half-bbl.; bloaters, 50 to 60c.; kippered herring, $1.

the light demand for the lumber woods. Stocks of clear pork are still quite large, with price low, compared with present cost. Mess pork is firm with stock light. Beef has an upward tendency with fair sale. Hams are easier. Lard is also easier, though still well above the low price of a few weeks ago. We quote: Clear pork, $14.50 to $15.50; mess, $13 to $14; plate beef, $13.50 to $14; hams, 12 to 13c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; pure lard, 7½ to 8c.; compound, 6½ to 6¾c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—While there seems a firmer feeling in flour, dealers here are not free buyers, nor are stocks large. There is but a fair sale from store. Oatmeal shows a rather easier feeling. Cornmeal keeps low with good demand. Feed is very hard to get; there is not enough to supply demand; prices high. Beans seem to tend downward again. In oats there is fair sale at even prices. Market is being supplied largely from Ontario. Split peas are hard to get. Blue peas are easy. Hay, dull. Western grey buckwheat is freely offered. There is little beside yellow grown here. We quote as follows: Manitoba flour, $5.75 to $5.80; best Ontario, $4.90 to $5; medium, $4.75 to $4.80; oatmeal, $3.65 to $3.70; cornmeal, $1.90 to $2.00; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $16.50 to $17.00; bran, do, $15.50 to $16; hand-picked beans, $1.10 to $1.15; prime, 95c. to $1.00; oats, 34 to 36c.; hay, $11.50 to $12.50; barley, $3.15 to $3.25; round peas, $1.00; split peas, $3.25 to $3.30; yellow eye beans, $1.75.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

Robert Parkins has taken over the sausage business of Dunn & Co.

Large shipments of figs were received by the city dealers this week from Antoine Solari.

F. H. Tippet & Co. have been appointed agents for "Maypole" soap. This soap is used as a dye.

Game is very plentiful in the Lower Provinces this fall. It is said one hundred moose have been shot in Nova Scotia this season.

Tan bark, which is quite a large industry in this province, is low at present, lower than ever known, being worth but $4.50 per cord.

A. C. Smith & Co., commission merchants, West End, St. John, who do a large business in oats, feed and hay, are building a new warehouse 200 x 40 feet.

The giving in St. John for the Windsor people who suffered such a heavy loss by fire has been very generous. Mr. W. W. Turnbull, of the late firm of Turnbull & Co., gave $150. This is but one of the large money gifts, besides which large quantities of provisions and clothing were sent.

Mr. N. M. Markwell, president of the Boston Molasses Co., was in the city this week, and in company with the local representative, J. Hunter White, called on the wholesale trade.

Nova Scotia farmers are, where they have apples, getting a handsome profit. Gravensteins bring $3 to $3.50 freely right where grown. Winter fruit will be high. The export from the province last season was 400,000 bbls. This year, at the outside, it is not expected to reach one-quarter that quantity.

A GROCERY ASSIGNMENT.

It was announced Tuesday morning that the old and prominent grocery firm of Dufresne & Mongenais, No. 221 St. James street, Montreal, had consented to assign. The matter, which will be greatly regretted by Montrealers, was not altogether unexpected, as for several days past it has been rumored that an assignment was almost inevitable.

The culmination came on Tuesday morning, when Mr. J. B. Amadee Mongenais, the remaining partner in the firm, consented to assign at the instance of Hudon, Hebert & Cie., Mr. Charles P. Hebert being appointed provisional guardian.

What the liabilities are is not known at the present time, and though they are quite large it is thought likely that Mr. Mongenais' friends will come forward to his assistance, and in some manner straighten out so that the firm may continue.

The firm is one of the oldest in Montreal, and previous to 1876 did business under the title of Dufresne & McGarity. In May of that year this firm failed, and after a settlement was effected the business was continued under the present style, Mr. Mongenais buying an interest. It is only a few months since ex-Ald. J. M. Dufresne, the senior member of the firm, passed away.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

McLean & McKay, general merchants, Underwood, report business rushing.

C. E. Mahon, grocer, of Paisley, has sold his stock and business to I. McClure.

Jas. Piesi, grocer, of Southampton, has added a fine new stock of dry goods to his business.

A. J. Campbell, late of Malcolm, who recently purchased the business of Ballantyne Bros., Tiverton, is booming.

S. F. Milligan, of Clifford, formerly school teacher, has opened out a nice new stock of groceries and provisions in Clifford.

LATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

[The following items arrived too late for insertion in the regular advertising space. Reading notices inserted in this column at 5c. per word.]

Robert Greig & Co.: "The month of October has been the biggest and most satisfactory in our business experience."

Say Lucas, Steele & Bristol: "'Shinon' glass and silver polish is just as fine a seller as the metal polish. Everyone pleased with it."

Rutherford, Marshall & Co.: "Parties holding or looking for dairy or creamery butter would do well to communicate with us, as we are daily receiving and shipping large quantities."

W. H. Gillard & Co. report their sales of "Diamond" and "Special Label" baking powders to have increased largely during the past year, and large shipments have been made to the Lower Provinces.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited: "Crushed Java and Mocha coffee is in brisker demand than ever, many grocers finding it the best line to handle to ensure full aroma and perfect drinking quality without evaporation while in stock."

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited: "Kolona Ceylon tea has acquired a leading and permanent position among the trade. Not only are its sales increasing with our regular customers, but we are daily adding to their number in Ontario, Quebec and the Northwest."

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND NOTES.

The potato market is rather easier, prices in Boston and Newfoundland having fallen off. The crop is hardly as large as last year, but quality is good.

Eggs are being shipped freely both to Montreal and to the English market; the price on the Island is about 12c. Large quantities of cheese are still being shipped to England, about one thousand boxes going forward last week. T. J. Dillon, of Charlottetown, is the principal shipper.

Both oysters and cranberries are moving freely. The price of oysters ranges from $2.50 to $3 per bbl. Fair quantities of butter are being shipped by the creamery at Summerside to the West Indies. It is packed in sealed tins.

The movement in sheep and lambs is large. One of the buyers out for S. H. Jones, of Summerside, last week bought two thousand.

MOLASSES FOR CATTLE.

THE SOCIETY OF ARTS JOURNAL states that: "An interesting report has recently been made by H. M. Consul at Stettin, on the subject of feeding cattle on molasses, and the advisability of mixing it with peat dust or 'mull' for that purpose. The method of fattening cattle and sheep by feeding them with molasses has for a few years past been largely experimented on by agriculturists in Germany. One of the difficulties which had to be overcome was that of obtaining the raw molasses with 50 per cent. of sugar remaining in it, in consequence of the molasses being subjected to a further process for the extraction of the sugar, after passing out of the original factory.

"Another question of even greater moment was the difficulty of finding a proper medium with which to mix the molasses in order to counteract the purging effect which molasses alone, or in conjunction with some other feeding stuffs, exercises on cattle when fed with it even in small quantities.

"It is found that the molasses, which have up to the present been in the German market, contain injurious salts, which are prejudicial to the health of beasts. The latter difficulty has apparently been met (although some are of a contrary opinion) by a mixture of molasses with a dust (mull) obtained from the moss-turf (peat). The moss-turf—from which the dust or mull is obtained by being torn up or teased out by a machine for making moss litter, called a 'wolf'—is taken from the upper strata of high-lying peat moors, and consists largely of the dried but non-decomposed fibre of the sphagnum cuspidatum, and the eriophorum latifolium. The acids contained in the moss-turf, more especially the humic acids, neutralise the salts of proteine of potassium held by the molasses, and render them harmless; the action of the mull being to counteract the severe purging caused by the molasses alone, which is the chief objection to its use as a fodder.

"It is recommended by experts that molasses-mull-fodder should first be given in very small quantities, and gradually increased to the following amounts: Fattening cattle, 6 lbs. per head daily; milking cows, 5 lbs.; horses, 3 lbs.; sheep, for fattening, 1½ lbs.; sheep, 1 lb.; pigs (per 100 lbs. live weight) 1 lb.

"The following are the advantages stated by experimenters to accrue from the molasses-mull-fodder. It is 50 per cent. cheaper than the best fat-producing food, and yet equal in nourishment. It tends to keep the animal in health, helps the digestion, and whets the appetite. It is almost equal in nourishment to, and a good substitute for bran. It prevents colic and other sickness. It gives a glossy healthy appearance to the skin. In consequence of the large proportion of sugar it contains, it acts as a stimulant, and increases the working capabilities and stamina. With proper and careful use for milk cows, it increases the production of milk while improving the quality. When used for fattening it increases weight and improves the flavor of the meat. It lessens the expenses of the farmer both in respect to fodder and as a manure, the large proportion of alkali in the molasses being specially advantageous in the latter. It will keep stored for an unlimited time."

NEW WHOLESALE HOUSE.

St. John is to have a new wholesole grocery house, the first for some time. Jones & Schofield is the name of the firm. The first name in the firm is Simeon Jones, Jr., son of one of our wealthy citizens, and who was with the wholesale house of Geo. S. de Forest & Sons. The other partner, Fred Schofield, is the son of Mr. Geo. Schofield, manager of the Bank of New Brunswick. Joseph Rainnie, book-keeper for Geo. S. de Forest & Sons, goes with the new firm.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

This department has become so popular that many more notices than there is space for are received every week. In future only important items of information will be inserted. Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

THE WM. RYAN CO., LIMITED, have special orders for creamery butter in 1-lb. lots, and are willing to pay a fancy price.

T. Kinnear & Co. have Canadian kippered herrings in stock.

New Tarragona almonds are in stock with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

Beardsley's shredded codfish is in stock with the Davidson & Hay, Limited.

Batger & Co.'s crystalized peels are in store with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. have an active demand for small hams and short rolls.

Perkins, Ince & Co. have a large shipment of Rio coffee, assorted grades, arriving.

Barataria Shrimps and Cove oysters are in stock with the Eby Blain Co., Limited.

Robert Greig & Co.'s "Crown" extracts are in great demand these days with the best trade.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, have just received a large shipment of Brand's sauce, "A 1" brand.

New season's Ceylons and Assam Pekoes are arriving this week for the Davidson & Hay, Limited.

Warren Bros. & Co. are offering evaporated apricots at prices below those ruling for evaporated apples.

Several large shipments of Buchanan's candied peels have been landed lately by Robert Greig & Co.

The Dawson Commission Co., Limited, are expecting a car of oranges this week direct from Mexico.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, report that they have already sold one car of California evaporated fruits and are daily expecting another, consisting of prunes, all sizes from 30-40's to 90-100's, silver prunes, golden and egg plums, peaches and apricots, in boxes and 1-lb cartoons.

T. Kinnear & Co. have in stock California prunes in 25-lb. boxes, all sizes from 40-50's to 90-100's.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, report the arrival of a fresh shipment of "Camellia" pancake flour.

Leporte, Martin & Cie. are repeating their ad. this week for the benefit of interested parties. See centre of paper.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. are doing an active trade in 1-lb. creamery lots at, they report, 1c. lower than general quotations.

Robert Greig & Co. are quoting close prices on Valencia shelled almonds and Grenoble shelled walnuts to arrive.

T. Kinnear & Co. are in receipt of a shipment of 3 and 4-crown California loose muscatel raisins; also seeded raisins.

W. H. Gillard & Co. invite inspection and test of their Ceylons and Japans, of which they have a large and well selected range.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, have received their fall importation, comprising a full assortment of Crosse & Blackwell's goods.

Burnham's Jellycon, Royal Salad Dressing, and Robinson's groats and barley are in stock again with Lucas, Steele & Bristol.

Warren Bros. & Co. have a large shipment of Sultana raisins arriving this week. The quality is reported choice and the value good.

Laporte, Martin & Cie. are offering at close figures vinegar in draught, also in 1, 2 and 4 imperial gallon jars, for immediate delivery.

Orange marmalade, "Seville" brand, put up specially for W. H. Gillard & Co., is this year reported to be better than ever. It is put up in 7-lb. pails, 6 to a crate.

Parties holding small quantities of apples may have them stored with the Dawson Commission Co., Limited, who have good storage facilities.

"We have 3 grades of raw sugars, 6 of yellow and 5 grades of granulated, which we are now offering at bargain prices," write Laporte, Martin & Cie.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol have a large assortment of early Japans, special lines, ranging from 16 to 19c. Their "Golden Key" brand is just in store.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, are quoting special prices for Georgian Bay herrings in 100-lb. kegs, f.o.b. Midland, for which they have the exclusive sale in this market.

Attention is called to Lucas, Steele & Bristol's advertisement. It is a pity the firm had to put forward in such a prominent way their well-known trade mark.

"We have sold the greater portion of the 500 bags of Singapore tapioca, advertised by us in THE CANADIAN GROCER last week, and have another consignment on the way," say the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

C. H. Peebles, a prominent Hamilton grocer, speaking of Shinon, says: "I did not take much stock in the stuff at first, but I feel now it is the best shiner I ever saw. Just look at these scales."

MATCH OF A MATCH MAN.

The head office of the E. B. Eddy Co., Limited, Hull, appears to be a good place for matrimonial matches, as well as parlor matches. Twice within a period of two weeks has there been a marriage among the members of the staff. The second victim of what one member of the staff termed a fatal result of courtship is Mr. Alexander Burnett, who has had charge of the advertising department of the Eddy Company for some years. The bride was Marguerite, widow of the late Willie Howe, of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa. The marriage ceremony was performed in Montreal. Mr. Burnett is well known throughout Canada, and THE CANADIAN GROCER joins with them in tendering congratulations.

Ceylon India

May well clasp hands on the success their teas have attained in the markets of the world. They have practically forced out China Teas in Great Britain. MANITOBA MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 1, 1897.

WITH regard to the wheat situation, the whole country is practically paralyzed for want of cars. Prices have advanced from 3 to 4c. during the week, and the current price to farmers is 80c. per bushel. Farmers, having finished fall ploughing, are delivering wheat freely. Sample continues extra, and from 75 to 80 per cent. of the crop will grade No. 1 hard. The new arrangement with regard to sugars seems to be working fairly well. On lots under 250 barrels there is a discount of 2½ per cent., lots of 250 barrels and over, discount of 3½ per cent. The only people likely to complain are the refiners, as their agents here have to carry very heavy stocks to meet the demand for 250-barrel lots, and these stocks are taxed in Winnipeg. Trade on the whole is good and payments fairly well met. The weather is growing colder and this will tend to improve trade. There are a few changes of interest to report for the week. In green fruit there is a very decided change in this market, several new lines being in while some of the others are out entirely. Peaches are out of sight for this season; tomatoes, ditto. No more Concord and Red Rogers grapes will come forward and the stocks here are being very rapidly cleared out. Probably owing to unusually warm weather in the east the winter apples arriving from Ontario have not been in very satisfactory condition and it is thought American goods will be the safest for another month. However, Ontario winter fruit is arriving in great quantities at Fort William. Jamaica oranges are in and are a particularly fine sample. Price, in cases, $6.50 to $7 and in barrels, $13. Malaga grapes, medium weight, $8; heavy do., $8.50; California Tokay grapes, $2.75 to $3. Bananas—Few vessels have escaped the quarantine and these are selling at fancy prices. Lemons continue a good sample and are ranging from $5 to $5.50 per case. Cape Cod cranberries are not very plentiful and readily bring $13 per barrel. Arkansas and Missouri apples, $2 to $2.50 per barrel; Ontario winters, by carload, $4.25; in jobbing way, $4.50. Some dealers here are holding off until they feel more assured of the keeping qualities of the Ontario apples.

FISH—We are just beginning to have a market in this line. Finnan haddies are selling at 11c. and oysters at $2.50 per gallon.

EVAPORATED FRUITS—Apples are now being offered in limited quantities, some two or three cars of California evaporated stock having been sold in this market; the goods turned out much better than anticipated. Dried apples seem scarce and are only offering in very small quantities. Evaporated apples are jobbing here at 10½c., while no price has yet been fixed for new dried.

PRUNES—Prunes are about the same, namely 6 to 8c., according to size. Of course, all these goods are California, no Bosnia prunes having reached this market as yet, nor are they likely to do for some time. Evaporated raspberries, 18c.; fancy peeled peaches, 15c.; fancy unpeeled, 11 to 11½c.

DRIED FRUITS—In raisins, the market is firm and prices of Valencias unchanged. Fine off-stalk, $1.70 to $1.75, according to brand. Some new California muscatels have arrived and have turned out better than anticipated; price, 6½c. per lb. Figs of cooking variety not in; a few cases of Elemes have arrived, but quality is not suitable to first-class trade; they sell at 14½ to 15½c. Currants, cases, 6¾ to 7c.; barrels, 6½ to 6¾c.; no fancy Vostizzas in the market.

NUTS—Everybody wants Grenoble walnuts, but, as none are in the market, everybody has to go without. From latest advices it looks as if these nuts would not reach this market before December 1. Old stock is entirely cleared out, and it is doubtful if there is such a thing as a bag of Grenoble walnuts in Winnipeg. Tarragona almonds continue at prices last quoted, 11 to 11½c. Cocoanuts of a very extra quality are selling at $1 per doz. Ontario chestnuts, 15c. per lb.

RICE—Market about same. Japan not offering to any extent. Principal sales have been in Rangoon and China at 4¾ to 5c. per lb.

SYRUPS—Market strong and fairly active. A Montreal refinery is showing a nice fancy article, but the price is still a shade too high. Fancy bright stock is worth 3 to 3⅛c. per lb. according to size of package.

CHEESE—Market a little easier owing to Ontario offering at fairly reasonable rates.

BUTTER—Creamery, no stocks being held and almost all factories closed. Highest price paid, 20c. Dairy, not much moving, but now plowing is over fresh rolls and pats will begin to come in. Price 14 to 16, according to quality.

EGGS—Dealers are buying at 16 and selling to jobbers at 17 to 17½. Supply is not large.

CEREALS—Market very firm. A few cars of American rolled oats have been brought in to this market. The quality is good, but it is to be hoped that our millers will soon have sufficient stock to make the price such as to prevent the importation of an article which strictly belongs to Manitoba. Price of rolled oats, $1.60 for car lots.

CURED MEATS—Market steady and demand good, but owing to packing houses here being short of material, considerable is being brought in from the United States. Hams are worth 11c. Extra short clear, American, 7¾ to 8c.; shoulders, 8½c. Breakfast bellies are very scarce here and hard to obtain, most of the American packers having none to offer.

LARD—Market is firm. All the stock here is American. Local and farmer rendered not yet on the market. Price, $1.62 for 20-lb. pails, and $4.25 for 50-lb. pails.

DEATH OF G. I. WALKER.

George I. Walker, ex-Customs collector of Aylmer, died in that town a few days ago. Some years ago deceased had a paralytic stroke in Chicago, from which he never recovered. He leaves a widow and one son.

The Aylmer correspondent of The St. Thomas Journal, referring to the death of Mr. Walker, says: "He was an energetic business man, and had a wide reputation as a pork buyer and commission merchant. When Aylmer was in her infancy he bought the Van Patter farm, had it surveyed and laid out in town lots, which is now Ward No. 3, and familiarly known as Walkertown. In conjunction with his brother, Edward, he carried on an extensive cabinet and hardware business. Deceased was a Conservative in politics, a scholarly and fluent speaker and took a prominent part in the many electoral battles fought in East Elgin. His greatest delight, perhaps, was in the study of poetry, of which he was particularly fond. He was born in Monahan, Ireland, his parents coming to Canada when he was a mere lad. He was in the 55th year of his age. Besides his widow and son, Percy, his brothers, Edward, William and John, and sisters, Mrs. Alex. Love and Charlotte, survive him. Deceased carried life insurance to the amount of $3,500.

EXPORTS OF ALMONDS.

A letter from Malaga, dated October 14, from Rein & Co., states that exports of Jordan and Valencia almonds for the season of 1896-97 were 57,940 boxes. From July 1 to October 14, 1897, there were shipped 24,000 boxes. It was estimated that the stock remaining in Spain at the latter date was 15,000 to 16,000 boxes, making the visible supply for America nearly fifty per cent. less than last year.

WHAT OIL WILL DO.

IN the good old days the powers of a man were measured by the depth of his potations and his ability to drink his fellows under the table. The gay blades of a century ago were designated by their bottle capacity, i.e., an ordinary sort of a fellow was a two-bottle man, a slightly superior one, a three-bottle man, and so on, until the six-bottle man really stood close to the top shelf of popularity.

While this public cognizance is no longer given to the consumption of liquor as a fine art, still it is not to be gainsayed that the man who "holds his liquor well" is still an individual envied by his fellows. In no place or profession is this liquor-carrying capacity more in evidence than when the officers on the men-of-war of the various nations entertain each other. In these affairs it becomes a mater of national and professional pride that the other fellow first seeks "the seclusion that his cabin grants," as the lamented and Pinaforeish Admiral Sir Joseph Porter has remarked.

For years the Russians have held undisputed supremacy in these naval bouts, with the British officers a very close second, while America was but an indifferent third. Failing in their liquor carrying capacity, either through inheritance or lack of early training, the American officers proceeded to make a close study of the situation and its demands. The result of this study was recently disclosed by an old retired admiral, who while sitting around a table at his club spun the yarn in this fashion:

"Let me give you a tip that I learned when I was on the China station. You are pretty good drinkers, and you can hold your own with anybody east, west, north or south who tries to put you under the table. But unless you carry out my plan don't you ever stack yourselves up against an Englishman and especially an army or naval officer.

"You could knock them out on whisky, but they don't drink it, except in the shape of smoky Scotch and Irish concoctions, but with champagne, Burgundy, claret, ale, sherry, Madeira, port, pulque in Mexico, saki in China, palm liquor in Africa, bamboos and shandygaff in India steer clear of them—that is, unless you have the good luck to meet a certain little yellow-faced, wizened creole from Louisiana, whose recipe is passed around the mess tables of the United States men-of-war to this day.

"It started in the old days when the British officers always had the pleasure of outstaying their American guests whenever two ships met on a foreign station. Then that little yellow devil came along with his trick and the Englishmen have never since come out better than second in any drinking bout. The secret? Olive oil. One wineglassful before the fun begins, and if possible, another later on, and you can keep your wit and legs throughout the dampest evening.

"I suppose one of two things happens. Either the oil coats the stomach and keeps the alcohol from being absorbed by the system, or else it floats on top and keeps the fumes from rising to the brain. But you'll have to ask the medicine men about that. All I know is its practical result, and that has enabled us Yankee Doodles to go home cheerful and clear-headed many an evening, when our foreign cousins were speechless."
—The Liquor Trades' Review.

"LIMITED."

We were amused the other day by a dispute we overheard regarding the use of this word in connection with the name of a certain business firm, says American Investments. One of the speakers was quite positive that it meant the firm was restricted by some peculiar and unknown law or some special agreement between the partners of which the public and creditors know absolutely nothing; that business was limited to certain specified transactions or lines, and that when these were transgressed the firm had no legal standing. The other was equally sure that it meant the number of persons equally interested in the business was confined to those publicly known and advertised as such.

The true import of the word "limited" when used in a commercial sense should be known by every business man, and this duty is all the more imperative because the term is so frequently met with in these days. The custom of using it was brought over from England many years ago, and may be said to have been comparatively unknown a quarter of a century since.

The term applies only to the extent of the liability of the members of a partnership or corporation. This limitation is not necessarily equally distributed among those concerned in the business, but may vary in amount as agreed upon, one being liable to one-half the capital stock and the remainder being distributed among a dozen or more of the remaining shareholders. In such cases the very law that gives authority or privilege of making these limitations also requires that the word "limited" shall always be used in connection with the firm or corporation. Wherever it is seen it stands as a post of warning to all that they must look out and satisfy themselves as to the liability of the firm members. There is nothing unfair in adopting it. On the contrary, it is eminently fair and just that outsiders should not presume that, because a man of means has become identified with a firm, his ability is equal to that of a less responsible member. One may desire to undertake a certain venture and be willing to risk his investment, but no more. His use of the word "limited" enables him to do so.

The authorities at the local Manitoba immigration office say that 8,000 settlers have gone to the Prairie Province this year, exclusive of the 6,000 farm laborers, a large number of whom will probably locate there. This breaks the record for many years past.

CONFIDENCES MAY NOT BE VIOLATED.

The Supreme Court of Michigan has just rendered a decision upholding the decision of Judge Adsit of the Circuit Court, which is of importance to all operators in new fields of invention, employers and employes, where of necessity the knowledge of secret processes is imparted to trusted assistants. The case decided was that of the O. & W. Thum Co., manufacturers of Tanglefoot Fly Paper, against one of its former employes who had threatened to impart to others the information he had acquired while in the employ of this company. It is of interest to all proprietors and inventors of specialties to know that their formulæ and methods, the product of their invention and labor, are considered by the courts as property with rights inviolable, and their employes who are taught and learn the process of manufacture and the composition of the product, are not free to part with such information to others for a consideration, nor even to engage in the manufacture of such specialties on their own account. The decision was based upon points of law and of common justice and will give eminent satisfaction to all engaged in the manufacture of such specialties.

RASPBERRIES IN OCTOBER.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS OF TORONTO.

COUNTRY merchants shipping produce to Toronto have probably never seen the commission merchants who find a market for the same, and consequently have little or no idea whether they are good-looking or bad-looking. With the object of supplying the desideratum, and also telling briefly the history of some of the principal firms, the following photogravures and sketches are supplied. We only regret that a limited space precludes more extensive references.

Mr. D. Gunn.

Mr. A. Gunn.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. have been in the produce commission business since early in the seventies, and the present senior partner, Mr. D. Gunn, has been in connection with the business from its foundation. He has always taken charge of the "outside" work, buying, selling, etc., till at present it is safe to say he is personally known in every town and village in Ontario. Mr. A. Gunn has been in the firm for about 10 years, during which time he has looked after the firm's correspondence, etc. Mr. John A. Gunn has been with the firm about 8 years, and was admitted into partnership two years ago, and now has charge of the book-keeping, etc.

The firm do an extensive business as pork packers, and a large trade as handlers and exporters of butter, eggs and cheese. They are also curers of the "Maple Leaf" cured meats and lard. They have fine cold storage facilities, and employ from about 25 hands in summer to over 50 hands in the winter.

Mr. Rutherford.

Sold to Rutherford & Marshall. Nov 9/98

Mr. Marshall.

The Wm. Ryan Co., Limited, Front street east, Toronto, was established in 1872 by the late Wm. Ryan, who controlled the business till his decease. Since last year the business has been carried on under the present firm name, and under the management of Mr. James T. Madden, who entered Mr. Ryan's employ in 1878, since which time he has been successively book-keeper, confidential clerk and manager. Though Mr. Madden is a native of Great Britain he has resided in Toronto for thirty-two years. The Wm. Ryan Co., Limited, do extensive business as pork packers, curers of fine classes of smoked meats, commission merchants, and handlers of all sorts of produce on consignment. They are also buyers and shippers of large quantities of dried and evaporated apples, butter, cheese and eggs; in fact do a general commission business.

Mr. James T. Madden.

The firm of Rutherford, Marshall & Co. was established in 1892, at 76 Front street east, and rapidly developed to such an extent that in 1895 they were compelled to seek larger and more commodious quarters, which were secured at No 62 Front street east, where they are now located. Mr. Rutherford successfully conducted a general store for fifteen years in Perth and Haldimand counties prior to opening out in Toronto; hence he is in a position to know the requirements of the country trade. Mr. Marshall was connected with the firm of W. R. Marshall & Son, of Stratford, for twenty years in buying and exporting butter, cheese, apples, etc., to European and other foreign markets, thus giving him a thorough training in this line. Besides its regular city trade the firm has an extensive shipping outlet reaching to every province in the Dominion, as well as to European markets.

Mr. John A. Gunn.

Mr. J. A. McLean, Colborne street, has been in the commission business for about ten years, commencing with D. Gunn, Flavelle & Co., Front street east, as driver of one of their delivery wagons, and rising till he held the responsible position of head book-keeper. About three years and a half ago he severed his connection with this firm, and opened up in his present premises in partnership with C. J. Graham, which partnership continued until last March, when Mr. Graham retired, and went into business for himself. Mr. McLean is doing a steadily increasing business in receiving goods on consignment or buying outright, handling eggs, butter, cheese, lard, smoked meats and poultry.

Mr. J. A. McLean.

Dawson & Co. begun business in Brampton thirty years ago, opening a branch in Toronto four years ago. This summer the Toronto branch of the firm were incorporated under a Dominion charter under the style, The Dawson Commission Co., Limited, with authorized capital of $60,000 and a subscribed capital of $32,000, but have just begun to act under this charter of incorporation. Their business is the handling of all kinds of foreign and domestic fruits, produce, butter, eggs and poultry on commission. The company is also an extensive exporter of apples and poultry to the British and continental markets. Mr. H. W. Dawson, manager of Dawson & Co., and who has been in the commission business since his childhood, will continue as manager of the new firm.

Mr. H. W. Dawson.

HOW ABOUT YOUR STOCK OF BISCUITS ?

The flies are gone for this year and it will pay you to give more prominence to your biscuits. Give them a good place in your store and see the result. A dozen of our Glass Fronted tins of fine biscuits would assist your trade. Give them a trial. Remember our CREAM SODAS in 3-lb. tins. They are reliable goods.

Vol. XI. (Published Weekly) TORONTO AND MONTREAL, NOVEMBER 12, 1897 ($2.00 per Year) No. 46

DISCOLORATION IN CANNED LOBSTERS.

THE discoloration in canned lobsters, the cause of the discoloration and the means to prevent the loss caused by it, have occupied a great deal of attention for some time, as has been frequently made mention of in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

The lobster industry occupies an important place among Canadian fishing industries, ranking fourth in importance, the cod, the salmon and the herring interest being the leaders. The exports of lobsters from Canada amounted to $2,489,995 last year.

The Canadian lobster grounds are the most remarkable in the world, but owing to the discoloration of Prince Edward Island goods, there has arisen a prejudice against canned lobsters from this province. Other provinces have not been entirely free from this evil either.

In May last year, the Canadian Government appointed Prof. McPhail, professor of pathology in the University of Bishop's College, Montreal, to make an inquiry into the causes leading to the deterioration in canned lobsters, a report of which enquiry has just been published.

MANNER OF INVESTIGATION.

Prof. McPhail communicated with packers, buyers and dealers in the Maritime Provinces, Great Britain and the United States, asking them the following questions :

1st. What do you consider the causes of the depreciation in the quality of canned lobsters?

2nd. What, in your opinion, is the annual loss to the lobster-packing industry through this deterioration?

In reply he received answers from many of the leading dealers in Great Britain and the United States, all of whom agreed that the loss was a very material one, some estimating it as high as $900,000 per annum. The deterioration in the quality of the goods was variously referred to as "blackening" or "smut," and other cans were known as "sour," "acid," "fermented" and "blown."

The various kinds of discoloration pointed to a variety of causes, and Prof. McPhail made a thorough search into these causes by visiting the canneries and personally conducting experiments to find these causes and the remedy, meeting throughout with entire success.

Seven different causes were found during these experiments, six of them due to wrong methods of preparing cans and canning the goods, the seventh due to bacterial action.

An exhaustive bacteriologic study was undertaken, in order to do which a laboratory was established in Charlottetown, P.E.I., where abundant material was accessible.

METHOD OF CANNING.

The present method of canning lobsters is given in Prof. McPhail's report. He says that, though the packers are using their best efforts to secure satisfactory results, their factories are "mere hovels, with inadequate appliances for ordinary cleanliness."

The factories are seated upon the shore, with stages leading into deep water for the accommodation of boats, or the buildings themselves are at the end of a stage connecting with the shore. Here the boats come, laden with lobsters from the traps, and they are then counted out. They are shovelled into casks and at once thrown into a vat and boiled fifteen minutes, though in many cases it is half an hour before all the lobsters are out. They are then thrown upon large tables to cool, and, whencool, the body is broken from the tail, and the claws removed by striking against the side of a barrel, into which they fall.

The tails are then taken to the "tail table," and the meat is either pushed out from behind with a suitable instrument or pulled out in front with a fork. The claws are cracked and the meat shaken out ; the "arms" are split lengthwise, and the "arm-meat" taken out with a fork. Next the tails are split and the gut removed. The blood which has coagulated in the claws and tails is removed by washing in sea water, care being taken to remove as much as possible of the "green gland," which, in boiling, has tinged the upper part of the tail. The meat is placed in strainers, and is soon ready to be packed.

The cans are two sizes, namely, 1 lb. and ½ lb., and of two shapes, tall and flat. They are lined on the bottom and sides with vegetable parchment of suitable shape. The tails are curled up and placed in the bottom ; then comes a little arm meat, and the claws are laid in rows on top. Salt is added in various ways, before the meat and after, and either dry or in the form of pickle. The meat is then "pressed," the can "wiped," the paper lining is put on, and finally the can is covered and sealed.

When the day's catch is in the cans the "bathing" begins. A huge vat of water is kept boiling by a hardwood fire in a brick furnace, and the cans are swung into this on trays by a crane, and left about an hour and a half. The trays are then hoisted out and placed on a rack. The cans are now punctured, the steam and air rush out, and the opening is sealed. The ends of the cans are now "concaved" by atmospheric pressure. The trays are again lowered and left in the boiling water for an hour, and after cooling gradually are packed, 48 lb. or 96 ½-lb. cans to the case.

DEFECTS OF THE METHOD.

As has before been stated, this method in various ways was defective. Insufficient care had been taken to prevent dirt off the tables, cans, etc., from getting into the meat ; the manner of boiling did not sterilize the bacteria in the meat, and the puncturing of the tins aided bacterial action, as bacteria thrives best in the absence of air. Often too, resin, used in soldering cans, was left in the tins, causing discoloration.

Prof. McPhail's experiments led him to adopt a method, which he followed in packing many cases, that have remained for 15 months quite free from discoloration, and have satisfied the British dealers.

METHOD OF CANNING RECOMMENDED.

The following is an abstract of the method of canning he recommends :

1. Boil the live lobsters 12 to 15 minutes in sea-water which is renewed daily.

2. Cool on lime-washed tables and break off as soon as possible.

3. Pull the tails, remove meat from arms and claws. Place separately in pans which have been cleansed in boiling freshwater.

4. Front split the tail, remove every trace of gut, wash off green gland in cold fresh water.

5. Wash a second time in fresh water which has been boiled and cooled. (If the water is taken from a spring or a deep, pure well, this boiling is unnecessary.)

6. Place in earthenware dishes and cover with clean cotton, which has just been boiled in fresh water.

7. Wash the claws in the same way, removing all coagulated blood and drain dry.

8. Cleanse all cans, removing resin with turpentine, and all other stains with methylated spirit or other suitable fluid, wash in cold fresh water and wipe dry with clean cloth. Do not touch inside of cans afterwards with fingers.

9. Insert linings, which must be kept free from dust in the original packages.

10. Place the salt in the can, one to two teaspoonfuls to the pound ; salt to be of the best quality.

11. Place the lobster in the cans by hand, handling the meat as little as possible, with absolutely clean hands. Let the meat be quite dry.

12. Cover, wipe and seal at once.

13. Concave the cover as much as possible, before the blow-hole is sealed, by pressing down the middle.

14. Bathe at once, the pound cans 50 minutes to one hour, the half-pound cans 45 to 50 minutes, in fresh water, renewed daily and boiling vigorously.

15. Remove and cool. Do not puncture. Keep cool.

16. After 12 to 15 hours bathe again, the pound cans 50 minutes, the half-pound 40 minutes.

17. Remove and keep cool. Do not puncture.

18. After 12 to 15 hours bathe again, the pound cans 40 minutes, the half-pounds half an hour.

19. Remove and keep cool. Do not puncture.

20. In very hot weather repeat No. 18 after another 12 hours.

21. Do over any leak and treat as a fresh can.

22. Before commencing "scald" in fresh water all vessels, tables, knives, forks, cloths, etc., which are likely to come in contact with the meat.

23. Let the shortest possible time elapse between breaking off and packing and between sealing and bathing. Bathe in small lots rather than wait till the day's catch, if large, is sealed.

24. Allow no bodies, refuse or other offal to accumulate about the factory, or to be thrown into the water around it. Factories built in water should have a free, clean flow at every tide ; those built on shore are to be kept clean as above mentioned, within and without.

CALIFORNIA PRUNES.

In reviewing the California prune market The California Fruit Grower, in its annual harvest number, says : "In 1887 the California output was only 1,825,000 pounds. In the same year the imports of foreign prunes aggregated over 92,000,000 pounds. In 1896 the California prune output, a very short one at that, was 55,200,000 pounds. In the fiscal year 1896-97 the imports of foreign prunes aggregated but 710,028 pounds. Of the California output of prunes in 1896 the Santa Clara Valley shipped about 39,000,000 pounds. This, or a better proportion, it maintains every year. It will be seen then that the Santa Clara Valley has the greatest interest in the future of the industry. The San Joaquin Valley and Sonoma, Solano, Sacramento and northern counties are also large prune growing sections. A considerable portion of the entire crop of the state reaches market in a fresh state—that is, not cured."

BAYONNE BLADDER HAM.

Cut the neck cutlets down to the sixth rib, take out the bones, remove the outer layer of fat, remove the meat from the five ribs down to the thick part, so as to leave the round, nice, lean lump of neck cutlet meat ; rub with fine salt and put layer of salt between each layer ; pour in sufficient aromatic brine to cover the meat, leaving an inch of the liquid on top yet, weigh down somewhat and allow to remain in the brine from 8 to 10 days, according to the thickness ; after that take out and, when not needed for immediate use, let them lie dry four or five days in a heap, to make them more juicy.

Press them with the hands to a nice round shape, put into a beef gut, not too wet ; tie lengthwise and then wind the string around them, beginning from the thicker end ; the rolls to be about one-third of an inch apart, having the casing fit tightly. Make a noose on one end, put a stick through the casing to avoid dropping out, and tie the stick also. Now put all the hams into boiling water for 8 to 10 seconds, taking care to pierce the casings previously for air.

Then hang up in a dry place until the hams appear like a dry bladder. In winter use a warmed room at about 68 to 70 deg. F. ; then put in smoke rather high. Smoke like cervelat sausage, adding juniper berries. When smoked the hams are kept in the store in an airy place. When sliced they look marbled, cherry-red, and have a nice and tender taste.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

Keeping Customers.

Every retail grocer has two classes of trade, that of regular customers and that of people who do not buy at any one particular place. The opinion of the best men in the business seems to be that the trade of the regular customers is the strength, the backbone, of the business. As this is the case, this cutting of rates to catch trade is not as beneficial as it may appear, for, although it may bring a few people into the store, these are generally bargain-hunters, and are hard to keep. It should always be remembered that after goods are bought the customer remembers where they were got, and if they are not as represented it is probably one customer lost. Another way customers are lost is through the feeling that they are not getting the value for their money they might get, and they leave their regular grocer to see if they can do better. Then they are ashamed to come back. A grocer might regain such customers as these by making it a point to see them, and in a friendly tone ask them if they are not going to call in and see him any more. If they are not satisfied with the change they had made this is very likely to bring them back.

A Neat Window.

Sometimes after a grocer has undressed his window he finds himself unable to take the time to re-dress it as he had intended. Often in such a case he contents himself with a careless display of some common article. There is no necessity for a poor window if one's time is limited, as was evidenced by a window I noticed on Queen street, Toronto, last week. The background of the window was brightened by a row of salmon cans piled one above the other. In front of these was a row of 1-lb. tea packages, and in the front of the window was a semi-circular row of corn starch, surmounted by lemon and vanilla, flavoring extracts, and a smaller row, also semi-circular, of vanilla standing closely together on the floor of the window. The whole display was simple and strikingly effective.

Being Oneself.

"Half the grocers who are not very successful are always kicking about one thing or another that their competitors are doing, while the fault is entirely with themselves," said a retailer. "If they would just be themselves and do what they thought best instead of waiting to see what the other fellow did they would come out ahead all right." There is a lot of truth in the point, for there are altogether too many men in business who are depending for their ideas on somebody else, instead of making use of their own sense and developing their own originality.

Rainy Day Brightness.

Many days during the last couple of weeks have been regular fall days. The rain has been falling, or rather, drizzling, all day, dampening the spirits as well as everything material exposed to it. But, as evening advances, and one after another the stores and offices throw their glittering light on the damp asphalt, where it is weirdly exaggerated, and as the brightly-lit street cars come along clanging their bells, there is indeed many a picture which for beauty and for suggestions of mysticism is rarely equalled in city life. As a rule, a night like one of these is not very good for business, but yet the fact remains that the store which is bright and attractive on such a night is the one that secures the bulk of the trade.

Produce Window.

I saw a window on King street west, Toronto, this week which caught my eye. The floor was covered with straw, and on this were a couple of Canadian dairy cheese and some bacon. The bacon was piled in the centre of the window with straw between the layers. The cheese were on either side, and on top of them were some English stilton, as dark and rich as one might imagine. Some Canadian stilton, but which lacked the "strength" of the English; MacLaren's "Imperial" cheese too, was in evidence, while pickles of many sorts, some canned goods, etc., were scattered around in a free and easy way that made the window an interesting one.

THE RAMBLER.

LUMBER IN SOUTH AMERICA.

W. L. Lovitt's steel barquentine Hillside finished loading lumber on Saturday for Buenos Ayres. She takes what is probably the largest cargo of spruce lumber ever shipped from the Maritime Provinces to a South American port. In her hold she carries 388,653 feet of boards from 12 to 16 feet long, and from 3 to 12 inches wide. Her deckload consists of 191,604 feet of spruce boards and scantling, making in all 580,257 feet. This load is 141,000 feet over her registered tonnage and is 78,000 feet more than her load from St. John on her last voyage. Her deckload is 7 feet 6 inches high. The cargo was furnished by Parker, Eakins & Co., and was loaded by Capt. John B. Crosby, of Tusket. Capt. C. says he could have stowed five or ten thousand feet additional under deck if the under deck cargo had partly been made up of scantling.—News, Yarmouth, N.S.

TEN CARLOADS OF STOVE POLISH.

Morse Bros. recently received orders for over ten carloads of "Rising Sun" and "Sun Paste" stove polish in one day. This gives some idea of the enormous consumption and great demand for these articles of household use. Morse Bros. claim their new "Sun Paste" stove polish is larger in quantity and as much better in quality than any other paste polish as their old reliable "Rising Sun" stove polish in cakes is better than any other dry polish. It is already commanding a large sale.

TRADE CHAT.

J. T. GORDON, of Gordon & Ironside, said to a Free Press representative that last week his firm did the largest cattle shipping business in the history of the Northwest trade, for any one week. Sixteen hundred head were sent to Chicago, 2,000 to the East and 500 stockers were brought up from Ontario for western ranches. Up to date the shipments for the year number 40,000 head and 4,000 more will be sent out before the season closes.—Free Press, Winnipeg.

George S. Fenwick, a leading wholesale grocer in Kingston, is dead.

The exports of Stratford district show an increase this year over last of $48,596.

H. Waddell, of Dresden, has opened up a small grocery in the west end on James street, Wallaceburg.

The entire tobacco crop of Essex county has been bought up by eastern cigarmakers at prices ranging from 9 to 22 cents.

The lobster factory of Woodman Bros., Alberton, situated at Kildare, P.E.I., was burned the other night. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The capital stock of the Soho Cheese and Butter Manufacturing Co., of Blenheim, has been increased from the sum of $2,500 to the sum of $3,000.

Shipments of potatoes to West India ports have been very heavy this fall. Big prices are prevailing, although falling slightly. One Shediac dealer claims to have shipped $30,000 worth of tubers.—Herald, Halifax.

Egan Bros.' west end grocery store, St. Thomas, was burglarized the other night. The thieves got away with $12—two $5 bills and some silver. Nothing else in the store was missed. Some person familiar with the building is suspected.

Elliott & Mitchell, apple buyers, have purchased 4,000 barrels in Huron county at $1.50 to $1.75 a barrel, while D. Cantelon, the Clinton apple king, made a shipment of 2,700 barrels of apples to the Glasgow market recently, and expects to follow it up with 3,500 barrels. He has 60 packers at work and by the time the season wanes will have sent abroad 15,000 barrels of prime Canadian fruit.

Mrs. Thomas Stanfield, Nolan street, brought into The Times office two sprays from red and black raspberry bushes grown in her garden on which were twenty or thirty of the finest berries. Very good for November 1.—Times, St. Thomas.

The Ingersoll correspondent of The London News, says: "Thomas Seldon, the local apple buyer, was in Delhi yesterday. It is understood that there is a very good crop of the fruit, although not as large as last season, and they were of a very fair variety."

Mr. Richard Butler, a Thamesford apple buyer, has shipped three carloads of apples to the Northwest, the selling price being $2.75 per barrel. The majority of his fruit, however, will be shipped to the Old Country. He expects to ship altogether about 3,000 to 4,000 barrels.

Shipments of winter apples from Eastern Canada to Manitoba are on the increase. The apples from the Southern States are not in great favor, and dealers prefer to buy Ontario apples at a higher price rather than depend altogether on Missouri and Kansas for the supply.—Free Press, Winnipeg.

The Beaver Line Steamship Co. notified the Government on Saturday that it was prepared to sign the contract for the Atlantic mail service. The call at Halifax both inwards and outwards during the winter service is made absolute, the company receiving for this over and above the regular subsidy a bonus of £500 per trip. The contract was passed at the Cabinet meeting Saturday.

Mr. James Stewart, of Lakeville, sent 15 barrels of Gravenstein apples to the London market early in the fall, and they returned him $40. Later on he sent 5 barrels of No. 1 and 5 barrels No. 2 Gravensteins, 2 barrels No. 1 Emperors and 6 No. 2, and for these 18 barrels he received £10 13s. 4d., or $51.65. This is a good sale for the kinds mentioned, as nearly half were Emperors. The fruit was of good quality and well packed, hence the good returns.

"I think the heaviest crops I saw in the province this fall," said a well-known loan company's manager, "were at Russell and north of Griswold. The wheat easily went 20 bushels to the acre. This is going to be a great country for banks, and, as you will notice, all the new branches that have been opened are managed by local men who are well acquainted with the residents of the district. A farmer of standing can easily get a loan from a bank, just as in Ontario assistance is given to a village or country merchant."—Free Press, Winnipeg.

JACK AND HIS UNCLE.

A young Irishman in want of $25 wrote to his uncle as follows:

"Dear Uncle—If you could see how I blush for shame while I am writing, you would pity me. Do you know why? Because I have to ask you for a few dollars, and do not know how to express myself. It is impossible for me to tell you. I prefer to die. I send you this by messenger, who will wait for an answer. Believe me, my dearest uncle, your most obedient and affectionate nephew.

"P.S.—Overcome with shame for what I have written, I have been running after the messenger in order to take the letter from him, but I cannot catch him. Heaven grant that something may happen to stop him, or that this letter may get lost."

The uncle was naturally touched, but was equal to the emergency. He replied as follows:

"My dear Jack—Console yourself and blush no longer. Providence has heard your prayers. The messenger lost your letter. Your affectionate uncle."

Thomas Upton & Co. have had such a run on their "Gilt Edge" orange marmalade that their stock is about run out.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, are expecting arrivals, about the 12th inst., of Malaga fruits and nuts ex ss. Bellona.

Frank Magor & Co., 16 St. John street, Montreal, are now handling a special line of Lucca oil, packed by S. Rae & Co., Leghorn, Italy, and guaranteed by them as pure olive oil of the finest quality. These goods have only recently been introduced into Canada, but repeat orders have already been received.

W. H. Gillard & Co. have just at hand a large shipment of Rio coffees showing excellent value.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, report the arrival of new Grenoble walnuts, new Tarragona almonds and new Brazil nuts.

T. B. Escott & Co. report they have ten tons of candied peels, which they desire to clear out between now and Christmas.

Thomas Upton & Co., jams, jellies, etc., Hamilton, have a fine line of pure plum jam which they can sell at a low figure.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. have bright apricots in 50-lb. cases. The high price of evaporated apples has made this line a good seller.

T. B. Escott & Co. have just in stock currants in half-cases; also "Hercules" currants in handsome 1, 2 and 3-lb. packages.

Warren Bros. & Co. have a shipment of Rio coffee which they state is showing the best value so far shown on this market this year.

T. Kinnear & Co. are in receipt of two or three lots of California evaporated apricots and peaches; also a shipment of Crosse & Blackwell's peels.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, have a shipment of green Rio coffee direct from place of growth, in transit, which they expect this week.

All lines of Southwell's jams, jellies and marmalades recently received into stock by Frank Magor & Co., Montreal, per steamers Montevidean and Ormiston.

"Our 'Gilt Edge' marmalade in pails is going fast," say Lucas, Steele & Bristol. "The glass pots of the same, packed 2 doz. in a case, are sellers at $1 per doz."

"The price at which we are selling 'Old Mill' 3-lb. peaches is bringing buyers every day," say Lucas, Steele & Bristol. "They are choice yellow and in heavy syrup."

Heinrich Franck & Sohnes' genuine German chicory, since its introduction by the Eby, Blain Co., Limited, among their coffee trade, has met with a good demand.

"Seville" orange marmalade in crates of six 7-lb. pails and cases of 2 doz. 1-lb. glass pots, manufactured expressly for their trade, is in stock with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

The following shows that people are already preparing stocks for a visit to the Klondike district. A telegram recently received by Frank Magor & Co., of Montreal, reads: "Ship twelve hundred pounds of preserved potatoes, seven-pound tins." The goods to be forwarded to Edmonton at once. These preserved potatoes are a line recently brought out, and already a run on them has been experienced. One pound weight will make from 6 to 7 lbs. of delicious mashed potatoes, by merely adding water and seasoning.

W. H. Gillard & Co. state they are showing splendid values in Ceylons and Japans, their stock being large, well assorted and bought at an advantageous point of the market.

T. B. Escott & Co. write: "We have too large stocks of Sultana raisins, and we are, in consequence, offering below market value." They are also offering natural figs in 25-lb. boxes.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, have received a second car of California evaporated fruits, enquiries for which they report having received from many points in Quebec and the Lower Provinces recently.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, have in stock this week a large consignment of "Extra Selected" Ondara layer Valencias. This fruit is splendidly cured and of uniform grade through the box. Buyers should not miss this fruit.

"Talking about package tea," said the head of the Salada Ceylon Tea Co., "we are getting on now fortnightly from England a shipment of four tons and twelve hundredweight of sheet lead. This will give you an idea of what amount of tea we are packing."

THE CODFISH CATCH.

Concerning the catch of codfish, a St. Johns, Newfoundland, despatch to The Montreal Gazette says: "Now that the season's fishery has closed, it is possible to form an approximately accurate estimate of the results. The best judges reckon that the total catch of codfish (Labrador included) will not exceed a million quintals. The worst failure has been on Labrador and in the bays of the northeast coast. From Cape St. Francis to Cape Race the fishery has been the best known for many years, the cod being large and of fine quality and very abundant. As far as Cape St. Mary's the fishery was fairly good—and from Cape Ray to Quirpon good in some places, bad in many more. A good average catch is 1,400,000 quintals, so that we are short by about 400,000 quintals. The worst of it is that the price is the lowest for many years. It is, however, certain to rise with the advent of the new year, when the congestion in foreign markets will be relieved. As a set-off, the lobster fishery of this year will be much larger than last year, and the price has risen to $9.25 and $9.40 for No. 1 pack."

THE LATE JOHN D. HAY.

THE news that Major John D. Hay, the vice-president of the Davidson & Hay, Limited, wholesale grocers, Toronto, was dead came as a thunderbolt from a clear sky. No one scarcely knew that he was indisposed. Certainly his confreres in the grocery trade did not.

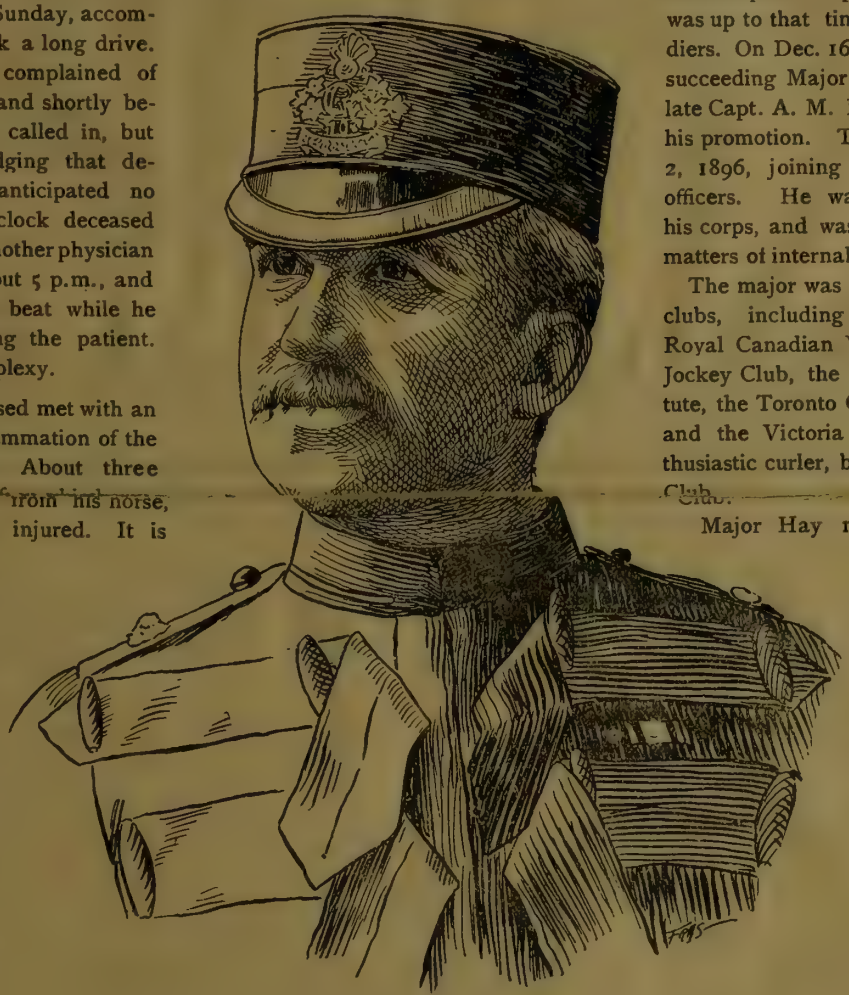
At a late hour on Friday night deceased was somewhat indisposed through what appeared to be a slight attack of inflammation of the bowels, but he felt well enough to visit the warehouse of the firm on Saturday morning. During the day he appeared to be as well as usual, and on Sunday, accompanied by Mrs. Hay, he took a long drive. On Monday morning he complained of shooting pains in his head, and shortly before noon a physician was called in, but the latter, while acknowledging that deceased was a sick man, anticipated no serious results. About 4 o'clock deceased became unconscious, when another physician was called. He arrived about 5 p.m., and Mr. Hay's heart ceased to beat while he was in the act of examining the patient. The cause of death was apoplexy.

A few years ago the deceased met with an accident which induced inflammation of the spine and a long illness. About three months ago he was thrown from his horse, when his spine was again injured. It is believed these accidents were the indirect cause of death.

In business he was energetic, and his grasp of trade matters was broader and deeper than a good many could boast of. In matters appertaining to trade and commerce he was a thinker; and few, if any, men could better gauge the commercial situation.

Among business men and men of all classes of society he was more than usually popular, while as an employer he was the ideal in the eyes of his employes. "He wasn't like a boss," sorrowfully remarked one of the firm's employes.

Major John Dunlop Hay was born on Nov. 13, 1854, and was, therefore, within five days of his 43rd birthday. He was the second and only surviving son of the late Mr. Robert Hay, M.P. for Centre Toronto, and a member of the well-known furniture firm of Jacques & Hay, afterwards R. Hay & Co. He was educated at the school kept by Mr. John Franks, first on Front street and afterwards on Adelaide street. From that school he went to Upper Canada College, where he completed his education. When a lad of about fifteen he went to Scotland, remaining for three or four years at Kinnoul, where he underwent a course of training in scientific stock-breeding. He also attended lectures for a while in the Ontario Veterinary College in Toronto, with the purpose of improving his efficiency as a stock-breeder. On his return from Scotland in the middle of the seventies he entered the firm of Hay & Paton, and went into the business of raising high-class stock at New Lowell, in the county of Simcoe. He devoted his attention chiefly to Galloways. He was also in partnership with his father in the lumber business at New Lowell. Early in the eighties he moved to Toronto, and was for some time connected with the furniture firm with which his father was so intimately associated. Then in 1886 he entered into partnership with Lieut.-Col. John I. Davidson in the firm of Davidson & Hay, which has only been broken by the major's death.



THE LATE MAJOR JOHN D. HAY.

Major Hay's military career began when on April 14, 1882, he was gazetted as second lieutenant in the Toronto Field Battery. Soon after the reorganization of the old Tenth Royals he went into the reconstructed Royal Grenadiers, his commission bearing date Jan. 4, 1884. As second lieutenant he went to the Northwest, and was present at both the Fish Creek and Batoche fights, winning the Northwest medal and clasp. He was in No. 2 Company of the battalion, under Capt., now Lieut.-Col. Mason. When Capt. Manley, the adjutant, was wounded at Batoche Lieut. Hay for some time discharged his duties. He became lieutenant on Oct. 16, 1885, in place of Lieut. Fitch. On Jan. 31, 1890, he became captain in place of his partner, who was up to that time captain in the Grenadiers. On Dec. 16, 1890, he became major, succeeding Major A. B. Harrison. The late Capt. A. M. Irving became captain on his promotion. The major retired on Dec. 2, 1896, joining the infantry reserve of officers. He was exceedingly popular in his corps, and was particularly efficient in matters of internal economy.

The major was a member of a number of clubs, including the Toronto Club, the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, the Ontario Jockey Club, the Canadian Military Institute, the Toronto Country and Hunt Club, and the Victoria Club. He was an enthusiastic curler, belonging to the Toronto Club.

Major Hay married Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. William Hendrie, of Hamilton, and leaves three children. He had three sisters, Mrs. John I. Davidson, Mrs. Turnbull, of Hamilton, and Mrs. John Kay.

The remains were interred on Wednesday afternoon in the Necropolis, and although the funeral was private, a large number of friends turned out to pay their last respects to the departed. The pall bearers were the brothers-in-law, Col. John I. Davidson, Mr. Turnbull, of Hamilton, Mr. Kay, Major Hendrie, Capt. Wm. Hendrie, G. M. Henderson, J. W. Hendrie, and John Hendrie, of Hamilton.

BOILED OYSTERS, BREADED.

Have ready a cupful of cracker crumbs, broken very fine, seasoned with melted butter or best olive oil; then roll in the crumbs and boil in a double wire boiler, turning frequently. When the oysters are slightly browned transfer to a dish piping hot, and pour on melted butter. Garnish with watercress.

THE RECIPROCITY QUESTION.

RECIPROCITY between Canada and the United States is again being revived somewhat, although it is by no means yet a live issue.

An interesting feature of the subject is that the present movement had its origin in the United States. In official circles, as well as in the columns of the newspapers, there has been some consideration of the question lately.

Only a few days ago a despatch from Washington said that the Government was favorably considering the question of recurring to the system of reciprocity for encouraging commercial relations with Canada. The despatch also pointed out what is already known, namely, that Mr. Kasson, who has been specially charged with the arrangement of reciprocity plans under the Dingley tariff, is favorable to closer trade relations with Canada.

Now, on this side of the line interest has again been partially revived in a question which for some time has been as dead as the proverbial door nail, by the presence in Washington of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Louis Davies, who, while there, primarily in regard to the seal question, will not, we are told, turn a deaf ear to any just proposition for reciprocity.

The last and only purely trade treaty Canada had with the United States went into operation in 1855, and was terminated in 1866 by the action of the United States. This treaty, in the main, provided for mutual rights of fishing in certain Canadian and United States waters, for free interchange of the products of the sea, the soil, the forest and the mine. Since then several attempts have been made to establish another treaty, but the opposition of the United States Senate has always been an insurmountable obstacle. True, the Treaty of Washington was signed in 1871, but it had nothing to do with commercial matters, and the fishery clause of that treaty was terminated in 1886.

Canada has never been averse to a reciprocity treaty with the United States which was reasonable and just. On the contrary, we have in years past been too anxious in the matter. Instead of acting the part of men, we have at times been little short of mendicants in importuning for what a good many people imagined to be a necessity to our very existence.

The welfare of one nation does not depend upon the will of another; it depends upon the energy, intelligence and patriotism of its people. Canada has learned at least the rudiments of that lesson.

We have learned, at any rate, in spite of a practically stationary export trade with what was at one time held to be our best customer, that our sales abroad have continued to expand.

Since the McKinley tariff went into force the aggregate export trade of the Dominion has increased in value over 23 per cent.; and the McKinley Bill, a good many imagined, would wreck us.

This increase has not been due to an expansion in either one or a few lines. All have shared in the increase. The products of the mine, the fisheries, the forest, animals and their products, agricultural products and manufactured products, are all exported in larger quantities. At the same time, however, it should be noted that while the exports of agricultural products in 1896 were larger than during the year which preceded the McKinley bill, as well as the year it went into operation and the subsequent one, they were not as large as in 1892, 1893, 1894 and 1895.

Of course, the increase is chiefly on British account. In 1890, the year the McKinley bill went into force, the percentage of our exports of home products to Great Britain was 48.67 per cent., and that to the United States 42.48 per cent. Last year the proportions were 57.06 and 34.57 per cent. respectively.

Although the proportion to the total exports of all other countries grouped under one heading was scarcely as large in 1896 as in 1890, yet the value of the quantities sent them was nearly two million dollars greater.

It is thus evident that as a customer of the Dominion the United States has of late years been gradually getting less important. Quite naturally we have no desire to have this continue. A country as well as a merchant would rather that each customer should increase rather than decrease its purchases.

But Canadians are by no means in the spirit to importune for a reciprocity treaty. Indeed they are not willing to take even the first step in the direction of negotiating in the matter. Time and again has this country taken the first step only to be kicked back two.

If the United States desires a commercial treaty with Canada let it come to us; and a fair proposition will receive fair and courteous consideration. For the Dominion Government to make any advances would be decidedly unpopular, to say nothing of being impolitic. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Louis Davies would do well to remember this.

If, as the despatch says, the United States Government is favorably considering the matter, well and good. If not, Canada's duty is to wait until it is so disposed.

THE PREFERENCE QUESTION.

BASED upon the principles of justice, no one creditor should have a preference over another in the distribution of an estate. That such is not now the case is one of the strongest reasons why there should be an insolvency law for the Dominion.

The giving of one creditor preference over another is wrong in principle. It was conceived in the attempt of one creditor to secure himself at the expense of another, and induces people to loan their goods or their money to persons who in many instances they know to be unworthy of credit. The practice of giving preferences is the credit system gone mad.

But aside altogether from the moral aspect of the question, there are other points from which a law forbidding preferences can be viewed.

There are, for instance, the rights of the creditor who has not been able to protect himself with a chattel mortgage or some other description of security.

But the paramount influence at the moment appears to be the desire to protect the interests of the creditor class in Great Britain, whose distance from the Canadian market has resulted in their commonly being the victim of the preference evil.

By our preferential legislation we have intimated to the British manufacturers and merchants that we desire to deal more extensively with them in the future than we have in the past. And certainly, if we are honest in the matter we should be just, as well, and exhibit our sense of justice by removing what is undoubtedly an obstacle to British trade with this country.

On account of the practice of giving preferences the British creditor has more than once suffered, and that severely. On account of this those thus victimized naturally have not a very high opinion of the commercial morality of Canadian business men.

A well-known Canadian who has been in Great Britain for some months writes: "I find a strong prejudice against Canadian business men; but I am sure it would vanish were an insolvency law enacted in which preferences were prohibited."

It is a disagreeable duty to publish statements of this kind; but our only object in doing so is to stir our people up to a sense of their duty and thereby induce them to strengthen the hands of those who are championing the cause of a Dominion insolvency law, which will not only minimize the chances of British creditors not being paid, but of Canadian creditors as well, whose business ramifications extend from one end of the Dominion to the other.

THE BELLONA'S CARGO.

Definite intelligence of the ss. Bellona's cargo was received in Montreal Wednesday. It consists of 700 tons of currants from Patras, 64,000 packages of raisins from Denia, 13,000 boxes of raisins, 2,500 boxes of almonds and 925 boxes figs from Malaga, and 500 boxes lemons from Palermo.

The bulk of the Denia raisins are sent out on order, and, of course, this may mean lower prices on Valencia raisins.

A LONDON EDITOR ASTRAY.

COMMERCE, a journal published in London, England, has some sarcastic reference to Canada and things Canadian in its issue of the 27th ult. An official volume issued by the Ontario Government giving information as to the resources of the province is the text which induces its sarcasm.

"At the present time," remarks Commerce," "when Canada looms so largely in the public estimation, and the craze for Klondike has not subsided, the book, official though it be, should be read with philosophic caution. Our Canadian brothers are uncommonly fine fellows, but with them the praise of their country has become a business. They are also sanguine with the hope of all new nations, and even their most sober utterances are not altogether free from poetry—the poetry of ingrained optimism. Our advice to all who have an idea of sampling the riches of Ontario is to make sure of sufficient means to come back if a personal acquaintance on the spot does not quite equal expectations held out. It is not everyone who is fitted to live in Canada, much less to work hard there."

Canada is thankful for all legitimate advertising she can get. Our chief weakness is that we have not advertised our country as we ought, and thus enlightened British editors who write about Canada and business men and others who, sitting in ignorance in regard to Canada's geographical position and her relation to the British Empire, address letters to "Toronto, United States of America."

Canada as a Dominion is only 30 years of age, but to our disgrace it is only within the last few years that a national sentiment has developed and that we have taken any pride in the rich and varied natural resources with which this country has been endowed. It has been foreigners, principally those from the United States, who have in many instances been the first to reveal these riches and hold them up to the gaze of the world, and not us ourselves. If "praise of their country has become a business" with Canadians THE CANADIAN GROCER is only too glad to know it.

As to optimism, God help us if we have not got it. It was optimism as to the powers of the British people to defeat its foes and "to make the rough places smooth and the valley to blossom like the rose" that made them the masters of the sea and the greatest colonizers the world has ever seen. If optimism is a sin, therefore, we got it from our forefathers. And our blood be upon their heads.

The advice to intending emigrants to take to Canada enough money to bring them back is a gratuitous insult to the Dominion. As also is the veiled insinuation that only a few persons are fittingly constituted to live in Canada.

There are practically only three classes of people this country has little desire or no desire to see step on its shores. The one is the young man who is deported from home by his father to Canada and fed on remittances from the parental treasure box. The other two classes are anarchists and paupers. None of these are "fitted to live in Canada."

What Canada courts most of all is men of brain and men of muscle. If, in addition to brain and muscle, they have money so much the better. But we would rather have men without money than men without brains. In fact the latter, be it known, are "not fitted to live in Canada."

It ill becomes the editor of Commerce, or of any other British paper, to emit venom in the form of sarcasm at Canada or things Canadian. For the position Canada occupies to-day little thanks is due to the Great Britain of years ago. When British politicians would not give a snap of their finger for the land of the maple leaf, Canada clung to the Motherland like the child to the parent who has disowned it. Canada is the important part of the British Empire she is to-day because of her loyalty, because of her sacrifice, and because of the blood she has spilt, and not because of the loyalty, the sacrifice or the blood spilt by the Motherland on our behalf.

But we have come off more than victors. Not only have we kept Canada for Britain, but we have compelled Britain to recognize and to give Canada her proper place in the Empire. Canada has forgiven the past and yields first place to no part of the British Empire in her allegiance to the Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

In the slaughtering of prices merchants sometimes kill themselves.

STATISTICAL POSITION OF CURRANTS.

STATISTICAL information from Patras in regard to currants is interesting.

Shipments from there from October 1 to the 19th of the same month aggregated 17,000 tons, making the total shipments up to that time 58,000 tons. This quantity went to the following countries, a comparison with what these countries took last year during the same period being also given :

	1897. Tons.		1896. Tons.
To London	17,210	against	13,849
To Liverpool	15,520	"	9,136
To outports	3,850	"	6,366
To United States	6,250	"	5,895
To Canada	1,320	"	1,220
To France	475	"	553
To Germany, Belgium, Holland, Austria	10,905	"	7,340
To Australia	2,612	"	2,141
To Russia	....	"	1,392
Total	58,142	against	47,892

England, it will be noticed, is the chief purchaser, having taken about 36,000 tons.

Taking as the basis the average yearly consumption of the markets given in the above table, it is estimated that they will still want about 70,000 tons more currants than they have already secured. England, it is estimated, will want 27,000 tons more ; United States and Canada, 10,000 ; Australia, 1,000 tons ; Holland, Germany, Belgium and Austria, 30,000 tons, and France, 2,000 tons.

To supply this 70,000 tons, it was estimated on October 20 that there were only about 60,000 tons of fruit available for export in Greece.

DECEPTIVE FRUIT PACKERS.

Some attempts at deception are, it appears, being practised by dried and evaporated fruit shippers in the United States.

One of the most glaring is alleged to be in regard to California evaporated peaches. In order to produce a low-priced article, certain shippers have been improperly evaporating their apricots, thereby allowing them to retain a larger percentage of water than they should. Being thus heavier in weight they can be sold at a lower price than the properly evaporated apricots.

The trouble with this fruit is that while it may be all right in appearance now, it is only a matter of time before it becomes sour and ferments.

This improperly dried fruit can usually be detected by the size of the boxes containing it, the latter being smaller than those containing the properly cured fruit.

Another misleading practice is the branding of Oregon prunes as the product of the Santa Clara Valley district in California. The prunes from the latter state are better flavored and usually of a reddish color, and the trade is beginning to discover these facts.

GROCERS AND CIGARS.

J. Bruce Payne, one of Canada's best known cigar manufacturers, believes that every grocer should handle cigars. He argues that they are a line on which substantial profits may be made, while there is little or no extra trouble connected with them. A man who wants a cigar would probably sooner go to the grocer with whom he deals regularly than to a cigar store, if the former kept what he wanted. Mr. Payne recommends his "Pebble" as a very suitable five-cent cigar for ordinary trade, while the "Pharaoh" is just the thing for those who desire a higher-priced cigar. Mr. Payne has recently secured a new representative, Mr. Chas. Runk, to cover the ground between Toronto and Montreal. Mr. Runk has been visiting the trade in Ottawa this week and will go west very shortly.

Mr. C. H. Spencer, his Maritime Province traveler, had the misfortune to severely injure his foot and has been obliged to lay off for a couple of weeks. Mr. F. W. Taylor is taking his place.

Soap has been in use 3,000 years, but some people appear never to use it.

MANUFACTURE OF ALCOHOL.

There is a proposition before the Government from the Rathbun Lumber Co. for the manufacture of wood alcohol in Canada. This is a product that is not manufactured in the Dominion. It is used in the States and found to be very cheap and perfectly suited for the manufacture of methylated spirits, such as is not drinkable. The wood alcohol leaves a charcoal, which is disposed of at a profit in the United States for smelting purposes. Up to the present there has been no market for the charcoal in this country, but now it is said that since smelting has developed into an industry in Canada the charcoal might very easily be disposed of.

SHOWS AND EXHIBITIONS.

THE world is full of schemes designed to secure the minimum of benefits to the greatest number and the maximum of benefits to the smallest number. So-called pure food shows are often of this type.

The plea that they are designed to fill a long-felt want cannot always be advanced. The only want they are designed, as a rule, to fill is the pockets of the promoters. The average pure food show and the fake advertising scheme are twins : the one induces people to take space on the floor of some building which has been rented for the "show," and the other persuades people into taking space on the roof of his circus tent or in one of the other multitudinous schemes which have been fashioned and shaped by its promoter's wits.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has for a long time been convinced that displays of manufactured goods at shows and exhibitions is money thrown away. For the time, attention and money involved in making them we are certain that any good which may accrue is dearly bought.

Just as in buying experience, so in getting good from displays at fairs, it often costs more than it is worth. As a rule, the same experience and the same measure of good results could have been obtained at one quarter the cost had ordinary business common sense been exercised before the first step was taken which led up to the particular results.

If those who are wedded to the idea that exhibits at shows, etc., are good, and they must act upon this belief, let them by all means exhibit at the Toronto, the Montreal, the Ottawa and other similar exhibitions, and not allow themselves to be deluded or persuaded into spending time and money for naught in other institutions.

One thing is certain, some pure food show promoters would never be able to float their schemes were it not for the fact that they are able to persuade business men into the venture. And the sooner these business men open their eyes to this fact and confine their energies to their own various interests the sooner will such "shows" cease to exist.

Let those who may be tempted to participate in pure food shows interview the grocers of Montreal as to their experience.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Nov. 11, 1897.

GROCERIES.

No strikingly new features have developed in the wholesale grocery during the week. On account of the competition of imported granulated sugar the price of the Canadian German granulated sugar has been reduced 3-16c. per lb., being now quoted at 3⅞c. in small lots, while the price of the foreign article has been fixed at 4 1-16c. The demand for sugar is fair for this time of the year. Canned goods remain steady in price and some efforts to get canned tomatoes at less than the ordinary figures quoted by the canners were not successful. There is a good demand for canned vegetables. Coffee is low in price, but is meeting with a fair demand from retailers. There is little doing in syrups or molasses. New Grenoble walnuts are now on this market, shipments having arrived by New York. In spices about the only feature is an easier feeling in cloves in the primary market. Teas are receiving a little more attention, but the volume of business is still light. Currants continue firm, but there is not a great deal of buying on the part of wholesalers. Valencia raisins are steady and meeting with a fair demand. The cable advises a firm market on Turkish prunes. California dried and evaporated fruits are meeting with a fair request. The lower grades of Sultana raisins are firm in the primary markets.

CANNED GOODS.

Some effort has been made during the past week, by one house in particular, to get lower offers on canned tomatoes than the packers have been offering lately, but the best he could do was 85c., while a good many were firm at 90c. He stated to THE CANADIAN GROCER that one half of the packers he wrote to, and he wrote to all as far as he knew, declared they had no goods to offer in that line. There is a moderate amount of business being done in canned goods for this time of the year. Our English exchanges note an increased demand for canned salmon in London, and prices there are ruling steady. On the local market there is nothing new to note in regard to canned salmon. We quote: Tomatoes, 85 to 90c.; corn, 65 to 85c.; peas, 85 to 87½c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90c. to $1; extra sifted, $1.25 to $1.40; beans, 65 to 80c.; peaches, $2.25 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.65 to $1 90, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $1.75 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 80 to 95c.; gallons, $2 to $2.25; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; other red salmon, $1.20 upwards, according to quality and brand; cohoes, 95c. to $1.10; canned mackerel, $1.25 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.85 to $2.95; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.35 to $1.40; 2's, $2.35 to $2.50; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16; Canadian kippered herrings, $4.50 per case.

COFFEE.

The primary market for Brazilian growths of coffee is easier, and much the same may be said in regard to Mocha coffees. We hear of quotations on the latter at about 7c. per lb. less than the figures ruling a couple of months ago. There have been some transactions in round lots during the week in Rio coffee, and wholesalers are experiencing a good demand for this description of coffee, the low price, as noted last week, stimulating the consumption. Jobbers quote green in bags: Rio, 8½ to 12½c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 12½ to 18c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 16 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

More syrups are being offered by the refiners, but the demand is merely nominal. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

Nothing new has developed in regard to molasses, the demand being only

SUGAR.

As a result of the large quantity of Austrian granulated sugar which has come upon this market during the last few weeks the Canadian refiners have seen fit to reduce slightly their price on what they term Canadian German granulated and wholesalers are now quoting this sugar at 3⅞c. per lb. in ordinary lots. Heretofore the foreign sugar has been sold at an open price, but within the last few days the wholesalers have agreed upon a uniform figure, and are now quoting ordinary lots at 4 1 16c. per lb. It might be stated that the reduction in the Canadian German granulated was 3-16c. per lb. The outside sugar markets have been somewhat unsettled during the past week. Local wholesale dealers report a fair demand for sugar for this time of the year. Quotations, except those already mentioned, are unchanged. We quote, subject to a discount of 1 per cent. 10 days: Granulated, 4 5-16c. for less than carload lots, and 4¼c. for carload lots; yellows, 3 9-16 to 3⅞ per lb.; Canadian German granulated, 3⅞c. per lb.; Austrian granulated, 4 1-16c. in bags for less than carload lots.
